ON TO HAVANA.

The Insurgents Marching Toward the Capital City.

Gen. Campos Begins to Strengthen His Lines By Throwing Up Earthworks and is Wholly on the Defensive—Campos Will Make a Last Desperate Stand.

HAVANA, via Key West, Dec. 27.—Later advices from Matanzas appear to put a far different complexion upon the operations in the field, to change the supposed victory of Campos at Coliseo into practical defeat, to increase the certainty of the alleged unchecked patriot advance, and, without question, to add to the panic of the people.

This fear, which has reached even official circles, is due to the fact that it is not known that Gen. Campos was defeated at Colon, as his sullen retreat toward this city proves, though the details of the Spanish repulse are yet unknown, except, perhaps to a few government officials.

As the situation stands at the present moment, Gen. Campos is on the defensive wholly, is in retrograde movement with his army, is flanked upon the side by Gomez and Maceo, and is closely followed by Quinlin Banderas, Nerafin Sanchez and Sacret.

The fuller details of the engagement at Coliseo, as they begin to come in and creep into circulation, show conclusively the plight of Campos. The Spanish lost heavily in the action, it is reported, and at one time, rumor says, almost certain annihilation stared the captain general in the face. At last, however, after the most desperate fighting, the government columns were able to extricate themselves and to cut their way through the machetes of the Cubans to a place of safety. They then retreated about 15 miles until they reached Simonas, where an attempt was made to reform the disordered lines. Campos is now throwing up new fortifications and erecting barricades at that point to make a fresh start, and reinforcements are being hourly sent from this city, as well as heavy cannon. Unless defeated there, the triumphant patriots will probably attack Cardenas or this before New Year's.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 27.—Advices were received from Cuba Thursday that a battle occurred Wednesday afternoon between the vanguards of the insurgents and Spanish armies, and that the Spaniards were repulsed. Col. Prat, who commanded the Spanish vanguard, was killed. Martinez Campos was present and directed the retreat of the Spaniards to Jovellanos. Campos' forces are now entrenched at that place, expecting to be attacked by Gomez's main army.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of Warden George, of the Kentucky Penitentiary—A Large Number of Youths in Confinement.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 27.—Warden George, of the Kentucky penitentiary, Thursday morning filed his annual report with the board of sinking fund commissioners. It is an exhaustive document, covering the management of the institution from December 1, 1894, to November 30, 1895. The report shows that there are 1,104 prisoners in the institution.

The largest number from any county is from Jefferson, 208. The report shows that the profits of the chair plant have not maintained the institution by $7,812. This is not as good a showing as last year, owing to the fact of a rise in the price of flour and meat, and reduction of output of manufactured articles.

There are only 750 of the 1,104 prisoners employed, and recommendation is made for employment for the idle ones. Of the prisoners confined, 363 are between ages 20 and 25, 92 from 15 to 20 and 13 under 15 years of age. It will be seen that more than one-half of the prisoners are under 25 years of age.

A house of reform is recommended for youthful criminals. Special attention is paid to the manner of punishment of prisoners, and punishment inflicted by strap has been almost entirely abandoned, and the method of standing prisoners up against a wall with their hands extended parallel with the ground was adopted.

Attention is called to the parole system, which was held unconstitutional by Gov. Brown, as an encroachment of the pardoning power. He thinks the law a good one, and states that of 99 men released under it, only six were ever returned for its violation. The fact that a prisoner is pardoned under condition of his behavior, and knowing that a violation means his reincarceration, restrains the released prisoner from any breach of law.

There were 525 convicts received last year, 249 having "common" education, 275 none at all, 355 said they had attended Sunday-school and 169 had not.

THE SMITH BILL.

Another Measure Introduced for the Relief of the Treasury—Senator Sherman and Several Representatives Pronounce It Meritorious.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The Aiden Smith bill to relieve the treasury from the menace now threatening it by the presentation of the United States notes called greenbacks and treasury notes, was introduced by the Michigan member in the house Friday. The measure was submitted by Mr. Smith to Senator John Sherman, who pronounced it meritorious in affording relief to the treasury reserve. The plan was also submitted to leading members of the house, including Congressman Dingley, Chairman Walker and others, by whom the proposition was highly commended. The bill amends section 5,191 of the revised statutes of the United States and provides that "every national banking association in either of the following cities, Albany, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee, New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San Francisco and Washington, shall, at all times, have on hand in United States notes and treasury notes, an amount in full to at least 25 per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation and of its deposits, and every other association (banking) shall at all times have on hand in United States notes and treasury notes an amount equal to at least 15 per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation and of its deposits. Whenever the United States notes and treasury notes of any association in any of the cities named shall be below the amount of 25 per centum of its circulation and deposits and whenever the United States notes and treasury notes of any other association (banking), shall be below 15 per centum of its circulation and deposits, such association shall not increase its liabilities by making any new loans or discount otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange payable at sight nor make any dividends of its profits until the required proportion between the aggregate amount of its outstanding notes of circulation and deposits and its United States notes and treasury notes has been restored, and the controller of the currency may notify any association whose United States notes and treasury notes constituting the legal reserve shall be below the amount above required to be on hand to make good such reserves, and if such association shall fail for thirty days thereafter to so make good its reserve, in United States notes and treasury notes, the controller may, with the concurrence of the secretary of the treasury, appoint a receiver to wind up the business of the banking association.

According to the last report of the controller of the currency, there was $1,715,194,860.41 of individual deposits. United States deposits and deposits of United States disbursing officers in the national banks of the United States. Twenty-five per cent. the legal reserve required in reserve cities and 15 per cent. required in non-reserve cities would upon the adoption of the act immediately break the endless chain of which there is so much complaint, and those notes would be placed beyond the reach of speculators and would release $162,925,290.22 in gold now tied up in bank vaults as a part of their legal reserve.

GOLD BONDS

Out of the Question, Says Chairman Dingley to Secretary Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Chairman Dingley, of the ways and means committee, has received a letter from Secretary Carlisle, which is private, but furnishes some information concerning the condition of the treasury. Mr. Dingley will not make the letter public, but says the secretary offers to furnish the house with all data that may be needed. The condition of the treasury is represented as very serious, and Mr. Carlisle urges legislation for a gold bond. Mr. Dingley has informed the secretary that a gold bond was out of the question and could not be considered. Secretary Carlisle did not say to Mr. Dingley that a three per cent. bond can not be floated and did not discuss the feature of the case. This latter denial was made because reports to this effect concerning the secretary's letter were in circulation.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—SENATE—There was nothing of a directly warlike character in the senate discussion Saturday, but there were several very significant financial propositions and declarations. The first of these was a resolution offered by Mr. Vest (dem., Mo.) directing the secretary of the treasury to coin the silver bullion in the treasury into standard silver dollars and to pay with them the certificates issued under the law of July 14, 1890, in purchase of the bullion, also to pay the greenbacks in standard silver dollars or in gold, using whichever may be most abundant or convenient. Mr. Vest wished to have his resolution immediately considered, but objection was made by Mr. Platt (rep., Ct.), and the resolution went over for the day.

HOUSE—The message of the president, urging congressional legislation to relieve the present financial distress, was read and referred to the committee on ways and means, as was also the resolution providing for a holiday recess. It was stated by the leaders of the house that it was probable the president's recommendation would be followed and no holiday recess taken. Messrs. Bankhead and Clark (dems., Ala.) and Hutcheson (dem., Tex.) appeared on the floor for the first time this session and were sworn in by the speaker. The house then, at 12:55, adjourned until Monday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—Bills introduced Monday: To restore wool and woolen goods to the protected list. This is not the McKinley schedule, but one which is from one to three cents higher; to provide revenue by re-enacting the provisions of the McKinley bills regarding wool, manufactures of wool and agricultural products: for the relief of telegraphic operators who served during the war by making them pensionable at the same rates and under the same conditions as others in the service; for the protection of American staples and American ships by paying a bounty of from one to ten cents on agricultural products exported. A joint resolution appropriating $1,500,000 to enable the secretary of the navy to contract for a reserve supply of projectiles for the use of the navy was offered. The session of the house lasted but half an hour, when adjournment was taken until Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—SENATE—Tuesday resolutions and memorials from Ohio, indorsing the action of the president in relation to Venezuela, and in favor of recognizing the Cuban revolutionists as belligerents, were presented by Mr. Sherman (rep., O.), and referred to the committee on foreign relations. Mr. Hill (dem., N. Y.) asked the senate to take up and pass the bill introduced by him last week to repeal the statute which prohibits ex-confederate officers who had previously been commissioned officers in the United States army or navy from holding positions in the army or navy. Passed. Adjourned until Thursday.

HOUSE—Representative Northway (O.) introduced in the house Tuesday a bill directing the secretary of agriculture to establish six silk, flax and ramie experimental stations, to be located in different parts of the country. Mr. Beach (O.) introduced a bill providing for the reciprocal interchange of products between the United States and other nations, similar to the provisions of the McKinley law. Also authorizing the president to call an international conference of American republics, to meet in this city one year from the passage of this act, for the formal acceptance and declaration of the Monroe doctrine as a principle of international law. Fifty thousand dollars are appropriated to pay the expense of the United States in the conference.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—SENATE—No business of interest transacted Thursday.

HOUSE—The new tariff bill passed the house by a strictly party vote, the populists voting against the measure with the democrats. A number of private bills were introduced, such as correcting the military records of certain persons. Adjourned until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—SENATE—Friday Senator Hill introduced a joint resolution regulating bond interest and payment. The interest to be paid in gold or silver and to be no higher rate than three per cent. This caused a hot debate between Messrs. Hill and Teller. At the close of the discussion the joint resolution was allowed to remain on the vice-president's table to be taken up hereafter. The house bill for the transfer of officers from the territory of Utah to the state of Utah, was laid before the senate and passed. Mr. Quay (Rep., Pa.) offered a resolution calling on the secretary of the navy for a report as to whether it is not desirable at this time to contract for six battle ships instead of two, and asked for its adoption. "Let it lie over," Mr. Gorman (dem., Md.), interposed, and it went over. Mr. Lodge (rep., Mass.), gave notice that he would on Monday next submit some remarks on the subject of the Monroe doctrine. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of executive business, and at 2:45 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—In accordance with the decision of the committee on ways and means reached last Monday, Mr. Dingley Friday reported to the house a bill to provide for the restoration and protection of the gold reserve by the sale of three per cent. bonds, and to authorize the issue of certificates of indebtedness to meet deficiencies in revenue. The measure was debated until five o'clock p. m., when the house took a recess till seven o'clock. At that hour the debate was resumed and continued until ten o'clock, when the house adjourned till Saturday.

A LONG FIGHT.

Trouble Between Miners and Operators Over the Wage Question Promised.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 28.—A long fight between the miners and operators over the wages question for the new year is promised. Both the representatives of the miners and the representatives of the operators were in separate sessions Friday, getting ready for the fight, which will come up in joint convention. They will probably get together Saturday. The truck system is the bone of contention. The miners are determined that the company stores shall be abolished. In their convention Friday they so resolved, and will demand that where these stores are operated and miners are paid in store orders, twenty cents per ton shall be added to the price of mining. This means, of course, that the stores will be abolished if the miners succeed. The operators say they will never agree to this demand. The attendance of operators is unusually large.

A CRY OF FIRE

Causes a Panic in a Baltimore Theater—Twenty-Three Persons Dead, Three Will Die, and a Number of Others Badly Injured.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 28.—Twenty-three persons were crushed and trampled to death in a panic at the Front Street theater Friday night. Several others were injured, some of whom will, it is believed, die.

The United Oriental and Dramatic Co., of Boston, under the management of A. Schongold and Abram Tansman, was billed to present the Jewish opera "Alexander," and the theater was filled with a motley throng. About 2,500 persons were in the house when the orchestra began playing the introductory.

A strong odor of gas was noticed in the second gallery of the theater and one of the attaches of the place was seen hunting for the leak with a lighted torch. Suddenly a jet of flame flashed out as the torch came in contact with the punctured gas pipe.

Cries of "Fire" were heard in the upper galleries and in an instant the excitement became intense. Some one rushed to the gas meter and turned off the supply, plunging the main body of the house into darkness. The stage jets alone remained lighted, being fed through another meter.

Instead of allaying the excitement caused by the sheet of flame from the leaking pipe, the turning off of the gas and consequent darkness only served to add to the confusion. The audience rose en masse and made a mad rush for the exits.

The gas was quickly turned on at the meter, and as the theater again became illuminated an indescribable scene of horror was presented. Men, women and children, crazed by fear, were fighting and struggling in the aisles and on the stairways in their efforts to reach the open air.

The actors on the stage and a few cool heads in the audience added to the turmoil by shouting their commands to sit down and cursing those who were most vigorous in their efforts to get out.

The struggling mass of humanity made little or no headway for a few minutes. Every aisle was congested and every doorway jammed with the frantic Poles and Russian Jews who mainly comprised the gathering.

The strong men in the rear of the panic stricken mob climbed upon the shoulders of those in front, crushing the weaker men, women and little children to the floor to be trampled to death by those still further in the rear.

For several minutes the wild fight continued. Then a few policemen forced a passageway to the main entrance and began dragging forth those who were jammed in the doors. A rushing stream of humanity flowed out on Front street until all those who were able to move reached the open air.

A hurry call for policemen had brought a large squad to the theater by this time and a fire alarm had also been sent in, bringing some engines to the scene.

The excitement in the street was almost as great as in the theater, as relatives began searching for those from whom they had become separated during the mad rush. Fathers and mothers rushed about looking for their children and attempted to re-enter the theater in their search for missing ones.

The crowd grew so great that the police, fearing a riot, ordered the fire engine hose to be turned on and in that way the struggling mass was driven back from the theater entrance. Meanwhile officers had entered the theater and encountered a sickening sight. In every direction were found bodies from which life had been crushed and trampled.

A majority of the victims were young men, girls and children. They were tenderly carried to the front of the house and taken to the city hospital and the morgue as fast as the ambulances and patrol wagons could make the trips.

Great crowds followed the ambulances and patrol wagons and stormed the entrances to the hospital and morgue in their anxiety to learn if their relatives or friends were among the injured or dead.

Twenty-three dead bodies were finally taken from the theater. Ten persons, more or less injured, are at the city hospital and two of them may die. Several others were taken to their homes in carriages suffering from contusions or broken bones. The death list will probably exceed 25.

THE TARIFF BILL.

It is Believed It Will Promptly Pass the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The progress of the tariff bill will not be impeded in the senate. It was referred to the committee on finance Friday and subsequently several democratic members of that committee were in conference with Mr. Gorman and other leaders, discussing the democratic policy in dealing with the measure. It was tacitly understood among these senators that there had been no unreasonable time consumed either in committee or on the floor of the senate. It is believed that the bill in the senate will be of much shorter duration than has been anticipated, and that the democrats, after they have stated their position, will permit it to come to a vote. The prediction is made, however, by leading democrats, that the bill as it came from the house can not pass the senate.

More Bond Talk.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Secretary Carlisle spent most of Friday in consultation with the president, and was at the treasury only for a few minutes. The impression is general that the president, living up to the language of his message to congress on its opening, will within a short time sell $100,000,000 bonds, unless there is evidence that some relief measure will pass congress speedily. The best opinion is that the chances for the senate and house to concur quickly in any measure that will meet the approval of the president are slight.

Senator Hill's Bond Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Mr. Hill (dem., N. Y.) introduced a joint resolution declaring that any bonds hereafter issued under the laws now in force may, in the discretion of the secretary of the treasury, be made payable in U. S. gold coin of the present weight and fineness, or in standard silver dollars, at the option of the holders of such bonds; but no bond containing such option shall bear a rate of interest exceeding three per cent. per annum, payable quarterly. Mr. Hill addressed the senate in support of the joint resolution.

PHILIPPIAN JAILER.

A Sermon Which Appeals to the Unconverted Everywhere.

The Query: "Sirs, What Must I Do to Be Saved?"—This Was the Cry of an Agitated Soul—Dr. Talmage Discourses on a Question of Incomparable Importance.

For the closing discourse of the year Rev. Dr. Talmage chose a subject which appeals to the unconverted everywhere—viz., The Philippian jailer." The text selected was, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?" Acts xvi, 30.

Incarcerated in a Philippian penitentiary, a place cold and dark and damp and loathsome and hideous, unillumined save by the torch of the official who comes to see if they are alive yet, are two ministers of Christ, their feet fast in instruments of torture, their shoulders dripping from the stroke of leathern thongs, their mouths hot with inflammation of thirst, their heads faint because they may not lie down. In a comfortable room of that [illegible] and amid pleasant surroundings is a paid officer of the government whose business it is to supervise the prison. It is night, and all is still in the corridors of the dungeon save as some murderer struggles with a horrid dream, or a ruffian turns over in his chains, or there is the cough of a dying consumptive amid the dampness, but suddenly crash go the walls! The two clergymen pass out free. The jail keeper, although familiar with the darkness and horrors hovering around the dungeon, is startled beyond all bounds, and, flambeau in hand, he rushes through amid the falling walls, shouting at the top of his voice, "Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"

I stand now among those who are asking the same question with more or less earnestness, and I accost you in this crisis of your soul with a message from Heaven. There are those in this audience who might be more skillful in argument than I am; there are those here who can dive into deeper depths of science, or have larger knowledge; there are in this audience those before whom I would willingly bow as the inferior to the superior, but I yield to no one in this assemblage in a desire to have all the people saved by the power of an omnipotent gospel.

I shall proceed to characterize the question of the agitated jail keeper. And, first, I characterize the question as courteous. He might have rushed in and said: "Paul and Silas, you vagabonds, are you tearing down this prison? Aren't you satisfied with disturbing the peace of the city by your infamous doctrines? And are you now going to destroy public property? Back with you to your places, you vagabonds!" He said no such thing. The word of four letters, "sirs," equivalent to "lords," recognized the majesty and the honor of their mission. Sirs! If a man with a captious spirit tries to find the way to Heaven, he will miss it. If a man comes out and pronounces all Christians as hypocrites, and the religion of Jesus Christ as a fraud, and asks irritating questions about the mysteries and inscrutable, saying: "Come, my wise man, explain this and explain that; if this be true, how can that be true?" no such man finds the way to Heaven. The question of the text was decent, courteous, gentlemanly, deferential. Sirs!

Again, I characterize this question of the agitated jail keeper by saying that it was a practical question. He did not ask why God let sin come into the world, he did not ask how Christ could be God and man in the same person, he did not ask the doctrine of the decrees explained or want to know whom Cain married, or what was the cause of the earthquake. His present and everlasting welfare was involved in the question, and was not that practical? But I know multitudes of people who are bothering themselves about the non-essentials of religion. What would you think of a man who should, while discussing the question of the light and heat of the sun, spend his time down in a coal cellar when he might come out and see the one and feel the other? Yet there are multitudes of men who, in discussing the chemistry of the gospel, spend their time down in the dungeon of their unbelief when God all the while stands telling them to come out into the noonday light and warmth of the sun of righteousness. The question for you, my brother, to discuss is not whether Calvin or Arminius was right, not whether a handful of water in holy baptism or a baptistery is the better, not whether foreordination and free agency can be harmonized. The practical question for you to discuss and for me to discuss is, "Where will I spend eternity?"

Again I characterize this question of the agitated jail keeper as one personal to himself. I have no doubt he had many friends, and he was interested in their welfare. I have no doubt he found that there were persons in that prison who, if the earthquake had destroyed them, would have found their case desperate. He is not questioning about them. The whole weight of his question turns on the pronoun "I." "What shall I do?" Of course, when a man becomes a Christian, he immediately becomes anxious for the salvation of other people, but until that point is reached the most important question is about your own salvation. "What is to be my destiny?" "What are my prospects for the future?" "Where am I going?" "What shall I do?" The trouble is we shuffle the responsibility off upon others. We prophesy a bad end to that inebriate and terrific exposure to that defaulter and awful catastrophe to that profligate. We are so busy in weighing other people we forget ourselves to get into the scales. We are so busy watching the poor gardens of other people that we let our own dooryard go to weeds. We are so busy sending off other people into the lifeboat we sink in the wave. We cry "Fire!" because our neighbor's house is burning down and seem to be uninterested, although our own house is in the conflagration. O wandering thoughts, disappear to-day. Blot out this entire audience except yourself. Your sin, is it pardoned? Your death, is it provided for? Your Heaven, is it secured? A mightier earthquake than that which demolished the Phillippian penitentiary will rumble about your ears. The foundations of the earth will give way. The earth by one tremor will fling all the American cities into the dust. Cathedrals and palaces and prisons which have stood for thousands of years will topple like a child's block house. The surges of the sea will submerge the land and the Atlantic and Pacific oceans above the Alps and the Andes clasp their hands. What then will become of me? What then will become of you? I do not wonder at the anxiety of this man of my text, for he was not only anxious about the falling of a prison, but the falling of a world.

Again, I remark, I characterize this question of the agitated jail keeper as one of incomparable importance. Men are alike, and I suppose he had scores of questions on his mind, but all questions for this world are hushed up, forgotten, annihilated in this one question of the text, "What must I do to be saved?" And have you, my brother, any question of importance compared with that question? Is it a question of business? Your common sense tells you that you will soon cease worldly business. You know very well that you will soon pass out of that partnership. You know that beyond a certain point of all the millions of dollars' worth of goods sold you will not handle a yard of cloth, or a pound of sugar, or a penny's worth. After that, if a conflagration should sweep all Washington into ashes it would not touch you and would not damage you. If every cashier should abscond, and every bank suspend payment, and every insurance company fail, it would not affect you. Oh, how insignificant is business this side the grave with business on the other side the grave! Have you made any purchases for eternity? Have you any securities that will last forever? Are you jobbing for time when you might be wholesaling for eternity? Is there any question so broad at the base, so altitudinous, so overshadowing as the question, "What must I do to be saved?" Or is it a domestic question? Is it something about father or mother or husband or wife or son or daughter that is the more important question? You know by universal and inexorable law the relation will soon be broken up. Father will be gone, mother will be gone, children will be gone, you will be gone, but after that the question of the text will begin to harvest its chief gains, or deplore its worst losses, or roll up its mightiest magnitudes, or sweep its vaster circles.

Oh, what a question—what an important question! Is there any question that compares with it in importance? What is it now to Napoleon III whether he triumphed or surrendered at Sedan, whether he died at the Tuileries or Chiselhurst, whether he was emperor or exile? Because he was laid out in the coffin in the dress of a field marshal, did that give him any better chance for the future than if he had been laid out in a plain shroud? What difference will it soon make to you or to me whether in this world we walked or rode, whether we were bowed to or maltreated, whether we were applauded or hissed at, welcomed in or kicked out? While laying hold of every moment of the future and burning in every splendor or every grief and overarching or undergirding all time and all eternity will be the plain, startling, infinite, stupendous question of the text, "What must I do to be saved?"

Again, I characterize this question of the agitated jail keeper as one crushed out by his misfortunes, pressed out by his misfortunes. The falling of the penitentiary, his occupation was gone. Besides that the flight of a prisoner was ordinarily the death of the jailor. He was held responsible. If all had gone well; if the prison walls had not been shaken of the earthquake; if the prisoners had all staid quiet in the stocks; if the morning sunlight had calmly dropped on the jailer's pillow, do you think he would have hurled this red-hot question from his soul into the ear of his apostolic prisoners? Ah, no! You know as well as I do it was the earthquake that roused him up. And it is trouble that starts a great many people to asking the same question. It has been so with a multitude of you. Your apparel is not as bright as it once was. Why have you changed the garb? Do you not like solferino and crimson and purple as well as once? Yes, but you say: "While I was prosperous and happy those colors were accordant with my feelings. Now they would be discord to my soul." And so you have plaited up the shadows into your apparel. The world is a very different place from what it was once for you! Once you said: "Oh, if I could only have it quiet a little while!" It is too quiet.

Some people say that they would not bring back their departed friends from Heaven even if they had the opportunity, but if you had the opportunity you would bring back your loved ones, and soon their feet would be sounding in the hall, and soon their voices would be heard in the family, and the old times would come back just as the festal days of Christmas and Thanksgiving—days gone forever. Oh, it is the earthquake that startled you to asking this question—the earthquake of domestic misfortune. Death is so cruel, so devouring, so relentless, that when it swallows up our loved ones we must have some one to whom we can carry our torn and bleeding hearts. We need a balsam better than anything that ever exuded from earthly tree to heal the pang of the soul. It is pleasant to have our friends gather around us and tell us how sorry they are and try to break up the loneliness, but nothing but the hand of Jesus Christ can take the bruised soul and put it in his bosom, hushing it with the lullaby of Heaven. O brother! O sister! The gravestone will never be lifted from your heart until Christ lifts it. Was it not the loss of your friends, or the persecution of your enemies, or the overthrow of your worldly estate—was it not an earthquake that started you out to ask this stupendous question of my text?

But I remark again, I characterize this question of the agitated jail keeper as hasty, urgent and immediate. He put it on the run. By the light of his torch as he goes to look for the apostles behold his face, see the startled look and see the earnestness. No one can doubt by that look that the man is in earnest. He must have that question answered before the earth stops rocking, or perhaps he will never have it answered at all. Is that the way, my brother, my sister, you are putting this question? Is it on the run? Is it hasty? Is it urgent? Is it immediate? If it is not, it will not be answered. That is the only kind of question that is answered. It is the urgent and immediate question of the gospel Christ answers. A great many are asking this question, but they drawl it out, and there is indifference in their manner as if they do not mean it. Make it an urgent question and then you will have it answered before an hour passes, before a minute passes. When a man with all the earnestness of his soul cries out for God, he finds Him, and finds him right away.

Oh, are there not in this house to-day those who are postponing until the last hour of living the attending to the things of the soul? I give it as my opinion that ninety-nine out of the hundred deathbed repentances amount to nothing. Of all the scores of persons mentioned as dying in the Bible, of how many do you read that they successfully repented in the last hour? Of 50? No. Of 40? No. Of 30? No. Of 20? No. Of 10? No. Of 5? No. Of 1—only 1, barely 1, as if to demonstrate the fact that there is a bare possibility of repenting in the last hour. But that is improbable, awfully improbable, terrifically improbable. One hundred to one against the man. If, my brother, my sister, you have ever seen a man try to repent in the last hour, you have seen something very sad. I do not know anything on earth so sad as to see a man try to repent on a deathbed. There is not from the moment that life begins to breathe in infancy to the last gasp such an unfavorable, completely unfavorable, hour for repentance as the death hour, the last hour. There are the doctors standing with the medicines. There is the lawyer standing with the half written will. There is the family in consternation as to what is to become of them. All the bells of eternity ringing the soul out of the body. All the past rising before us and all the future. Oh, that man is an infinite fool who procrastinates to the the deathbed his repentance!

My text does not answer the question. It only asks it, with deep and importunate earnestness asks it, and, according to the rules of sermonizing, you would say: "Adjourn that to some other time." But I dare not. What are the rules for sermonizing to me when I am after souls? What other time could I have, when perhaps this is the only time? This might be my last time for preaching. This might be your last time for hearing.

In the troubled times of Scotland Sir John Cochrane was condemned to death by the king. The death warrant was on the way. Sir John Cochrane was bidding farewell to his daughter Grizel at the prison door. He said: "Farewell, my darling child, I must die." His daughter said: "No, father, you shall not die." "But," he said, "the king is against me, and the law is after me, and the death warrant is on its way, and I must die. Do not deceive yourself, my dear child." The daughter said: "Father, you shall not die," as she left the prison gate. At night, on the moors of Scotland, a disguised wayfarer stood waiting for the horseman carrying the mailbags containing the death warrant. The disguised wayfarer, as the horse came by, clutched the bridle and shouted to the rider—to the man who carried the mailbags, "Dismount!" He felt for his arms and was about to shoot, but the wayfarer jerked him from the saddle, and he fell flat. The wayfarer picked up the mailbags, put them on his shoulder, and vanished in the darkness, and 14 days were thus gained for the prisoner's life, during which the father confessor was pleading for the pardon of Sir John Cochrane.

The second time the death warrant is on its way. The disguised wayfarer comes along and asks for a little bread and a little wine, starts on across the moors, and they say: "Poor man, to have to go out on such a stormy night. It is dark and you will lose yourself on the moors." "Oh, no," he says, "I will not!" He trudged on and stopped amid the brambles and waited for the horseman to come carrying the mailbags containing the death warrant of Sir John Cochrane. The mail carrier spurred on his steed, for he was fearful because of what had occurred on the former journey, spurred on his steed, when suddenly through the storm and through the darkness there was a flash of firearms, and the horse became unmanageable, and as the mail carrier discharged his pistol in response the horse flung him, and the disguised wayfarer put his foot on the breast of the overthrown rider and said, "Surrender now!" The mail carrier surrendered his arms, and the disguised wayfarer put upon his shoulders the mailbags, leaped upon the horse and sped away into the darkness, gaining 14 more days for the poor prisoner, Sir John Cochrane, and before the 14 days had expired pardon had come from the king. The door of the prison swung open, and Sir John Cochrane was free. One day when he was standing amid his friends, they congratulating him, the disguised wayfarer appeared at the gate, and he said: "Admit him right away."

The disguised wafarer came in and said: "Here are two letters. Read them, sir, and cast them into the fire." Sir John Cochrane read them. They were his two death warrants, and he threw them into the fire. Then said Sir John Cochrane: "To whom am I indebted? Who is this poor wayfarer that saved my life? Who is it?" And the wayfarer pulled aside and pulled off the jerkin and cloak and the hat, and, lo, it was Grizel, the daughter of Sir John Cochane. "Gracious heaven!" he cried, "my child, my savior, my own Grizel!" But a more thrilling story. The death warrant had come forth from the King of Heaven and earth. The death warrant read, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." The death warrant coming on the black horse of eternal night. We must die. We must die. But breasting the storm and putting out through the darkness was a disguised wayfarer who gripped by the bridle the oncoming doom and flung it back and put his wounded and bleeding foot on the overthrown rider. Meanwhile pardon flashes from the throne, and, Go free! Open the gate! Strike off the chain! Go free! And to-day your liberated soul stands in the presence of the disguised wayfarer, and as he pulls off the disguise of his earthly humiliation, and the disguise of his thorns, and the disguise of the seamless robe, you find he is bone of your bone, flesh of your flesh, your Brother, your Christ, your pardon, your eternal life. Let all earth and Heaven break forth in vociferation. Victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!

A guilty, weak and helpless worm,

SOME of the Representatives upon whose pledges Dr. Hunter has been relying for support in his Senatorial fight, are showing a disposition to desert him, and the Doctor and his friends are considerably exercised over their threatened action. THE Maryland Republians are very uneasy for fear the outgoing Democrat, Gov. Brown, will appoint all the new State officers on the eve of retiring. in which event they will hold during the term of the Republican Governor, unless he changes them for cause. It is conceded by both Democrats and Republicans that Gov. Brown has, under the law, a right to make the appointments, and he will not commit himself as to what his action will be in the premises. Many ot the leading Democrats have expressed themselves as opposed to any such action on the part of the present Governor.

Hick's predictions for this month are as follow: On the 3d it will grow warmer, storms of rain and sleet; on 5th and 6th, storms, a blizzard, followed by a severe cold wave. On the 9th, warmer for a short time only, followed by rain, sleet and snow. About the 14th lookout for a sudden change to warmer, followed by storms two or three days later. From the 19th to the 25th will occur the most decided disturbances of the month, and they will mark the severity of the winter. The intense cold will advance between the 23rd and 26th, and the month will close with reactionary storms.

THE Courier-Journal says: "It was given out on undeniably good authority that the Republican Representatives-elect from this city will go to Frankfort next week weighed down with bills which they propose to introduce. The bills in question so it is said, will cause as much a flutter over the State as the recent actions of the new City Council in this city, and bankers and gamblers will fare alike at their hands when they begin tinkering with the laws of the Commonwealth. It was stated that a bill which has already been drawn, and which will be offered at the first opportunity, provides for the issuance of new charters to all banks alike upon the payment of a certain revenue, and also makes them liable to all kinds of taxation. It is said that the bill was prompted by banks that have sprung into existence since the passage of the Hewitt Bill and which have not "binding contracts" with the State. It is also said that a bill will be introduced aimed at the pool-rooms in this city and in Covington, making the operation of a pool-room a felony. It is also claimed that some amendments will be made to the election law."

THE Cubans are a tax ridden people, and by the time the Spaniards collect their levies but little is left. Of the first class of taxes some examples may give an idea. The smallest retail stores are taxed $300, and for larger stores the tax is greater. Each and every article in those stores has paid customs duties at excessive rates. Every income is taxed. Even clerks in the stores must pay an income tax of 2 1-2 per cent. of their salaries, and in addition thereto must pay further 6 per cent. on this income tax to cover the expense of collecting it. Every social gathering is taxed. There is a tax on marriages, on funerals, and even on a dinner party or dance. There is a tax on every letter in the signs of the stores. There are import and export duties. Duty on American flour is absolutely prohibitory, simply that Spain may dispose in Cuba of an inferior quality produced in Spain at enormous profit. Two years ago, when the Spanish crops were a failure cheap brands of American flour were purchased and sent to Spain and reshipped to Cuba, the double treight thereon being added to the duties. The statement has been frequently made and, it is true—that the Government banks, the officers of which are, of course, Spaniards, have passed out counterfeit money in making payments. Indeed, so far and to such an extent was this done that the long-suffering inhabitants of Havana once nearly rose in riot against the abuse. Many other abuses too numerous to mention were placed on the Cubans.

The free turnpike question in Fayette county got a very black eye when Circuit Judge Parker decided that a majority of all the voters in the county, instead of a majority of the total number of votes cast, must elect to issue bonds for the purchase of the roads before such a law can become operative.

The Republicans are now claiming that the special election in the Forty-eighth Legislative district was void and that the Assembly will consequently stand sixty-nine Republicans to sixty-eight Democrats on joint ballot. Carroll has been twice elected, but the Republicans are desperate to find some technicality to keep him out of his seat. Their latest contemplated scheme won't avail them, however, and if they elect a United States Senator they will have to do it by turning Democrats out of the Legislature.—Courier Journal.

The ground upon which stands the Governor's Mansion, where Kentucky's Governors have resided since 1798, was purchased in 1796, and the building was commenced in 1797 and finished in 1798. The ell was added to it since that time, but nearly all the money that has been expended on it has been a waste, because it was not durable, the repairs being made to suit the whims of each Governor and Librarian. It has been an expensive affair throughout, because it has had no custodian other than his Excellency in power during his term. The present Mansion has been the residence of thirty-two of Kentucky's Governors, Gov. Bradley being the thirty-third. This is the oldest house in Frankfort and is now nearing its century mark. The amount of money expended on it in its life time would have made for Kentucky's Governors a marble mansion.—Western Argus.

POLITICAL.

The talk which is now current in the Sixth District of Kentucky concerning the probable candidacy of State Auditor Norman for the Democratic Congressional nomination in opposition to Congressman Berry has set the politicians of Covington and Newport to thinking. The expected fight between these two candidates tor the nomination will be a lively one.—Ky. Post.

Dr. Hunter seems to have been able to soothe the ruffled feelings of William Henry Jones, of Barren, and, notwithstanding the fact that he believes the doctor totally unfit in every way to grace a seat in the United States Senate, he is willing to help put him there in order that he may have a clear field for the next congressional nomination. Thus the people suffer that politicians may thrive.-Park City Times.

In the senatorial poker game Joe Blackburn has dealt the cards and helped the hands. The Republicans hold four kings, the Democrats three aces, and Joe has a dead man's hand. In looking over the shoulders of the players he sees the situation, he recognizes the missing ace on top of the discarded deck, but just how he is to get the four aces in his hand in time to make the showdown play is more than we can tell. The caucus may turn over its three aces, but the "heathen Chince" is peculiar and the Republican will more than likely steal that ace from the deck before he can get to it. The game looks very much like it would break up in a row. At any rate, this is one time that a pair of jacks and eights won't win.—Paducah Standard.

A Frankfort correspondent says he interviewed one of ex-Governor Brown's ablest lieutenants as to the correctness of the announcement of his reentry into the race for United States Senator. He stated "that the Governor was in the hands of his friends; that he would not enter into any scramble for the place, but would be warmly supported as a compromise between Blackburn and McCreary; that he would undoubtedly receive the support of a number of sound money and free silver men, who would not unite on any other man; that he would get twelve votes on the first ballot, and would continue to grow in strength; that Mr. Edrington, the Populist from Ballard and Carlisle, was his personal and political friend, and would support him, and that there were two or three Republicans who would come to the Governor's help if the deadlock continued any length of time. He also said that he did not believe that either party would be able to make a caucus nomination, and that it would be a grand triumph for the brainy ex-Governor to be elected by a combination of both parties, which would leave him untrammeled in his actions."

The Middlesborough Herald says: The Kentucky Legislature stands in exactly the same condition in which the Legislature of Indiana stood when Senator Turpie was elected to succeed Harrison. That State had a Republican House and a Democratic Senate and two independents. The Republicans filed many contest against Democratic Representatives, and to keep even the Democrats filed many contest against Republican Senators, and every time the Republicans unseated a Democrat in the House the Democrats unseated a Republican in the Senate. It went on this way until each body had unseated five members, when the remaining Republican Senators, seeing their seats slipping away from them, set up such a howl that the majority in the House were compelled to desist. Then came the tie votes on joint ballot which lasted several weeks, when Eugene V. Debs, an independent labor Representative from Lafayette, broke the tie by voting for Senator Turpie. This is the same Debs who got so much notoriety in the Chicago strike. This information is given by the Herald to the Democrats of Kentucky in the hope that they will profit by it and send a Democrat to the United States Senate to succeed Senator Blackburn.

A Frankfort correspondent says: "The Senatorial race is going to be the hottest ever known in Kentucky, not even excepting the celebrated Blackburn-Williams contest ten years ago," said a well-known politician to-day. Certainly everything points that way now. And the fight among the Democrats promises to be quite as exciting as that on the other side. The Hon. C. J. Bronston, of Lexington, State Senator from Fayette county, has engaged a suit of seven rooms at the Capital Hotel, and it is understood that he will manage Senator Blackburn's campaign, assisted of course, by the Senator himself and by Senator Martin, of Midway, Col. Jack Chinn, the well-known horseman, and other equally well-known politicians. Everything points to a desperate fight by Blackburn men to land the Senator a winner. The friends of sound money, on the other hand, will fight just as hard to defeat Blackburn in the Democratic caucus if it is decided to hold such a caucus.

A meeting of the sound money Democrats who are members of the Legislature will be held some time during the first week of the session, and it will then be determined whether they will go into a caucus. From letters received here from Congressman McCreary, who expects to be very much in the fight, it is known that he favors the holding of a caucus. This would seem to indicate that the Congressman does not believe that Blackburn has already a majority of the Democratic voters. Other sound money Democrats are not so confident, however, and are afraid that the senior Senator's personal magnetism may be so great as to be irresistible. That Senator Blackburn intends to make a desperate effort to secure enough votes to re-elect himself is certain, and the sound money Democrats had as well make up their minds to this effect.

Bob Burdette makes a humorous and vivid comparison of the price of a drink and an acre of land. He says an acre of land contains 43,500 square feet, and counting for convenience, the price at $43,56 per acre, the drinker swallows 100 square feet of land, a good sized strawberry patch at every gulp. You call in three or four friends and you swallow a good sized garden. In a few months or a prolonged spree, a whole field disappears down your capacious gullet. Figures are sometime strange things but they serve in this instance as real good "eye openers" of the right sort.

It was the evening of the great game and the renowned player sat on the sofa with his sweetheart. "Play nearer your base, darling," murmured she coyly, and accepting her gentle coaching he drew her to him with an enticing out curve. "And who shall umpire our nuptials, love?" said he, having taken one kiss and making a bold effort to steal second. "I care not, sweetheart," said she gently, "so that the game ends in a tie," and they fastened their faces together in one long, luscious two-bagger. And he telegraphed her father this liner: "Score one to two in my favor. Due to good team work. Send gate receipts at once, for we need support." —Ex.

The Williamstown express, which leaves Cincinnati at 6 p. m., on the Q. & C., stops at Highland, Crescent Springs and Erlanger. On Saturday evening a man got on this train with a ticket for Highland and a load of bundles. His ticket was duly collected, and he then began a discussion with a bag of peanuts.

Highland was reached and passed and the conductor came around again for tickets. He stopped before the man with the peanuts.

"Didn't I take up your ticket for Highland?" he asked.

"Yes, you did," said the man, "But I'm ridin' on another ticket now."

"What other ticket?" asked the conductor.

"Why, didn't you punch a man's commutation ticket to Erlanger?"

"I think I did. What of it?"

"Oh, he got off at Highland, an' I'm ridin' out his ticket. You see, we sort o' traded. I'm goi'n to Erlanger in place of him."

The conductor was paralyzed, but at last he managed to say: "You'll have to pay your fare to Erlanger."

"Well, I guess not," was the calm reply. "Me and my friend made a bargain for me to ride on his ticket to Erlanger."

"You'll pay your fare or I'll put you off as soon as we reach Crescent Springs."

"No you won't," said the imperturbable traveler,

"You're a dead beat."

"Don't you call me no names," retorted the patent reversible commuter.

While they were arguing the train stopped at Crescent Springs. The conductor put the [illegible] and his bundles off, but with much less trouble than he had anticipated. Then he yelled:

"I reckon you won't get to Erlanger as slick as you thought."

The man gathered up his scattered bundles and said:

"I reckon I won't nuther. This is where I live."—Cincinnati Tribune.

THERE is a faction in the Republican party in Covington, the principal object of which is to resist any political aspirations that may possess the Hon. D. N. Comingore, and the instant his name is mentioned in connection with any official position, the leaders of the faction get in their work without delay. Comingore's political road is a rough one.

Example of Lapse of Policies Paid in full under the Mutual Benefit's Peculiarly Attractive Non-Forfeiture System:

Policy No. 64,823, on the life of Mr. John R. Smith, of Boone County, Ky., was issued in 1870, at age 33, for $5 000, with an annual premium of $122,10. He paid 13 129-365 premiums, amounting to $1,633,17, which, less dividends, $408.70, made a net payment or cost of $1,224,47, exclusive of interest. He did not pay the premium due in December, 1883; but instead of taking a paid-up policy for $1,653, he allowed his insurance to be extended for 11 years and 300 days, making in all 25 years and 64 days' insurance at an average yearly cost of $9,73 per thousand. Mr. Smith died in September, 1895, more than 11 years after the lapse of the policy, which, however' was promptly paid in full by the Company.

This is leap year and the girls will do well to make the most of the opportunity, for it will be eight years before another one comes. The year 1900 will not be a leap year. The year is 365 days and six hours long, less eleven minutes. The eleven minutes amounts to one day in 100 years, when leap year is dispensed with. The year 1900 will therefore not be a leap year.

All

The Williamstown Courier of last week presents Grant county as the greenest and most salubrious pasture in the State for peddlers. It says:

"It pains us to record it, but after an observation of many years we are constrained to recognize the fact that Grant county is a veritable paradise for mountebanks, quacks, charlatans, peddlers, hawksters and every other class of itinerants that are pleased to come into her borders. If there is a man on the face of the earth that has a swindle that he desires to sell and can't find any one else to buy, let him come to Grant county, and if he fails he will be the first to make a record of that kind."

A

The preliminary trial of Wm. Hardebeck, charged with the killing of his brother-in-law, George Genoway, on the Lexington pike, last October, was held in the Court of County Judge Stephens, in Covington last Saturday. The witnesses for the prosecution had all been heard a week ago, and only those for the defense were called. It was clearly shown that the killing was a justifiable one, and the Court, after hearing arguments on the part of Mr. Grazlana, who represented the defendant, and County Attorney Simmons, so decided and dismissed the defendant on the ground that the homicide was committed in self-defense. The prisoner was ordered released from custody.

Happy

The following is given without hope of reward or the expectation of remuneration, and it is hoped it will be of benefit to the young ladies during their leap year pursuits: Men with fine, light hair are smart, conceited, and if they do not marry until late in life are apt to grow cross and selfish. If a girl wishes to select a husband she should examine his hair very closely before accepting him, because it is a fine ludication of what his disposition is. Men with fine brown hair, light or dark, make the best husbands. They are quick, thoughtful and less apt to be selfish than their very light or very dark haired brothers. Those whose hair turns gray prematurely are nearly always good fellows. They are a little nervous, but brainy, sympathetic, and very honorable. The hair turns white from being over scrupulous in money matters and friendships oftener than it does for grieving over one's shortcomings.

New

"The total number of convicts is 1,104, of these 750 are employed in the chair factory and the little outside enterprises. Of the total number 478 are white males, 12 are white females, 583 are negro males and 31 are negro females. During the year 404 have been punished, 381 by being locked up and 23 with the strap. At present this strap mode of punishment has been abolished. The total cost of maintaining the prison for the year was in round numbers, $87,000. The net earnings of the institution from the chair factory, etc., was $58,000. Assuming that the officers, guards, etc., should not be counted in estimating how near the prison is self-sustaining, the showing made is much better. The feeding and clothing of the convicts cost only $65,000, or $7,000 more than the $58,000 earned. Last year the factory made 205,962 chairs, which were sold at an average of 56¾ cents a chair. This year a total of 325,470 chairs was made, but the demand for high-priced chairs had fallen off, and these were sold at an average of 51¾ cents a chair. Therefore, the total sales for last year amounted to $46,512 and those of this year to $46,489."

Year.

The Burlington Mercantile Company will hold its annual election of officers next Monday.

R. C. Rice will conduct the carpenter's business on his own hook this year. See his card in this impression.

Miss Pearl Gillert, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., being tired of life, attempted suicide by the poison route last Monday.

Many a new leaf will be turned over to-day to be soiled and turned back tomorrow. New resolves are an acknowledgment of a sense of the right.

The success of the supper at the court house to-morrow (Wednesday) night is assured. The ladies in charge have been industriously engaged in its interest for the past week and a sumptuous supper will be served. Keep yourself in trim to do justice to the delicacies with which you will be confronted.

Neighborhood News.

HATHAWAY—This can not be called a dry christmas.

The youth and beauty of this neighborhood enjoyed a party given by Thomas Adams and wife last Friday night. Among those present were Misses Edna Ryle, Daisy Rouse, Ada Sebree, Lizzie Adams, Octavia Stephens and Mrs. Lewis Stephens, and Messrs. Wood and Cage Stephens, Sleet Riley, Rollis Sebree, Lafe Presser, John McAtee, Raymond Smith, Herman McNeely, Lewis Stephens and many others.

Ask Sleet if he wants to go to battle again; ask how he likes for another fellow to wear his rubber coat, while he rides 10 miles in the rain; ask several of our young fellows how they like to be mesmerized.

Fat hogs about all sold or butchered. On account of the low prices prevailing more were slaughtered for home consumption than usual.

The winter crop of tobacco is a failure, but the melon and sweet potatoe crops are immense.

A heavy run of coal is passing down the river at this writing.

Aurora's big match factory has commenced opperation. When in full blast it will employ about 200 hands and ship a car load of matches per day.

Sam Ackemyer bought most of the turkeys in this vicinity. Local buyers were offering 4½ cents per lb., live weight, but Sam went them a cent and a half better and scooped the platter.

Assessor Brady finished his labor for this year in this (Petersburg) precinct last week. He says this precinct has the driest and best roads of any in the county and is the easiest to get over.

As the name of Monroe is very prominent at this time, it may be interesting to your readers to know that your correspondent has a certificate of purchase of government land by Harvey Parker signed by James Monroe, President, and John McLean, Commissioner of the General Land Office, and dated December 30th, 1822.

⁂

Herbert Glinn delighted his parents and many friends by suddenly appearing Saturday evening after three years' absence.

Mrs. Rena Morehead and her wonderful 8 months, 22 pound, boy baby, gladdened the homes of her friends and relatives with their presence during the holidays.

Mrs. Carrie Rouse, of Zion Station, is making one of her pleasant visits to her old home near Walton.

Two other couples wishing to settle the vexed question to their individual satisfaction, "Is marriage a failure?" with the kindly assistance of the Rev. L. Johnson, were placed in a situation to thoroughly test the matter. Miss Mattie Crow and Mr. Jesse Laws; Miss Clara Baker and Mr. Thos. Dudgeon, had the matrimonial noose slipped around their respective necks on the 24th ult. Using the technical term of tonsorial solon, "You're next, Albert."

Messrs. Kirtley Johnson and A. R. Hance traded houses and lots on Verona Ave., last week. By this transaction Mr. J. becomes the owner of the most westerly house in the town.

The narrow thoroughfare leading to the station on the Short Line R. R., which is the one mostly used by our citizens in conveying freight to and from Walton, is an eye-sore and disgrace to the place. There is no sidewalk and in case of the pedestrian coming in contact with a team he must take to the mud or be run over. The town, by its charter, has the right to condemn any property for public uses; and it is preposterous to claim that any person has the right to oppose the good of the puglic infurtherance of his own private views. Let the council push ahead and condemn what property is needed for its uses. There are few inconveniences enough in Walton, and in the name of common sense what is the use of our citizens dragging through mud and filth to reach the most frequented railway station.

⁂

PETERSBURG—The Epworth League of the M. E. Church will hold a watch meeting to-night at the handsome residence of Harry McWethy at the corner of First street and Grant avenue. The programme cousist of music, recitations, select reading, dialouges, &c. Earl Whiting, clarinetist and Pro M. S. Hardin, cornetist, have assignments on the programme.

Lafe Helms is suffering with blood poison, resulting from running a splinter into his thumb.

Among the visitors here Christmas were, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Brady, of Burlington; Mrs. Eugene Stevens and Dr. Rosebaum, of Gallipolis, Ohio; Thos. Fenton and Dave Snyder, of Cincinnati; Dr. Ed Grant, of Louisville and Roswell Walton, of Chicago.

The distillery stared on the 28th ult. There are now 461 cattle in the pens.

It is reported that Chas. Cox will be cattle boss for Levi & Spencer.

Geo. Olds supports a gold watch.

Nervous Prostration
Complete Recovery by the Use of
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

THE DAYS AND THE YEAR

WHAT is the world, my own little one?
Our world belongs to that clock, the sun
Steady it spins: while the clock beats true
Days and seasons for me and you.
And tick-tick-tock! goes the mighty clock
While time swings on below.
Now left—now right; now day—now night.
With a tick-tock to and fro.

The pussy-willow in coat of fur;
A sweet pink rose in the wind astir;
A maple leaf with a crimson blush;
Then falling snowflakes, and winter's hush—
While tick-tick-tock goes the mighty clock,
And the world swings on below.
Budding—blowing; shining—snowing—
With a tick-tock to and fro.

A little song when the heart is glad,
A little sigh when the way is sad;
Whether the shadows or sunbeams fall,
Sweet rest and dreaming at last for all.
While tick-tick-tock goes the mighty clock,
And the world swings on below.
Smiling—sighing; singing—crying—
With a tick-tock to and fro.

So this is the way, my own little one,
Our world belongs to that clock the sun,
And the hand that somewhere keeps the key
Is the same that holdeth you and me,
While tick-tick-tock goes the mighty clock
And the world swings on below.
Now left—now right; now day—now night.
With a tick-tock to and fro.
—Harriet F. Blodgett, in St. Nicholas.

NEW YEAR'S EVE AT MAPLEVIEW.

ALL through December 20 young people were looking ahead with joyful anticipations, for Fanny Oswood, of Mapleview, was to give a party New Year's day.

Fanny had enlisted Will Moorehead's services when the invitations were sent out, for Will was Fanny's betrothed. And when it was time to arrange the decorations, of course no one could show quite so much taste as Will. As Fanny watched his nimble fingers she said: "What a long courtship Miss Dearby and Mr. Mac are having!"

Will laughed and answered: "I do think, Fanny, Mr. Mac needs a little encouragement."

"I know it, but Miss Dearby will never give it."

"They are so evenly tempered, I think a little tiff would be just the thing," Will ventured, with his mouth full of tacks.

"Oh, Will!"

"I do, just enough to render the making up de-li-cious," drawling out the last words as he dropped a sprig of evergreen down upon the upturned face. "Say," he nodded, to the brown hair, for the eyes were downcast now, "can't we fix it? Just out of mercy, you know. They are growing old," he continued, as he descended the step-ladder, "and just think of the wasted moments. I know you are a capital hand, for when you urged me to ask you I—"

"Ran like a coward," Fanny cried, breathlessly, as she halted at the back door, after a frenzied race, with a trusty feather duster suspended warningly over her head. Will, hatless and breathless, was preparing to defend himself with the only means near, snowballs, as he stood knee-deep in snow among the maples and molded them into satisfactory roundness. But Fanny turned and closed the door. Presently a loud knock at the front door caused her to hurry to the hall again, with her weapon ready poised. "Peace or war?" she called, through the keyhole.

"Peace—peace and fire" he shivered; "but, say," as he warmed his red hands, "I have been thinking, and have a plan to help Mr. Mac out. Of course, his lady will be Miss Dearby. Now, couldn't we manage to have her ride over with the Drews and tell Mr. Mac she had said she would do so to save him hiring a rig—or, no, we must intimate as much to Mr. Mac, but leave her in ignorance of it all."

"That would be—"

"Now, hush," Will hurried on. "It is for their own good. And he will come alone, and she will be righteously angry, so, when he hurries back after her, he will be very repentant and she obstinate, but explanations will heal all wounds and a full reconciliation end in his avowal."

Two days before New Year's eve saw it all planned, apparently as they wished. But somehow a schoolmaster always has large ears, and Mr. Mac learned of the whole plot. He went to Miss Dearby with it, asking her help in returning the mischiefmakers their own with interest. Matters had not been so slow in their courtship as Will and Fanny surmised. Mr. Mac had long ago made his avowal, and Miss Dearby long ago plighted her troth. But the wedding day was not to be until early in February, although the bridal dress was already prepared, for another bride had worn it long ago, and that bride was Miss Dearby's mother.

Somehow with a lover's persuasive powers, everything was changed pertaining to the wedding. First, it was necessary to enlist the services of the Mistress of Mapleview unbeknown to her fun-loving daughter. So Miss Dearby managed to have a little private talk with the mother and Mrs. Oswood promised her aid and secrecy.

How lovely Fanny looked New Year's eve in her garnet dress and white ribbons; she must have thought so, too, for she tarried a long while in her room and was so engrossed she did not hear Bruno bark as he always did if anyone approached the house, and by and by the merry loads began to arrive and the rooms to fill with faces, merry, bright faces, among which was plainly seen that of the schoolmaster.

"Why, Mr. Mac, where is Miss Dearby?" asked Fanny, in apparent disappointment.

"Miss Dearby? Why—why, isn't she here?" Mr. Mac faltered.

"How could she be, unless you brought her?" demanded Fanny, severely.

"But, but some one told me she was to ride with the Drews. Are they here?" and he looked around the room half timidly.

"No, they haven't come yet—yes, here they are," as the hall door opened, letting in the cold air.

"Why, Louis Drew, didn't you stop for Miss Dearby?" Fanny cried.

"Miss Dearby! I supposed she was the schoolmaster's property," that gentleman replied, laughingly.

"But some one told Mr. Mac you were to stop for her," returned Fanny.

"That some one was Will Moorehead," Mr. Mac put in savagely.

Fanny bit her lip; she did not want [illegible] mentioned. "Well, she isn't here, and Mr. Mac, you must go for her," she said.

"Not I," and he looked as confused as he possibly could upon so short a notice.

"O pshaw, my dear man! Think of her sitting at home alone waiting and waiting for you," urged Fanny, in a lower voice.

"She would not have been waiting but for Will." Mr. Mac did not lower his voice, and all eyes looked at the two. Fanny cast a pleading look at Will, and he immediately offered his assistance.

"I am very sorry to have made such a mistake and humbly beg your pardon. My team is at the door; take it and go for her."

"Are you really sorry?" Mr. Mac asked, like a pleased schoolboy.

"Really, really," Will returned, gladly, for with Fanny he had begun to doubt the success of their plot.

"Then go for her yourself," and Mr. Mac turned and walked away.

No words could change his decision, so Will went into the hall for his overcoat.

"Never mind," Fanny whispered as she passed him. "He'll make up when he takes her home."

"If he does" Will growled. "Maybe I'll have to do that, too."

When the sound of the bells was lost in the distance, Mrs. Oswood said: "It's too bad. I dare say Miss Dearby will think she wasn't wanted. You would all better go out in a body to meet her."

"Oh, that would be jolly!" cried Fanny. "See, the moon is full and the road is well packed as far as the little bridge. Who will go?"

"I, and I, and I," and there was a general rush for wraps.

"And you?" and Fanny returned all wrapped to the chin, to see Mr. Mac toasting his toes at the fireplace.

"No, thanks."

"What will she think?" Fanny ventured.

"Perhaps you can find out for my best," and he cast a sly glance at Fanny's mother.

Mr. Mac and Mrs. Oswood watched them out of sight.

"Now run and fetch her in, poor thing, she will be nearly frozen," said Mrs. Oswood.

Mr. Mac needed no instructions. He bounded toward the granary. He almost carried her into the back parlor. Mrs. Oswood removed her cloak and bonnet and beheld the little lady in shimmering silk.

"How nice it fits and so much like your mother, my dear."

From another door entered the minister. The bride and groom had hardly placed themselves at the end of the room and the minister before them, when the bells were heard and Mrs. Oswood hastily closed the doors and went out to meet the others.

THE MINISTER WAS SAYING OVER THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

"Why, where is—"

"She wasn't at home, or was too angry to answer," interrupted Fanny. "Come on, girls," and they laid aside their wraps. "Now for some games, Miss Dearby or not."

"Fanny, won't you all come this way a moment," called Mrs. Oswood from the back parlor.

Like a flock of sheep all followed their leader to behold—what? A sweet little woman with flushed cheeks and downcast eyes and Mr. Mac clasping her hand and looking noble and glad and the minister saying over the marriage ceremony. Was it Mr. Mac's triumphant glance or the mischievous corners of Mrs. Oswood's mouth or the minister's sly chuckle as he turned from his completed work, that sent the truth home to Will and Fanny? Fanny made a rush for the kitchen, and took refuge behind the pantry door, where Will found her a moment later.

"Come, come quick, Fanny, and offer congratulations, or they'll think us guilty," whispered Will, excitedly.

"Oh, you—you great—booby!" as if no word could possibly express her opinion of his dullness. "Don't you suppose they know it already, and to think mamma must have helped them—oh, it's too bad, and it's awful to get—get—"

"Sold," Will put in in a tragic whisper, and just a moment before Fanny added "left."

"Oh, if you hate that part of it," Will added quickly and gallantly, "we might get spliced ourselves to-night, or, or—" with a look of comic dismay, "you surely could not have meant left by that schoolmaster of a Mr. Mac!"

It was well he was quick of motion, for Fanny generally hit what she aimed at. Defeated in her purpose, she tossed her head and returned to the parlor just as Mr. Mac was saying: "It was surely kind of them," amidst general laughter. Her face flushed hotly, but she would show them she didn't care, so she walked up and took the bride's hand.

"Let me congratulate you, Mrs. Mac, upon your—your," she was going to say "happiness" or something of that kind, but she felt Mr. Mac's quizzical glance upon her, and she faltered, helpless and confused.

"Luck," Will proposed, wickedly. This caused a general uproar, during which time she finished her congratulations.

"I do indeed congratulate you upon your luck, Mr. Mac," Will then said, "and may you both have much happiness and many joys."

"And friends to help us out of our difficulties," Mrs. Mac slyly added.

"Or in, instead of out," her husband corrected, with an expression of fright, searching with his eyes for some way of escape.

"I always knew you were mortally afraid of her," cried Will, above the laughter.

"Indeed, so much so, I am afraid to take her home. Will, cannot you ask the Drews if she can ride with them?"—Bertha P. Englet, in Housekeeper.

Our New Year.

In the shadowy night he came,
The little new-born year,
And midnight bells rang gayly then,
To give him welcome here.
In the shadowy night went out,
On swift and noiseless wing,
The aged monarch, pale and gray,
Who once had been our king.

Farewell, old year! e'en while we hail
The new-born king to-day,
Our hearts must grieve for thee, old friend,
That thou hast passed away.
Full merrily thou camest here,
Just twelve short months ago.
And if with thee came shadows, too,
'Twas not thy fault, we know.

Yet sunshine came with thee, as well,
And thou wert true to some—
Who cannot bear to let thee go,
That a new king may come.
But we will trust that he has brought
Good gifts from God above,
And may his reign be bright and fair,
And filled with peace and love.

CLEVER CHILDREN.

Be Worried More Than Pleased if Your Child Is Precocious.

Never allow children to use their brains too much, for if they do so the result is often very serious. Some children are naturally ambitious, and will strain every nerve, as it were, so that they may have the honor and glory of being at the top of their class in school, and in this they are unwisely encouraged by their parents, whose vanity is so great for their offspring that they wish them to outshine their little contemporaries, quite careless or oblivious of the fact that undue precocity has to be paid dearly for later on.

Many children, without being ambitious, have an insatiable thirst for knowledge, which is the result of an abnormally developed brain. In these cases, instead of being encouraged to learn, children should be kept back as much as possible, and encouraged to play out of doors, and to do everything that will give the active little brain rest, for you may depend upon it, whether you wish it or not, the child's mind will work harder a great deal than is good for it, in asking the why and wherefore of all it sees around it in the wonderful world.

How seldom is a mother content to have a baby without any sort of little tricks to show off to her friends. What a pleasure it is to her to hear her friends say what a wonderfully clever child hers is, when at a few months old it can point to grandpapa's picture on the wall, or can play pat-a-cake. Or, later on, how supremely delighted the parents are when their little girl or boy lisps out "John Gilpin," or some other nursery tale in verse. Poor, deluded people Can they not see that these performances are about on the level with the tricks of a dog, or with the talking of a tame parrot, and that in order to gratify their parental vanity the child's mental capacity is being overtaxed and weakened?

In the first years of life a child has quite enough to occupy his brain in learning about the things it sees around it. Take care then not to let the mental growth get ahead of the physical, or your child will be handicapped in later life by weakness of either body, or brain, or perhaps both.—Philadelphia Press.

A Time for Retrospection.

The New Year is a time for retrospect; it is a time for solemn thought; for looking back over the road we have come, and seeing where in the past our steps have gone straight and where crooked.

"'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours,
And ask them what report they bore to Heaven."

It is a time to count up our blessings—and in the retrospect we shall find them to be more than we thought—and to give heartfelt thanks for them, even though the thanks may sometimes go up through tears.

It is a time to make good resolutions—yea, even though they may be broken. No one can resolve to break a bad habit, to live a better, sweeter life, and then strive hard to attain that ideal, even if he sometimes fail, without coming on to a higher plane, rising a step higher and getting into a clearer spiritual atmosphere.

So may we all resolve—and may we have grace given us to carry out the resolution—to make the coming year the very best in our lives, the richest in our own spiritual growth, and the richest in the blessings we may carry to those around us.—Chicago Advance.

Suggestion for a Happy New Year.

Suppose we think little about number one,
Suppose we all help some one else to have fun;
Suppose we ne'er speak of the faults of a friend,
Suppose we are ready our own to amend;
Suppose we laugh with, and not at, other folk,
And never hurt anyone 'just for the joke;'
Suppose we hide trouble, and show only cheer—
'Tis likely we'll have quite a happy New Year!"
—Mary Mapes Dodge, in St. Nicholas.

A Risk.

Witherby—I have invited Castleton around to New Year's dinner.

Mrs. Witherby—But he was here Christmas to dinner.

Witherby—What of it?

Mrs. Witherby—I am afraid he will recognize that turkey.—Life.

—Looking backward upon the departing year, we see much that we could have bettered. Happy he who profits by the past to make the future more worthy of himself and of the God he serves.—Exchange.

A POSTMASTER'S WIFE.

A Leeds Woman Who Astonished Her Friends and Neighbors.

Near to Death But Restored so Completely That She Has Been Accepted by a Life Insurance Company as a Good Risk.

From the Journal, Lewiston, Me.

A bright little woman, rosy and fresh from her household duties, dropped into a chair before the writer and talked with enthusiasm shining in her snapping, black eyes.

The people in the pretty village of Leeds Center, Me., have watched with some interest the restoration to complete health of Mrs. W. L. Francis, wife of the postmaster. So general were the comments on this interesting case that the writer who visited Mrs. Francis and learned from her that the statements regarding her troubles and her subsequent extrication therefrom are entirely true. All of her neighbors know what has been the agency that has performed this cure, but that others may be benefited by her experience, Mrs. Francis has consented to allow her story to appear in print.

"If there is anything on earth I dread more than another," she said, "it is to see my name in the papers. But in this case I conquer my repugnance and give publicly the same credit to the savior of my life as I would to one who had dragged me from a death beneath the waves. In fact, I have extolled my preserver so enthusiastically and unreservedly; have sought out sufferers and recommended the remedy to so many friends and acquaintances that already my neighbors jocularly call me 'Pink Pills Francis.' But really, my recovery is something that I consider wonderful. I know that there are so many testimonials of medicine in the papers nowadays that people do not pay as much heed as formerly, but I do wish folks who are suffering would remember that what I say comes right from the heart of a woman who feels that she had a new lease of happy life given her.

"Eleven years ago I was afflicted with nervous prostration. My existence until two years ago was one of dragging misery. Anyone in the village will tell you of my condition. My blood seemed exhausted from my veins and month after month I grew weaker. I was able to undertake only the lightest household work, and even then I could perform it only by slow and careful movements. During all these sorry months and years I was under the care of this doctor and that, but their medicines helped me only spasmodically, and then I fell into relapses more prostrating than ever.

"In the night I used to be awakened by the most excruciating pains in my heart and side, and was obliged to use pellets of powerful medicine that the doctor gave me for relief in such attacks. At last my condition became so grave that I went out only infrequently. We live upstairs, you notice, over my husband's store, and in descending the stairway I frequently was obliged to sort of fall and slide over the steps in order to descend, such was the strain on my system resulting from even this slight exertion. Occasionally I visited the neighbors, but I was obliged to sit and rest to recover breath while ascending any elevation. In short, it did not seem that I could live, such was my complete physical prostration.

"One day I saw an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and although my faith in remedies was weak by that time, I sent for a box and tried them. That was two years ago. Now I call myself a well woman. Isn't it wonderful?

"I haven't had one of those excruciating pains in the heart for a year and a half. Why, even the first box of pills helped me. I can walk miles now; can do my work easily; have gained in weight constantly, and you would scarcely believe it, but a little while ago I was examined for endowment life insurance and was accepted unhesitatingly after a careful examination by the physician.

"Do you wonder that I'm shouting 'Pink Pills' all through our village? I haven't taken any of the remedy for some months for it has completely built me up, but at the first sign of trouble I know to what refuge to flee.

"Last year my aunt, Mrs. M. A. Blossom, of Dixfield P. O., was here visiting me. She was suffering from lack of vitality and heart trouble, but she was skeptical about my remedy that I was so enthusiastically advocating. At last, however, she tried it and carried some home with her when she went. A little while ago I received a letter from her and in it said: 'I am cured, thanks to God and Pink Pills.' She also wrote that her husband had been prostrated but had been restored by the remedy.

"We feel up this way that such a sovereign cure cannot be too widely known. That is the only reason why I allow my name to be used in this connection. I know also that by personally recommending them I have helped many of my friends back to health, for I never let an opportunity pass when a word of counsel may direct some one."

One of the persons to whom Mrs. Francis recommended Pink Pills is station agent, C. H. Foster, of Leeds Center, and the reporter found him patrolling the platform awaiting the arrival of the morning train. Mr. Foster, who is one of the most trustworthy, capable and energetic men in the employ of the Maine Central railroad, appeared in unusually good health and spirits and we made inquiry as to the cause.

"Do you know," replied he, "I think I've made a discovery, or at least Mrs. Francis has for me. I have been in poor health for a long time with a heart trouble variously complicated. We have been so fully interested in Mrs. Francis' wonderful recovery that I at once determined to give the medicine recommended a thorough test. So about two months ago, I bought the first box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Only two months, please note, yet already I am so much improved, so much better able to fulfill my duties, so sanguine that I am on the road to recovery, that I feel like a new man.

"I can now walk without the fatigue I once experienced, my heart affection appears to be relieved, and I have joined the Pink Pills' Band in our community."

Mr. Foster commenced taking the pills at a time when he was completely prostrated, after he had suffered such a severe attack of heart trouble that it was necessary to carry him home from his office. Since then he has faithfully adhered to the remedy and is constantly improving, so much so as to excite his enthusiasm and his gratitude.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Real Marriage Lottery.

In the church of Santa Maria Annunziata, at Naples, girls assemble once a year for the purpose of being chosen in marriage. On the day of Our Lady, before its altar kneels a silent row of thirty girls dressed in black, and with folded hands. They are orphans of the neighboring foundling asylum, and once a year those who have reached the age of 18 have a chance of being chosen in marriage by any honest man whose character is good. At the door leading to the sacristy stands a gray-haired priest, the head of the foundling institution. By and by a young man approaches him and hands him a packet of papers. These the priest reads carefully, and, being satisfied, leads the candidate toward the row of girls. The man walks slowly along the row; at last he stops—his choice is made, and he stretches out his hand. The girl rises, puts her hand into that of the stranger by way of consent, and together they disappear into the sacristy, and this goes on until the suitors are exhausted, or all the girls have been chosen.—London Tit-Bits.

WATER THAT EXPLODED.

A Bartender's Experience Under Fire of a Fusillade of Seltzer.

"Do you know," said Billy Clark, of the Grand hotel, to a Cincinnati Times-Star reporter, as a big seltzer bottle fizzed and two or three men on the outside elevated a foot each on the railing and looked on, "that these seltzer water bottles will explode easily?" And the three men each put a foot down on the floor and moved slightly away. "Sometimes just the temperature of the hand will do it, the warm hand, placed against it while bringing it from a cold room, or sometimes while lifting it one will strike it against the counter and it will explode and the metal top will be driven with great force by the gas. One time, while at the Gibson, I refused to give a man a drink. He took it very much to heart and went away vowing he would get even with me. I had turned about as he went out and had my back to him. Suddenly there came a sound like a pistol shot. I tried to turn around and couldn't, and I was sure the man had carried his threat into effect and had shot me. Directly following that explosion came another and another, and there was a rapid succession of explosions. Then I knew the man had opened a regular fusillade on me, and yet I was riveted to the spot. I could not stir. I thought I had been paralyzed by a bullet. Come to find out one of these seltzer water bottles in the far end of the counter had exploded and the concussion had started the others, until all had exploded that were on that shelf. And the man had gone away and I never saw him again. But I never will forget my experience of that night, when I was sure I had been shot."

In the year 1894, the De Kalb Fence Co., of De Kalb, Ill., doubled the capacity for producing their lines over 1893 which gave them an output of 20 miles per day. The demand for their goods has been so great the past season, that in order to be able to supply their trade, they have been compelled this year to double the capacity of 1894, which now gives them an output of 40 miles per day.

This in itself speaks well for their product and merits the attention and inspection of readers and all that are in need of smooth wire fencing of any kind. It will be to your interest to write for their catalogue, which describes in detail their goods, comprising the largest and most complete lines of smooth wire fencing now produced by any one plant in the country.

Bottlebinding.

You can't judge of the quality of a book by the binding, nor tell the contents by the title. You look for the name of the author before you buy the book. The name of Robert Louis Stevenson (for instance) on the back guarantees the inside of the book, whatever the outside may be.

There's a parallel between books and bottles. The binding, or wrapper, of a bottle is no guide to the quality of the medicine the bottle contains. The title on the bottle is no warrant for confidence in the contents. It all depends on the author's name. Never mind who made the bottle. Who made the medicine? That's the question.

Think of this when buying Sarsaparilla. It isn't the binding of the bottle or the name of the medicine that you're to go by. That's only printer's ink and paper! The question is, who made the medicine? What's the author's name? When you see Ayer's name on a Sarsaparilla bottle, that's enough. The name Ayer guarantees the best, and has done so for 50 years.

PERISH IN FLAMES.

Four of the Hibbard Family and Two Nieces, Visitors, Victims.

Four Young Sons and a Servant Barely Escape by Leaping From the Burning Building—Natural Gas Lets Go With the Above Deadly Effect.

Columbus, O., Jan. 3.—Six deaths are the result of a mysterious fire that occurred at 4:30 Thursday morning at the residence of John H. Hibbard at 1898 East Long street. The dead are: John H. Hibbard, Mrs. John H. Hibbard, Mrs. Charles Lee, aged 22, Barnesville, O.; Miss Fay Hibbard, aged 19, Barnesville, O.; Dorothy Hibbard, aged three years, and Allan Hibbard, aged five years.

Mrs. Lee and Miss Hibbard, of Barnesville, are nieces of Mr. Hibbard, and were spending the holidays with their uncle. Dorothy and Allen Hibbard are children of John H. Hibbard.

Besides these unfortunate persons there were in the house at the time Annie Bell, a colored servant, and four other children of the Hibbard family, viz.: Webster W., Walter, John and Hinton, whose ages ranged from 8 to fourteen years. They all escaped by jumping from a second-story window. Annie Bell suffered fracture of one ankle and Walter Hibbard sprained one of his ankles. The others are not injured. The house is a large modern frame two stories and an attic in [illegible] and was heated with natural gas by means of a furnace. The fire probably resulted from an explosion of natural gas, though the facts as to the origin will probably never be known. Annie Bell is the only one who escaped who can give anything like a rational account of the terrible calamity. The house is not badly burned, but the interior woodwork is all badly scorched. Probably the gas in the furnace which was turned low, flickered out and then the whole house was gradually filled with gas. When the air was sufficiently charged with it it was ignited from a burning gas jet. There does not seem to have been much explosive force, however, as the walls are not shattered in the least.

Annie Bell says she was awakened by a sense of choking, and found her room full of smoke. She tried to run over to the part of the house the family was sleeping in, but found the hall so full of smoke she could not do it, and, returning to her room, raised the window, jumped to the ground, about twenty feet and broke her ankle in so doing. Then she saw Mr. Hibbard at the window of the room where some of his children were sleeping. He dropped the four boys out and then fell, evidently overcome by the smoke. His body was found with the arms stretched across the window sill, just as he fell after dropping Webster Hibbard to the ground.

All the six bodies were found in the same room. They had evidently been awakened and ran there to escape, and were suffocated there. The bodies are all burned beyond recognition.

A neighbor who was awakened by the screams of Annie Bell called the fire department, and it was the work of but a few minutes to extinguish the flames. The family ate New Year's dinner at the Chittenden hotel Wednesday, and at eight p. m. went to the residence of Thomas Huntington, a brother-in-law, to spend New Years eve. It was about 11 o'clock when they returned home and at once retired. Mr. Hibbard was a well known business man and was the secretary and manager of the Central Ohio Natural Gas and Fuel Co., which controls the natural gas supply here. It is a remarkable fact that a man so familiar with natural gas should himself fail a victim of an accident resulting from its use. He was the son-in-law of Pelatiah W. Huntington, president of the Hayden national bank, and the Huntington bank, and one of the wealthiest citizens of Columbus.

Mrs. Lee was the wife of Editor Charles Lee, of the Barnesville, O., Enterprise. They were married two years ago and she leaves a baby six months old, which she did not bring to Columbus with her. Mr. Lee arrived here at noon Thursday.

The unfortunate family was extensively related here, and the sad calamity follows the New Year festivities as a cruel shock to the whole city. Several plumbers who have examined the premises deny that the fire resulted from a natural gas explosion, but there seems to be no other explanation of it.

CHARLES KETCHAM,

Under Arrest at Indianapolis for a Jewelry Robbery, Wanted at Chicago for Passing Forged Checks.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Chas. A. Ketcham, alias Chas. Hardin and Dick Wilson, who was arrested under the last name in Indianapolis for a jewelry robbery, is wanted by the police here for passing a numerous forged checks for small sums on west side merchants. For years Ketcham lived here at the home of his wife's mother, and after he was acquitted of the $35,000 Adams express robbery he and his wife came back to the mother-in-law's home on West Congress street. Only three weeks ago his wife visited the Pinkerton detective agency here, and told Supt. Murray a story of hard times, and declared Ketcham had threatened to kill her if she did not help him in his crimes.

The President's State Dinner.

THE SITUATION

In the Various Provinces of the Ottoman Empire—What is Being Done for the Relief of Destitute Armenians.

Constantinople, Dec. 21.—(Correspondence of the United Press)—The United Press is able to furnish the following, which gives the situation in the various provinces of Turkey, and also an account of what is being done for the relief of the destitute Armenians:

In the city of Trebizond, Dr. Parmalee and Mr. Crawford are issuing food and clothing to about three thousand destitute persons. Many refugees have come in from the region of Baiburt and Erzinga. About three thousand of these have crossed over into Russia, where they can be secure from the sword, at least.

In the city of Erzeroum the wretched people have been held in hopes of receiving back their plundered goods for some time since the massacre, only to be disappointed. Nothing of any value is to be found. The villages of the province are so stripped that about half of the population is destitute. Twenty-four villages on the plain of Erzeroum have been devastated. In Erzingan, thousands of men, women and children wander the streets in hunger and misery. The offer is constantly held before them that if they will become Mohammedans, they will be fed from the bounty of the sultan.

The villages of Pakarich, Abonshadajh, Hassan, Armedan, Gasnnae, Khurnakef, Zimare, Pingian, Arvor and others have been pillaged. Many people are wandering in the mountains without food.

At Baiburt, numbers of women and children almost without clothing and in the most awful misery are constantly coming into the city, to beg almost among its ruined houses.

In the city of Erzeroum, Mr. W. N. Chambers and his wife are doing what they can to relieve the destitute and care for the sick with the funds furnished by the duke of Westminster's committee in London.

Hardly a village in the province of Bitlis escaped pillage. In the Boulaaik district of this province 38 villages have been sacked.

As many as 15,000 refugees have fled to Van, and are there homeless and without food. The robbers have gathered in the whole food supply of the country districts, and, aided by the officials of the country districts, are holding it for a rise in prices from the misery of the people and the benevolence of the aid fund. The whole district of Sivas is given over to indescribable misery. Arabkir, in the province of Harpoot, was pillaged by the Moslem inhabitants. About 2,000 Christians of all denominations were killed and every Christian house in the city was stripped of all its contents in ten days of rioting. Twenty-seven towns and villages in the province of Diarbekir have been sacked.

LONDON PRESS

On the Dispatch of Emperor William to President Kruger.

London, Jan. 4.—The Daily News of Saturday says that it sees nothing hostile to Great Britain in the words of Emperor William, addressed to the president of the South African republic. It adds that they are not agreeable reading for Englishmen, but they will impress some minds sorely needing such impression that the encouragement of filibusterers is playing with edged tools.

The Post draws the deduction from Emperor William's words that his majesty considers war with Great Britain within the possibilities. The Post advises Great Britain to concentrate a fleet by recalling the Mediterranean squadron now in the Levant to join the channel squadron.

ELEVATOR FELL.

Two Men Fatally Injured and Another Seriously Hurt.

The Suit Dismissed.

New York, Jan. 4.—The suit brought by her majesty, Victoria, queen of Great Britain and Ireland, and empress of India, against the Standard Asphalt Co., has been discontinued, papers to that effect being filed Friday in the county clerk's office. Harrodsburg, Ky., Jan. 4.—The Methodists of Burgin, Ky., began a revival in their church about two weeks since, which has resulted in 72 conversions up to date. Rev. Culpepper, of Georgia, conducted the meeting until relieved by Rev. J. W. Hughes, of Wilmore, who will continue the meeting until interest closes.

The Pope and the Boundary Dispute.

FIGHTING MAD.

All Europe Greatly Excited Over the Affair in Transvaal.

Germany and France are Openly Defying the British Government, Whose Apologies Are Received With Scant Courtesy—Chamberlain Unpopular.

London, Jan. 6.—The censorship of the news from Transvaal is believed here to mean very bad news.

So strong is this impression in London that public apprehension and excitement are far greater over this situation and all it involves than was the case at any time during the still pending Anglo-American crisis. Only a single telegraph wire to Johannesburg is in working order. Anxiety exists for news of one of the most extraordinary events in modern history to come over that wire, and for 30 hours it has been silent. It seems to be a fair inference that no Europeans are in charge of the Johannesburg telegraph office.

PRESIDENT KRUGER.

Emperor William's message of congratulations to President Kruger has astonished and angered England much more than Mr. Cleveland's Venezuelan message a fortnight ago. Its terms are regarded as insolent to this country beyond endurance. Such journals as the Saturday Review will demand, in language so hot as to be sure to arouse popular passion, that the British government sharply resent the German emperor's insult.

The German and French newspapers are no less emphatic in their denunciation not only of Jameson's action but of England, whose disavowals receive scant credence.

In a word, Europe's bitter and still growing antagonism to England is gaining such unrestrained expressions as to suggest it may soon be beyond the power of control.

On the other hand, the British government is threatened not only with revolt throughout South Africa, but also in public sentiment at home, owing to its action in repudiating Jameson and leaving him to his fate when he failed in his dare-devil plan.

There was an astonishing and significant demonstration Friday night at the Olympic theater, where a popular patriotic play entitled "Cheer, Boys, Cheer," was given before a crowded house. The whole audience at one point broke out in cheers for Jameson.

There had been a similar outburst Thursday night, and the management desired to prevent it. A body of police entered the theater Friday night, ejecting several who had led in the cheering, and the play went on up to the famous scene representing Wilson and his men making their last stand against the Matabeles. There was no restraining the house then. The audience rose and cheered themselves hoarse for Jameson, with loud cries, such as:

"Down with Chamberlain!"

"Chamberlain, the traitor!"

A dispatch just received from Berlin quotes Dr. Leyd, the European agent of the Transvaal republic, as saying he had received advices that the fighting between Jameson and the Boers continued 24 hours, with great slaughter.

The latest dispatches from all parts of the continent describe the outburst of popular hatred of England everywhere as amazing and appalling in its intensity.

London, Jan. 6.—A dispatch from Cape Town, dated Dec. 31, says that Mr. Rhodes had tendered his resignation as prime minister of Cape Colony to Sir Hercules Robinson, the governor of the colony, but that the latter had not accepted it.

GERMANY

Will Not Be Permitted to Give Military Aid to the Transvaal.

London, Jan. 6.—The People, the weekly edition of the Globe, which is in touch with the government, says there is reason to believe that Prime Minister Salisbury and his colleagues, owing to the hostile attitude of Germany, will consider the expediency of immediately strengthening the British forces in those parts of the empire that are exposed to attack. Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, commander-in-chief of the forces, has given it as his firm opinion that if the forces are sent abroad it will be necessary to reinforce the troops at home. It is therefore likely that the militia and army reserves will be called out to such an extent as to place at least one army corps at the disposal of the war office for foreign service.

The Central News says that the government is determined not to permit Germany to give military assistance to the Transvaal.

Fire at Toledo.

Toledo, O., Jan. 6.—Fire which broke out in the wholesale leather store of Franklin, Hubbard & Co., 206 Summit street, did damage to the extent of $25,000 to the contents. The loss on the building can not be estimated nor in the amounts obtainable.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 6.—Heber Hargrave, who robbed the Wabash railroad ticket office at Huntington, Ind., turns out to be an escaped patient from the feeble-minded asylum of this city. He has been brought back. His home is in Huntington, Ind.

Closed by Attachment.

VENEZUELAN COMMISSION.

The President Appoints Justice Brewer, Judge Alvey, Andrew D. White, Fred. R. Coudert and Daniel C. Gilman.

Washington, Jan. 2.—The president Wednesday night announced the composition of the Venezuelan commission, which will consist of five members, as follows:

David J. Brewer, of Kansas, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

Andrew D. White, of New York.

Frederick R. Coudert, of New York.

Daniel C. Gilman, of Maryland, president of Johns Hopkins university.

Judge Brewer was born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, in 1837, his father at that time being one of the American missionaries in that part of the world. He is a graduate of Yale, and a nephew of David Dudley Field, in whose office in New York city Judge Brewer was a law student. In the year 1858 Judge Brewer removed from New York city to the west, where he engaged in the practice of his profession in Kansas City, Mo., and afterward in Leavenworth, Kan. He has also occupied various important positions, including those of judge of the First judicial court of the state of Kansas, and from 1870 until 1881 filled the office of judge of the Kansas supreme court. Judge Brewer has also taken interest in educational affairs, and was at one time president of the Kansas board of education. In politics he has been a republican. He was appointed associate justice of the United States supreme court by ex-President Harrison in 1889.

Daniel Coit Gilman is distinguished as an educator. He is a graduate of Yale and has been an extensive traveler in Europe, where he gave great attention to the social, political and educational conditions of various countries. In 1877 he was elected the first president of Johns Hopkins university. Among the many works that he has written is a memoir of James Monroe, which was prepared for the American Statesman. His fame as a scientist and historian is world wide. Mr. Gilman is said not to be affiliated with any political party, but his tendencies are inclined to the republican organization. He is a native of Connecticut and is in his 65th year.

Andrew Dickson White, of New York, is also distinguished as an educator. He is a native of New York, having been born at Homer, in that state, in November, 1832. He is of New England parentage and also a graduate of Yale. He was president of the state convention of New York in October, 1861, and was United States minister to Germany from 1879 till 1881. Mr. White was also one of the United States commissioners to Santo Domingo and aided in preparing the report of that commission.

Mr. White was also for a brief period under Gen. Harrison's administration, the minister to St. Petersburg.

Judge Richard Henry Alvey is a native of Maryland. He was on the judiciary committee of the constitutional convention of 1867, and was elected chief judge of the fourth circuit under the new constitution, and was re-elected in 1882. He was designated by Gov. Hamilton as chief justice of the court of appeals of Maryland to succeed Judge Bartol. This place he resigned to accept the office of chief justice of the federal court of appeals in the District of Columbia. This court had just been created by act of congress and President Cleveland strongly urged Judge Alvey to take the place of chief judge and organize the new court.

Frederick R. Coudert is the head of the law firm of Coudert Bros., of New York city. He has a world wide reputation as an advocate and an authority on international law. He served with distinction on the Behring sea commission and was complimented by the president of the French republic for his speech before the commission and was entertained at the palace.

Mr. Coudert was president of the Manhattan club for several years, and is now a member of nearly a dozen prominent New York clubs. He is a democrat and is classed as anti-Tammany. He presided at a mass meeting at Cooper Union called to oppose Tammany in 1894. He is a brilliant orator and a shrewd advocate. He has been one of the leaders of the New York bar for many years, and has been engaged in many famous cases. His firm administers the affairs of many French estates and investors in this country.

Upon the death of Chief Justice Waite, during Mr. Cleveland's first term, some of the justices of the supreme court who had been impressed with the opinions delivered by Judge Alvey, of the appellate bench of Maryland, urged the president to appoint a chief justice of the United States. This the president was disposed to do, but it is understood was deterred by the fact, so it has been said, that Judge Alvey is a southern man and it was feared that for that position to go to the south might create animosities.

Because Mr. Justice Brewer's name appears first on the official list, it does not necessarily mean that that gentleman will be chairman of the commission. The selection of presiding officer will be left to the commission itself, when organization is effected.

It is the president's intention to have the commission meet as soon as possible, but information received Wednesday night is that he has not yet decided when to call the primary meeting.

An Unhappy Man Attempts Suicide.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—A well dressed man supposed to be from Pittsburgh, Pa., attempted suicide here Wednesday night. The man went into an alley in the business part of the city, and shot himself in the head. In his pocket was found a letter addressed to the police asking that he be buried as found and that his identity be not investigated. The note was signed "An unhappy man." The stranger is in a precarious condition at the county hospital. His collar is marked J. L. Good and that may be his name. He had on his head a new derby hat bought in Pittsburgh.

JOHN SHERMAN.

The Ohio Statesman Addresses The Senate on Finances.

Congress Could Not Approve the President's Recommendations as to the Financial Policy, Especially the Currency—Congress Acting Hastily.

Washington, Jan. 4.—In the senate Friday Senator Sherman opened his speech by a reference to the two recent messages of the president of the United States in relation to the Monroe doctrine and to the condition of the national finances. As to the former, he remarked that congress had "perhaps too hastily, but with entire unanimity," supported the president in maintaining the interests and honor of the country "in the field of diplomacy," but as to the latter congress had not approved and would not approve his recommendations as to the financial policy, and especially as to the currency. The president had mistaken the cause of the present financial condition in attributing it to the demand for gold for United States notes, instead of to the deficiency of revenue caused by the legislation of the last congress, thus placing the effect before the cause. And he had proposed as a remedy the conversion of United States notes and treasury notes into interest-bearing bonds, "thus increasing the interest-bearing debt nearly $500,000,000." The president had proposed a line of policy that would produce a sharp contraction of currency, and greatly to the burden of existing debts, and arrest the progress of almost every American industry that competed with foreign productions. In these views the president was supported by the secretary of the treasury. It was with diffidence that he (Mr. Sherman) undertook to controvert their opinions, but his convictions were so strong that they were in error that he hoped to convince the senate by the facts which he would submit that the true line of public policy was to supply the government with ample means to meet current expenses, and to pay each year a portion of the public debt. The gold reserve could then be easily maintained without cost, except the loss of interest on gold in the treasury, but with a saving of interest on United States notes and treasury notes of five times the interest lost by the gold held in reserve. But a vastly greater benefit than the saving of interest was secured to the people by a national paper currency at par with coin, supported by the credit of the United States and redeemed on demand in coin at the treasury in the principal cities in the United States.

The only difficulty in the way of an easy maintenance of United States notes at par with coin was the fact that during the administration the revenues of the government had not been sufficient to meet the expenses. If congress had provided necessary revenue, or if the president and the secretary of the treasury had refused to expend appropriations not mandatory in form, but permissive, so as to confine expenditures within receipts, they would have had no difficulty with the reserve.

This would have been a stalwart act in harmony with the president's character and plainly within his power. The president knew as well as any one that from the close of the civil war to the date of his inauguration, the government expenditures had been less than the receipts. In this connection Mr. Sherman produced a table showing that every year during that long period there had been a surplus of revenue, which had been applied to the reduction of interest bearing debt.

Prior to the present administration, he said, the aggregate reduction of debt was greater than the law required.

The president, Mr. Sherman continued, had complained in his recent annual message that the tariff act of 1890 (the McKinley act) was insufficient for the purpose of revenue. That act, Mr. Sherman asserted, had not reduced revenues below expenses, but on the contrary had provided a surplus. If the tariff bill that first passed the house of representatives (the Wilson bill), and that met the hearty approval of the president, had become a law, the deficiency in revenue would have been much greater than it now is; but conservative democratic senators, with the aid of republican senators had greatly improved the house bill, adding other duties and changing its scope. The president refused to sign the act and yet now he supported it, when deficiencies were greatly increased, when the public debt was increasing and when doubts were expressed as to the ability of the government to maintain its notes at par with coin.

After a discussion, in much detail of the effects of the McKinley act and of the existing tariff law on imports, exports and revenues, Mr. Sherman said that he could pursue no further the analysis of the two laws. He regarded the McKinley law as [illegible] than the Wilson law which was, he declared, the cause of all the evils now encountered, of adverse balance of trade, by exportation of gold and by derangement of the monetary system. In every respect in which the subject presented itself to his mind, he could come to no other conclusion than that the deficiency of revenue and the consequent encroachment upon the redemption fund was the cause of the present financial condition, and the only remedies were, either a radical reduction of expenditures, or an increase of taxation, and perhaps both.

He did not believe, however, that a suspension of public works or a postponement of measures now in progress to strengthen the army and navy was required. The president attributed all the financial difficulties to the continued circulation of United States and treasury notes, amounting to nearly $500,000,000 and bearing no interest. "It is just to Mr. Carlisle to say that he attributes the withdrawals of gold to silver legislation, that the Bland silver act was in force from 1878 to 1890 when the accumulation of gold occurred and the great body of gold was withdrawn after the act of July 14, 1890, was repealed. * * *

In view of these official facts, can any fair man doubt as to the cause of our financial condition? What other cause can be stated than that unwise legislation reduced our reserve below our expenses, impaired confidence in our ability to maintain our currency at par and compelled the government to sell bonds for the redemption of United States notes in order to meet deficiencies? What other remedy is there for our financial difficulties except to borrow money on the best terms possible to pay current expenses and to provide additional revenue for future wants? To this extent and for these purposes I am willing to support this administration however much I may disagree with its general policy."

Mr. Sherman indulged in criticism of some of the points made by the president and Mr. Carlisle. Congress, he said, neglected to cure the defects pointed out by the secretary of the treasury in 1880, but he hoped it would correct them now at the request of the president.

The resumption fund should be segregated from all other moneys of the United States, and paid out only in redemption of United States notes. Further on in his speech Mr. Sherman spoke of the president's complaint that notes were presented and paid, reissued and paid again and again, making a continuous circuit. When, he asked, had that circuit commenced. It had commenced when this administration (supported by the last congress) had created a deficiency because the deficiency continued. What was Secretary Carlisle's ground for the hope expressed by him that in two or three years there would be no deficit? The only ground for such hope was that a new administration would provide more revenue, and then the circuit would be broken.

"Why not apply the remedy now?"

In conclusion Mr. Sherman said: "I have seen great changes in my life but those who come after us will see greater changes still. All I ask now is that you will not disturb our present financial system with your deficiencies, will not rob it of its safeguards, will not return to the days of wild-cat money, will not lessen the savings of prudent labor or the accumulations of the rich. Time makes all things even. Let us give the executive authorities ample means to meet the appropriations you have made but let us strengthen, rather than weaken our monetary system, which lies at the foundation of our prosperity and progress."

Mysterious Murder at Grafton, O.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 4.—A special to the Press from Leetonia, O., says: A mysterious murder was committed at Grafton, near this town, Thursday night. Two Italian brothers, who sleep together in the same bed, were awakened during the night by three masked men, two of whom held the one brother, while the third fellow stabbed the other brother to death. Robbery does not appear to have been the motive for the crime, as there were several hundred dollars in the possession of the brothers which was left untouched. The crime is supposed to be the work of the Mafia.

"Notice is further hereby given that, if the issue and sale of additional or different form of bonds for the maintenance of the gold reserve shall be authorized by law before the fifth day of February, 1896, sealed proposals for the purchase of such bonds will also be received at the same time and place, and up to the same date, and upon the same terms and conditions herein set forth, and such bids will be considered as well as the bids for the four per cent. bonds herein mentioned.

"J. G. Carlisle,
"Secretary of the Treasury."

THE CORRESPONDENCE

Between Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and President Kruger.

London, Jan. 6.—On January 3, Rt. Hon. Jos. Chamberlain cabled to President Kruger, of the South African republic, as follows:

"It is rumored here that you have ordered the prisoners to be shot. I do not believe the rumors. I rely on your generosity in your hour of victory."

Sunday Hon. Cecil Rhodes, prime minister of Cape Colony and the head in Africa of the British South Africa Co., sent a dispatch reading:

President Krueger, replying to Mr. Chamberlain's dispatch, cables:

"I have not ordered the freebooters who are prisoners to be shot. Their case will be decided strictly in accordance with the traditions of the republic, and in sharp contrast to the unheard of acts of these freebooters. So many lies and false representations are published in the influential newspapers in England that I deem it advisable to add that the freebooter prisoners have been treated with the greatest consideration by our burghers, despite the fact that the latter have been more than once compelled to take up arms in defense of the dearly bought independence of our republic. I hope you will kindly pardon the liberty I am taking when I say that our confidence in Rhodes has received such a rude shock that his repudiation of the proceedings at Buluwayo ought to be received with the greatest caution. Even now we have news that an armed force is collecting on our borders. If this is true, I trust that no word of Rhodes, but the influence of the government will suffice to prevent further incursions. Will you, with a view to checking further lying reports, publish this?"

Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"I thank you for your message, which I will publish as you desire. The press has not given credence to the rumors about cruelty to prisoners. I have always been confident of your magnanimity. I have sent an imperial officer to Buluwayo to see that my orders are obeyed and to prevent a further raid. You may rest confident that I will strictly uphold all the obligations of the London convention of 1884."

A Farmer Awaiting Death.

Danville, Ky., Jan. 6.—Washington Richardson, a well to do farmer, 65 years old, living in Pulaski county, three miles from Somerset, is laboring under the firm and sincere belief that his earthly career is to be terminated by death on the 15th day of this month.

Extra Session Indiana Legislature Possible.

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 6.—State Senator Charles E. Shively, of this city, who was a member of the republican steering committee in the last legislature, and who is well informed on state political subjects, gives out the information here that it is believed by republican leaders that if the supreme court finds the apportionment law of 1895 unconstitutional, it will also find the law passed by the democrats in 1893 unconstitutional. If this is done the state will be left without an apportionment, and a special session of the legislature will be necessary to secure one.

Utah Admitted to the Union.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Utah was admitted to the sisterhood of states at 10:03 o'clock Saturday morning when President Cleveland signed a proclamation to that effect. There was no ceremony about the matter. Mr. Cleveland and Private Secretary Thurber were alone in the president's office at the time and the signing was done with a steel stub pen affixed to a wooden penholder. The pen and penholder were presented to Gov. West, of Utah, who came to the white house about the time the proclamation was signed.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

Washington, Dec. 31.—Senate—By a vote of 30 to 28 the republicans Monday afternoon took possession of the committees of the senate, Mr. Kyle, populist from South Dakota, voting with the democrats, the rest of the members of the third party declining to vote. Earlier in the day Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, delivered a scholarly speech on the Monroe doctrine, in which he reviewed the history of that doctrine and its application by this government. He praised the attitude of this administration on the question and condemned the aggressions of Great Britain in language that was at times severe, although always polite and diplomatic. Senator Voorhees presented in the senate Monday a communication from Senor V. J. Dominguez, charge d'affaires of the Argentine legation in this city, bearing upon the relations between Argentine and the United States effected by the tariff which it is proposed to levy on wool under the house revenue tariff bill.

House—Not in session.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Senate—Tuesday was occupied by the senate to a large degree in listening to a couple of prosy speeches on the tariff and financial questions, the speakers being Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, who urged the restoration of the old rates on wool, and Mr. Nelson, of Minnesota, who made his maiden speech, and addressed himself to both questions. During the day Mr. Sherman offered the following resolution: Resolved, That by injurious legislation by the Fifty-third congress the revenues of the government were reduced below its necessary expenditures, and the fund created by law for the redemption of United States notes has been invaded to supply such deficiency of reserve: that such a misapplication of the resumption fund is of doubtful legality and greatly injurious to the public credit, and should be prevented by restoring said fund to the sum of not less than $100,000,000 in gold coin or bullion, to be paid out only in the redemption of United States notes and treasury notes, and such notes when redeemed to be reissued only in exchange for gold coin or bullion. Adjourned.

House—The last session of the house for the year 1895 was a purely formal meeting, lasting but a very few minutes, and an adjournment was taken until Friday, according to the understanding. The prayer of Chaplain Couden was most impressive. He asked that party contentions might be buried; that the country might advance with the motto: "One flag, one country, one God forever," and concluded: "With malice toward none, with charity for all, let our action stand an example to all the world, with justice written on her brow."

Washington, Jan. 4.—Senate—Senator Sherman addressed the senate on Friday on the financial situation. At the conclusion of Mr. Sherman's remarks Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.) asked for immediate consideration of his bill to prohibit the issue of interest-bearing bonds except with the consent of congress. Mr. Hill, who happened to be in the chair, startled the senate by himself objecting. The senate agreed to a resolution by Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.) calling on the secretary of the treasury for detailed information as to the segregation of funds in the treasury and their use for purposes other than redemption, with dates and circumstances of such use. The senate adjourned till next Tuesday in the hope, Senator Morrill, of the finance committee, said, that his committee would be ready to report the tariff and bond bills then.

House—The session [illegible] Friday lasted five minutes. The chaplain offered prayer, the journal was read and approved, a message was received from the senate and then the house adjourned until Monday next.

GREAT BRITAIN

Will Adhere to the Convention of 1884 in the Transvaal Matter.

London, Jan. 6.—The correspondents in Berlin of the Morning Post and Daily News telegraph that Germans are now less unanimous in their approval of Emperor William's message.

The Times Monday says that Mr. Chamberlain's statement that Great Britain would adhere to the convention of 1884 was concise and adequate, and will receive the hearty and undivided support of the people of Great Britain, who are prepared to defend their just claims and repel pretensions inconsistent therewith, no matter from how exalted a quarter they may come. Great Britain can not for a moment admit that Germany has any locus standi in the matter. The paper adds:

"We are exhorted in the German press to secure our position in the world by conciliating those who can do us the most injury. When we need that kind of advice we shall probably seek it in quarters possessing greater claims to our confidence and respect. Our reapproachment would not be with Germany but with powers she regards not wholly without apprehension."

THE CONTRACTS

For Furnishing Projectiles for New Warships Awarded.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The contract for furnishing projectiles for new warships in course of construction, mentioned in these dispatches recently as about to be arranged with the Sterling Co., of McKeesport, Pa., and Carpenter Projectile Co., another Pennsylvania firm, has finally been concluded, and the amount allotted for the purpose has been equally divided between the two concerns, each receiving $250,600. The contracts were not awarded through competitive bidding, but through an offer made by the navy department to projectile companies at very low and reasonable rates, which the successful firms accepted. The contracts call for 13-inch and 8-inch armor piercing shells for the battleships Kearsarge and Kentucky; 8-inch shells for the armored cruiser Brooklyn and 12-inch shells for the coast defense vessel Puritan.

Land Grants Approved.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The secretary of the interior Saturday approved the following grants of land to the Northern Pacific Railroad Co., 586,356 acres in the Miles City, Mont., land district, and 1,353,089 acres in the Bismarck, N. D., land district.

The New Battle Ships.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The contracts for the new battle ships Kearsarge and Kentucky, were Saturday delivered to the secretary of the navy duly executed, and work on the ships has already commenced by the Newport News Co.

Uriah Drew Captured.

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 6.—A posse, headed by Jailer Griffin, arrested Uriah Drew near the Jackson county line and took him to Mt. Vernon. Drew is wanted for a criminal assault on Miss Conia Whitt, who lives in the vicinity of Scaffold Cane.

Kokomo, Ind., Jan. 6.—D. Strauss, clothier, assigned Friday, with assets $15,000; liabilities, $25,000. J. Heldman, of Chicago, holds first mortgage for $15,000. A. L. Thalman was appointed assignee.

Boers Win Another Battle.

THE Legislature convened yesterday.

UTAH is now a State, being admitted on the 4th inst.

SENATOR SHERMAN has been surprising his friends some more with his position on the financial question.

THE Aurora Bulletin having fully realized the error of its political way, commenced the new year as a Democratic paper.

THE prospects for a war with England over the Venezuelan matter are not so good. John Bull will find a way out of the complication without having a brush with the United States.

CINCINNATI increased her territory last Wednesday by adding thereto twelve square miles of adjacent country, taking in ont of the cold several of her handsome suburbs, which increased her population about 20,000.

THE LOG CABIN, J. M. Wilson, editor, has made its appearance at Cynthiana. As its name signifies it is Republican in politics, and a very spicy local sheet. May it succeed in all its undertakings except that of holding Kentucky in the Republican column.

THE Alexandria Land Company, composed of Lexington, Ky., people who started out to boom Alexandria, have been caught for a large amount, and at Anderson, Indiana, a judgement has been rendered against them for $257,000. The company is headed by Lieutenant Governor M. C. Alford.

THE Republican Governor and Democratic Auditor, slaughtered Attorney-General Hendrick's claim for $17,747 41 against the State. They scaled the claim down to $4,471 95. He would not submit his claim to Gov. Brown's scrutiny, for personal reasons, but he certainly would not have fared worse.

THE U. S. Senate is now under control of the Republicans, and Senator Teller said last week that a bill providing for the free coinage of silver would be passed before the session is many weeks older. The Republicans have been posing as solid on the financial question, all being for gold; but if Senator Teller knows whereof he speaks such is not the case.

WHEN the Republican State convention was held, last summer, Hon. Augustus E. Wilson, of Louisville, was named by that convention as the Republican candidate for United Sates Senator. At that time the nomination was considered an empty honor, only; but, so soon as it was apparent that the Republicans had some show to elect a Senator, Mr. Wilson discovered that the nomination given him was n. g.—wholy disregarded by those who nominated him.

The American Citizen.

History tells us that in the year 1620, about the 21st day of December, a little handful of pilgrims first set foot upon the dark, desolate wilderness, now known as America. We can scarcely realize by casting our eyes about to-day that our proud little continent, at whose feet all nations kneel, was first settled by a few poor outcasts, who were willing to risk their fate to the barbarous redman and the wild beasts of the woods, that they might find some place to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their conscience, and from that day down our prudent law makers have realized these facts and it has ever been one of the greatest of our fundamental principles; for we notice in the Declaration of Independence composed and adopted July 4, 1776, these rights were strictly reserved. In the Articles of Confederation we find that to be one of the leading principles. Then turn to the Constitution of the United States. Amendments: Article 1—It reads thus: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of re[illegible] or prohibiting the free exer[illegible] thereof. In section 3, Article [illegible] our first Constitution of Ken[illegible] we find the following words: [illegible] all men have a natural and [illegible]ble right to worship Al[illegible] according to the dic[illegible] own conscience; that [illegible] right be compelled to [illegible] support any place [illegible] tain any min[illegible]; that no [illegible] any case whatever, control or interfere with the right of conscience; and that no preference shall ever be given by law to any "religious societies or modes of worship," and so we find in our second, third and present constitution, true, patriotic Americanism and religious liberties have always been and are now contemporaneous one with the other. They go hand in hand—where you find one you invariably find the other also. Dont think that all the inhabitants of America are true-hearted Americans, but in their midst we always find a few who might be termed monomaniacical hypocrites who, as they think, possess greater mental faculties than any of our forefathers, a few that preach the doctrine, "rule or ruin" and would be rightly termed disguised anarchists but what better could you expect of such narrow minded people their little members of understanding becomes, as seems to them, so dense and increased as to render it almost impossible to longer confine it within the protecting walls of their craniums. Something must be done to ease this mania and it had as well ooze out on one subject as another. I repeat not all the inhabitants of America are true-hearted Americans, one man has the same right to be a Republican as another to be a Democrat, and he is none the worse disliked for exercising that right, it matters not which party is oldest or best in our views. One citizen true to the stars and stripes of his country reserves, also the right to worship Almighty God as he sees best and the way his conscience directs him, and he grants each of his fellow-citizens the same right, no matter if his church and belief was founded in the year 1810 by the Omnipotent Alexandre Campbell or before. That is Americanism.

A TRUE AMERICAN.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

FRANKFORT, Jan'y 5th, 1896.

In Frankfort, just now, there is more politics to the square inch than at anyother place on God's green footstool, and the probability is the city will be overrun by the wildeyed politicians for several weeks to come.

Never before were Republicans so much in evidence at the convening of the legislature, and every one of them that is not now in office is on the dead run for a position, and it is hard to find a Republican of any prominence in this State, who is not a candidate for United States Senator. A great deal of hard work has been, and is still being, done by several of the candidates, and as a result, some bad feeling has been engendered. But this is to the liking of Gov. Bradley and his friends, who hope to see the fight grow so bitter that the Republican caucus will fail to make a nomination from the army of aspirants, when he will be trotted out and named as the compromise candidate. The contest among the Republicans is growing very interesting and is found to be fruitful of trouble in their camp.

The Democrats are not idle by any means, and are moving about pretty lively, trying to line up for the Senatorial fight. Senator Blackburn and his friends are certain of success in the caucus, and finally on joint ballot, notwithstanding it is said some of the gold-bug Democrats will not support him under any condition; but of this the Republicans are not so certain and do not depend on electing their man by the aid of deserters from the Democratic camp.

To defeat Blackburn an effort will be made to get ex-Governor John Young Brown to enter the race again. Brown is also a free silver advocate, but it is claimed that the gold-bug Democrats will support him, but why they should support him and not Blackburn it is not clear. It can not be on the grounds of his personal popularity, for, personally, there is not a more popular man in the State than Joe Blackburn, and his organization of workers is composed of men of considerable political experience, and know how to do effective work in conventions and caucuses. If Blackburn does not win his race it will not be for want of political skill on the part of those who are handling his fight.

Col. Berry came up this week and it was reported at once that he was a candidate for Senator on the sly. Of course he would not object to being promoted, but he knows that his chances of success along that line are too slim to be considered. Mr. Berry is a member of the rivers and harbors committee and will try to obtain some good appropriations for the improvement of our navigable streams.

All the "political finger-boards" point to Gov. Bradley as the Republican nominee for Senator, and in spite of his frequent assertions that he is not a candidate, it is believed he would lose no time in accepting should the opportunity offer.

If Dr. Hunter is not nominated for Senator by the Republican caucus he will be one of the worst disappointed office-seekers that has struck Frankfort for a long time. His slick work during the State campaign smacked very much of party treachery, and for that reason some of the leaders have it in for the doctor.

The following are expected to be some of the recommendations contained in Governor Bradley's message which will go to the Legislature on Tuesday or Wednesday: That a thorough investigation of the State departments be made; that a house of reform be built; that the office of Register of the Land Office be abolished; that the office of Commonwealth's Attorney be abolished, and the business of that office be transferred to the county attorney's; that the office of Auditor's Agent be abolished.

It will be only a few days at the most until Mr. Poor, the Pendleton county representative will have to name his choice for Senator. Mr. Poor is a creature of a Republican and Populist combine, and it has been repeatedly claimed and as often denied that he will vote with the Republicans in the election of a Senator. Only wait a little while and you will see what you will see.

The certainty that A. E. Wilson cannot carry the Louisville delegation in the caucus has had considerable effect on the Republicans in other quarters, causing them to go to other candidates, when they would have supported Wilson had he shown any strength at home.

STATE NEWS.

During the year 1895 13 persons ranging in age from 75 to 86 years, died in Scott county.

The Times thinks that Georgetown will probably move on regardless of the result of the local option election.

The log men of Hartford have lost a good deal of money by their logs being torn loose and carried away by the drift.

The Governor offered a reward of $500, for the apprehension and conviction of each or any of the unknown persons who murdered Mrs. Patty West and W. A. Dever, in Marion county. A strong letter, urging this reward was received from the county Judge, who stated that the people were thoroughly aroused, and determined to ferret out, and bring to justice the guilty persons.

The Hopkinsville Republican has changed to Hopkinsville Banner, saying that Hopkinsville is the slipper in which the Almighty rests his left foot—the right being in Heaven. Of course when the proprietors of the paper fully realized the fact they changed its name, thinking, perhaps, Republicans could not flourish so near the foot of the Great Giver ot all good. In this decision many will agree with them.

Word comes from Martin county that there is soon to be made an experiment in salt making near Warfield, says the Ashland News. As is well known, there is a gas well there that has wasted its output for more than a decade, without even a satisfactory solution of the matter of saving the gas having been offered. Now it is proposed to pipe it off for use in boiling salt water that will be pumped from a couple of abandoned oil wells. The works will be on a small scale at the start, but if the venture proves to be a satisfactory one it will be steadily enlarged.

The local option election held in Scott county on the 21st of December, which was decided adversely to the open saloon, is to be contested. The majority of the signers of the petition are saloon keepers or persons closely allied with that interest. The grounds of the contest are purely technical. The objection is made that no application by petition was filed with the County Judge, that the Sheriff failed to make proper publication of the election, and that the officers of the election were not divided equally, the regular officers being permitted to serve. Attorney John W. Rodman, of Frankfort, represents the contestants. The case will be heard in the County Court on the 27 inst.

One hundred and fourteen Sheriffs have settled the State revenue for as many counties in full, and each have received the quietus of Auditor Norman. Of the few remaining unsettled in full, only two of them owe the State. Nearly all the bank tax has been settled and paid into the treasury, and only a few banks owe the State a cent. Of the number of county and circuit clerks, trustees of the jury fund, and others who collect and pay out the State's money, but two are unsettled, and their accounts are in the hands of the Attorney General for settlement. The Democratic officials go out of office leaving everything in good shape, and the new officers that enter next Monday will not have much trouble in cleaning up old accounts. This does not show that Democratic officials have been very derelict in their duties in executing the offices entrusted to them by law.—Argus.

A Pantagraph man overheard several Madison stock farmers talking about the mule business now and twenty years ago in Madison county, says the Richmond Pantagraph. In those days Madison had the reputation of raising the finest mules in the State and they were eagerly sought and several instances of fabulous prices were instanced. One hundred and twenty five dollars was the usual price for a yearling, and an extra good one would bring $150 to $175. A good pair of work mules would cost $400 or you could not get them. It is said that Mr. O. H. Chenault sold a pair ot snow-white mules to "the secret agent of a South American ruler for $2,500." This looks somewhat mulish and may be true, but Mr. Fitzpatrick thinks that the blanket was stretched just a little too much. It is thought by some that one reason mules don't sell for higher prices is because the farmers are negligent and allow them to become poor. The Missouri mule is a better seller than the Kentuckian and it may be due to the superior breeding and care in that State. One thing is sure, times must improve, and a large demand for the long eared creatures must come around before we ever hear of a $200 mule in this State.

POLITICAL.

London Truth defends President Cleveland's attitude on the Monroe doctrine.

Ex-Senator Warner Miller says Gov. Morton has formerly announced himself a candidate for the presidency.

"There is no truth whatever," says the Covington Record, "in the report that ex-State Auditor Norman, of Boone county, will be a candidate for Congress in the Democratic Convention against Col. A. S. Berry. Mr. Norman is one of Col. Berry's warmest supporters and both are the best of friends."

The Corean Minister of the Household has issued a proclamation announcing the intended selection of a new consort for the king. According to a time-honored custom the issue of this proclamation has the effect of prohibiting for the time being the marriage of all girls between 13 and 17 throughout the country. Thirty or forty girls are to be nominated, and from among them will be first selected three, and on one of the three the final choice will fall.

W. O. Bradley has been Governor of Kentucky for nearly a month and none of the rascally and roguish Democratic officials of the State have been arrested yet. We had been led to believe that just as soon as Bradley took his seat he would bend every energy and exert every power of his gigantic intellect to prosecuting and punishing these Democrats who, we were told, had been stealing from the treasury for many, many years.—Williamsburg Times.

The bill to obliterate the color line and give to colored persons equal rights in hotels, restaurants, theaters and other public places has already been drafted by a Louisville member of the Legislature, who is not so good as a negro himself, and its passage will be pushed. The bill can not become a law as the Senate will not agree to it, but the House, which is Republican, will have to show its hand. It will be interesting to watch the course of the members. We don't know, but we feel pretty sure that Lincoln county's Republican Representative will vote nay.—Stanford Interior-Journal.

If the Democrats in the Kentucky Legislature stand together, they can prevent the election of a Republican to the United States Senate, if indeed, they cannot elect a Democrat to succeed Blackburn. Democratic Senators and Representatives, fight for the election of a Democrat to the United States Senate, and if you can not succeed in this, then fight to prevent the election of a Republican.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat.

From now until the United States Senator is elected Kentucky will be compelled to bear the expense of a Legislature that will accomplish nothing in the way of legislation until the senatorship is decided. Even then there will be little done, for so much time is likely to be taken up in the struggle that little will be left for the transaction of any business. How much better and less expensive would it be if each State convention had named its candidate for the Senate.—Park City Times.

The Owensboro Messenger says the contest of Werner against Tompkins for a seat in the Legislature, from the city district of Daveiss county, has about petered out, the attorneys for the contestant having withdrawn from the case. It is now reported that the entire Republican force will be turned on Kaufman, from Lexington, who got a majority of over a hundred over Dunlap. The grounds for this contest are based first, on the facts that Kaufman who resigned from the city council many months before the election, did not file a copy of his resignation with the county clerk, and, second, fraud in one precinct. The first charge is so flimsy that it would not be taken seriously by any judicial authority. An interview with Mr. Kaufman, in the Lexington Argonaut, shows that the precinct desired to be thrown out was the one where Dunlap stayed on election day, and that no charge of fraud was raised. Even if this precinct is thrown out, Kaufman will still have a majority of ten. If the Republicans turn Kaufman out, it will be on account of partisanship and not of equity. No fair committee would recommend such a course, and every Republican would have to be whipped into line since the Populists would certainly not join an attempt to lessen their own importance in the body.

Instructions to Correspondents.

No department of a country paper is more interesting or valuable than the news from neighboring towns, provided it is gathered and written by correspondents who understand their business. Few persons can do such work well without some instruction and training. The following, or something similar, should be sent by every paper to its correspondents, with the request that matter for publication be prepared accordingly:

Write briefly, in a plain hand, making a separate paragraph of each item.

To get news—Give attention to all that is going on in your locality. Ask questions. Find out the particulars. Get facts only. Get names and initials correct, and write in Plain Letters, so no errors need occur in case we don't know the people you write about.

Report—Marriages, births, deaths, concerts, spelling-schools, lyceums, public meetings, special church services, new buildings and other improvements, and anything of interest.

Omit—Gossip, personal slurs and whatever might give offense to innocent persons or notoriety to retiring and modest ones.

Mr. Will Skillman has had sore eyes for years. He has tried many doctors and remedies, and has always failed to get relief until we sold him a tube of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve, which cured him inside of one week. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey sells well and cures. Respectfully. Meyer & Co., Buras. Ky.—January 15, 1895.

Everything that was not nailed down in Burlington, got a move on about the time the old year bowed itself out and the new year stepped in, and Wednesday morning it looked like the town had been struck by a cyclone Barrels of salt were scattered about town, wagons lay across fences, buggies were on top of buildings, and the street in front of the Court House was blockaded with lumber and heavy timbers, while large timbers blockaded the entrance to the bank.

The supper given by the ladies at the Court House last Wednesday night was a success in every particular. The menu consisted of turkey, old ham, beef, oyster soup, coffee, salads ice cream and cakes. The tables were nicely arranged in the grand jury room, the county court room serving as the culinary department. Everybody, nearly, about town patronized the supper, while quite a number from the country were present. The ladies' several days diligent work was well rewarded the net receipts of the supper being $50. In this connection the ladies who managed the supper desire to thank all those who, in any manner aided them in making it such a pronounced success.

Much important business was transacted, and considerable interest was manifested. Several interesting and valuable communications from Ohio and Pennsylvania, were read before the meeting. A committee was appointed to confer with several fair associations, soliciting a full show ring for the best hogs in existence—the "Belted Thin Rinds."

WATCH MEETING

The Epworth League of the Petersburg M. E. Church, gave a watch party at the residence of Harry McWethy New Year's eve night, that was attended by about fifty members and their friends, each member having the privilege of inviting one of their friends. Harry and his kind little wife had the parlor so arranged that each person was given a chair, and the participants were prompt in assuming their part of the program, and not one seemed in the least embarrassed, and some of the recitations were received with hearty applause. The exercises opened with a song, "Foward Leagures," followed by a prayer by Rev. Fizer. Opening address, "How different Nations calculated time before the coming of the Savior," by Rev. Fizer, was very instructive; A trio—"Honey Suckle March," Mrs. Euna McWethy, Lou Barnett and Nellie Krutz; "Ring Out the Wild Bells," Master Henry Gordon; Anthem—"I was Glad," one of the best pieces on the program, was a recitation by Miss Sue McWethy; "No Tears in Heaven," it was very affecting and caused tears to come to many an eye; after which came a cornet solo, "Cleopatra Polka," by Mr. Matt Hardin. A very laughable recitation was "Fashionable Playing," by Miss Rea Alcorn; Instrumental Solo, by Miss Lou Allen, was well received. Harry McWethy sang a beautiful duett, "A la Valse," assisted by Miss Nellie Krutze; a bass solo by Mildred Cave, showed to what a low bass a trained voice can be pitched. Mrs. Maria Terrill's ever popular "Skating Rink," brought down the house. A very pathetic recitation was "The Last Hymn" by Miss Fannie Cave. A vocal solo came next and was rendered in plain English, and did not have so much of the sound of opera music as some of the pieces did. Master Earl Whiting played "Romanza," on his clarinet, and at this stage of the proceedings Harry McWethy announced that the best part of the program was now at hand—luncheon. The members of the society and their invited guests were now ushered into the dining room where two large tables fairly groaned under their weight of edibles, including all the delicacies of the season. During the intermission, Harry Mathews entertained some of the members in the parlor. "Come back to Erwin and the departed year," came in for a shower of applause. Now came the best piece of the evening, a vocal duet, "Domestic Squabbles" by Miss Ella Alcorn and Mr. Harry McWethy, and without a doubt, they are two of the best singers in the county. Miss Alcorn has a splendid voice as has Harry, also, and their song showed the bright and dark side of wedded life, when there is a mother-in-law to deal with. "Greeting New Year's eve." by Miss Sallie McWethy, was original and was very interesting "Good Bye Old Year," and "I would that My Love," closed the evening's program. And after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Harry McWethy a happy New Year and many returns, the guests reluctantly departed for their several homes.

A CARD OF THANKS.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The Sunday School Entertainment given by Mrs. C. C. Hughes at the Court-House during Christmas week for the benefit of the little children deserves the commendation of all our citizens. Mrs. Hughes is always contributing to the pleasure of the young folks and carrying joy and sunshine into their lives.

The supper under the auspices of the ladies last Wednesday evening was the most elegant function ever given in Burlington. The delicacies of both land and sea, served in perfect style, were set forth on beautiful decorated tables to tempt the appetites of the connoisseurs. The good women of Burlington always do well that which they undertake, and in this instance they not only furnished enjoyment to those whom fortune favored in permitting them to be present, but also raised a considerable sum for the use in a noble cause. I desire to express my heartfelt thanks to Mrs. Hughes and also to all those who lent their services in preparing for the supper and in cleaning up afterwards. They left the Court House in as good condition as they found it. The pleasant recollections of the evening will long linger in the memories of our people, and in conclusion I must wish those good women a happy New Year.
C. L. CRISLER.

[Say, Cy, when did Mrs. Hughes give that sunday-school entertainment in the court house?—ED]

The young men of Florence and Erlanger gave an informal dance last Friday evening in honor of Miss Nola Bahn, a charming and accomplished young lady of Harrodsburg, who was the guest of Miss Bessie Crigler, of Erlanger. The dance was a superb success in every particular, and culture, beauty and fashion lent their potent influence to enhance the beauty of the occasion, and graceful and dainty girls were guests of gallant beaux. The tripping of the light fantastic was enjoyed until a late hour. Among those present were Misses Bessie Crigler, Nola Bohn, Katie Corwine, Jennie Myers, Bessie Snyder, Ruria Dulaney, Gertrude Stewart, Susie Chambers, Katie Grogan, Virginia Finch. Messrs. Chas. Souther, Chester Souther, Chas. Coe, Harry Ingram, Roy Wilbur, Irwin Kyle, Rob Clutterbuck, Jack Sandford and Cecil Finch.

J. M. Lassing, assignee of E. M. Gaines, sold, at public auction, last Monday, at the court house door, the two tracts of land belonging to the assignor. The Paschal Rucker tract of 154 acres, near Utzinger, was bought by William Stephens for $7,850. The 98½ acre tract, near Bullittsburg church, was bought by Fletcher Clore at $3,900. Mr. Lassing certainly handled the land to the very best advantage for the creditors, and while the prices realized are much better than many expected, the purchasers are not hurt in the least.

As a generator of life nothing excels a mouse when roving around in the clothing a fellow is wearing, and men who have been scarcely able to move about on account of rheumatism for years, have been known to perform some very remarkable feats as lightning disrobers under such circumstances. Rouse, a rheumatic for years, astonished the Limaburgers by an exhibition of rapid transit from his clothing only because a little mouse wanted to become a joint tenant.

WALTON—The present artic weather is causing many housekeepers to think that their heating stoves have developed qualities that would be invaluable in refrigerators, that is if we are to judge by the number of people required to crowd around one of them to keep it warm.

Some noted gourmand once said "Blessed be the man that discovered a eatable." Walton, just now, is disposed to canonize our genial friend, cousin Lucien, (L. B. Stephens,) for introducing the fascinating parlor game of "Crokonole." Everybody that has thumped the kisks is just carried away with it—old men, young men, boys, children, uncles, cousins, aunts and all the others are in the procession glorifying the game. There has been such a demand for Crokonole Boards in the city that the supply failed just before Christmas. Our ingenious young friend Marie Nortboutt, started to make one, and now has it nearly completed.

On the evening of the 1st inst., Master Johnnie Kipp and his charming sister, Miss Lizzie, had a pleasant Crokonole table with Mr. and Mrs. H. M Northcutt as guests. Johnnie and Mrs. N. just put it all over Miss Lizzie and Maria, who by the way, is an expert. He claims that he was not in good form during the entire game, but his form came to him when an adjournment was made to the bounteously laden refreshment table, where he did not miss a shot.

Allen Anderson, jr., has an abscess on his hand.

Mrs. Elizabeth Aylor, who has been very sick is some better.

Wm. J. Utz killed a snake Christmas eve.

A few days since S. J. Rouse took out of his hand a piece of glass that has been two years working through.

Born, to Mike Die and wife, an eight pound boy. Mike is all smiles.

Miss Belle Baker gave a very pleasant leap year party and candy pulling, a few nights since. Those present were: Misses Mamie Tanner, May Brown, Dora Baker. Annie Brown, Eva Garnett, Dora Brown, Girtie Rouse, Lulu Tanner, Nettie Tanner, and Messrs. Harvey Tanner, J. M. Utz, W. N. Utz, Ezra Rouse, Otha Rouse, Wm. Garnett, Bud Baker, Ezra Popham, Howard Garnett.

VERONA—E. C. Showers, who has been studying pharmacy at Louisville, spent the holidays with his parents at this place.

Dr. Russell Hume, of the Louisville Medical College, spent a couple of days with relatives and friends here, week before last.

Miss Anna Wolfe has returned to Georgetown College, after spending vacation with her parents.

Miss Sarah Wolfe's school closed at Onsburg Dec. 20th. She will attend college at Frankfort after the holidays.

John T. Roberts, jr., who has been attending school at Danville, spent the holidays at home.

Christmas and New Years passed off very quietly at this place.

Daniel Roberts is very ill with heart trouble.

C. Kennedy has been quite sick for several days with fever.

The entertainment has been postponed until January 29th, 30th and 31st. The entertainment will be held at the League [illegible] College. Doors open at 6:30 p. m.

The Baptist organized a Sunday-School last Sunday at the college. All of the good brethren are requested to attend and bring their children.

Owing to the extreme cold weather there was not a very large attendance at the pie party at Mr. J. M. Powers', last Friday night.

Last Friday was the coldest day we have had—3° below zero.

The leap year party given by Misses Effa and Ida Craven, New Year's night was one of the most pleasant and enjoyable occasions of the season. It was quite funny to see the girls going after the boys. There were about twenty couples in attendance. The evening was spent playing games of different kinds, vocal and instrumental music, until early in the morning.

PETERSBURG—Wm. Weindel has returned to Louisville to resume his study in medicine. Success to you, Billy, old boy.

Miss Florence Warburton, of Lawrenceburg, is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Weindel, at this place.

Miss Bessie Hurd gave an oyster supper New Year's eve, as did Amelia Vessemire and Viola Blackburn.

Hayden Davis, of Lexington, spent the holidays here.

While J. I. McWethy was being shaved at Hardin & Helms' shop, the other day, his horse which he left but a few minutes before, became frightened, ran off and broke things up considerably. Mr. McWethy presented rather a comical appearance pursuing his property, with his face almost obscured by the barber's lather. That is once when fun was blended with fright.

SMITH—SMITH.

A beautiful wedding occurred at the Christian Church on New Year's day, the contracting parties being Mr. Frank D. Smith and Miss Ida Wood Smith, both very prominent young people of this place.

For the occasion the friends of the bride and groom had decorated the church in a very artistic manner with plants, vines and palms, and the scene thus produced was delightful.

It was 3 p. m., when the party arrived at the church, and as Miss Lizzie Carter, niece of the bride, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, they approached the altar, where they were met by Elder R. H. Robertson, of Lawrenceburg, who in the presence of a church full of the relatives and friends in a solemn and impressive manner pronounced the ceremony that blended the lives of the young couple. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party left for the groom's home about two miles below Petersburg, where a grand dinner was in waiting, and to which quite a number sat down.

The bride was attired in a brown silk dress entrain, and the groom wore the conventional black. Miss Mary Terrill was bride's maid, and Mr. Ben R. Smith the best man.

The friends and relatives from a distance were: Mrs. Dr. Jonas Terrill, Dr. Smith Terrill, Ben Terrill, Miss Mary Terrill, Mrs. Kate Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck, Julius Carter, Misses Lizzie and Ethel Carter and Miss Lucy Larimer.

The presents received by the bride and groom were numerous, handsome and useful.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold wh[illegible] in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry

The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure. To all ministers suffering from throat troubles, I recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—E. M. BRAWLEY, D.D., Dist. Secretary, Am. Bapt. Publication Society, Petersburg, Va.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. THE PRODIGAL SON.

Christ Gives New Robes to Sinners When They Come Back to the Fold After Straying—Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

I will not rehearse the familiar story of the fast young man of the parable. You know what a splendid home he left. You know what a hard time he had. And you remember how after that season of vagabondage and prodigality he resolved to go and weep out his sorrows on the bosom of parental forgiveness. Well, there is great excitement one day in front of the door of the old farmhouse. The servants come rushing up and say: "What's the matter? What is the matter?" But before they quite arrive the old man cries out: "Put a ring on his hand." What a seeming absurdity! What can such a wretched mendicant as this fellow that is tramping on toward the house want with a ring? Oh, he is the prodigal son. No more tending of the swine trough. No more longing for the pods of the carob tree. No more blistered feet. Off with the rags! On with the robe! Out with the ring! Even so does God receive every one of us when we come back. There are gold rings, and pearl rings, and emerald rings, and diamond rings; but the richest ring that ever flashed on the vision is that which our Father puts upon a forgiven soul.

I know that the impression is abroad among some people that religion bemeans and belittles a man; that it takes all the sparkle out of his soul; that he has to exchange a roystering independence for an ecclesiastical strait jacket. Not so. When a man becomes a Christian he does not go down, he starts upward. Religion multiplies one by ten thousand. Nay, the multiplier is in infinity. It is not a blotting out—it is a polishing, it is an arborescence, it is an efflorescence, it is an irradiation. When a man comes into the kingdom of God he is not sent into a menial service, but the Lord God Almighty from the palaces of Heaven calls upon the messenger angels that wait upon the throne to fly and "put a ring on his hand." In Christ are the largest liberty, and brightest joy, and highest honor, and richest adornment. "Put a ring on his hand."

I remark, in the first place, that when Christ receives a soul into His love, He puts upon him the ring of adoption. While in my church in Philadelphia, there came the representative of the Howard Mission, of New York. He brought with him eight or ten children of the street that he had picked up, and he was trying to find for them Christian homes; and as the little ones stood on the pulpit and sang, our hearts melted within us. At the close of the service a good hearted, wealthy man came up and said: "I'll take this little bright-eyed girl, and I'll adopt her as one of my own children;" and he took her by the hand, lifted her into his carriage and went away.

The next day, while we were in the church gathering up garments for the poor of New York, this little child came back with a bundle under her arm, and she said: "There's my old dress; perhaps some of the poor children would like to have it" while she herself was in bright and beautiful array, and those who more immediately examined her said she had a ring on her hand. It was a ring of adoption.

There are a great many persons who pride themselves on their ancestry, and they glory over the royal blood that pours through their arteries. In their line there was a lord, or a duke, or a prime minister, or a king. But when the Lord, our Father, puts upon us the ring of His adoption, we become the children of the Ruler of all Nations. "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God." It matters not how poor our garments may be in this world, or how scant our bread, or how mean the hut we live in, if we have that ring of Christ's adoption upon our hand we are assured of eternal defenses.

Adopted! Why, then, we are brothers and sisters to all the good of earth and Heaven. We have the family name, the family dress, the family keys, the family wardrobe. The Father looks after us, robes us, defends us, blesses us. We have royal blood in our veins, and there are crowns in our line. If we are His children, then princes and princesses. It is only a question of time when we get our coronet. Adopted! Then we have the family secret. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him." Adopted! Then we have the family inheritance, and in the day when our Father shall divide the riches of Heaven we shall take our share of the mansions and palaces and temples. Henceforth let us boast no more of an earthly ancestry. The insignia of eternal glory is our coat-of-arms. This ring of adoption puts upon us all honor and all privilege. Now we can take the words of Charles Wesley, that prince of hymn-makers, and sing:

Come, let us join our friends above,
Who have obtained the prize,
And on the eagle wings of love
To joys celestial rise.
Let all the saints terrestrial sing
With those to glory gone:
For all the servants of our King,
In Heaven and earth are one.

I have been told that when any of the members of any of the great secret societies of this country are in a distant city and are in any kind of trouble, and are set upon by enemies, they have only to give a certain signal and the members of that organization will flock around for defense. And when any man belongs to this great Christian brotherhood, if he gets in trouble, in trial, in persecution, in temptation, he has only to show this ring of Christ's adoption and all the armed cohorts of Heaven will come to his rescue.

Still further, when Christ takes a soul into His love He puts upon it a marriage ring. Now, that is not a whim of mine; Hosea ii., 19: "I will betroth thee unto me forever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in loving kindness, and in mercies." At the wedding altar the bridegroom puts a ring upon the hand of the bride, signifying love and faithfulness. Trouble may come upon the household, and the carpets may go, the pictures may go, the piano may go, everything else may go, the last thing that goes is that marriage ring, for it is considered sacred. In the burial hour it is withdrawn from the hand and kept in a casket and sometimes the box is opened on an anniversary day, and as you look at that ring you see under its arch a long procession of precious memories. Within the golden circle of that ring there is room for a thousand sweet recollections to revolve, and you think of the great contrast between the hour when, at the close of the "Wedding March," under the flashing lights and amid the aroma of orange blossoms, you set that ring on the round finger of the plump hand, and that hour when, at the close of the exhaustive watching, when you knew that the soul had fled, you took from the hand, which gave back no responsive clasp, from that emaciated finger, the ring which she had worn so long and worn so well.

On some anniversary day you take up that ring, and you repolish it until all the old luster comes back, and you can see in it the flash of eyes that long ago ceased to weep. Oh, it is not an unmeaning thing when I tell you that when Christ receives a soul into His keeping He puts on a marriage ring. He endows you from that moment with all His wealth. You are one—Christ and the soul—one in sympathy, one in affection, one in hope.

There is no power on earth or hell to effect a divorcement after Christ and the soul are united. Other kings have turned out their companions when they get weary of them, and sent them adrift from the palace gate. Ahasuerus banished Vashti; Napoleon forsook Josephine, but Christ is the husband that is true forever. Having loved you once, He loves you to the end. Did they not try to divorce Margaret, the Scotch girl, from Jesus? They said: "You must give up your religion." She said: "I can't give up my religion." And so they took her down to the beach of the sea, and they drove in a stake at low water mark, and they fastened her to it, expecting that as the tide came up her faith would fail. The tide began to rise, and came up higher and higher, and to the girdle, and to the lip, and in the last moment, just as the wave was washing her soul into glory, she shouted the praises of Jesus.

Oh, no, you can not separate a soul from Christ. It is an everlasting marriage. Battle and storm and darkness can not do it. It is too much exultation for a man, who is but dust and ashes like myself, to cry out this moment: "I am persuaded that neither height, nor depth, or principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor any other creature shall separate me from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus my Lord." Glory be to God that when Christ and the soul are married they are bound by a chain—a golden chain—if I might say so—a chain with one link, and that one link the golden ring of God's everlasting love.

I go a step further, and tell you that when Christ receives a soul into his love He puts on Him the ring of festivity. You know that it has been the custom in all ages to bestow rings on very happy occasions. There is nothing more appropriate for a birthday gift than a ring. You delight to bestow such a gift upon your children at such a time. It means joy, hilarity, festivity. Well, when this old man of the text wanted to tell how glad he was that his boy had got back, he expressed it in this way. Actually, before he ordered sandals to be put on his bare feet; before he ordered the fatted calf to be killed to appease the boy's hunger, he commanded: "Put a ring on his hand."

Oh, it is a merry time when Christ and the soul are united! Joy of forgiveness! What a splendid thing it is to feel that all is right between my God and myself. What a glorious thing it is to have God just take up all the sins of my life and put them in one bundle, and then fling them into the depths of the sea, never to rise again, never to be talked of again. Pollution all gone. Darkness all illumined. God reconciled. The prodigal home. "Put a ring on his hand."

Every day I find happy Christian people. I find some of them with no second coat, some of them in huts and tenement houses, not one earthly comfort afforded them; and yet they are as happy as happy can be. They sing "Rock of Ages" as no other people in the world sing it. They never wore any jewelry in their life but one gold ring, and that was the ring of God's undying affection. Oh, how happy religion makes us! Did it make you gloomy and sad? Did you go with your head cast down? I do not think you got religion, my brother. That is not the effect of religion. True religion is a joy. "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace."

Why, religion lightens all our burdens. It smooths all our ways. It interprets all our sorrows. It changes the jar of earthly discord for the peal of festal bells. In front of the flaming furnace of trial it sets the forge on which sceptres are hammered out. Would you not like this hour to come up from the swine-feeding and try this religion? All the joys of Heaven would come out and meet you, and God would cry from the throne: "Put a ring on his hand."

You are not happy. I see it. There is no peace, and sometimes you laugh when you feel a great deal more like crying. The world is a cheat. It first wears you down with its follies, then it kicks you out into darkness. It comes back from the massacre of a million souls to attempt the destruction of your soul to-day. No peace out of God, but there is the fountain that can slake the thirst. Here is the harbor where you can drop safe anchorage.

Would you not like, I ask you—not perfunctorily, but as one brother might talk to another—would you not like to have a pillow of rest to put your head on? And would you not like, when you retire at night, to feel that all is well, whether you wake up to-morrow morning at 6 o'clock or sleep the sleep that knows no waking? Would you not like to exchange this awful uncertainty about the future for a glorious assurance of Heaven? Accept of the Lord Jesus to-day, and all is well. If on your way home some peril should cross the street and dash your life out it would not hurt you. You would rise up immediately. You would stand in the celestial streets. You would be among the great throng that forever worship and are forever happy. If this night some sudden disease should come upon you it would not frighten you. If you knew you were going you could give a calm farewell to your beautiful home on earth, and know that you are going right into the companionship of those who have already gone beyond the toiling and the weeping.

You feel on Saturday night different from the way you feel any other night of the week. You come home from the bank, or the store, or the office, and you say: "Well, now, my week's work is done, and to-morrow is Sunday." It is a pleasant thought. There is refreshment and reconstruction in the very idea. Oh, how pleasant it will be, if, when we get through the day of our life, and we go and lie down in our bed of dust, we can realize: "Well, now the work is all done, and to-morrow is Sunday—an everlasting Sunday."

Oh, when, thou city of my God,
Shall I thy courts ascend?
Where congregations ne'er break up,
And Sabbaths have no end.

There are people in this house to-day who are very near the eternal world. If you are Christians, I bid you be of good cheer. Bear with you our congratulations to the bright city. Aged men, who will soon be gone, take with you our love for our kindred in the better land, and when you see them, tell them that we are soon coming. Only a few more sermons to preach and hear. Only a few more heartaches. Only a few more toils. Only a few more tears. And then—what an entrancing spectacle will open before us!

Beautiful Heaven, where all is light,
Beautiful angels, clothed in white,
Beautiful strains that never tire,
Beautiful harps through all the choir;
There shall I join the chorus sweet,
Worshiping at the Saviour's feet.

And so I approach you now with a general invitation, not picking out here and there a man, or here and there a woman, or here and there a child; but giving you an unlimited invitation, saying: "Come, for all things are now ready." We invite you to the warm heart of Christ and the inclosure of the Christian church. I know a great many think that the church does not amount to much—that it is obsolete; that it did its work and is gone now, so far as all usefulness is concerned. It is the happiest place I have ever been in except my own home.

I know there are some people who say they are Christians who seem to get along without any help from others, and who culture solitary piety. They do not want any ordinances. I do not belong to that class. I can not get along without them. There are so many things in this world that take my attention from God, and Christ, and Heaven, that I want all the helps of all the symbols and of all the Christian associations, and I want around about me a solid phalanx of men who love God and keep His commandments. Are there any here who would like to enter into the association? Then by a simple, child-like faith, apply for admission into the visible church, and you will be received. No questions asked about your past history or present surroundings. Only one test—do you love Jesus?

Baptism does not amount to any thing, say a great many people, but the Lord Jesus declared, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," putting baptism and faith side by side. And an apostle declares, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you." I do not stickle for any particular mode of baptism, but I put great emphasis on the fact that you ought to be baptized. Yet no more emphasis than the Lord Jesus Christ, the Great Head of the Church, puts upon it.

Some of you have been thinking on this subject year after year. You have found out that this world is a poor portion. You want to be Christians. You have come almost into the kingdom of God; but there you stop, forgetful of the fact that to be almost saved is not to be saved at all. Oh, my brother, after having come so near to the door of mercy, if you turn back, you will never come at all. After all you have heard of the goodness of God, if you turn away and die, it will not be because you did not have a good offer.

God's spirit will not always strive
With hardened, self-destroying man;
Ye who persist His love to grieve
May never hear his voice again.

May God Almighty this hour move upon your soul and bring you back from the husks of the wilderness to the Father's house, and set you at the banquet, and "put a ring on your hand."

FOR PARTISAN PURPOSES.

Objects of the Financial Legislation Now Pending Before Congress.

People of this country who are forward enough to read a newspaper once a day or even once a week are not going to be fooled by the fol-de-rol now going on at Washington. The performance upon which congress is now entering is insincere and ineffective. It is a pretense and a sham. The committee on ways and means seems to have sat on Christmas day for the purpose of producing an effect upon the public mind. It was the worst case of jingoism in economics that has been seen in a long time. Men of gravity and experience are engaging in a political circus act. They are merely preparing for campaign document, which is to run something after this fashion: "We tried to relieve the distress of the treasury and the revenue difficulties, but the administration stood in our way. We presented the remedy, but it was not accepted."

The gentlemen who are engineering the present scheme in the house have no expectation that it will ever become a law. If they thought it would they would probably not be for it. They are merely meeting what is declared to be a serious condition with a cheap article of pettifoggery. They have no well matured plan of relief, and if they had they would not put it in operation for the benefit of a democratic administration.

Everybody knows what the course of the administration on finance has been. We shall not go over an old discussion. In carrying out a policy which the republican party created Mr. Cleveland has been issuing bonds under the old resumption law to get gold to maintain a gold reserve of $100,000,000 in the treasury. He has been adding to the public indebtedness to "maintain a credit" that has not been threatened. He has been criticised in both parties for his course. He lately advised congress that there was another crisis, and urged legislation that would help him to keep the gold stock up. Congress had previously been advised that there was no trouble in the matter of the revenue. The ways and means committee, however, under the direction of the speaker, proposes a tariff bill which they know cannot become a law and a bond bill which is not essentially different from the law under which bonds are now issued. The silver men in the senate, without regard to party, are able to defeat any measure that has a bond provision in it, and they will.

What is to come out of all this? Who can discover a prospect of a result? What's the use of trifling with propositions that have no significance in them? It may be of the greatest importance to express a principle through the legislative machinery, even if that principle cannot at the time become a law. The republican party in the campaign of this year, denounce the democratic tariff in bitter terms, and insisted that republican legislation on that subject was the only safe refuge for the country. They are now in overwhelming possession of the house, and it is their duty to pass a tariff bill on the high protection lines they have advocated. It is their part to do this as a matter of party faith and principle. This popgun tariff proposition—this makeshift to avoid the issue made in the president's message—is not a redemption of the promises implied in the campaign. It is mere straddling and sprawling about, and an offense to public intelligence.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

UNPATRIOTIC SANDBAGGERS.

Every republican plan for increasing the revenue is dishonest and a scheme to sandbag and rob the people of the country. No great increase, if any, is required. But the imaginary deficit is made a pretext for the kind of tariff legislation demanded by the rapacity of the protected monopolists. They declare that the country is in no necessitous circumstances and they regard the country's necessity as their rascally opportunity.

From every part of the country—when its patriotic enthusiasm was awakened and there was a probability that men, ships and money might be needed to fight its battles on land and sea—there thronged to the capitol the agents, solicitors and other members of the lobby gang to urge increased taxation, not for the public benefit, but for their own.

The most impudent and the most greedy of the throngs that surrounded the sources of revenue legislation were the wool men, clamoring for a renewal of the wool tax, which would include the old tax on clothing, carpets, hats and caps and other wool products. They ciphered out that the wool and clothing tariff produced in prosperous years a revenue of $40,000,000. They covered up the fact that for every dollar of public revenue produced by the wool tariff ten dollars or $20 went into the pockets of the protected manufacturers.

The advocates of this gigantic fraud and steal attempted to disguise its character by declaring that it is not "a restoration of the McKinley tariff schedule," and that it is a plan to produce revenue merely—not for protection. The allegation is false. If the McKinley tariff or 50 or 60 per cent. of the McKinley tariff rates should be restored it would be for protection and not for revenue. Nine-tenths of all the taxes collected or more would go into private pockets. One-tenth or less would go into the public treasury.

The rich lumber men, the nabobs of the pine forests, are also besieging the capitol for a renewal of protection. This is a more audacious demand if possible than that of the wool men. The lumber interest is one of the richest interests in the country. Tariff or no tariff, their profits are enormous. There are more millionaires among the lumbermen of the country in proportion to the entire number than there are among any other class of manufacturers.

But it is not material which protected interest, which monopoly fattened on the taxes paid by the people is most aggressive and rapacious in this emergency when the country is in the midst of a struggle with its foes of all kinds—with England claiming and ready to enforce by its armies and fleets vast territorial rights on this continent, with the gold sharks attacking the specie reserve and the public credit at all points, with every form of domestic and foreign enmity.

This is the emergency which the piratical protected interests have chosen as a time to enforce on congress their demands for new subsidies, new bounties, new extortions under the false color of revenue taxation.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE MOTTO OF THE FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

THE WRONG TIME.

As was to be expected, pressure is being brought to bear upon the house ways and means committee to traverse the entire tariff law for the purpose of satisfying various interests preferring tariff for protection. Chairman Dingley and his committee should not suffer this pressure to alter their already designed scheme. This is not the time for general tariff revision. It may be that if the executive, the senate and the house were of the same way of thinking on political economy the law might be reviewed not only for increasing duty at some points but for lowering it perhaps at others.

Whatever effect a deliberate reconsideration of the subject might have under other circumstances, this is not the time for tariff revision. The country wants rest and peace. Business is already showing confident reaction and steady revival. Manufacturers, merchants and farmers do not desire to start out in a new year apprehensive of radical changes in the customs. Trade and production are both accustomed now to the existing schedules, and to provoke irritation would be the chief result of opening up a tariff debate which, while wasting congress' time, would inevitably be futile in the end. It will be task enough to carry safely through the senate and past the menace of a presidential veto only the tariff change demanded by the treasury condition.

There should be no attempt to alter the existing tariff law except to replenish the revenue, and no more should be sought than the measure of replenishment adequate to easing the fiscal administration of the government. No party can object to making the customs pay their share of the general expenses of the country. Tariff for revenue is one thing. Tariff for protection is quite another. Let us stick to one thing at a time. This is not the time for tariff revision except for revenue.—Chicago Times-Herald (Ind.).

——If the republican policy of hitching together a provision for protecting the gold reserve and an increase of the tariff, putting a tax on raw wool as a part, is carried into effect it will give the president a chance to write another veto message, which he should improve. If it is thought to "put the president in the hole" by this sharp practice, Mr. Reed will find that the president is a deliberative man, if the body over which the former presides is not.—St. Paul Globe.

THE BOND BILL.

Nothing But a Piece of Republican Party Buncombe.

The bond bill offered by the republicans as one of their brace of measures to meet present and future exigencies of the treasury is a pusillanimous dodge by a party which professes to be a sound-money party.

What the treasury needs, if compelled to issue bonds to protect the gold reserve, is authority to issue gold bonds. That is what was asked of the last congress and refused by it, to the cost of the country of about $16,000,000. When the government borrows gold it is expected to repay in gold. When it can only promise to repay in coin the lender takes the risk of being repaid in silver, and accordingly charges a higher rate of interest. As the government repays in gold anyway, no one but a fool or a cowardly politician would withhold the power to promise repayment in gold.

Yet that is just what the republicans propose to do with their new coin bonds. Their bill is but a piece of party buncombe, intended to placate the sound-money men, and yet not offend the silver men. The power granted by it is virtually no improvement on that already possessed by the government. Under present laws the government now has authority to sell coin bonds to maintain the gold reserve, and it sells them on terms to make them about as cheap as the three per cent. bonds of the new bill would be, if those bonds could be sold at par, as stipulated by the bill.

The only merit the new bill has over the existing law is that it would authorize a bond redeemable in five years, a shorter term bond than can now be issued. This is an insignificant measure of relief to be seriously offered in an emergency like that which it is proposed to meet.

If congress is afraid to attempt to go to the roots of our financial evils and remove them, but still intends to pose as doing something in response to the demands upon it, the very least that it could do would be to empower the government, when necessary to borrow gold, to borrow it on the best terms by expressly agreeing to repay in gold. The policy proposed by the republicans of the house—of increasing the taxes on the necessaries of life to dam up in the treasury a surplus of legal-tender notes in order that they may not be used as money—and of authorizing more "coin" bonds, is a policy of weak evasion and transparent pretension.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——Mr. Cleveland was right in throwing the responsibility on congress to remedy the financial confusion. It is the result of republican legislation.—Columbus Press.

Oneida Lake's Many Names.

Some one with a taste for historic research has been compiling a list of appellations by which Oneida lake, as it is now known, has in the past been distinguished. The Onondaga tribe of Indians called it Seughka, signifying that it was striped with blue and white lines—an interpretation that can best be appreciated from a commanding position on one of the surrounding hills. Jesuits knew it as Lac Techtroguen des Onneiouts, while Charlevoix called it Kanoaloka, and Maclieu termed it Onidahogo. In 1667 Greenhalgh christened it Taisoqui, and on an old map in the secretary of state's office it is designated as Cahunghage.

BRADLEY'S MESSAGE.

He Recommends the Erection of a New Capitol by Convicts.

The Necessity for Maintaining the State's Credit Pointed Out—Lynchings Are Denounced—He Touches Upon the Gerrymander Evils—Home Rule for Cities is Very Strongly Urged.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 10.—Gov. Bradley's message was given to the legislature to-day. The message entire would occupy over eleven columns of newspaper space. The following gives the gist of the subjects treated: The message shows very careful preparation, taking into consideration the disadvantages of limited time and other hindrances under which the governor worked.

Finances is the first subject tackled. The governor was handicapped by not getting the promised report of Auditor Norman, but was furnished with sufficient material by that official.

By reason of the decision of the appellate court in the bank tax cases, the state has been materially relieved. In other words, the payment of 75 instead of 42½ cents on the $100 into the state treasury has largely augmented the revenue. This, however, will add to the burden of many counties and cities, which will now be compelled to increase their rate of taxation in order to supplement the losses they have sustained by reason of the fact that the banks have, in a large measure, been relieved of county and municipal taxes.

But notwithstanding this relief to the state, it will be seen that its financial condition is not at all satisfactory.

Auditor Norman informs me that at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1895, there was a deficit in the treasury of $41,968 17, and $39,961.77 to the credit of the school fund. On the 31st of December, 1895, this deficit is said to have been $19,355. There was at that date $113,683.94 in the sinking fund, set apart, however, to pay military bonds and interest then due. The sheriffs had paid in all taxes due the state except $5,992 owing by the sheriff of Bracken county.

There will be due the common school teachers during this month the remaining one-fifth of wages, about $400,000. The amount of unpaid warrants is $383,833.19. The amount of claims filed and allowed is estimated at $33,000. There is also due the charitable institutions for the last quarter $113,000, and the further sum of $176,000 on appropriations to enlarge their buildings.

Warrants have been issued to the state officials for salaries, but the amount unpaid is not stated. These, however, are embraced in the unpaid warrants mentioned. Besides these there is a considerable amount due on claims allowed, but not yet presented to the auditor.

Military bonds $174,000 00
Certificates of indebtedness 500,000 00
Railroad script, past due .. $391 00
Thirty year issue, 1835 ...... 5,000 00
Also old issue, 1811 to 1816... 1,000 00— 6,394 00
(The last named bonds supposed to be lost or destroyed.)
Bonds held by the board of education 2,312,596 16
Total indebtedness $2,992,990 16

The resources of the sinking fund in said report are estimated at $701,668.91.

Semi-annual interest is payable upon the school bonds held by the board of education, but the state will not be called upon to pay the principal. The certificates of indebtedness draw interest, but the principal does not fall due until 1905.

As already stated, the amount in the sinking fund will be paid on the military bonds.

It is manifest that steps must be taken to liquidate debts now due, for the credit of the state must be maintained at all hazards. As to what the estimated expenses and revenues of the present fiscal year may be, I do not know. I fear, however, that the present tax rate will not prove sufficient to meet current expenses but as I have not the necessary data before me, I can not speak with any degree of certainty. I shall recommend certain reforms, which, if adopted, will, in my judgment, curtail expenses and increase the revenue. Some of these, however, can not be made effective for some time to come; others may prove beneficial during the present year.

I submit to your wisdom on full information, after inspection of auditor's report (which should be obtained at as early a date as possible) and a close scrutiny of all the surroundings, whether or not the rate of taxation should be increased, or what should be done to provide payment of accrued indebtedness.

As stated, some of the remedies recommended may not be put into speedy operation because of the fact that they can not become available until the present terms of those in office have expired; but that furnishes no reason why they should not be adopted so that they may prove of benefit in the future.

The message calls attention to the enormous expense to the state of criminal prosecutions, and recommends that jurisdiction of prosecutions when the maximum of fine is under $500, or maximum of imprisonment is under one year, be transferred to the judges of quarterly courts and the concurrent jurisdiction of justices and police judges with said court to try misdemeanors as now fixed by law (the trials to be had under warrants).

The indiscriminate summoning of witnesses and the expense of examining courts are also criticised. The message continues:

The chief source of expense, however, is found in hung juries and repeated trials. In nearly every instance this results from difficulty in determining the extent of punishment. In the federal and many state courts of the union it has proven quite efficacious, while having the jury to pass on guilt and its degree, to clothe the judge with power to fix the punishment. Doubtless the adoption of this rule in Kentucky would save the state thousands of dollars, and at the same time result in more speedy punishment of criminals.

The abolition of the office of commonwealth's attorney was unquestionably contemplated by the framers of the constitution. In my judgment this office should be abolished. In many of the states of the union the office does not exist, and the laws in such states are equally well administered as those where it does exist. By placing in the hands of the county attorney all prosecutions, and giving him a fair percentage on fines and forfeitures, in addition to allowances made by the counties, the office would be more desirable and be sought by a good class of competent lawyers. I do not mean by this to insinuate that such offices are not now filled by competent gentlemen, but that men of larger experience, who, in many instances, can not now afford to take the place, would readily accept it on account of the increased salary.

The office of the register of the land office has for years been a source of expense, without corresponding benefit to the state. The constitution clearly contemplated its abolition, and I trust you may see fit to abolish it at this session, placing the books and papers of the office in the hands of the auditor or secretary of state, after the expiration of the present term, and providing one clerk to look after the discharge of its duties. And in this connection your attention is called to the fact that patents are being constantly issued for the land already appropriated. The effect of this is to cloud titles and lessen the value of real estate. It is suggested that you may require every person asking for a survey and warrant to notify the county processioners, and have them give notice to all persons who have lands adjoining the land sought to be appropriated, and all others who are known to them to have any claim upon the adjoining lands, or that sought to be patented, at the time of making the survey.

The commissioner of agriculture and the agricultural bureau cost the state annually a large sum of money. The benefit, if any, derived is very slight. As to the grain inspector and weigher, if necessary the power to appoint might be lodged with some state officer. An amendment should be proposed to the constitution for the abolishment of this unnecessary state appendage.

The board of equalization, in my judgment, has proven an affliction. The selection of men in distant portions of the state to pass upon the value of property already sworn to by the party assessed, certified by the assessor and revised by the county supervisors of the locality where it is situated, can not be otherwise than uncertain and unjust. It is suggested that the revenue or auditor's agent, whose duties and compensation have recently been regulated by law in such way as to make them an advantage to the state, be required to look carefully into the list of assessed property after the meeting of the supervisors and take such steps as they deem necessary, by action of prosecution, to discover any property not listed, and where property has been assessed at less than its value at a fair voluntary sale, to institute such proceeding as may be necessary to recover the taxes properly coming to the state, together with a certain per cent. by way of compensation to the agent.

The auditor's agent should be an attorney at law, or, if not, should be compelled to employ an attorney and compensate him out of his per cent. for his services.

He recommends that the circuit courts be relieved and expenses lessened by jurisdiction in prosecutions where the maximum fine is under $500 or imprisonment under one year, being transferred to the judges of quarterly courts and the concurrent jurisdiction of justices and police judges, with said court to try misdemeanors as now fixed by law. The enactment of a law is recommended requiring an affidavit to be made, plainly showing that the offense charged is grand larceny, before any order of arrest or subpoenas are issued.

Section 114, Kentucky statutes, requires the attorney general to investigate all unsatisfied claims, demands and judgments in favor of the commonwealth, and confers upon him the right to employ attorneys to prosecute the same, the attorneys thus employed to be paid by the state. This employment should not be permitted unless the attorney general in each instance makes affidavit that he is unable to give the case personal attention by reason of sickness or press of business.

There seems to be no limit fixed by law to the compensation of county attorneys. Aside from counties containing cities this may not be necessary, but there should be a limit provided in all the counties in which there are cities of the first, second or third class.

At the conclusion of our civil war, while gold was selling at a large premium, the salaries of the state officers were not nearly so large as to-day—in many instances not one-half as much. Notwithstanding this, competent persons were as anxious to serve the state then as at any period of its history.

It is true that salaries can not be reduced except to take effect after the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents, but this furnishes no just reason why they should not be reduced to take effect after that time. Public officials should be reasonably recompensed, but the taxpayer should not be overburdened or oppressed.

The passage of a well regulated law increasing the license fees of wholesale and retail liquor dealers, druggists and distillers would produce considerable revenue. The same may be said of increased license fees on pool and billiard tables and other similar devices, and of special taxes for the sale of tobacco, cigars, etc.

The license fees for circuses and other entertainments might well be increased and regulated according to population of the various counties in which they exhibit. License fees might be required of all persons selling pistol cartridges and all newspapers and others offering to furnish firearms as premiums.

A fee of two dollars might be charged for each commission issued to an officer. The tax on deeds and mortgages should be regulated according to the value of the property mortgaged or conveyed, not less than 25 cents and not more than two dollars. There is no reason why a mortgage or deed for $100 worth of property should be taxed as much as one for $1,000 worth of property.

It is believed that a carefully considered bill, along the line indicated, would produce the needful amount of revenue. These additional taxes may be readily repealed in the event that the reforms suggested, together with those that may occur to you, should materially lessen expenses.

It is suggested that the 501 idle convicts in the penitentiary might be employed in building new capitol buildings, and that a new mansion should also be erected.

For many years mere children have been confined in the penitentiary, and a number are now confined there, despite the fact that many have been pardoned by the various governors on account of their extreme youthfulness. These children have been, and are now, being associated with old and hardened malefactors, and doubtless many who might have been reformed have become the most accomplished criminals by reason of superior advantages and training in the penitentiary.

It is respectfully recommended that the Feeble-minded institute be abolished and the inmates returned as lunatics, or returned under the present statutes to their friends or to the counties from which they came; and that the buildings be turned into a house of reform, and such changes, together with regulations enacted for its management as you may consider best.

The prevalence of mob violence in Kentucky is deplorable. I suggest that a statute be enacted providing severe penalties against all persons who, directly or indirectly, by word or act, encourage such atrocities.

Freedom of speech and of the press does not imply unbridled license. The right to endorse violations of law and encourage crime does not exist anywhere in good government. The press of the United States is denouncing in unmeasured terms the late crimes committed in Marion county, and we can not hope to attract peace-loving and law-abiding people to the state if such inhuman practices go unpunished.

That the present law in the United States concerning immigration should be carefully remodeled, and the tide of worthless and dangerous people flooding our shores be stayed, is admitted by all sober-thinking men.

It might be of benefit if your honorable body would request our senators and representatives in congress to take some steps to remedy this evil.

Section 4, article 2, chapter 108 of the general statutes, provides that "a committee composed of members of both houses shall be appointed within ten days after the organization of the general assembly, at every regular session thereof, whose duty it shall be personally to examine into the treasury; examine all papers or vouchers upon which money has been paid for each of the preceding two years; ascertain the amount of money paid into and paid out of the treasury, and the amount of public money on hand," etc. The same section requires the auditor's office to be investigated.

This seems to have been omitted from the Kentucky statutes, but is yet in force, as those statutes have not been adopted as containing all the law of the state.

Gov. Buckner called attention to the fact that this statute had been overlooked, and requested that all the state offices should be carefully inspected and reported upon. I likewise call your attention to this statute, and repeat his recommendation.

I am informed that in September, 1895, J. A. Tompkins, who was one of the posse of Deputy United States Marshal Sloan, killed Richard Lawrence in Clinton county, Kentucky, and was at the October term of the Cincinnati circuit court indicted for murder. I am also informed that such killing was not done while Tompkins was in the discharge of his duty as a member of the posse.

I recommend that you immediately enact a law such as will cover this and all similar cases that have arisen or may arise, enabling the commonwealth to protect her citizens through her own courts.

There is a remarkably larger percentage of lunatics from some localities in the state than from others, so much so as to awake the suspicion that there are possibly many confined who are not lunatics, but who, under the statutes are idiots and are not dangerous or uncontrollable. The law regarding inspection in this respect seems definite, but your attention is called to the subject for such investigation and further legislation as you may deem proper.

Gov. Bradley says the present ballot system is a great improvement, but contains many imperfections, and calls attention to some of them.

It is said that Kentucky pays twice as much for school books as states north of us. If this be true such laws should be enacted as will remedy it. If uniformity in text books should be required the prices should be necessarily reduced.

It is respectfully recommended that the Feeble-Minded institute be abolished, and the inmates returned as lunatics are returned under the present statutes to their friends or to the counties from which they came, and that the buildings be turned into a house of reform.

Of late numerous untruthful stories concerning the commission of crime in Kentucky have been given currency by unprincipled correspondents, all to the great detriment of the state. I recommend, in order to restrain these irresponsible persons, that a law should be passed providing severe punishment of all persons who willfully state, deliver or transmit to any manager, editor, publisher, reporter or other employe of any periodical or serial, any falsehood concerning any person, corporation or community.

The message refers to the "iniquitous practices" of gerrymandering, and after quoting the provisions of the constitution, continues:

The rules prescribed are plain. Was the present apportionment made within these rules, or as nearly so as practicable? If so, the constitution has been complied with, and no other apportionment can be had for ten years after these were made. If, on the other hand, the constitution has been disregarded, no apportionment has been made, for that which is unconstitutional is of no effect. The authority, it is true, was given to be exercised at the time mentioned, but not prohibited from being exercised thereafter, if for any reason it was not then exercised, or if exercised, so done in violation of the organic law, the general assembly now has the right, and it is its duty to exercise it in a proper way.

To make a new apportionment applicable to persons now holding office would produce confusion and injury, and therefore any new apportionment bill should not take effect until after the expiration of the terms of those now in office. Doubtless if this is not done the courts will be called upon to pass on the question, and far more trouble and confusion result than if the matter be now properly adjusted. It may be said that if the apportionment is void, the present general assembly is not a legal body. This argument can not be sustained because it would produce anarchy. Every government has the inherent right to maintain its existence, otherwise there could be no government. The general assembly, upon whom was devolved this important trust, has ceased to exist and can not be called into life. The present general assembly, therefore, if an unconstitutional apportionment has been made, should correct the evil in the interest of good government.

First, as to the appellate districts, it will be seen that, according to the census of 1890, under which they were created, their population and area is as follows:

District.	Population.	Area Sq. miles.
First	293,087	6,327
Second	277,026	6,866
Third	210,9[illegible]1	7,987
Fourth	183,244	275
Fifth	207,835	6,033
Sixth	[illegible]61,[illegible]63	4,551
Seventh	227,330	7,683

The mere statement of population and area plainly shows that in apportioning these districts the constitutional regulation "that due regard should be had to territory, business and population" was not obeyed.

But improper as this apportionment is shown to be, there is another fact connected with circuit apportionment infinitely more so.

Section 138, constitution, declares, "each county having a city of 20,000 inhabitants, and a population, including said city, of 40,000 or more, may constitute a district," etc. The manifest meaning of the section is, that the county must have a population of at least 40,000, or it can not be made a district; and not even then, unless the county contains a city of 20,000 population.

The United States census of 1890 shows that Fayette county had a population of 35,698; yet in the face of this, the district was established. In order to carry out the intent of the organic law, when the legislature regulated salaries in districts contemplated by Section 138, supra, they placed the limit of the compensation of sheriffs and circuit court clerks at not exceeding $3,000 annually, after payment of deputies, assistants and expenses of office. Subsequent to the enactment of this statute a rule was issued by the commonwealth against the sheriff and county clerk of Fayette county, to show cause why they should not name their deputies so that the judge might fix their salaries pursuant to the statute (section 1770). They responded by stating that Fayette county had never had as much as 40,000 population. This averment was not and could not have been truthfully denied.

The three counties of Clay, Jackson and Owsley, with a population of 26,083, and an area of 1,065 square miles, are given one representative, while the county of Hancock, with a population of 9,214, and an area of 200 square miles, is accorded the same privilege. The counties of Boyd and Lawrence, with a population of 31,705, and an area of six hundred and fifty-five square miles are given one representative, while the county of Jessamine, with a population of 11,248, and an area of 162 square miles, is accorded the same representation. The counties of Whitley and Knox, with a population of 31,352, are allowed one representative while the county of Woodford, with a population of 13,380, and an area of 247 square miles, is given the same privilege.

The counties of Laurel and Rockcastle, with a population of 21,588, and an area of 730 square miles, have one representative, while the county of Anderson, with 10,610 population, and an area of 200 square miles, is accorded the same representation. The counties of Breathitt, Lee and Magoffin, with a population of 24,106, and an area of 978 square miles, have one representative, while the county of Bracken with a population of 12,380, and an area of 206 square miles, has the same representation.

The county of Christian, with a population of 34,118, and an area of 708 square miles, has one representative, while the counties of Daviess, with a population of 33,120 and covering 410 square miles, and Warren, with a population of 30,158 and covering 530 square miles, have two representatives each. The county of Pulaski, with a population of 25,731 and an area of 870 square miles, is allowed one member, while the county of Meade, with a population of 9,484, and 332 square miles, has the same representation.

I call the attention of your honorable body to this plain and inexcusable violation of the constitution, this inequality and injustice in representation, with the hope that you will take such steps as the gravity of the question demands. I speak in no partisan spirit but only in behalf of constitutional freedom and equality, asking that no advantage be given any section or party, but that a fair and just apportionment be made, to take effect upon the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents. There could be no more fitting and proper time to do this than the present, while each party has a majority in one branch of the general assembly, and may thus act as a check in the other. If not adjusted now, the time may come when both houses may be under the control of a different party to that which made the present apportionment, and when party spirit may cause a partisan apportionment to be attempted and possibly effected, though I promise now, if I am then the chief executive of this state, it shall not be done with my consent or approval.

And now, in conclusion, allow me to indulge the hope, as I entertain the belief, that we may work together harmoniously for the general welfare of the State, that at the expiration of this session much good shall have been accomplished for the commonwealth, and that each and all of you, after your pleasant sojourn at the capital, may be spared to return to your respective homes, and that prosperity and happiness may attend you through life.

I am, with great respect.

WILLIAM O. BRADLEY,
Governor of Kentucky.

NOVEL EXERCISE.

How an Eccentric Literary Man Took His Daily Constitutional.

Poor Harry Shelman, the long-haired poet who dressed his entire person to resemble Buffalo Bill, and who was, in fact, startlingly like the greatest of scouts, used to tell me of a literary friend of his who had a novel method of taking exercise, says a writer in the New York Press. His workshop was on the top floor of his house, far from the noise of the street, and he used to write about 15 hours a day. He was not a Howells or a Bronson Howard, whose working hours never exceed four in any one day. He worked, he labored, he toiled. He had no time for a bicycle and could not afford a horse. He hated walking. Run he could not. Swimming was out of the question. Still he must have exercise. He kept his dictionary in the basement and his thesaurus in the kitchen. As he used both very often it was necessary to make many trips downstairs and up again, and in that way he kept himself in splendid physical condition. A visitor once saw him dashing downstairs like a madman and soaring up again like a kite and was distressed till informed by John's wife that John was simply hunting for a word and had found it.

An Oddity in Toes and Digits.

There is one curious fact respecting the animal creation with which you will never become acquainted if you depend on your text books for information. It is this: No living representative of the animal kingdom has more than five toes, digits or claws to each foot, hand or limb. The horse is the type of one-toed creation; the camel of the two-toed; the rhinoceros of the three-toed and the hippopotamus of four-toed animal life. The elephant and hundreds of other animals belonging to different orders belong to the great five-toed tribe.

THE CRISIS IN EUROPE.

President Kreuger Will Appeal to Russia, France and Germany

If England Refuses His Demand for Redress for Recent Invasion—Salisbury May Buy Up Portugal's Interest, Cutting Off Access to Transvaal.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The development of the European crisis becomes hourly more interesting. The absence of all news regarding the intentions of both the kaiser and the czar receives a peaceful interpretation in most quarters. In [illegible] days we shall have a decision, in which St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris will all be represented. We shall learn then whether the continental combination for the overthrow of British prestige is included in the war in its programme.

There is a strong disinclination in France to support Germany. If Russia had been the aggressor against England there would have been prompt and hearty support from both Germany and France. French embarrassment, however, has probably been removed by President Krueger. There is the highest authority for saying that the Boer president has submitted to the British government his demands for redress on account of the recent invasion. If Great Britain refuses to satisfy them, President Kruegor will appeal for assistance to the continental powers. Germany will then no longer be the leader of the quarrel, and there are strong reasons for believing that Russia, France and Germany would act in concert in complying with the Boer request.

It is not yet known positively what the Boer demands are, but it is certain that they include more than a mere money indemnity. It is known that President Krueger has received from Europe strong encouragement to demand the complete independence of the Transvaal, and he has probably done so. Authoritative information states that the German emperor did, on Monday last, declare it to be his intention to recognize the independence of the Transvaal republic. It is now clearer than ever that if he does this alone or in combination with others, war will follow.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Cable messages from London state that Lord Salisbury has clinched the position at Delagoa bay by notifying the government at Lisbon that the landing of any foreign troops there will be immediately followed by the occupation of the place by the British. By Wednesday five British cruisers will be stationed at Delagoa bay.

The Westminster Gazette, commenting on the relations between the emperor and the British royal family, says that these relations are offensive. He uses the imperative in his intercourse with all his relatives in England and Germany, and holds himself to be the head of the family next to the queen. As the son of the British princess royal he always contends that he is heir to the British throne. In connection with this subject the Frankfort Zeitung renews the story that Emperor William, in the event of the death of the queen, will claim the throne of the United Kingdom and prepare to enforce rights by force of arms. As a believer in the divine rights of kings he would not regard an adverse decision on his claim by parliament.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The Armenian and Cuban Questions Considered at Saturday's Session of That Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The senate committee on foreign relations had a special meeting Saturday morning for the purpose of considering the Armenian and Cuban questions. There are more important matters before this committee this session than there has been in many years, owing to the many recent foreign complications. The Armenian question is considered by the committee to be the most urgent, and some means will doubtless be devised to bring about a condition that will afford Americans and their property better protection under the Turkish government.

The Cuban question is one that is also considered by the committee as of immediate importance. There is no doubt that the majority of the committee is in favor of the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, but the committee does not think the time is yet ripe for such recognition, that the insurgents have not yet gained that signal victory that will justify the United States in extending to them the recognition that will give them, so far as this country is concerned, belligerent rights.

Of course the Venezuelan matter has not been lost sight of, but there appears to be no immediate necessity for action on that question.

Horrible Crime at Southport, La.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.—A man named Pat Morrison and a Negro woman have been living together for some time on a flatboat in the vicinity of Southport, disregarding all warnings to leave. About 1 o'clock Sunday morning a number of shots were heard in the direction of the boat, which was seen to be burning. About daylight it was found burned to the water's edge and the charred bodies of the couple found. A two-year-old child of the woman in some miraculous way escaped unhurt.

Senator Butler Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Senator Butler, of North Carolina, when seen Sunday night by a United Press reporter, said that so far as he was concerned, there was nothing in the story about his being a candidate on the populist presidential ticket for second place.

Activity in the Ordnance Yards.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Work was carried on all day Sunday at the Plymouth and Devonport ordnance yards, the men being engaged in completing the supply of shells for the use of the flying squadron.

The Chickasaw Indebtedness.

DENISON, Tex., Jan. 13.—A special session of the Chickasaw legislature is called to meet Monday, the 13th inst. The object of the session is to make arrangements to settle the entire indebtedness of the nation amounting to $1,000,000. The amount will probably be taken from the reserve fund.

The Charges Were Not Sustained.

TROY, O., Jan. 13.—The proceedings to disbar Attorney A. R. Byrkett are ended. Judge Heiserman decided that that the charges made have not been sustained.

FOR HIGH TREASON.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The features Friday of the troubles growing out of Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal were the practical refusal of the Uitlanders to surrender their arms, and the arrest at Johannesburg of a number of members of the National Reform committee on the charge of high treason.

Among the prisoners are several of the leading residents of Johannesburg, including Col. Rhodes, brother of Cecil Rhodes, ex-prime minister of Cape Colony, who is said to be ill at Cape Town. It is believed here that Cecil Rhodes will bring all his influence, which is very powerful, to bear to secure the release of his brother. There is no single man who has done so much to develop South Africa as the ex-prime minister, though in carrying out his plans he has made many enemies, it can truthfully be said that he is the most powerful man in that part of the world to-day. He may be for the moment compelled to abide the issue of the present troubles, but that he will later again take a hand in shaping the destinies of South Africa there can scarcely be a doubt. He has always been a man of action, not words, and his future policy will, once decided on, probably not be known until it is put into effect.

The arrest of the members of the National Reform committee does not cause any great anxiety regarding their fate, as it is generally believed that in no event will any severe punishment be inflicted upon them.

The report that Dr. Jameson had been released turns out to have been premature. President Kruger, in reply to the message of Queen Victoria, says that he intends to turn Dr. Jameson and the other English prisoners who took part in the raid over to the British government for punishment, but a dispatch from Johannesburg states that the surrender of the prisoners will be made conditional on the abrogation of the Anglo-Boer convention of 1884, which gives Great Britain suzerainty over the Transvaal. If such a condition as this is imposed by the Boers, it is quite certain that Great Britain will never agree to it. The government is determined to uphold this convention in all its terms, and although the Transvaal government may urge that Dr. Jameson's raid made the convention null and void, it is safe to say that Great Britain will never accept that view of the matter unless she is compelled to do so.

To abrogate the convention now, would be to acknowledge that the reported attitude of Emperor William anent the Transvaal is correct and the temper of the English people to-day is not such as to allow that government to concede, even were it disposed to.

As a matter of fact, the government will make not the slightest concession in the matter to Germany, but is prepared or preparing to maintain what it believes are its rights by force of arms if necessary.

Never before has the isolation of Great Britain been so completely driven home in the minds of the British people.

Hitherto they have been accustomed to believing that should England become embroiled in a war with a foreign power, she would find sympathy, if not actual aid, from some of the European nations. Now it is known that in all Europe she has not a single friend, and many believe that her enemies are only awaiting an opportunity to attack her and deprive her of some of her vast possessions.

Will Return at the Old Rate.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 11.—The miners of Taylor & McCoy and the Mitchell Coal and Coke Co., who struck on the first of the month for an increase of 20 per cent. for mining coal, will return to work Saturday at the old rate, the operators refusing to grant an increase. Notice instructing the men to resume work Saturday morning signed by the strike committee was posted Friday morning. It is expected that the men of the East End Coal Co. will also go to work Saturday.

Havana No Longer Menaced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: Guanajay, just across the border of Pinar del Rio province, is now the center of active operations, the cloud of excitement which has hung over this city for days having gradually drifted westward. The capital being now no longer menaced, less anxiety is shown about the official headquarters, and many of the precautions hurriedly taken for the city's defense are being as quickly relaxed.

Brought Before Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Congressman Willis, of Delaware, has taken up the cause of the Cuban insurgents, and Friday endeavored to secure the consideration of a resolution recognizing their belligerency by the house. It was objected to before it had been read, however, and will go to the committee on foreign affairs.

Western Baseball Matters.

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 11.—Jack Glasscock has been signed to manage the Quincy Western association club for the coming season. Pitcher McGrevy, of last year's Quincy club, has been sold to the Columbus Western league club.

A New Destroyer.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 11.—J. A. Hill, of Brent Creek, has completed a model for a small submarine boat which, loaded with dynamite will, he thinks, destroy the strongest war vessel made. In the interior is a clock work arrangement which moves the paddles and explodes the dynamite. The boat is to be drawn within 100 yards of the enemy's vessels. The point is magnetized so that it will be attracted to the iron of the ship. When attracted it will stick by its magnetic power to the hull of the vessel until it explodes. Hill will shortly send a model to Washington.

The Goulds' Inheritance Tax.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Surrogate Fitzgerald Friday signed an order fixing the amount of inheritance tax to be paid by the heirs of the late Jay Gould as follows:

Abraham Gould, $477.71; Anna G. Hough, $404.63; Sarah B. Northrup, $397.40, and Elizabeth Pelen, $432.48. These are the brothers and sisters of the deceased.

Geo. J. Gould, $90,771.94; Jay Gould, $5,000; Helen M. Gould, $93,437.08; Edwin Gould, $92,157.23; Howard Gould, $95,102.95; Frank J. Gould, $98,175.85, and Anna, now the Countess de Castellane, $97,133.18.

ARBITRATION.

Clause to Be Attached to the Behring Sea Treaty Providing For It

In All Pending Questions Between the Two Countries by England—The British Cabinet Will Make Public the Material Documents on Venezuela Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Mr. Henry Norman, the special commissioner of the London Daily Chronicle, cabling to his paper before leaving Washington Sunday, says:

There is a simpler solution of the present difficulty and restoration of cordial relations between England and America than any I have suggested.

Why should not Lord Salisbury attach to the Bering sea arbitration treaty, which is about to be returned to the American government, a clause providing for the arbitration of all pending questions, and even of all future ones? Besides Venezuela and Canada there are the Alaska boundary, the eastern fisheries, and other questions causing discord. If he does this I am able to state that the administration will accept with pleasure the treaty so altered. This is a method of accomplishing everything with perfect honor and dignity to both parties.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—In an editorial Monday the Standard says that the communications it publishes relative to the attitude to Germany and the Transvaal and the publication of the papers on the Venezuelan difficulty are all authoritative. It adds:

Urged by friendly public opinion in the United States to place before the world as soon as may be the British case as regards the controversy with Venezuela, the cabinet on Saturday decided to respond to this amicable invitation by publishing the material documents in its possession bearing thereon. Of far more interest to the English people than the problems to be faced in South Africa or the relations of this country with any other power are its relations with the United States, and we gladly take the opportunity of bearing testimony to the magnanimous attitude of the Americans toward us at a moment when a community less generous thought apparently that a favorable opportunity had arisen for adopting toward us a tone of insult, if not of menace. Instead of taking advantage of the augmentation of our anxieties and the temporary multiplication of our events, the American, with a spirit that does him honor and which is appreciated by us, have not only abstained from endeavoring to add to our perplexities, but, where they did not actually offer us their sympathy, they have maintained an honorable, courteous reserve. That is conduct worthy of them, and it has not unnaturally inspired the English government with a desire to meet our kinsfolk across the Atlantic in a friendly spirit. Lord Salisbury, as we announced before, has decided not to wait for a meeting of parliament, but will publish as soon as they can be got ready all the documents in his possession bearing upon the disputed boundary between British Guiana and Venezuela. As we have said, the attitude of the people of the United States during the past week has materially influenced the prime minister's decision, just as it has quickened the feeling of friendship entertained by Englishmen for those who speak their tongue and share their literature on the other side of the ocean. The maintenance of friendly relations with the United States must always be a consideration of the first importance for Great Britain. We say this to the American people with the absolute candor of deep seated cordiality.

The foregoing article is leaded throughout and is evidently inspired by the government.

Hunter Chosen by the Republican Caucus

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 13.—The joint caucus of the republican members of the general assembly Saturday afternoon nominated W. Godfrey Hunter, of Cumberland county, to succeed Senator Blackburn. The opposition to him gave up the fight early Saturday morning, Congressman Evans returning to Washington, and Judge Holt and Hon. A. E. Wilson following later in the day in their determination not to go before the caucus.

To Hurry Up Gold Coinage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Director Preston, of the treasury, has gone to Philadelphia to hurry up gold coinage there. The heavy gold exports of the past few weeks has made inroads on the government supply at New York and it will be part of Director Preston's business in Philadelphia to send gold to New York. A heavy shipment of gold to New York for the Philadelphia mint will be made during the coming week.

Several Americans Arrested at Johannesburg.

PRETORIA, Jan. 13.—Among the persons arrested at Johannesburg are J. S. Curtis, an American engineer, and several other Americans whose names are not given in the dispatches from there. The government has obtained a temporary interdict against the transfer of bank balances and real property.

The president of the company, Wm. H. Young, of New York, and about fifteen others, arrived on a late train Sunday night, and all were met by a number of Louisville gentlemen interested in the gold mines being operated under Kentucky laws.

Fast Horses to Be Sold.

RICHMOND, Ind., Jan. 13.—John S. Lackey, of Cambridge City, has flattering prospects for his ninth annual combination horse sale, which occurs the first part of March. Many breeders of prominence have signified their intention of consigning horses, and some good ones have already been listed. Among them are Ross, 2:18¾, a full brother to Jane, 2:08¾, by Mikeagan, sire of Frankagan, 2:15¾; Katie Spencer, 2:27¼; Mollie Gibson, 2:19¼; Allie Wilkes, 2:13¼, by Petosky, and Major Ross, 2:16¼, by Indiana's leading sire of the year, Anteros.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. [illegible]—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The house was in session a few minutes on Monday. No business of interest transacted. There was no public reference to call for bids for $100,000,000 four per cent. bonds. Unanimous consent was asked by Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) to have Mr. Clarence E. Allen sworn in as representative from Utah. That state, he said, had been admitted into the union last Saturday and Mr. Allen had credentials signed by the governor and secretary of state, though not in their official capacity, as they were only to be sworn in Monday. Objection was made by Mr. Crisp (dem., Ga.), and the matter was referred to the judiciary committee with leave to report at any time. Mr. Hitt (rep., Ill.) offered a joint resolution appointing William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, a member of the board of regents of the Smithsonian institution in place of Henry Copp, deceased; passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The finance committee substitute for the house bond bill was reported in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) and was placed on the calendar. A plan for making the proposed loan a really popular one was suggested by Mr. Chandler (rep., N. H.) in the shape of a postal savings system. At the request of Mr. Elkins (rep., W. Va.), his resolution requiring United States bonds to be issued after public advertisement, was referred to the finance committee. Mr. Turpie (Dem., Ind.) introduced a bill increasing pensions for total deafness from $30 to $60 per month, and made an appeal in favor of the proposition. Referred. At 4:30 the senate adjourned until Wednesday.

HOUSE—A unanimous report from the committee on judiciary was made by Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) that no doubt existed of the election of Mr. Allen as a representative from Utah, and in accordance therewith Mr. Allen was sworn in as a member of the house. Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.) reported from the committee on judiciary its unanimous substitute for a resolution introduced by Representative Hubbard regarding the enforcement of the anti-trust law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—SENATE—The session of the senate Wednesday occupied less than an hour, the rest of the afternoon being given to the senators to agree upon a line of action on the tariff bill. The only incidents of note during the 50 minutes of session were these: The swearing in of Senator Wolcott (rep., Col.) for his new term; the reporting of an important bill from the committee on naval affairs for the enlistment of additional men for the navy, and the notice by Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.) of an amendment to the house bill with the free coinage substitute. The amendments propose to prohibit the issue of United States bonds without the authority of congress, and to require the payment of greenbacks, treasury notes and the interest and principal of bonds in either gold or silver, but in the cheaper of either metal. The adjournment was until Thursday.

HOUSE—The house celebrated the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, known as Jackson Day, by remaining in session but 40 minutes. Half that time was occupied in the reading of the journal. In the other 20 minutes several unimportant routine matters were considered and a joint resolution offered by Mr. Spalding (rep., Mich.) was read and referred to the committee on foreign affairs, looking to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—SENATE—The house bond bill, with the free coinage substitute for it reported from the committee on finance, was to have engaged the attention of the senate Thursday, but a half hour's speech by Mr. Baker (rep., Kas.) in favor of an application of the Monroe doctrine and an hour and three-quarters' speech by Mr. Stewart (pop., Nev.) on the financial question prevented the taking up of the bond bill until so late an hour that Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) preferred to withhold his opening speech upon it till Friday. Mr. Vilas (dem., Wis.) introduced a bill, which was referred to the judiciary committee, withdrawing from the supreme court of the United States jurisdiction of criminal cases not capital and transfer them to the United States court of appeals.

HOUSE—Mr. Blue (rep., Kan.) reported the general pension appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1897, and gave notice that he would call it up after the report of the committee on rules had been disposed of. A resolution offered by Mr. Bingham (rep., Pa.) and approved by the committee on appropriations, was agreed to, calling upon the secretary of the treasury for a statement as to the reasons for the delay in the construction of the mint building at Philadelphia. A number of private bills were introduced. After a session of 25 minutes the house adjourned until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—SENATE—There were three set speeches delivered in the senate Friday on as many different subjects, and they occupied practically the whole of the four hours that the session lasted. They were made by the republican senator from North Carolina, Mr. Pritchard, and by the two democratic senators from California and Arkansas—Messrs. White and Jones. Mr. Pritchard's speech (his maiden one) was in favor of a higher protective tariff.

HOUSE—The discussion of the amendments proposed to be made to the rules of the house by the committee on rules, upon which the house entered Friday, for a time apparently threatened to extend over a week's session. But it was only a diversion. Mr. Hepburn (rep., Ia.) proposed an amendment making it obligatory upon the speaker to recognize a member who addresses him in accordance with the rule, and said that the prevailing practice smacked too much of the schoolmaster in the chair of the house. The motion was antagonized by Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.), in charge of the committee report, on the ground that no other custom was practicable than that which obtained of permitting the speaker to determine who should be recognized, and who should not. The discussion was prolonged until 4:45, when the house adjourned until Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—SENATE—Senate not in session Saturday.

HOUSE—The house Saturday finished consideration of the code of rules reported from the committee on rules with the exception of the one with relation to the counting, which went over by request of Mr. Henderson (Rep., Ia.). Every change recommended by the committee was agreed to and no proposition originating on the floor was accepted. The committee amendments were agreed to as follows: "Making it possible to change the rules without previous notice; regulating the privilege of the floor granted to the representatives of the press associations and striking out the regulation governing the printing of documents that have been covered in the new printing law." The most entertaining part of the day's discussion was evoked by an amendment proposed by Mr. Curtis (rep., N. Y.), which had to do with eulogies upon deceased members. It was advocated by a number of members, but failed of adoption by a vote of 31 to 130. Mr. Wagner (rep., Pa.) endeavored to secure a re-enactment of the rule of the Fifty-third congress, giving the privilege of the lobby in the rear of the hall to newspaper men, but secured only 17 votes in support of his motion. The vote, being short of a majority, gave an opportunity for the speaker to count a quorum for the first time in this congress. There were 190 gentlemen in their seats, and the speaker announced that a quorum was present to do business. At 3:43 o'clock the house adjourned until Monday.

THE PRODIGAL SON.

A Ring Put on His Hand When He Returned.

Christ Gives New Robes to Sinners When They Come Back to the Fold After Straying—Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

I will not rehearse the familiar story of the fast young man of the parable. You know what a splendid home he left. You know what a hard time he had. And you remember how after that season of vagabondage and prodigality he resolved to go and weep out his sorrows on the bosom of parental forgiveness. Well, there is great excitement one day in front of the door of the old farmhouse. The servants come rushing up and say: "What's the matter? What is the matter?" But before they quite arrive the old man cries out: "Put a ring on his hand." What a seeming absurdity! What can such a wretched mendicant as this fellow that is tramping on toward the house want with a ring? Oh, he is the prodigal son. No more tending of the swine trough. No more longing for the pods of the carob tree. No more blistered feet. Off with the rags! On with the robe! Out with the ring! Even so does God receive every one of us when we come back. There are gold rings, and pearl rings, and emerald rings, and diamond rings; but the richest ring that ever flashed on the vision is that which our Father puts upon a forgiven soul.

I know that the impression is abroad among some people that religion bemeans and belittles a man; that it takes all the sparkle out of his soul; that he has to exchange a roystering independence for an ecclesiastical strait jacket. Not so. When a man becomes a Christian he does not go down, he starts upward. Religion multiplies one by ten thousand. Nay, the multiplier is in infinity. It is not a blotting out—it is a polishing, it is an arborescence, it is an efflorescence, it is an irradiation. When a man comes into the kingdom of God he is not sent into a menial service, but the Lord God Almighty from the palaces of Heaven calls upon the messenger angels that wait upon the throne to fly and "put a ring on his hand." In Christ are the largest liberty, and brightest joy, and highest honor, and richest adornment. "Put a ring on his hand."

I remark, in the first place, that when Christ receives a soul into His love, He puts upon him the ring of adoption. While in my church in Philadelphia, there came the representative of the Howard Mission, of New York. He brought with him eight or ten children of the street that he had picked up, and he was trying to find for them Christian homes; and as the little ones stood on the pulpit and sang, our hearts melted within us. At the close of the service a good hearted, wealthy man came up and said: "I'll take this little bright-eyed girl, and I'll adopt her as one of my own children;" and he took her by the hand, lifted her into his carriage and went away.

The next day, while we were in the church gathering up garments for the poor of New York, this little child came back with a bundle under her arm, and she said: "There's my old dress; perhaps some of the poor children would like to have it" while she herself was in bright and beautiful array, and those who more immediately examined her said she had a ring on her hand. It was a ring of adoption.

There are a great many persons who pride themselves on their ancestry, and they glory over the royal blood that pours through their arteries. In their line there was a lord, or a duke, or a prime minister, or a king. But when the Lord, our Father, puts upon us the ring of His adoption, we become the children of the Ruler of all Nations. "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God." It matters not how poor our garments may be in this world, or how scant our bread, or how mean the hut we live in, if we have that ring of Christ's adoption upon our hand we are assured of eternal defenses.

Adopted! Why, then, we are brothers and sisters to all the good of earth and Heaven. We have the family name, the family dress, the family keys, the family wardrobe. The Father looks after us, robes us, defends us, blesses us. We have royal blood in our veins, and there are crowns in our line. If we are His children, then princes and princesses. It is only a question of time when we get our coronet. Adopted! Then we have the family secret. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him." Adopted! Then we have the family inheritance, and in the day when our Father shall divide the riches of Heaven we shall take our share of the mansions and palaces and temples. Henceforth let us boast no more of an earthly ancestry. The insignia of eternal glory is our coat-of-arms. This ring of adoption puts upon us all honor and all privilege. Now we can take the words of Charles Wesley, that prince of hymn-makers, and sing:

Come, let us join our friends above,
Who have obtained the prize,
And on the eagle wings of love
To joys celestial rise.
Let all the saints terrestrial sing
With those to glory gone:
For all the servants of our King,
In Heaven and earth are one.

I have been told that when any of the members of any of the great secret societies of this country are in a distant city and are in any kind of trouble, and are set upon by enemies, they have only to give a certain signal and the members of that organization will flock around for defense. And when any man belongs to this great Christian brotherhood, if he gets in trouble, in trial, in persecution, in temptation, he has only to show this ring of Christ's adoption and all the armed cohorts of Heaven will come to his rescue.

Still further, when Christ takes a soul into His love He puts upon it a marriage ring. Now, that is not a whim of mine; Hosea ii., 19: "I will betroth thee unto me forever; yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment, and in loving kindness, and in mercies." At the wedding altar the bridegroom puts a ring upon the hand of the bride, signifying love and faithfulness. Trouble may come upon the household, and the carpets may go, the pictures may go, the piano may go, everything else may go the last thing that goes is that marriage ring, for it is considered sacred. In the burial hour it is withdrawn from the hand and kept in a casket and sometimes the box is opened on an anniversary day, and as you look at that ring you see under its arch a long procession of precious memories. Within the golden circle of that ring there is room for a thousand sweet recollections to revolve, and you think of the great contrast between the hour when, at the close of the "Wedding March," under the flashing lights and amid the aroma of orange blossoms, you set that ring on the round finger of the plump hand, and that hour when, at the close of the exhaustive watching, when you knew that the soul had fled, you took from the hand, which gave back no responsive clasp, from that emaciated finger, the ring which she had worn so long and worn so well.

On some anniversary day you take up that ring, and you repolish it until all the old luster comes back, and you can see in it the flash of eyes that long ago ceased to weep. Oh, it is not an unmeaning thing when I tell you that when Christ receives a soul into His keeping He puts on a marriage ring. He endows you from that moment with all His wealth. You are one—Christ and the soul—one in sympathy, one in affection, one in hope.

There is no power on earth or hell to effect a divorcement after Christ and the soul are united. Other kings have turned out their companions when they get weary of them, and sent them adrift from the palace gate. Ahasuerus banished Vashti; Napoleon forsook Josephine, but Christ is the husband that is true forever. Having loved you once, He loves you to the end. Did they not try to divorce Margaret, the Scotch girl, from Jesus? They said: "You must give up your religion." She said: "I can't give up my religion." And so they took her down to the beach of the sea, and they drove in a stake at low water mark, and they fastened her to it, expecting that as the tide came up her faith would fail. The tide began to rise, and came up higher and higher, and to the girdle, and to the lip, and in the last moment, just as the wave was washing her soul into glory, she shouted the praises of Jesus.

Oh, no, you can not separate a soul from Christ. It is an everlasting marriage. Battle and storm and darkness can not do it. It is too much exultation for a man, who is but dust and ashes like myself, to cry out this moment: "I am persuaded that neither height, nor depth, or principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor any other creature shall separate me from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus my Lord." Glory be to God that when Christ and the soul are married they are bound by a chain—a golden chain—if I might say so—a chain with one link, and that one link the golden ring of God's everlasting love!

I go a step farther, and tell you that when Christ receives a soul into his love He puts on Him the ring of festivity. You know that it has been the custom in all ages to bestow rings on very happy occasions. There is nothing more appropriate for a birthday gift than a ring. You delight to bestow such a gift upon your children at such a time. It means joy, hilarity, festivity. Well, when this old man of the text wanted to tell how glad he was that his boy had got back, he expressed it in this way. Actually, before he ordered sandals to be put on his bare feet; before he ordered the fatted calf to be killed to appease the boy's hunger, he commanded: "Put a ring on his hand."

Oh, it is a merry time when Christ and the soul are united! Joy of forgiveness! What a splendid thing it is to feel that all is right between my God and myself. What a glorious thing it is to have God just take up all the sins of my life and put them in one bundle, and then fling them into the depths of the sea, never to rise again, never to be talked of again. Pollution all gone. Darkness all illumined. God reconciled. The prodigal home. "Put a ring on his hand."

Every day I find happy Christian people. I find some of them with no second coat, some of them in huts and tenement houses, not one earthly comfort afforded them; and yet they are as happy as happy can be. They sing "Rock of Ages" as no other people in the world sing it. They never wore any jewelry in their life but one gold ring, and that was the ring of God's undying affection. Oh, how happy religion makes us! Did it make you gloomy and sad? Did you go with your head cast down? I do not think you got religion, my brother. That is not the effect of religion. True religion is a joy. "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace."

Why, religion lightens all our burdens. It smooths all our ways. It interprets all our sorrows. It changes the jar of earthly discord for the peal of festal bells. In front of the flaming furnace of trial it sets the forge on which sceptres are hammered out. Would you not like this hour to come up from the swine-feeding and try this religion? All the joys of Heaven would come out and meet you, and God would cry from the throne: "Put a ring on his hand."

You are not happy. I see it. There is no peace, and sometimes you laugh when you feel a great deal more like crying. The world is a cheat. It first wears you down with its follies, then it kicks you out into darkness. It comes back from the massacre of a million souls to attempt the destruction of your soul to-day. No peace out of God, but there is the fountain that can slake the thirst. Here is the harbor where you can drop safe anchorage.

Would you not like, I ask you—not perfunctorily, but as one brother might talk to another—would you not like to have a pillow of rest to put your head on? And would you not like, when you retire at night, to feel that all is well, whether you wake up to-morrow morning at 6 o'clock or sleep the sleep that knows no waking? Would you not like to exchange this awful uncertainty about the future for a glorious assurance of Heaven? Accept of the Lord Jesus to-day, and all is well. If on your way home some peril should cross the street and dash your life out it would not hurt you. You would rise up immediately. You would stand in the celestial streets. You would be among the great throng that forever worship and are forever happy. If this night some sudden disease should come upon you it would not frighten you. If you knew you were going you could give a calm farewell to your beautiful home on earth, and know that you are going right into the companionship of those who have already gone beyond the toiling and the weeping.

You feel on Saturday night different from the way you feel any other night of the week. You come home from the bank, or the store, or the office, and you say: "Well, now, my week's work is done, and to-morrow is Sunday." It is a pleasant thought. There is refreshment and reconstruction in the very idea. Oh, how pleasant it will be, if, when we get through the day of our life, and we go and lie down in our bed of dust, we can realize: "Well, now the work is all done, and to-morrow is Sunday—an everlasting Sunday."

Oh, when, thou city of my God,
Shall I thy courts ascend?
Where congregations ne'er break up,
And Sabbaths have no end.

There are people in this house to-day who are very near the eternal world. If you are Christians, I bid you be of good cheer. Bear with you our congratulations to the bright city. Aged men, who will soon be gone, take with you our love for our kindred in the better land, and when you see them, tell them that we are soon coming. Only a few more sermons to preach and hear. Only a few more heartaches. Only a few more toils. Only a few more tears. And then—what an entrancing spectacle will open before us!

Beautiful Heaven, where all is light,
Beautiful angels, clothed in white,
Beautiful strains that never tire,
Beautiful harps through all the choir;
There shall I join the chorus sweet,
Worshiping at the Saviour's feet.

And so I approach you now with a general invitation, not picking out here and there a man, or here and there a woman, or here and there a child; but giving you an unlimited invitation, saying: "Come, for all things are now ready." We invite you to the warm heart of Christ and the inclosure of the Christian church. I know a great many think that the church does not amount to much—that it is obsolete; that it did its work and is gone now, so far as all usefulness is concerned. It is the happiest place I have ever been in except my own home.

I know there are some people who say they are Christians who seem to get along without any help from others, and who culture solitary piety. They do not want any ordinances. I do not belong to that class. I can not get along without them. There are so many things in this world that take my attention from God, and Christ, and Heaven, that I want all the helps of all the symbols and of all the Christian associations, and I want around about me a solid phalanx of men who love God and keep His commandments. Are there any here who would like to enter into the association? Then by a simple, child-like faith, apply for admission into the visible church, and you will be received. No questions asked about your past history or present surroundings. Only one test—do you love Jesus?

Baptism does not amount to any thing, say a great many people, but the Lord Jesus declared, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," putting baptism and faith side by side. And an apostle declares, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you." I do not stickle for any particular mode of baptism, but I put great emphasis on the fact that you ought to be baptized. Yet no more emphasis than the Lord Jesus Christ, the Great Head of the Church, puts upon it.

Some of you have been thinking on this subject year after year. You have found out that this world is a poor portion. You want to be Christians. You have come almost into the kingdom of God; but there you stop, forgetful of the fact that to be almost saved is not to be saved at all. Oh, my brother, after having come so near to the door of mercy, if you turn back, you will never come at all. After all you have heard of the goodness of God, if you turn away and die, it will not be because you did not have a good offer.

God's spirit will not always strive
With hardened, self-destroying man!
Ye who persist His love to grieve
May never hear his voice again.

May God Almighty this hour move upon your soul and bring you back from the husks of the wilderness to the Father's house, and set you at the banquet, and "put a ring on your hand."

FOR PARTISAN PURPOSES.

People of this country who are forward enough to read a newspaper once a day or even once a week are not going to be fooled by the fol-de-rol now going on at Washington. The performance upon which congress is now entering is insincere and ineffective. It is a pretense and a sham. The committee on ways and means seems to have sat on Christmas day for the purpose of producing an effect upon the public mind. It was the worst case of jingoism in economics that has been seen in a long time. Men of gravity and experience are engaging in a political circus act. They are merely preparing for campaign document, which is to run something after this fashion: "We tried to relieve the distress of the treasury and the revenue difficulties, but the administration stood in our way. We presented the remedy, but it was not accepted."

The gentlemen who are engineering the present scheme in the house have no expectation that it will ever become a law. If they thought it would they would probably not be for it. They are merely meeting what is declared to be a serious condition with a cheap article of pettifoggery. They have no well matured plan of relief, and if they had they would not put it in operation for the benefit of a democratic administration.

Everybody knows what the course of the administration on finance has been. We shall not go over an old discussion. In carrying out a policy which the republican party created Mr. Cleveland has been issuing bonds under the old resumption law to get gold to maintain a gold reserve of $100,000,000 in the treasury. He has been adding to the public indebtedness to "maintain a credit" that has not been threatened. He has been criticised in both parties for his course. He lately advised congress that there was another crisis, and urged legislation that would help him to keep the gold stock up. Congress had previously been advised that there was no trouble in the matter of the revenue. The ways and means committee, however, under the direction of the speaker, proposes a tariff bill which they know cannot become a law and a bond bill which is not essentially different from the law under which bonds are now issued. The silver men in the senate, without regard to party, are able to defeat any measure that has a bond provision in it, and they will.

What is to come out of all this? Who can discover a prospect of a result? What's the use of trifling with propositions that have no significance in them? It may be of the greatest importance to express a principle through the legislative machinery, even if that principle cannot at the time become a law. The republican party in the campaign of this year, denounce the democratic tariff in bitter terms, and insisted that republican legislation on that subject was the only safe refuge for the country. They are now in overwhelming possession of the house, and it is their duty to pass a tariff bill on the high protection lines they have advocated. It is their part to do this as a matter of party faith and principle. This popgun tariff proposition—this makeshift to avoid the issue made in the president's message—is not a redemption of the promises implied in the campaign. It is mere straddling and sprawling about, and an offense to public intelligence.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE WRONG TIME.

As was to be expected, pressure is being brought to bear upon the house ways and means committee to traverse the entire tariff law for the purpose of satisfying various interests preferring tariff for protection. Chairman Dingley and his committee should not suffer this pressure to alter their already designed scheme. This is not the time for general tariff revision. It may be that if the executive, the senate and the house were of the same way of thinking on political economy the law might be reviewed not only for increasing duty at some points but for lowering it perhaps at others.

Whatever effect a deliberate reconsideration of the subject might have under other circumstances, this is not the time for tariff revision. The country wants rest and peace. Business is already showing confident reaction and steady revival. Manufacturers, merchants and farmers do not desire to start out in a new year apprehensive of radical changes in the customs. Trade and production are both accustomed now to the existing schedules, and to provoke irritation would be the chief result of opening up a tariff debate which, while wasting congress' time, would inevitably be futile in the end. It will be task enough to carry safely through the senate and past the menace of a presidential veto only the tariff change demanded by the treasury condition.

There should be no attempt to alter the existing tariff law except to replenish the revenue, and no more should be sought than the measure of replenishment adequate to easing the fiscal administration of the government. No party can object to making the customs pay their share of the general expenses of the country. Tariff for revenue is one thing. Tariff for protection is quite another. Let us stick to one thing at a time. This is not the time for tariff revision except for revenue.—Chicago Times-Herald (Ind.).

——If the republican policy of hitching together a provision for protecting the gold reserve and an increase of the tariff, putting a tax on raw wool as a part, is carried into effect it will give the president a chance to write another veto message, which he should improve. If it is thought to "put the president in the hole" by this sharp practice, Mr. Reed will find that the president is a deliberative man, if the body over which the former presides is not.—St. Paul Globe.

Every republican plan for increasing the revenue is dishonest and a scheme to sandbag and rob the people of the country. No great increase, if any, is required. But the imaginary deficit is made a pretext for the kind of tariff legislation demanded by the rapacity of the protected monopolists. They declare that the country is in no necessitous circumstances and they regard the country's necessity as their rascally opportunity.

From every part of the country—when its patriotic enthusiasm was awakened and there was a probability that men, ships and money might be needed to fight its battles on land and sea—there thronged to the capitol the agents, solicitors and other members of the lobby gang to urge increased taxation, not for the public benefit, but for their own.

The most impudent and the most greedy of the throngs that surrounded the sources of revenue legislation were the wool men, clamoring for a renewal of the wool tax, which would include the old tax on clothing, carpets, hats and caps and other wool products. They ciphered out that the wool and clothing tariff produced in prosperous years a revenue of $40,000,000. They covered up the fact that for every dollar of public revenue produced by the wool tariff ten dollars or $20 went into the pockets of the protected manufacturers.

The advocates of this gigantic fraud and steal attempted to disguise its character by declaring that it is not "a restoration of the McKinley tariff schedule," and that it is a plan to produce revenue merely—not for protection. The allegation is false. If the McKinley tariff or 50 or 60 per cent. of the McKinley tariff rates should be restored it would be for protection and not for revenue. Nine-tenths of all the taxes collected or more would go into private pockets. One-tenth or less would go into the public treasury.

The rich lumber men, the nabobs of the pine forests, are also besieging the capitol for a renewal of protection. This is a more audacious demand if possible than that of the wool men. The lumber interest is one of the richest interests in the country. Tariff or no tariff, their profits are enormous. There are more millionaires among the lumbermen of the country in proportion to the entire number than there are among any other class of manufacturers.

But it is not material which protected interest, which monopoly fattened on the taxes paid by the people is most aggressive and rapacious in this emergency when the country is in the midst of a struggle with its foes of all kinds—with England claiming and ready to enforce by its armies and fleets vast territorial rights on this continent, with the gold sharks attacking the specie reserve and the public credit at all points, with every form of domestic and foreign enmity.

This is the emergency which the piratical protected interests have chosen as a time to enforce on congress their demands for new subsidies, new bounties, new extortions under the false color of revenue taxation.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE BOND BILL.

The bond bill offered by the republicans as one of their brace of measures to meet present and future exigencies of the treasury is a pusillanimous dodge by a party which professes to be a sound-money party.

What the treasury needs, if compelled to issue bonds to protect the gold reserve, is authority to issue gold bonds. That is what was asked of the last congress and refused by it, to the cost of the country of about $16,000,000. When the government borrows gold it is expected to repay in gold. When it can only promise to repay in coin the lender takes the risk of being repaid in silver, and accordingly charges a higher rate of interest. As the government repays in gold anyway, no one but a fool or a cowardly politician would withhold the power to promise repayment in gold.

Yet that is just what the republicans propose to do with their new coin bonds. Their bill is but a piece of party buncombe, intended to placate the sound-money men, and yet not offend the silver men. The power granted by it is virtually no improvement on that already possessed by the government. Under present laws the government now has authority to sell coin bonds to maintain the gold reserve, and it sells them on terms to make them about as cheap as the three per cent. bonds of the new bill would be, if those bonds could be sold at par, as stipulated by the bill.

The only merit the new bill has over the existing law is that it would authorize a bond redeemable in five years, a shorter term bond than can now be issued. This is an insignificant measure of relief to be seriously offered in an emergency like that which it is proposed to meet.

If congress is afraid to attempt to go to the roots of our financial evils and remove them, but still intends to pose as doing something in response to the demands upon it, the very least that it could do would be to empower the government, when necessary to borrow gold, to borrow it on the best terms by expressly agreeing to repay in gold. The policy proposed by the republicans of the house—of increasing the taxes on the necessaries of life to dam up in the treasury a surplus of legal-tender notes in order that they may not be used as money—and of authorizing more "coin" bonds, is a policy of weak evasion and transparent pretension.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——Mr. Cleveland was right in throwing the responsibility on congress to remedy the financial confusion. It is the result of republican legislation.—Columbus Press.

THE MOTTO OF THE FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

Some one with a taste for historic research has been compiling a list of appellations by which Oneida lake, as it is now known, has in the past been distinguished. The Onondaga tribe of Indians called it Seughke, signifying that it was striped with blue and white lines—an interpretation that can best be appreciated from a commanding position on one of the surrounding hills. Jesuits knew it as Lac Techtroguen des Onnelonts, while Charlevoix called it Kanoaloka, and Maclieu termed it Onidahogo. In 1667 Greenhalgh christened it Taisoqui, and on an old map in the secretary of state's office it is designated as Cahunghage.

BRADLEY'S MESSAGE.

He Recommends the Erection of a New Capitol by Convicts.

The Necessity for Maintaining the State's Credit Pointed Out—Lynchings Are Denounced—He Touches Upon the Gerrymander Evils—Home Rule for Cities is Very Strongly Urged.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 10.—Gov. Bradley's message was given to the legislature to-day. The message entire would occupy over eleven columns of newspaper space. The following gives the gist of the subjects treated: The message shows very careful preparation, taking into consideration the disadvantages of limited time and other hindrances under which the governor worked.

Finances is the first subject tackled. The governor was handicapped by not getting the promised report of Auditor Norman, but was furnished with sufficient material by that official.

By reason of the decision of the appellate court in the bank tax cases, the state has been materially relieved. In other words, the payment of 75 instead of 42½ cents on the $100 into the state treasury has largely augmented the revenue. This, however, will add to the burden of many counties and cities, which will now be compelled to increase their rate of taxation in order to supplement the losses they have sustained by reason of the fact that the banks have, in a large measure, been relieved of county and municipal taxes.

But notwithstanding this relief to the state, it will be seen that its financial condition is not at all satisfactory.

Auditor Norman informs me that at the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1895, there was a deficit in the treasury of $41,968.17, and $39,961.77 to the credit of the school fund. On the 31st of December, 1895, this deficit is said to have been $19,355. There was at that date $113,683.94 in the sinking fund, set apart, however, to pay military bonds and interest then due. The sheriffs had paid in all taxes due the state except $5,992 owing by the sheriff of Bracken county.

There will be due the common school teachers during this month the remaining one-fifth of wages, about $400,000. The amount of unpaid warrants is $383,823.19. The amount of claims filed and allowed is estimated at $35,000. There is also due the charitable institutions for the last quarter $113,000, and the further sum of $176,000 on appropriations to enlarge their buildings.

Warrants have been issued to the state officials for salaries, but the amount unpaid is not stated. These, however, are embraced in the unpaid warrants mentioned. Besides these there is a considerable amount due on claims allowed, but not yet presented to the auditor.

Military bonds		$174,000 00
Certificates of indebtedness		500,000 00
Railroad script, past due	$391 00
Thirty year issue, 1835	5,000 00
Also old issue, 1811 to 1846	1,000 00—	6,394 00
(The last named bonds supposed to be lost or destroyed.)
Bonds held by the board of education		2,312,596 16
Total indebtedness		$2,992,990 16

The resources of the sinking fund in said report are estimated at $701,668.91.

Semi-annual interest is payable upon the school bonds held by the board of education, but the state will not be called upon to pay the principal. The certificates of indebtedness draw interest, but the principal does not fall due until 1905.

As already stated, the amount in the sinking fund will be paid on the military bonds.

It is manifest that steps must be taken to liquidate debts now due, for the credit of the state must be maintained at all hazards. As to what the estimated expenses and revenues of the present fiscal year may be, I do not know. I fear, however, that the present tax rate will not prove sufficient to meet current expenses but as I have not the necessary data before me I can not speak with any degree of certainty. I shall recommend certain reforms, which, if adopted, will, in my judgment, curtail expenses and increase the revenue. Some of these, however, can not be made effective for some time to come; others may prove beneficial during the present year.

I submit to your wisdom on full information, after inspection of auditor's report (which should be obtained at as early a date as possible) and a close scrutiny of all the surroundings, whether or not the rate of taxation should be increased, or what should be done to provide payment of accrued indebtedness.

As stated, some of the remedies recommended may not be put into speedy operation because of the fact that they can not become available until the present terms of those in office have expired; but that furnishes no reason why they should not be adopted so that they may prove of benefit in the future.

The message calls attention to the enormous expense to the state of criminal prosecutions, and recommends that jurisdiction of prosecutions when the maximum of fine is under $500, or maximum of imprisonment is under one year, be transferred to the judges of quarterly courts and the concurrent jurisdiction of justices and police judges with said court to try misdemeanors as now fixed by law (the trials to be had under warrants).

The indiscriminate summoning of witnesses and the expense of examining courts are also criticised. The message continues:

The chief source of expense, however, is found in hung juries and repeated trials. In nearly every instance this results from difficulty in determining the extent of punishment. In the federal and many state courts of the union it has proven quite efficacious, while having the jury to pass on guilt and its degree, to clothe the judge with power to fix the punishment. Doubtless the adoption of this rule in Kentucky would save the state thousands of dollars, and at the same time result in more speedy punishment of criminals.

The abolition of the office of commonwealth's attorney was unquestionably contemplated by the framers of the constitution. In my judgment this office should be abolished. In many of the states of the union the office does not exist, and the laws in such states are equally well administered as those where it does exist. By placing in the hands of the county attorney all prosecutions, and giving him a fair percentage on fines and forfeitures, in addition to allowances made by the counties, the office would be more desirable and be sought by a good class of competent lawyers. I do not mean by this to insinuate that such offices are not now filled by competent gentlemen, but that men of larger experience, who, in many instances, can not now afford to take the place, would readily accept it on account of the increased salary.

The office of the register of the land office has for years been a source of expense, without corresponding benefit to the state. The constitution clearly contemplated its abolition, and I trust you may see fit to abolish it at this session, placing the books and papers of the office in the hands of the auditor or secretary of state, after the expiration of the present term, and providing one clerk to look after the discharge of its duties. And in this connection your attention is called to the fact that patents are being constantly issued for the land already appropriated. The effect of this is to cloud titles and lessen the value of real estate. It is suggested that you may require every person asking for a survey and warrant to notify the county processioners, and have them give notice to all persons who have lands adjoining the land sought to be appropriated, and all others who are known to them to have any claim upon the adjoining lands, or that sought to be patented, at the time of making the survey.

The commissioner of agriculture and the agricultural bureau cost the state annually a large sum of money. The benefit, if any, derived is very slight. As to the grain inspector and weigher, if necessary the power to appoint might be lodged with some state officer. An amendment should be proposed to the constitution for the abolishment of this unnecessary state appendage.

The board of equalization, in my judgment, has proven an affliction. The selection of men in distant portions of the state to pass upon the value of property already sworn to by the party assessed, certified by the assessor and revised by the county supervisors of the locality where it is situated, can not be otherwise than uncertain and unjust. It is suggested that the revenue or auditor's agent, whose duties and compensation have recently been regulated by law in such way as to make them an advantage to the state, be required to look carefully into the list of assessed property after the meeting of the supervisors and take such steps as they deem necessary, by action or prosecution, to discover any property not listed, and where property has been assessed at less than its value at a fair voluntary sale, to institute such proceeding as may be necessary to recover the taxes properly coming to the state, together with a certain per cent. by way of compensation to the agent.

The auditor's agent should be an attorney at law, or, if not, should be compelled to employ an attorney and compensate him out of his per cent. for his services.

He recommends that the circuit courts be relieved and expenses lessened by jurisdiction in prosecutions where the maximum fine is under $500 or imprisonment under one year, being transferred to the judges of quarterly courts and the concurrent jurisdiction of justices and police judges, with said court to try misdemeanors as now fixed by law. The enactment of a law is recommended requiring an affidavit to be made, plainly showing that the offense charged is grand larceny, before any order of arrest or subpoenas are issued.

Section 114, Kentucky statutes, requires the attorney general to investigate all unsatisfied claims, demands and judgments in favor of the commonwealth, and confers upon him the right to employ attorneys to prosecute the same, the attorneys thus employed to be paid by the state. This employment should not be permitted unless the attorney general in each instance makes affidavit that he is unable to give the case personal attention by reason of sickness or press of business.

There seems to be no limit fixed by law to the compensation of county attorneys. Aside from counties containing cities this may not be necessary, but there should be a limit provided in all the counties in which there are cities of the first, second or third class.

At the conclusion of our civil war, while gold was selling at a large premium, the salaries of the state officers were not nearly so large as to-day—in many instances not one-half as much. Notwithstanding this, competent persons were as anxious to serve the state then as at any period of its history.

It is true that salaries can not be reduced except to take effect after the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents, but this furnishes no just reason why they should not be reduced to take effect after that time. Public officials should be reasonably recompensed, but the taxpayer should not be overburdened or oppressed.

The passage of a well regulated law increasing the license fees of wholesale and retail liquor dealers, druggists and distillers would produce considerable revenue. The same may be said of increased license fees on pool and billiard tables and other similar devices, and of special taxes for the sale of tobacco, cigars, etc.

The license fees for circuses and other entertainments might well be increased and regulated according to population of the various counties in which they exhibit. License fees might be required of all persons selling pistol cartridges and all newspapers and others offering to furnish firearms as premiums.

A fee of two dollars might be charged for each commission issued to an officer. The tax on deeds and mortgages should be regulated according to the value of the property mortgaged or conveyed, not less than 25 cents and not more than two dollars. There is no reason why a mortgage or deed for $100 worth of property should be taxed as much as one for $1,000 worth of property.

It is believed that a carefully considered bill, along the line indicated, would produce the needful amount of revenue. These additional taxes may be readily repealed in the event that the reforms suggested, together with those that may occur to you, should materially lessen expenses.

It is suggested that the 501 idle convicts in the penitentiary might be employed in building new capitol buildings, and that a new mansion should also be erected.

For many years mere children have been confined in the penitentiary, and a number are now confined there, despite the fact that many have been pardoned by the various governors on account of their extreme youthfulness. These children have been, and are now, being associated with old and hardened malefactors, and doubtless many who might have been reformed have become the most accomplished criminals by reason of superior advantages and training in the penitentiary.

It is respectfully recommended that the Feeble-minded institute be abolished and the inmates returned as lunatics, or returned under the present statutes to their friends or to the counties from which they came; and that the buildings be turned into a house of reform, and such changes, together with regulations enacted for its management as you may consider best.

The prevalence of mob violence in Kentucky is deplorable. I suggest that a statute be enacted providing severe penalties against all persons who, directly or indirectly, by word or act, encourage such atrocities.

Freedom of speech and of the press does not imply unbridled license. The right to endorse violations of law and encourage crime does not exist anywhere in good government. The press of the United States is denouncing in unmeasured terms the late crimes committed in Marion county, and we can not hope to attract peace-loving and law-abiding people to the state if such inhuman practices go unpunished.

That the present law in the United States concerning immigration should be carefully remodeled, and the tide of worthless and dangerous people flooding our shores be stayed, is admitted by all sober-thinking men.

It might be of benefit if your honorable body would request our senators and representatives in congress to take some steps to remedy this evil.

Section 4, article 2, chapter 108 of the general statutes, provides that "a committee composed of members of both houses shall be appointed within ten days after the organization of the general assembly, at every regular session thereof, whose duty it shall be personally to examine into the treasury; examine all papers or vouchers upon which money has been paid for each of the preceding two years; ascertain the amount of money paid into and paid out of the treasury, and the amount of public money on hand," etc. The same section requires the auditor's office to be investigated.

This seems to have been omitted from the Kentucky statutes, but is yet in force, as those statutes have not been adopted as containing all the law of the state.

Gov. Buckner called attention to the fact that this statute had been overlooked, and requested that all the state offices should be carefully inspected and reported upon. I likewise call your attention to this statute, and repeat his recommendation.

I am informed that in September, 1895, J. A. Tompkins, who was one of the posse of Deputy United States Marshal Sloan, killed Richard Lawrence in Clinton county, Kentucky, and was at the October term of the Cincinnati circuit court indicted for murder. I am also informed that such killing was not done while Tompkins was in the discharge of his duty as a member of the posse.

I recommend that you immediately enact a law such as will cover this and all similar cases that have arisen or may arise, enabling the commonwealth to protect her citizens through her own courts.

There is a remarkably larger percentage of lunatics from some localities in the state than from others, so much so as to awake the suspicion that there are possibly many confined who are not lunatics, but who, under the statutes are idiots and are not dangerous or uncontrollable. The law regarding inspection in this respect seems definite, but your attention is called to the subject for such investigation and further legislation as you may deem proper.

Gov. Bradley says the present ballot system is a great improvement, but contains many imperfections, and calls attention to some of them.

It is said that Kentucky pays twice as much for school books as states north of us. If this be true such laws should be enacted as will remedy it. If uniformity in text books should be required the prices should be necessarily reduced.

It is respectfully recommended that the Feeble-Minded institute be abolished, and the inmates returned as lunatics are returned under the present statutes to their friends or to the counties from which they came, and that the buildings be turned into a house of reform.

Of late numerous untruthful stories concerning the commission of crime in Kentucky have been given currency by unprincipled correspondents, all to the great detriment of the state. I recommend, in order to restrain these irresponsible persons, that a law should be passed providing severe punishment of all persons who willfully state, deliver or transmit to any manager, editor, publisher, reporter or other employe of any periodical or serial, any falsehood concerning any person, corporation or community.

The message refers to the "iniquitous practices" of gerrymandering, and after quoting the provisions of the constitution, continues:

The rules prescribed are plain. Was the present apportionment made within these rules, or as nearly so as practicable? If so, the constitution has been complied with, and no other apportionment can be had for ten years after these were made. If, on the other hand, the constitution has been disregarded, no apportionment has been made, for that which is unconstitutional is of no effect. The authority, it is true, was given to be exercised at the time mentioned, but not prohibited from being exercised thereafter. If for any reason it was not then exercised, or if exercised, so done in violation of the organic law, the general assembly now has the right, and it is its duty to exercise it in a proper way.

To make a new apportionment applicable to persons now holding office would produce confusion and injury, and therefore any new apportionment bill should not take effect until after the expiration of the terms of those now in office. Doubtless if this is not done the courts will be called upon to pass on the question, and far more trouble and confusion result than if the matter be now properly adjusted. It may be said that if the apportionment is void, the present general assembly is not a legal body. This argument can not be sustained because it would produce anarchy. Every government has the inherent right to maintain its existence, otherwise there could be no government. The general assembly, upon whom was devolved this important trust, has ceased to exist and can not be called into life. The present general assembly, therefore, if an unconstitutional apportionment has been made, should correct the evil in the interest of good government.

First, as to the appellate districts, it will be seen that, according to the census of 1890, under which they were created, their population and area is as follows:

District.	Population.	Area Sq. miles
First	293,087	6,327
Second	277,076	[illegible]
Third	210,911	7,967
Fourth	180,244	775
Fifth	297,935	6,033
Sixth	261,563	4,553
Seventh	227,330	7,683

The mere statement of population and area plainly shows that in apportioning these districts the constitutional regulation "that due regard should be had to territory, business and population" was not obeyed.

But improper as this apportionment is shown to be, there is another fact connected with circuit apportionment infinitely more so.

Section 138, constitution, declares, "each county having a city of 20,000 inhabitants, and a population, including said city, of 40,000 or more, may constitute a district," etc. The manifest meaning of the section is, that the county must have a population of at least 40,000, or it can not be made a district; and not even then, unless the county contains a city of 20,000 population.

The United States census of 1890 shows that Fayette county had a population of 35,698; yet in the face of this, the district was established. In order to carry out the intent of the organic law, when the legislature regulated salaries in districts contemplated by Section 138, supra, they placed the limit of the compensation of sheriffs and circuit court clerks at not exceeding $3,000 annually, after payment of deputies, assistants and expenses of office. Subsequent to the enactment of this statute a rule was issued by the commonwealth against the sheriff and county clerk of Fayette county to show cause why they should not name their deputies so that the judge might fix their salaries pursuant to the statute (section 1776). They responded by stating that Fayette county had never had as much as 40,000 population. This averment was not and could not have been truthfully denied.

The three counties of Clay, Jackson and, Owsley, with a population of 26,683, and an area of 1,065 square miles, are given one representative, while the county of Hancock, with a population of 9,214, and an area of 200 square miles, is accorded the same privilege. The counties of Boyd and Lawrence, with a population of 31,775, and an area of six hundred and fifty-five square miles are given one representative, while the county of Jessamine, with a population of 11,248, and an area of 162 square miles, is accorded the same representation. The counties of Whitley and Knox, with a population of 31,852, are allowed one representative while the county of Woodford, with a population of 13,380, and an area of 247 square miles, is given the same privilege.

The counties of Laurel and Rockcastle, with a population of 21,588, and an area of 730 square miles, have one representative, while the county of Anderson, with 10,610 population, and an area of 200 square miles, is accorded the same representation. The counties of Breathitt, Lee and Magoffin, with a population of 24,106, and an area of 978 square miles, have one representative, while the county of Bracken with a population of 12,369, and an area of 200 square miles, has the same representation.

The county of Christian, with a population of 34,118, and an area of 708 square miles, has one representative, while the counties of Daviess, with a population of 33,120 and covering 410 square miles, and Warren, with a population of 30,158 and covering 530 square miles, have two representatives each. The county of Pulaski, with a population of 25,731 and an area of 870 square miles, is allowed one member, while the county of Meade, with a population of 9,484, and 332 square miles, has the same representation.

I call the attention of your honorable body to this plain and inexcusable violation of the constitution, this inequality and injustice in representation, with the hope that you will take such steps as the gravity of the question demands. I speak in no partisan spirit, but only in behalf of constitutional freedom and equality, asking that no advantage be given any section or party, but that a fair and just apportionment be made, to take effect upon the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents. There could be no more fitting and proper time to do this than the present, while each party has a majority in one branch of the general assembly, and may thus act as a check in the other. If not adjusted now, the time may come when both houses may be under the control of a different party to that which made the present apportionment, and when party spirit may cause a partisan apportionment to be attempted and possibly effected, though I promise now, if I am then the chief executive of this state, it shall not be done with my consent or approval.

And now, in conclusion, allow me to indulge the hope, as I entertain the belief, that we may work together harmoniously for the general welfare of the State, that at the expiration of this session much good shall have been accomplished for the commonwealth, and that each and all of you, after your pleasant sojourn at the capital, may be spared to return to your respective homes, and that prosperity and happiness may attend you through life.

I am, with great respect,

WILLIAM O. BRADLEY,
Governor of Kentucky.

NOVEL EXERCISE.

How an Eccentric Literary Man Took His Daily Constitutional.

Poor Harry Shelman, the long-haired poet who dressed his entire person to resemble Buffalo Bill, and who was, in fact, startlingly like the greatest of scouts, used to tell me of a literary friend of his who had a novel method of taking exercise, says a writer in the New York Press. His workshop was on the top floor of his house, far from the noise of the street, and he used to write about 15 hours a day. He was not a Howells or a Bronson Howard, whose working hours never exceed four in any one day. He worked, he labored, he toiled. He had no time for a bicycle and could not afford a horse. He hated walking. Run he could not. Swimming was out of the question. Still he must have exercise. He kept his dictionary in the basement and his thesaurus in the kitchen. As he used both very often it was necessary to make many trips downstairs and up again, and in that way he kept himself in splendid physical condition. A visitor once saw him dashing downstairs like a madman and soaring up again like a kite and was distressed till informed by John's wife that John was simply hunting for a word and had found it.

An Oddity in Toes and Digits.

There is one curious fact respecting the animal creation with which you will never become acquainted if you depend on your text books for information. It is this: No living representative of the animal kingdom has more than five toes, digits or claws to each foot, hand or limb. The horse is the type of one-toed creation; the camel of the two-toed; the rhinoceros of the three-toed and the hippopotamus of four-toed animal life. The elephant and hundreds of other animals belonging to different orders belong to the great five-toed tribe.

THE CRISIS IN EUROPE.

President Kreuger Will Appeal to Russia, France and Germany

If England Refuses His Demand for Redress for Recent Invasion—Salisbury May Buy Up Portugal's Interest, Cutting Off Access to Transvaal.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The development of the European crisis becomes hourly more interesting. The absence of all news regarding the intentions of both the kaiser and the czar receives a peaceful interpretation in most quarters. In several days we shall have a decision, in which St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris will all be represented. We shall learn then whether the continental combination for the overthrow of British prestige includes war in its programme.

There is a strong disinclination in France to support Germany. If Russia had been the aggressor against England there would have been prompt and hearty support from both Germany and France. French embarrassment, however, has probably been removed by President Krueger. There is the highest authority for saying that the Boer president has submitted to the British government his demands for redress on account of the recent invasion. If Great Britain refuses to satisfy them, President Krueger will appeal for assistance to the continental powers. Germany will then no longer be the leader of the quarrel, and there are strong reasons for believing that Russia, France and Germany would act in concert in complying with the Boer request.

It is not yet known positively what the Boer demands are, but it is certain that they include more than a mere money indemnity. It is known that President Krueger has received from Europe strong encouragement to demand the complete independence of the Transvaal, and he has probably done so. Authoritative information states that the German emperor did, on Monday last, declare it to be his intention to recognise the independence of the Transvaal republic. It is now clearer than ever that if he does this alone or in combination with others, war will follow.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Cable messages from London state that Lord Salisbury has clinched the position at Delagoa bay by notifying the government at Lisbon that the landing of any foreign troops there will be immediately followed by the occupation of the place by the British. By Wednesday five British cruisers will be stationed at Delagoa bay.

The Westminster Gazette, commenting on the relations between the emperor and the British royal family, says that these relations are offensive. He uses the imperative in his intercourse with all his relatives in England and Germany, and holds himself to be the head of the family next to the queen. As the son of the British princess royal he always contends that he is heir to the British throne. In connection with this subject the Frankfort Zeitung renews the story that Emperor William, in the event of the death of the queen, will claim the throne of the United Kingdom and prepare to enforce rights by force of arms. As a believer in the divine rights of kings he would not regard an adverse decision on his claim by parliament.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The Armenian and Cuban Questions Considered at Saturday's Session of That Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The senate committee on foreign relations had a special meeting Saturday morning for the purpose of considering the Armenian and Cuban questions. There are more important matters before this committee this session than there has been in many years, owing to the many recent foreign complications. The Armenian question is considered by the committee to be the most urgent, and some means will doubtless be devised to bring about a condition that will afford Americans and their property better protection under the Turkish government.

The Cuban question is one that is also considered by the committee as of immediate importance. There is no doubt that the majority of the committee is in favor of the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, but the committee does not think the time is yet ripe for such recognition, that the insurgents have not yet gained that signal victory that will justify the United States in extending to them the recognition that will give them, so far as this country is concerned, belligerent rights.

Of course the Venezuelan matter has not been lost sight of, but there appears to be no immediate necessity for action on that question.

Horrible Crime at Southport, La.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 13.—A man named Pat Morrison and a Negro woman have been living together for some time on a flatboat in the vicinity of Southport, disregarding all warnings to leave. About 1 o'clock Sunday morning a number of shots were heard in the direction of the boat, which was seen to be burning. About daylight it was found burned to the water's edge and the charred bodies of the couple found. A two-year-old child of the woman in some miraculous way escaped unhurt.

Senator Butler Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Senator Butler, of North Carolina, when seen Sunday night by a United Press reporter, said that so far as he was concerned, there was nothing in the story about his being a candidate on the populist presidential ticket for second place.

Activity in the Ordnance Yards.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Work was carried on all day Sunday at the Plymouth and Devonport ordnance yards, the men being engaged in completing the supply of shells for the use of the flying squadron.

The Chickasaw Indebtedness.

DENISON, Tex., Jan. 13.—A special session of the Chickasaw legislature is called to meet Monday, the 13th inst. The object of the session is to make arrangements to settle the entire indebtedness of the nation amounting to $1,000,000. The amount will probably be taken from the reserve fund.

The Charges Were Not Sustained.

TROY, O., Jan. 13.—The proceedings to disbar Attorney A. R. Byrkett are ended. Judge Heiserman decided that that the charges made have not been sustained.

FOR HIGH TREASON.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The features Friday of the troubles growing out of Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal were the practical refusal of the Uitlanders to surrender their arms, and the arrest at Johannesburg of a number of members of the National Reform committee on the charge of high treason.

Among the prisoners are several of the leading residents of Johannesburg, including Col. Rhodes, brother of Cecil Rhodes, ex-prime minister of Cape Colony, who is said to be ill at Cape Town. It is believed here that Cecil Rhodes will bring all his influence, which is very powerful, to bear to secure the release of his brother. There is no single man who has done so much to develop South Africa as the ex-prime minister, though in carrying out his plans he has made many enemies, it can truthfully be said that he is the most powerful man in that part of the world to-day. He may be for the moment compelled to abide the issue of the present troubles, but that he will later again take a hand in shaping the destinies of South Africa there can scarcely be a doubt. He has always been a man of action, not words, and his future policy will, once decided on, probably not be known until it is put into effect.

The arrest of the members of the National Reform committee does not cause any great anxiety regarding their fate, as it is generally believed that in no event will any severe punishment be inflicted upon them.

The report that Dr. Jameson had been released turns out to have been premature. President Kruger, in reply to the message of Queen Victoria, says that he intends to turn Dr. Jameson and the other English prisoners who took part in the raid over to the British government for punishment, but a dispatch from Johannesburg states that the surrender of the prisoners will be made conditional on the abrogation of the Anglo-Boer convention of 1884, which gives Great Britain suzerainity over the Transvaal. If such a condition as this is imposed by the Boers, it is quite certain that Great Britain will never agree to it. The government is determined to uphold this convention in all its terms, and although the Transvaal government may urge that Dr. Jameson's raid made the convention null and void, it is safe to say that Great Britain will never accept that view of the matter unless she is compelled to do so.

To abrogate the convention now, would be to acknowledge that the reported attitude of Emperor William anent the Transvaal is correct and the temper of the English people to-day is not such as to allow that government to concede, even were it disposed to.

As a matter of fact, the government will make not the slightest concession in the matter to Germany, but is prepared or preparing to maintain what it believes are its rights by force of arms if necessary.

Never before has the isolation of Great Britain been so completely driven home in the minds of the British people.

Hitherto they have been accustomed to believing that should England become embroiled in a war with a foreign power, she would find sympathy, if not actual aid, from some of the European nations. Now it is known that in all Europe she has not a single friend, and many believe that her enemies are only awaiting an opportunity to attack her and deprive her of some of her vast possessions.

Will Return at the Old Rate.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 11.—The miners of Taylor & McCoy and the Mitchell Coal and Coke Co., who struck on the first of the month for an increase of 20 per cent. for mining coal, will return to work Saturday at the old rate, the operators refusing to grant an increase. Notice instructing the men to resume work Saturday morning signed by the strike committee was posted Friday morning. It is expected that the men of the East End Coal Co. will also go to work Saturday.

Havana no Longer Menaced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: Guanajay, just across the border of Pinar del Rio province, is now the center of active operations, the cloud of excitement which has hung over this city for days having gradually drifted westward. The capital being now no longer menaced, less anxiety is shown about the official headquarters, and many of the precautions hurriedly taken for the city's defense are being as quickly relaxed.

Brought Before Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Congressman Willis, of Delaware, has taken up the cause of the Cuban insurgents, and Friday endeavored to secure the consideration of a resolution recognizing their belligerency by the house. It was objected to before it had been read, however, and will go to the committee on foreign affairs.

Western Baseball Matters.

QUINCY, Ill., Jan. 11.—Jack Glasscock has been signed to manage the Quincy Western association club for the coming season. Pitcher McGrevy, of last year's Quincy club, has been sold to the Columbus Western league club.

A New Destroyer.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 11.—J. A. Hill, of Brent Creek, has completed a model for a small submarine boat which, loaded with dynamite will, he thinks, destroy the strongest war vessel made. In the interior is a clock work arrangement which moves the paddles and explodes the dynamite. The boat is to be drawn within 100 yards of the enemy's vessels. The point is magnetized so that it will be attracted to the iron of the ship. When attracted it will stick by its magnetic power to the hull of the vessel until it explodes. Hill will shortly send a model to Washington.

The Goulds' Inheritance Tax.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Surrogate Fitzgerald Friday signed an order fixing the amount of inheritance tax to be paid by the heirs of the late Jay Gould as follows:

Abraham Gould, $477.71; Anna G. Hough, $404.53; Sarah B. Northrup, $397.40, and Elizabeth Palen, $432.48. These are the brothers and sisters of the deceased.

Geo. J. Gould, $90,771.94; Jay Gould, $5,000; Helen M. Gould, $98,437.08; Edwin Gould, $92,157.23; Howard Gould, $95,192.95; Frank J. Gould, $98,175.85, and Anna, now the Countess de Castellane, $97,122.18.

ARBITRATION.

Clause to Be Attached to the Behring Sea Treaty Providing For It

In All Pending Questions Between the Two Countries by England—The British Cabinet Will Make Public the Material Documents on Venezuela Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Mr. Henry Norman, the special commissioner of the London Daily Chronicle, cabling to his paper before leaving Washington Sunday, says:

There is a simpler solution of the present difficulty and restoration of cordial relations between England and America than any I have suggested.

Why should not Lord Salisbury attach to the Bering sea arbitration treaty, which is about to be returned to the American government, a clause providing for the arbitration of all pending questions, and even of all future ones? Besides Venezuela and Canada there are the Alaska boundary, the eastern fisheries, and other questions causing discord. If he does this I am able to state that the administration will accept with pleasure the treaty so altered. This is a method of accomplishing everything with perfect honor and dignity to both parties.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—In an editorial Monday the Standard says that the communications it publishes relative to the attitude to Germany and the Transvaal and the publication of the papers on the Venezuelan difficulty are all authoritative. It adds:

Urged by friendly public opinion in the United States to place before the world as soon as may be the British case as regards the controversy with Venezuela, the cabinet on Saturday decided to respond to this amicable invitation by publishing the material documents in its possession bearing thereon. Of far more interest to the English people than the problems to be faced in South Africa or the relations of this country with any other power are its relations with the United States, and we gladly take the opportunity of bearing testimony to the magnanimous attitude of the Americans toward us at a moment when a community less generous thought apparently that a favorable opportunity had arisen for adopting toward us a tone of insult, if not of menace. Instead of taking advantage of the augmentation of our anxieties and the temporary multiplication of our events, the American, with a spirit that does him honor and which is appreciated by us, have not only abstained from endeavoring to add to our perplexities, but, where they did not actually offer us their sympathy, they have maintained an honorable, courteous reserve. That is conduct worthy of them, and it has not unnaturally inspired the English government with a desire to meet our kinsfolk across the Atlantic in a friendly spirit. Lord Salisbury, as we announced before, has decided not to wait for a meeting of parliament, but will publish as soon as they can be got ready all the documents in his possession bearing upon the disputed boundary between British Guiana and Venezuela. As we have said, the attitude of the people of the United States during the past week has materially influenced the prime minister's decision, just as it has quickened the feeling of friendship entertained by Englishmen for those who speak their tongue and share their literature on the other side of the ocean. The maintenance of friendly relations with the United States must always be a consideration of the first importance for Great Britain. We say this to the American people with the absolute candor of deep seated cordiality.

The foregoing article is leaded throughout and is evidently inspired by the government.

Hunter Chosen by the Republican Caucus

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 13.—The joint caucus of the republican members of the general assembly Saturday afternoon nominated W. Godfrey Hunter, of Cumberland county, to succeed Senator Blackburn. The opposition to him gave up the fight early Saturday morning, Congressman Evans returning to Washington, and Judge Holt and Hon. A. E. Wilson following later in the day in their determination not to go before the caucus.

To Hurry Up Gold Coinage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Director Preston, of the treasury, has gone to Philadelphia to hurry up gold coinage there. The heavy gold exports of the past few weeks has made inroads on the government supply at New York and it will be part of Director Preston's business in Philadelphia to send gold to New York. A heavy shipment of gold to New York for the Philadelphia mint will be made during the coming week.

Several Americans Arrested at Johannesburg.

PRETORIA, Jan. 13.—Among the persons arrested at Johannesburg are J. S. Curtis, an American engineer, and several other Americans whose names are not given in the dispatches from there. The government has obtained a temporary interdict against the transfer of bank balances and real property.

Ten Million Dollars Involved.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 13.—Charles Franklin, O. S. Gage, W. W. Johnson, John D. Caneus, N. Henry and other New York gentlemen were here Sunday en route to Versailles Ky., where the annual meeting of the Playa de Oro Mining Co., of Ecuador, representing $10,000,000, will be held Monday.

The president of the company, Wm. H. Young, of New York, and about fifteen others, arrived on a late train Sunday night, and all were met by a number of Louisville gentlemen interested in the gold mines being operated under Kentucky laws.

Fast Horses to Be Sold.

RICHMOND, Ind., Jan. 13.—John S. Lackey, of Cambridge City, has flattering prospects for his ninth annual combination horse sale, which occurs the first part of March. Many breeders of prominence have signified their intention of consigning horses, and some good ones have already been listed. Among them are Ross, 2:18¼, a full brother to Jane, 2:08¾, by Mikeagan, sire of Frankagan, 2:25¼; Katie Spencer, 2:37¼; Mollie Gibson, 2:19½; Allie Wilkes, 2:13¼, by Petosky, and Major Ross, 2:16¼, by Indiana's leading sire of the year, Anteros.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The house was in session a few minutes on Monday. No business of interest transacted. There was no public reference to call for bids for $100,000,000 four per cent. bonds. Unanimous consent was asked by Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) to have Mr. Clarence E. Allen sworn in as representative from Utah. That state, he said, had been admitted into the union last Saturday and Mr. Allen had credentials signed by the governor and secretary of state, though not in their official capacity, as they were only to be sworn in Monday. Objection was made by Mr. Crisp (dem., Ga.), and the matter was referred to the judiciary committee with leave to report at any time. Mr. Hitt (rep., Ill.) offered a joint resolution appointing William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, a member of the board of regents of the Smithsonian institution in place of Henry Copp, deceased: passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The finance committee substitute for the house bond bill was reported in the senate Tuesday by Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) and was placed on the calendar. A plan for making the proposed loan a really popular one was suggested by Mr. Chandler (rep., N. H.) in the shape of a postal savings system. At the request of Mr. Elkins (rep., W. Va.), his resolution requiring United States bonds to be issued after public advertisement, was referred to the finance committee. Mr. Turpie (Dem., Ind.) introduced a bill increasing pensions for total deafness from $20 to $40 per month, and made an appeal in favor of the proposition. Referred. At 4:20 the senate adjourned until Wednesday.

HOUSE—A unanimous report from the committee on judiciary was made by Mr. Broderick (rep., Kan.) that no doubt existed of the election of Mr. Allen as a representative from Utah, and in accordance therewith Mr. Allen was sworn in as a member of the house. Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.) reported from the committee on judiciary its unanimous substitute for a resolution introduced by Representative Hubbard regarding the enforcement of the anti-trust law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—SENATE—The session of the senate Wednesday occupied less than an hour, the rest of the afternoon being given to the senators to agree upon a line of action on the tariff bill. The only incidents of note during the 50 minutes of session were these: The swearing in of Senator Wolcott (rep., Col.) for his new term; the reporting of an important bill from the committee on naval affairs for the enlistment of additional men for the navy, and the notice by Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.) of an amendment to the house bill with the free coinage substitute. The amendments propose to prohibit the issue of United States bonds without the authority of congress, and to require the payment of greenbacks, treasury notes and the interest and principal of bonds in either gold or silver, but in the cheaper of either metal. The adjournment was until Thursday.

HOUSE—The house celebrated the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans, known as Jackson Day, by remaining in session but 40 minutes. Half that time was occupied in the reading of the journal. In the other 20 minutes several unimportant routine matters were considered and a joint resolution offered by Mr. Spalding (rep., Mich.) was read and referred to the committee on foreign affairs, looking to the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—SENATE—The house bond bill, with the free coinage substitute for it reported from the committee on finance, was to have engaged the attention of the senate Thursday, but a half hour's speech by Mr. Baker (rep., Kan.) in favor of an application of the Monroe doctrine and an hour and three-quarters' speech by Mr. Stewart (pop., Nev.) on the financial question prevented the taking up of the bond bill until so late an hour that Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) preferred to withhold his opening speech upon it till Friday. Mr. Vilas (dem., Wis.) introduced a bill, which was referred to the judiciary committee, withdrawing from the supreme court of the United States jurisdiction of criminal cases not capital and transfer them to the United States court of appeals.

HOUSE—Mr. Blue (rep., Kan.) reported the general pension appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1897, and gave notice that he would call it up after the report of the committee on rules had been disposed of. A resolution offered by Mr. Bingham (rep., Pa.) and approved by the committee on appropriations, was agreed to, calling upon the secretary of the treasury for a statement of the reasons for the delay in the construction of the mint building at Philadelphia. A number of private bills were introduced. After a session of 25 minutes the house adjourned until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—SENATE—There were three set speeches delivered in the senate Friday on as many different subjects, and they occupied practically the whole of the four hours that the session lasted. They were made by the republican senator from North Carolina, Mr. Pritchard, and by the two democratic senators from California and Arkansas—Messrs. White and Jones. Mr. Pritchard's speech (his maiden one) was in favor of a higher protective tariff.

HOUSE—The discussion of the amendments proposed to be made to the rules of the house by the committee on rules, upon which the house entered Friday, for a time apparently threatened to extend over a week's session. But it was only a diversion. Mr. Hepburn (rep., Ia.) proposed an amendment making it obligatory upon the speaker to recognize a member who addresses him in accordance with the rule, and said that the prevailing practice smacked too much of the schoolmaster in the chair of the house. The motion was antagonized by Mr. Henderson (rep., Ia.), in charge of the committee report, on the ground that no other custom was practicable than that which obtained of permitting the speaker to determine who should be recognized and who should not. The discussion was prolonged until 4:45, when the house adjourned until Saturday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—SENATE.—Senate not in session Saturday.

HOUSE—The house Saturday finished consideration of the code of rules reported from the committee on rules with the exception of the one with relation to the counting, which went over by request of Mr. Henderson (Rep., Ia.). Every change recommended by the committee was agreed to and no proposition originating on the floor was accepted. The committee amendments were agreed to as follows: "Making it possible to change the rules without previous notice: regulating the privilege of the floor granted to the representatives of the press associations and striking out the regulation governing the printing of documents that have been covered in the new printing law." The most entertaining part of the day's discussion was evoked by an amendment proposed by Mr. Curtis (rep., N. Y.), which had to do with eulogies upon deceased members. It was advocated by a number of members, but failed of adoption by a vote of 34 to 130. Mr. Wagner (rep., Pa.) endeavored to secure a re-enactment of the rule of the Fifty-third congress, giving the privilege of the lobby in the rear of the hall to newspaper men, but secured only 17 votes in support of his motion. The vote, being short of a majority, gave an opportunity for the speaker to count a quorum for the first time in this congress. There were 190 gentlemen in their seats, and the speaker announced that a quorum was present to do business. At 3:45 o'clock the house adjourned until Monday.

THE Indiana Republicans are having a considerable trouble just now. A dispatch from Indianapolis says: One of the arguments put forth in favor of the re-election of John K. Gowdy as chairman of the Republican state committee is that he saved $10,000 of the campaign money collected last year. J. B. Homan member of the campaign committee, who is opposed to Gowdy, makes a public statement to the effect that Mr. Gowdy not only did not save $10,000, but he run the committee $2,000 in debt. Two members of the campaign committee, Mr. Homan says, only a few days ago gave their note for the debt. The committee, he says, is not able to pay its rent. The contest over the chairmanship is becoming so bitter that many committee secrets are being related by one side or the other. The impression that both Gowdy and Nebeker will be dropped and a new man taken up and elected is growing. J. N. Huston, ex-treasurer of the United States will probably be the man if the newly suggested plan is followed.

LATER developments indicate that Speaker Blanford is endeavoring to forestall the election of a Democratic Senator by calling an election to fill the vacancy in the House, caused by the death of the Nelson county member, at such a late date that the new member, who is sure to be a Democrat, will not be able to qualify in time to have a vote in the joint ballot. This piece of trickery, on the part of the speaker, can be headed off by the Senate, which is Democratic, and under such circumstances any means to which it may resort will be justifiable. If there were a full representation in the House the Democrats ought to stand up and take their medioine, but when the presiding officer of the House becomes a party to a scheme to prevent them having a fair show, then the Democratic Senate is justifiable in preventing an election of a United States Senator at this session.

SINCE the date of our Frankfort letter the two caucuses have been held at Frankfort, and it developed that nobody was in the Senatorial fight except Blackburn on the Democratic side and Hunter on the Republican side. In the Democratic caucus Gov. Brown and Congressman McCreary were each voted for, Brown receiving six and McCreary 13 and Blackburn, 37 votes. Twelve of the members claiming to be Democrats and who were elected by Democratic votes refused to submit to party organization and remained out of the caucus. Before the Republican caucus met last Saturday, it was apparent to all that Dr. Hunter had a cinch on the nomination and those who were candidates against him refused to allow their names to go before the caucus. The fun has now really begun at Frankfort, and will be kept up for several weeks at least.

Mr. Will Skillman has had sore eyes for years. He has tried many doctors and remedies, and has always failed to get relief until we sold him a tube of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve, which cured him inside of one week. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey sells well and cures. Respectfully. Meyer & Co., Buras. Ky.—January 15, 1895.

Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve has done a great deal more for me than can be told by pen. W. H. Skillman, Buras, Ky.—For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington, and T. B. Castleman, Florence, Buchan & Co. Petersburg, O. N. Grant, Grant.

THE following representatives and Senators from this Congressional District voted for Blackburn in the caucus: Senator Brown, Representative Daugherty, J. G. Furnish, Graziana, Pence, Coleman. B. F. Furnish, of Gallatin, voted for McCreary. Senator Goebel voted for Gov Brown, and Senator Elliston, of Grant played "hookey."

THE news reached Lexington last Saturday that Judge Denny had been given Hon. W. C. Owens' seat in Congress, and straightway some of the Republicans began to jollify, but tho news was not correct.

THE Iowa Republicans are becoming very enthusiastic in favor of their candidate, Senator Allison, for President. Thoy claim that he is the only Republican who exactly fits the demands of the times.

THEY do say that Gus. Wilson, of Louisville, is very much out of humor just now. He thinks he has been treated very badly by his party and he has pretty good grounds upon which to base his belief.

WHEN Dr. Hunter ordered Speaker Blanford to go slow on calling that election, he obeyed and went slow—very much slower than the circumstances justified.

ISAAC WILSON, representative from Nelson county, did not live to get to vote for Blackburn for Senator. He died last Saturday.

THE present Congress is just about in the condition of the last—unable to do any legislation for the benefit of the country.

HON. J. G. FURNISH has been assigned to the following committees: Proposition and grievances, claims, public health.

MR. HARRISON refuses to be interviwed in regard to his matrimonial enterprise, which it is said will culminate in a wedding in the near future.

SENATOR VEST quoted Mr. Carlisle pretty freely in his silver speech last week. Vest and Carlisle use to pull together on the silver side of the money question.

THAT address issued by those twelve so-called Democrats who refused to enter the Democratic Senatorial caucus at Frankfort, last week, reads very much like the production of men who went to the aid of W. O. Bradley last fall.

THE citizens of Marion county are very indignant over the report that they are not willing to assist in ferreting out the murderers of the man West and the woman Dever. Marion people are anxious that the assassins be captured and punished.

IT will not be necessary for the Democrats of this State to hold State conventions hereafter. Let the State Central Committee call together those twelve Democratic legislators who issued an address to the party last week, and let them name candidates and provide a platform for them to stand on.

The way to curo a cough is to stop the coughing. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey cuts loose the mucous, heals the lungs and bronchial tubes quickly. Cures grip cough in one night. Guaranteed by all dealers. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington, and T. B. Castleman, Florence, Buchanan & Co., Petersburg, O N. Grant, Grant, Ky.

GOV. BRADLEY's message is a long document, plain in style, and full ot recommendations, many of which aro for the best interests of the State. Should a legislature attempt to carry out the recommendations the message contains, it would require at least a twelve months' session, at the conclusion of which the State would have received a thorough shaking up, and left in a demoralized condition. The Governor has bitten off more than the legislature will be able to chew.

THE Frankfort correspondent of the Louisville Commercial, a simon pure Republican sheet tells how the administration patronage is being used at Frankfort to assist Dr. Hunter in securing the nomination for Senator. The correspondent writes: "Senator DeBoe was put out of the way by the promise of the Eddyville penitentiary wardenship to J. H. Happy, by which all of DeBoe's votes were taken from him. DeBoe feels very badly and says that he would not have believed that Finley and Taylor would cut him down when, as he says, he brought to them the votes that nominated them. But Dr. Hunter got the votes just the same."

FRANKFORT LETTER.

FRANKFORT, Jan'y 10th; 1896.

The Legislature is now here, and a busier body of men seldom gets together. The members are not so busy looking after the interests of their constituents as they are in looking after the interests of their favorite candidate for United States Senator. This session will amount to but little in the way of legislation, as tho members are so thoroughly absorbed by the Senatorial fight as to render them almost worthless in a legislative capacity.

It took but a short time to organize the two Houses, the Senate electing Democratic officers, while the Republicans chose the House officers. Senator Goebel, of Covington was reelected President of the Senate. Gov. Bradley was not ready with his messago to the surprise of many. The Governor had been compelled to devote much of his valuable time entertaining the army of office seekers by which he has been pursued ever since his election, and, as a result he was behind with his message but the indefatigable office-seeker had to receive attention, even at the risk of interrupting tho work of the legislature.

Dr. Hunter came to the Capital decidedly the strongest Republican Senatorial candidate, and from the start it has been Hunter against the field, but the opposition to him has been unable to unite on any one of his several opponents. If Hunter is elected United States Senator it is claimed he will at once become the boss of the Republican party in Kentucky, and the present bosses and their cohorts will resort to almost anything rather than to be dethroned by the sagacious Hunter and his lieutenants. Hunter got the pole and is holding it.

The fight for State Librarian caused considerable ill felling among the Republicans, and some of the candidates became alarmed for fear that the race would injure their chances.

Todd Hall who is known as the great "Democratic harmonizer" could not pull down an office, although, at this time, his services are needed by the Democrats worse than at any past session.

The Republicans got into a pretty bad tangle over the election of a Librarian. In the caucus the race was narrowed down to Miss Wilson of Grant county, and Mrs. Shelton, of Adair. Mrs. Shelton was declared the nominee but Miss Wilson's friends could not see it that way, and an investigation of the tally sheets disclosed the fact that the vote was a tie, and a second caucus was called. Some of Miss Wilson's friends were very indignant over the matter, but it is generally regarded as a clerical error.

McCreary and Blackburn are the only Democratic candidates for Senate, at present, but an effort is being made to get Ex-Gov. Brown on the track as a compromise candidate. [illegible] Some of the Brown admirers [illegible] that beside the full Democratic vote he will get two or three Republicans, a claim that it will require the actual votes to substantiate.

Cero Gordo Williams came over last week to help push Blackburn along to victory. He and Blackburn had a long, hard fight when the General asked the legislature to return him to the Senate, 12 years ago, Blackburn winning the prize.

If Blackburn and McCreary each get all the votes they are now claiming, there will be but a few over 50 left to divide among the candidates of the other party.

Representative Wilson, of Nelson county, was brought here on a sick bed, and may never be able to leave it. He is a Blackburn man and will be carried to the hall on his couch to cast his vote for Senator Blackburn in the joint ballot. He has been told by his physician that he may die any day, and he only asks that he may be allowed to live long enough to vote for Blackburn.

It is claimed by some of the opponents of Dr. Hunter that the patronage of the State administration has been placed at his disposal and that he will use it to the best advantage in his race. The Hunter opposition is kicking against the attitude of the State officials and Republicans are not dwelling together in brotherly love as they were a month ago.

Tho second caucus for Librarian resulted in the nomination of Mrs. Shelton by 36 votes to Miss Wilson's 31. There was considerable excitement during the voting.

In selecting the committees on contested elections the Democrats got the majority of one committee while the Republicans got a majority of the other. These committees were selected by lot.

Hunter and Blackburn have been in the lead for Senatorial honors all the time, a fact plainly to be seen by all who wanted to see the facts as they have really existed.

The Governor's message was read to both Houses Friday. It is not considered an intensely able State paper.

VENEZUELA.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The question uppermost in the minds of the American people today is the message of President Cleveland to Congress on the Venezuelan boundary question. Whatever differences may exist among the American people on the various issues of the day, they are of one mind as to the expediency of standing by what is known as the Monroe Doctrine.

In order to fully understand this vexing question and the relation the Monroe Doctrine bears to it, we will have to combine a little geography, history and politics.

Venezuela is one of the nine republics of South America, lying in the extreme north. It is nearly cleven times as large as Kentucky, containing 439,233 square miles, while Kentucky has only 40,400.

The population in Venezuela in 1880, was 2,075,245, while that of Kentucky, according to the census of the United States, in that year, was 1,648,690.

Venezuela is bounded on the west by British Guyana, and this border is the disputed line that is interesting the whole world to-day.

British Guyana is more than twice as large as Kentucky, containing 85,422 square miles (at least that was the amount of territory she claimed in 1880). Her population at that time was 252,186.

Now, as to the history of this boundary dispute. We find that in the early part of the 17th century all of the northern part of South America was in possession of Spain. In 1648, at the close of a war between Spain and Holland, several contiguous provinces, (the most easterly being Essequibo), were ceded to Holland. This province is now known as Guyana (in three divisions—British, Dutch and French.)

The western border of Essequibo was considered at the time to be the Essequibo river. In 1814 Holland transfered this province to England. Since Holland had no claim west of the Essequibo river she could not cede to England any land west of that river. That the Dutch claimed nothing west of it is shown by a treaty of 1791, which designates that stream as the dividing line between Essequibo (now Guyana) and the Spanish provinces to the west.

In 1822 the inhabitants of the Spanish provinces west of the Essequibo river revolted against Spain and established the Venezuelan Republic, which government succeeded to whatever land titles had been held by Spain. Ever since the establishment of this Republic, England has been encroaching upon its territory.

In 1841 England sent Sir Robert Schomburg to establish the boundary line. The result of his survey was the establishment of a border line west of the Essequibo river and parallel with it, cutting off from the Venezuelan territory a body of land almost equal in size to the State of Kentucky.

The inhabitants of Venezuela became very indignant over this encroachment upon her territory, and the enormity of the steal was so great that even England would not avail herself of it at the time; but ordered the survey marks to bo removed, leaving the impression upon the minds of the Venezuelans that she would not occupy the territory included by the Schomburg survey. But tho impression proved to be a false one, for in 1844 she had another line run, known as the Aberdeen line, which placed the English claim still farther into the confines of Venezuela.

Venezula has time and again appealed to Great Britian to settle tho matter by arbitration, but each appeal is answered by a claim of more territory.

In 1881 England had a third line run, cutting off another large slice from Venezuela.

The present claim of England far exceeds any claim she has heretofore made. It is almost double any former claim. It extends in a circular form so as to include a rich gold mine that has been discovered in Venezueal.

In answer to the last appeal for arbitration, on the part of Venezuela, Lord Salisbury, England's Prime Minister, replies: "You are not strong enough to recover your claim by force of arms, and we will not give you a chance to recover it by arbitration, for we will not agree to arbitrate unless you renounce, before hand, all we desire of your claim."

In other words England is willing to arbitrate provided Venezuola will agree, before hand, to allow England to change the boundary line to be established by arbitration, to any position she may desire afterwards.

What a generous proposition on the part of mighty England. She knew that it would not be accepted, and thought by puting off tho settlement of this boundary dispute, she would, in time, reach out her greedy arm and take in the whole territory belonging to the little Republic. England thought that President Cleveland—as other Presidents of the United States have done, would steer clear and look indifferently upon her quarrel with Venezuela. But to the surprise of the whole world, Mr. Cleveland stepped over the line fence, and shook the "Monroe Doctrine" in England's face, ordering her to get off of his little sister's land, or prove, by arbitration, that it is hers and she has a right to be there.

During the administration of President Monroe, Mexico and five of the South American Republics had revolted against Spanish rule, and after a severe struggle had gained their independence.

In recognizing them as independent States, President Monroe announced this principle of his foreign policy: "The American Continents, by the free and independent position which they have assumed and maintained, aro not to be considered as subject to future colonization by any foreign power." He amplify's his policy by further declaring, that the United States would consider any attempt on the part of any European power to extend its system of government to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power, on the American Continent, we have not interfered nor will not interfere. But with the American Republics who havo declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have acknowledged, we will consider any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them by any European power as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition towards the United States."

In 1822 Venezuela threw off the yoke of Spanish rule and declared her independence, gaining all the territory belonging to Spain west of the Essequibo river. England, who owned the land east of this river, began in a short time, to dispute the border line and has kept it up ever since. She has taken possession and established her authority over a large portion of Venezuela's territory, and refuses to have the dispute settled by peaceable means.

Mr. Cleveland applies tho policy adopted by his government 72 years ago, to this particular case, and informs England that she must arbitrate this disputed line and cease her encroachments upon Venezuela possessions.

In taking this step Mr. Cleveland has not only gained the admiration and indorsement of every true American, but has inscribed his name and fame upon the brightest page of America's history.

STATE NEWS.

The Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville has 284 students.

The deacons of the First Baptist church at Paducah all got mad and resigned in a body because their management of the church had been criticised.

Hiram McFarland, a prominent farmer, was killed in a drunken brawl at Salyersville. Hon. Jack Arnett, a prominent politician and ex-member of the Kentucky Legislature, is in jail, charged with committing the deed.

The religious census of Winchester has been completed. There are 441 Baptists, 803 Christians, 162 Cumberland Presbyterians, 45 Episcopalians, 233 Catholics, 29 Jews; seven are put down in the miscellaneous column, while 164 expressed no preference.

The Winchester Democrat says: "As an example of the inter-marrying in the mountains, and of the little flesh blood introduced into that section, it is said of a certain school district in Wolfe county, which has seventy-nine pupils that every one is a cousin to all the rest, and the teacher is a cousin to all the children."

Robert Sandford encountered a would-be man-eater the other night near the point of Rocks. After an exciting chase he landed in home a winner by two lengths. Bob said it looked like a wild cat or a Canadian lynx, he could not tell exactly which. There surely can't be any mistake, as Louis Ransdell ran it from the river to town a few nights ago—Louis being in the lead.—Owen News.

Mary Bramble, a seven months old baby, was under arrest at Owingsville last week, charged with breath of the peace. Her parents had [illegible] before, [illegible] her father, went to the pla[illegible] where his wife was living and kidnapped the baby, and it seems that the only proceedings by which Bramble and the baby could both be gotten into court was by charging them with breach of the peace. This is probably the only case on record where a child so young was arrested.

The Legislature received a report from the President of the Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Company, which, under the law, is made to the General Assembly every two years. Receipts of bridge company in 1894 aggregated $106,478,96, while the expenses only amounted to $39,366,09. The dividends amounted to $60,000,50. In 1895 tolls were $106,157 and expenses $41,322,44. Dividends paid were $60,005. Receipts referred to committee on revenue and taxation.

A Danville (Ky.) dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, says; "Washington Richardson, a well-to-do farmer, 65 years old, living in Pulaski County, three miles from Summerset, is laboring under the firm and sincere belief that his earthly career is to be terminated by death on the 15th day of this month. He maintains that the fact has been communicated to him on more than one occasion within the past year. He has had his lands surveyed and allotted to each of his children tho portion he wants them to have. He has also made a will disposing of all other property and money among his children, and has invited all of them to spend the day and night of tho 15th with him in order that they may be present at the parting. Mr. Richardson was never in better health than he is enjoying now."

After several days of consultation the county court and the bondsmen of ex-Sheriff Shepard came to an agreement as to the settlement of the shortage. After deducting the interest and delinquent polls the net amount due the county was approximately $4,175. However, the bondsmen claimed that there was at least $1,500 of uncollected taxes and that they would turn over the books to the county. They then made a proposition to pay $500 each, or $2,500 in all, if the county would release them. After consultation the magistrates fixed on $700 each. They then split the difference rather than go into an expensive litigation, and $600 each, or $3,000, was the amount fixed. This is to be paid in ten days or suit will be brought for the whole amount. The sureties are J. E. Jett, Wm. Jenkins, Samuel Dunaway, R. O. Coghill and J. Ed. Grobmyer.—Carroll News.

Uncle Bose Mason, a farmer living near Hammon's Mill, in this county, was robbed by three masked men at his homo Monday night of $4,815. Ho is a very peculiar man and would never deposit his money in banks, keeping it in his house in a little stand-table. On the night mentioned, about 12 o'clock the robbers tied all the doors, but one, and commenced operations by shooting through the door several times and followed it up by smashing in the door. Entering, they kept up the indiscriminate shooting, which paralyzed tho members of the family and before they recognized the meaning of the terrible fusilade the robbers grabbed the table and were gone. They were tracked about ½ mile from the house where the remains of the table was found. The money consisted of $1,500 in gold and the rest in paper money. So far, there is no clue to the perpetrators of tho crime.—Owen News.

Louisville Post: If a man can ride through the counties of Carroll and Gallatin, and ask to be directed to any point more than fivo miles off without being told to take the "old Boono road," the one asked is himself a stranger. This has been the source of much amusement to travelers who are not easily discomfitted while it is annoying to others who know as little of tho "Boone roads" as Goliah knew of slings. A great amount of conjecture has been indulged in as to the probable origin of the application. It has been oven suggested by those unfamiliar with State history that it received its name from Daniel Boone having made a trace from somewhere to Big Bone Lick. Such is not true. It got its name nearly a century ago from the county in which it terminates. After the Legislature of 1798 had formed the counties of Boone, Henry and Gallatin a successful effort was made to connect by road the Boone county settlements of Big Bono and Independence with the three largest towns to the southward, Shelbyville and on either side Frankfort and Louisville. The most feasiblo plan was no doubt to get a road through to New Castle from which place there was already ono to Shelbyville, and from which orders had already been given to cut others to Frankfort and Westport, then in Henry. The Commissioners, who, in 1799, viewed the road from New Castle to Independence, was William Samuel, afterward Gallatin's Representativo in 1801, and first Judge of Trimble county and its formation in 1832; associated with him were David Owen, Representative from Gallatin in 1814-15, and two others.

COUNTY NEWS.

Mr. W. A. Carpenter, [illegible] died on the [illegible] year. He had been in feeble health for a long time, heart disease being the trouble. He was a member of the Lutheran Church at Hopeful, and also of Venus Lodge of Odd-Fellows at Florence. The funeral sermon, a most appropriate discourse, full of consolation for the family and friends of the deceased, was preached by Rev. H. M. Lentz, at Hopeful, last Saturday at 11 o'clock. At the conclusion of the religious exercises, the Odd-Fellows took charge of the remains, and having performed their burial ceremony proceeded to deposit them in their last earthly resting place in Hopeful Cemetery. W. A. Carpenter was a courteous, pleasant gentleman and the number of his friends was limited only by the number of his acquaintances. A good man has gone to rest.

As Mrs. W. E. Vest and Miss Elln Duncan were going to Erlanger, one morning last week, the horse attached to their buggy scared near Elder E. Stephens', and shied off the road, turning the buggy over. The horse ran some little distance, when Miss Ella, who was doing the driving, succeeded in stopping him, after which she and Mrs. Vest got out of the buggy. Some men came to their assistance and righted the vehicle and got it and the horse back on the road. It was owing to Miss Ella's skill as a driver that she and Mrs. Vest were not seriously hurt. They were very fortunate in escaping with only a few bruises.

Esquire Green has been a Justice of the Peace continuously in this county for 41 years, a longer period than anyother man ever held an office in this county. 'Squire Bannister stands next to Esq. Green in the point of service, while each of the other members had been Justices of the Peace previous to their last election.

An advertisement for bids for carrying the mail twice a day from Erlanger to Burlington for four years, commencing July 1, 1896, is posted at the post-office. Our advice to those who have a notion to bid is to consider the matter well before sending in a bid. The mail between these two points has been carried at about half price for several years, just because somebody did not intend to be underbid. Bid what it is worth to do the work.

I desire to thank all my friends and patrons for their past favors and solicit a continuance of the same, and take this method of informing the public that I will be found, from now on, at my shop in Bellevue on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week. FISCAL COURT.

The Fiscal Court was in session two day's last week, Judge Stephens presiding and all the Justices present.

It was at the January session that the County Infirmary and the pauper practice in the county are let out and a settlement made with the Sheriff in order to ascertain the expenses of the county for the past year, and to obtain a basis upon which to calculate expenses for the present year.

The cost of keeping the County Infirmary last year, including Superintendent Blyth's salary, was $1,804 85 with an average of 29½ inmates. He was employed to keep the institution again this year, on the same terms he kept it last year. During the session of the court the Infirmary was visited by the County Judge and the Justices, and they were very much pleased at the neat condition in which they found everything, and came away praising Mr. Blyth as Superintendent.

The pauper practice through the county was let out by voting precincts at the same price as last year, except the Beaver precinct which will cost $5 less this year.

J. M. Lassing made a report in regard to the delinquent poll tax list allowed the Sheriff last year, and of which he had been superintending the collection. The amount collected and paid over to the court after paying all costs of collection was $304, an amount much larger than ever before realized by the county from that source, and Mr Lassing prides himself on having, on his first attempt, collected from a source heretofore of but exceedingly little value to the county, enough to almost pay his salary for last year.

The salaries of the County Judge and County Attorney were fixed at $400 for this year. The salary of the County Superintendent of schools was the next considered and reduced from $500 to $400. Supt Voshell was not present, and a motion to reconsider the order fixing his salary prevailed, and the matter was continued until the April term, when doubtless Mr. Voshell will be on hand to show why his salary should not be reduced.

The Court allowed the Sheriff 621 white and 122 colored delinquents.

A property tax of 5 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property was levied for county purposes

J. M. Lassing was appointed a committee to have the court house rodded.

The delinquent list was placed in the hands of the County Judge and County Attorney to have collected.

Ordered by the Court that Benjamin Stephens and J. M. Lassing be appointed a committee to confer with Owen B. Utz in regard to complying with the conditions of his contract in roofing the Infirmary, and upon his failure to do so they will proceed against him on his bond.

There is too much politics at Frankfort for any work of consequence by the legislature this winter. The action of Speaker Blanford in regard to calling the special election in Nelson county is an outrage, and has angered the Democrats intensely. The state of feeling now existing at Frankfort will retard the labor of the General Assembly, and the session will amount to nothing.

Effective Dec. 28th—Queen & Crescent limited train No. 1, leaving Cincinnati at 8:00 a. m., will stop at Georgetown and make close connection with Kentucky Midland for Frankfort.

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

After a rest of two weeks the tobacco trade opened upon Tuesday with very light offerings, the sellers preferring to see the market established before they made large offerings, and also to see the result of the new inspections, that went into operation.

Prices were not as strong as we expected them to be, especially for the low and medium grades, but the fine qualities showed some strength and a good demand.

On Wednesday the offerings were some larger and the market continued at about Tuesday's prices but less rejections.

On Thursday offerings continued about the same, but it was thought that prices were some higher, and while the offerings were mostly accepted, they were of the lower grades.

The market closed on Friday with light sales, and to take the week as a whole it can not be termed a very satisfactory one, either in offerings or prices. It was the opening week and some of our large buyers are not here, and others are waiting for their manufacturers to get through taking their invoice and get into running order again, and we expect the coming week will be a much more favorable one than the past

There is considerable new tobacco coming to market, but the quality is so inferior that the prices obtained are low, though full value for the quality. We think some good tobacco could be sold at good figures. The report from the country, where some purchaes are being made, are not favorable for any profit to the buyer, and it would be better for the country speculator to take a more careful and conservative view of the situation before being too hasty in buying. There are a great many obstacles in the road this year that have to be overcome, and we consider it a good year to keep close to shore.

The new Inspectors the past week have shown themselves to be fully capable of handling the breaks with a careful and close inspection, and we think the present mode will prove very satisfactory to sellers and buyers, and still retain its high standard.

UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM
C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1600 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

IN ARMENIA.

Massacre No Crime When the Helpless Victims Are Christians.

It is Approved by All Moslems and Rewarded by the Sultan and His Officers —Rev. Talmage's Sermon on the Recent Outrages by the Turks.

It was appropriate that in the presence of the chief men of this nation and other nations Dr. Talmage should tell the story of Armenian massacre. What will be the extent for good of such a discourse none can tell. The text was II. Kings, xix. 37: "They escaped into the land of Armenia."

In Bible geography this is the first time that Armenia appears, called then by the same name as now. Armenia is chiefly a tableland, 7,000 feet above the level of the sea, and on one of its peaks Noah's ark landed, with its human family and fauna that were to fill the earth. That region was the birth place of the rivers which fertilized the Garden of Eden when Adam and Eve lived there, their only roof the crystal skies, and their carpet the emerald of rich grass. Its inhabitants, the ethnologists tell us, are a superior type of the Caucasian race. Their religion is founded on the Bible. Their Saviour is our Christ. Their crime is that they will not become followers of Mohammed, that Jupiter of sensuality. To drive them from the face of the earth is the ambition of all Mohammedans.

To accomplish this murder is no crime, and wholesale massacre is a matter of enthusiastic approbation and governmental reward. The prayers sanctioned by highest Mohammedan authority, and recited every day throughout Turkey and Egypt, while styling all those not Mohammedans as infidels, is as follows: "O Lord of all creatures! O Allah! Destroy the Infidels and Polytheists, thine enemies, the enemies of the religion! O Allah! Make their children orphans and defile their bodies; cause their feet to slip; give them and their families, and their households, and their women, and their children and their relatives by marriage, their brothers and their friends, their possessions and the race, their wealth and their lands as booty to the Moslems, O Lord of all creatures!" The life of an Armenian in the presence of those who make that prayer is of no more value than the life of a summer insect. The sultan of Turkey sits on a throne impersonating that brigandage and assassination. At this time all civilized nations are in horror at the attempts of that Mohammedan government to destroy all the Christians of Armenia. I hear somebody talking as though some new thing were happening, and that the Turkish government had taken a new role of tragedy on the stage of nations. No, no! She is at the same old business. Overlooking her diabolism of other centuries, we come down to our century to find that in 1822 the Turkish government slew 50,000 anti-Moslems, and in 1850 she slew 10,000, and in 1860 she slew 11,000, and in 1876 she slew 10,000. Anything short of the slaughter of thousands of human beings does not put enough red wine into her cup of abomination to make it worth quaffing. Nor is this the only time she has promised to reform. In the presence of warships at the mouth of the Dardanelles, she has promised the civilized nations of the earth that she would stop her butcheries, and the international and hemispheric farce has been enacted of believing what she says, when all the past ought to persuade us that she is only pausing in her atrocities to put nations off the track and then resume the work of death. In 1820 Turkey, in treaty with Russia, promised to alleviate the condition of Christians, but the promise was broken. In 1839 the then sultan promised protection for life and property without reference to religion, and the promise was broken. In 1844, at the demand of an English minister plenipotentiary, the sultan declared, after the public execution of an Armenian at Constantinople, and that no such death penalty should again be inflicted, and the promise was broken. In 1850, at the demand of foreign nations, the Turkish government promised protection to Protestants, but to this day the Protestants at Stamboul are not allowed to build a church, although they have the funds ready, and the Greek Protestants, who have a church, are not permitted to worship in it. In 1856, after the Crimean war, Turkey promised that no one should be hindered in the exercise of the religion he professed, and that promise has been broken. In 1878, at the memorable treaty of Berlin, Turkey promised religious liberty to all her subjects in every part of the Ottoman empire, and the promise was broken. Not once in all the centuries has the Turkish government kept her promise of mercy. So far from any improvement, the condition of the Armenians has become worse and worse year by year and all the promises the Turkish government now makes are only a gaining of time by which she is making preparation for the complete extermination of Christianity from her borders.

Why, after all the national and continental and hemispheric lying on the part of the Turkish government, do not the warships of Europe ride up as close as is possible to the palaces of Constantinople and blow that accursed government to atoms? In the name of the Eternal God, let the nuisance of the ages be wiped off the face of the earth! Down to the perdition from which it smoked up, sink Mohammedanism! Between these outbreaks of massacre the Armenians suffer in silence wrongs that are seldom if ever reported. They are taxed heavily for the mere privilege of living, and the tax is called "the humiliation tax." They are compelled to give three days' entertainment to any Mohammedan tramp who may be passing that way. They must pay blackmail to the assessor, lest he report the value of their property too highly. Their evidence in court is of no worth, and if 50 Armenians saw a wrong committed and one Mohammedan was present, the testimony of the one Mohammedan would be taken and the testimony of the 50 Armenians rejected; in other words, the solemn oath of 1,000 Armenians would not be strong enough to overthrow the perjury of one Mohammedan. A professor was condemned to death for translating the English Book of Common Prayer into Turkish. Seventeen Armenians were sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment for rescuing a Christian bride from the bandits. This is the way the Turkish government amuses itself in time of peace. These are the delights of Turkish civilization. But when the days of massacre come, then deeds are done which may not be unveiled in any refined assemblage, and if one speaks of the horrors, he must do so in well-poised and cautious vocabulary. Hundreds of villages destroyed! Young men put in piles of brushwood, which are saturated with kerosene and set on fire! Mothers in the most solemn hour that ever comes in a woman's life, hurled out and bayonetted! Eyes gouged out, and dead and dying buried into the same pit! The slaughter of Lucknow and Cawnpore, India, in 1857, eclipsed in ghastliness! The worst scenes of the French revolution in Paris made more tolerable in contrast! In many regions of Armenia the only undertakers to-day are the jackals and hyenas. Many of the chiefs of the massacres were sent straight from Constantinople to do their work, and, having returned, were decorated by the sultan. To four of the worst murderers the sultan sent a silk banner, in delicate appreciation of their services. Five hundred thousand Armenians put to death or dying of starvation! This moment, while I speak, all up and down Armenia sit many people freezing in the ashes of their destroyed homes, bereft of most of their households, and awaiting the club of assassination to put them out of their misery. No wonder that the physicians of that region declared that among all the men and women that were down with wounds and sickness and under their care not one wanted to get well. Remember that nearly all the reports that have come to us of the Turkish outrages have been manipulated and modified and softened by the Turks themselves. The story is not half told, or a hundredth part told, or a thousandth part told. Not but God and our suffering brothers and sisters in that far off land know the whole story, and it will not be known until, in the coronations of Heaven, Christ shall lift to a special throne of glory these heroes and these heroines, saying: "These are they who came out of great tribulation and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb!" My Lord and my God! Thou didst on the cross suffer for them, but Thou, surely, on Christ! wilt not forget how much they have suffered for Thee! I dare not deal an imprecation, but I never so much enjoyed the imprecatory songs of David as since I have heard how those Turks are treating the Armenians. The fact is Turkey has got to be divided up among other nations. Of course the European nations must take the chief part, but Turkey ought to be compelled to pay America for the American mission buildings and American schoolhouses she has destroyed, and to support the wives and children of the Americans ruined by this wholesale butchery. When the English lion and the Russian bear put their paws on that Turkey the American eagle ought to put in its bill.

Who are these American and English and Scotch missionaries who are being hounded among the mountains of Armenia by the Mohammedans? The noblest men and women this side of Heaven. Some of them, men who took the highest honors at Yale and Princeton and Harvard and Oxford and Edinburgh. Some of them women, gentlest and most Christianlike, who, to save people they never saw, turned their backs on luxurious homes to spend their days in self-expatriation, saying good-by to father and mother, and afterward good-by to their own children as circumstances compel them to send the little ones to England, Scotland or America. I have seen these foreign missionaries in their homes all around the world, and I stamp with indignation upon the literary blackguardism of foreign correspondents who have depreciated those heroes and heroines who are willing to live and die for Christ's sake. They will have the highest thrones in Heaven, while their defamers will not get near enough to the shining gates to see the faintest glint of any one of the 12 pearls which make up the 12 gates. This defamation of missionaries is augmented by the desolute English, American and Scotch merchants who go to foreign cities, leaving their families behind them. Those desolute merchants in foreign cities lead a life of such gross immorals that the pure households of the missionaries are a perpetual rebuke.

Buzzards never did believe in doves, and if there is anything that night shade hates it is the water lily. What the 550 American missionaries have suffered in the Ottoman empire since 1820 I leave to the archangel to announce on the day of judgment. You will see it reasonable that I put so much emphasis on Americanism in the Ottoman empire, when I tell you that America, notwithstanding all the disadvantages named, has now 27,000 students in day schools in that empire and 35,000 children in her Sabbath schools, and that America has expended in the Turkish empire for its betterment over $10,000,000. Has not America a right to be heard? Aye! it will be heard! I am glad that great indignation meetings are being held all over this country. That poor, cowardly sultan, whom I saw a few years ago ride to his mosque for worship, guarded by 7,000 armed men, many of them mounted on prancing chargers, will hear of these sympathetic meetings for the Armenians, if not through American reporters, then through some of his 300 wives. What to do with him? There ought to be some St. Helena to which he could be exiled, while the nations of Europe appoint a ruler of their own to clean out and take possession of the palaces of Constantinople. To-night this august assemblage in the capital of the United States, in the name of the God of Nations, indicts the Turkish government for the wholesale assassination in Armenia, and invokes the interference of Almighty God and the protest of eastern and western hemispheres.

But what is the duty of the hour? Sympathy, deep, wide, tremendous, immediately! A religious paper, the Christian Herald, of New York, has led the way with munificent contributions collected from its subscribers. But the Turkish government is opposed to any relief of the Armenian sufferers, as I personally know. Last August, before I had any idea of becoming a fellow citizen of you Washingtonians, $50,000 for Armenian relief was offered me if I would personally take that relief to Armenia. My passage was to be engaged on the City of Paris, but a telegram was sent to Constantinople, asking if the Turkish government would grant me protection on such an errand of mercy. A cablegram said the Turkish government wished to know to what points in Armenia I wished to go with that relief. In our reply four cities were named, one of them the scene of what had been the chief massacre. A cablegram came from Constantinople saying that I had better send the money to the Turkish government's mixed commission and they would distribute it. So a cobweb of spiders proposed a relief committee for unfortunate flies! Well, a man who would start up through the mountains of Armenia with $50,000 and no governmental protection would be guilty of monumental foolhardiness. The Turkish government has in every possible way hindered Armenian relief.

Now where is that angel of mercy, Clara Barton, who appeared on the battlefields of Fredericksburg, Antietam, Falmouth and Cedar Mountain, and under the blaze of French and German guns at Metz and Paris, and in Johnstown floods, and Charleston earthquakes, and Michigan fires, and Russian famine? It was comparatively of little importance that the German emperor decorated her with the Iron Cross, for God hath decorated her in the sight of all nations with a glory that neither time nor eternity can dim. Born in a Massachusetts village, she came in her girlhood to this city to serve our government in the patent office, but afterward went forth from the doors of that patent office with a divine patent, signed and sealed by God Himself, to heal all the wounds she could touch, and to make the horrors of the flood, and fire, and plague, and hospital, fly to her presence. God bless Clara Barton! Just as I expected, she lifts the banner of the Red Cross. Turkey and all nations are pledged to respect and defend that Red Cross, although that color of cross does not, in the opinion of many, stand for Christianity. In my opinion it does stand for Christianity, for was not the cross under which most of us worship red with the blood of the Son of God, red with the best blood poured out for the ransom of the world? Then lead on, O Red Cross! and let Clara Barton carry it. The Turkish government is bound to protect her, and the chariots of God are 20,000, and their charioteers are angels of deliverance, and they would all ride down at once to roll over and trample under the hoofs of their white horses any of her assailants. May the $500,000 she seeks be laid at her feet! Then may the ships that carry her across the Atlantic and Mediterranean seas be guided safely by Him who trod the sapphire pavement bestormed Galilee! Upon soul incarnadined with martyrdom let the Red Cross be planted, until every demolished village shall be rebuilt, and every pang of hunger be fed, and every wound of cruelty be healed, and Armenia stand with as much liberty to serve God in its own way as in this, the best land of all the earth, we, the descendants of the Puritans, and Hollanders, and Huguenots, are free to worship the Christ who came to set all nations free!

It has been said that if we go over to interfere on another continent that will imply the right for other nations to interfere with affairs on this continent, and so the Monroe doctrine is jeopardized. No, no! President Cleveland expressed the sentiment of every intelligent and patriotic American when he thundered from the white house a warning to all nations that there is not one acre or one inch more of ground on this continent for any transatlantic government to occupy. And by that doctrine we stand now and shall forever stand. But there is a doctrine as much higher than the Monroe doctrine as the heavens are higher than the earth, and that is the doctrine of humanitarianism and sympathy and Christian helpfulness which one cold December midnight, with loud and multitudinous chant, awakened the shepherds. Wherever there is a wound it is our duty, whether as individuals or nations to balsam, whether there is a knife of assassination lifted it is our duty to ward off the blade. Wherever men are persecuted for their religion it is our duty to break that arm of power, whether it be thrust forth from a Protestant church, or a Catholic cathedral, or a Jewish synagogue or a mosque of Islam. We all recognize the right on a small scale. If going down the road we find a ruffian maltreating a child, or a human brute insulting a woman, we take a hand in the contest if we are not cowards, and though we be slight in personal presence, because of our indignation, we come to weigh about 20 tons, and the harder we punish the villain the louder our conscience applauds us. In such case we do not keep our hands in our pockets, arguing that if we interfere with the brute the brute might think he would have a right to interfere with us, and so jeopardize the Monroe doctrine.

The fact is that that persecution of the Armenians by the Turks must be stopped, or God Almighty will curse all Christendom for its damnable indifference and apathy. But the trumpet of resurrection is about to sound for Armenia. Did I say in the opening that on one of the peaks of Armenia, this very Armenia of which we speak, in Noah's time the ark landed, according to the myth, as some think, but according to God's "say-so," as I know, and that it was after a long storm of 40 days and 40 nights, called the deluge, and that afterward a dove went forth from that ark and returned with an olive leaf in her beak. Even so now, there is another ark being launched, but this one goes sailing, not over a deluge of water, but a deluge of blood—the ark of American sympathy—and that ark, landing on Ararat, from its window shall fly the dove of kindness and peace, to find the olive leaf of returning prosperity, while all the mountains of Moslem prejudice, oppression and cruelty shall stand 15 cubits under. Meanwhile, we would like to gather all the dying groans of all the 500,000 victims of Mohammedan oppression, and intone them into one prayer that would move the earth and the heavens, hundreds of millions of Christian voices, American and European, crying, O, God Most High! Spare Thy children. With mandate from the throne hurl back upon their haunches the horses of the Kurdish cavalry. Stop the rivers of blood. With the earthquakes of thy wrath shake the foundations of the palaces of the sultan. Move all the nations of Europe to command cessation of cruelty. If need be, let the warships of civilized nations boom their indignation. Let the Crescent go down before the Cross, and the Mighty One who hath on His vesture and on his thigh a name written, 'King of Kings and Lord of Lords,' go forth, conquering to conquer. Thine, O Lord, is the kingdom! Hallelujah! Amen!"

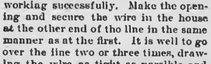
FARM TELEPHONE.

One That Can Be Put Up for a Dollar and Fifty Cents.

A simple telephone that is well adapted for use in country places or small villages, between houses not more than a quarter of a mile apart, can be made by anyone, and the cost need not be more than $1.50. A line of this kind has been in constant use for 15 years and still works better than the ordinary electric telephone, while the expense of keeping it in repair has been nothing. The distance is about 20 rods and the line straight and level.

To make a telephone of this kind cut out four pieces, a, each 8 inches square, from a half-inch board that has been planed on both sides. Any desired wood can be used. From the center of each, with a radius of two inches, describe a circle, b. Fasten the pieces together in pairs, crossing the grain, and cut around the circle with a scroll or keyhole saw. From a drumhead (an old one is just as good), cut two pieces about 6 inches in diameter, and soak them in water that is slightly warm, until they are soft.



Mark the boards of the pairs and take them apart. Over the inside of one-half of each stretch a piece of drumhead and fasten securely around the inner edge with small tacks, c. Put on the other halves and screw firmly together. When the heads are thoroughly dry they will be very hard and resonant. Find the center of the heads, and with a sharp instrument make a hole the size of a pin in both. The telephone is then ready to put up. Make a hole three-fourths of an inch in diameter through the side of the house where the wire is to enter. Draw the wire, No. 19 copper, through the hole from the outside, and fasten the end to a stick to prevent it from drawing out.

Between the houses the wire may be hung on trees, buildings or poles, with pieces of large, loose cord. It is possible to go around a corner by fastening the wire often and making the curve gradual, but the straighter the line the better it will work, and it must enter the house as nearly at right angles as possible. The wire should not touch any hard substance in any place, for as the operation of the telephone depends upon the vibration of the wire anything that tends to stop the vibrations will tend to prevent its working successfully. Make the opening and secure the wire in the house at the other end of the line in the same manner as at the first. It is well to go over the line two or three times, drawing the wire as tight as possible and taking up the slack at both ends. When the wire is tight, have some one hold it firmly just outside the first house; take out the stick and put the wire through the hole in one of the vibrators, draw it tight and fasten by putting the end though a plain, flat button and tying a knot, at c. The tension on the wire will hold the vibrator so firmly that two small nails driven in the wall under it to prevent it from slipping down, is all the fastening necessary. Put the other vibrator in position at the other end of the line and the telephone is ready for use.

Do not be discouraged if it does not work very well at first, for often the wire will touch at some place that has been overlooked. The vibrators must be at right angles with the wire, or the wire will draw and cut the drumheads. A new wire will probably stretch after a time and need tightening, for a loose wire will not vibrate. In the winter a loose cloth may be tacked around the wire where it enters the house. Lines have been made to work successfully for one mile over rough ground, and it is interesting to see how quickly the vibrations will go over that distance. The call is made by rapping on the button with any convenient article.—Orange Judd Farmer.

CALIFORNIA FRUITS.

Should Not Be Allowed to Monopolize Central and Western Markets.

A leading grocer advertises California peaches, California lemon cling peaches, California white heath peaches, California Bartlett pears and even California corn, tomatoes, cove oysters, etc. It seems absurd that Missouri should use such vast supplies from California, not only peach, pear, cherry, but even tomatoes and corn, and the same is true of Illinois and many other states.

These fruits and vegetables are produced in California, on costly land, high-priced labor, enormous freight crossing the mountains, and yet it pays them. Why not Ozark peaches and pears, adding Missouri or Arkansas, as the case may be, and why not Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee corn and tomatoes, as well as fruit? People of the Ozarks, Colorado and New Mexico are beginning to wake up, and soon California will cease gathering all the cream. We admire their enterprise, but we want to see more of it in every state. People everywhere should grow more fruits and not depend on disposing of it in the green state; have canning factories, make jelly, preserves, etc. Look what a great industry preserving of fruits is in England.—Stark Bros.' Orchard Bulletin.

WINTER WHEELBARROW.

Very Serviceable About the Farm When Snow Is on the Ground.

It would often be very convenient to use a wheelbarrow in winter, were it not that the wheel does not roll well in the snow, especially if it be at all soft. It is very easy to put the barrow on runners, as shown in the accompanying illustration. The wheel is unshipped, and two runners that have been fitted by a blacksmith are screwed to the framework in the manner suggested. If the runners are firmly attached the winter wheelbarrow should prove very serviceable about a farm. —Orange Judd Farmer.

Separators with Starters.

The reason why bees fill in small slabs of comb between the frames says Gleanings, is due, many times, to improper spacing, and to combs that are irregular. If combs are flat as a board and spaces one and three-eighths inches from center to center and if the top bars are one and one-half inches wide there will be very little trouble. The building of similar pieces of comb in the sections can be avoided by the use of separators in connection with full sheets of foundation. In most cases separators with starters are effective.

THE FACE THAT KILLS.

Fast Work and Fast Eating Make Three Score Years and Ten a Ripe Old Age These Days.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The American people live too fast, eat too fast and drink too fast. This has brought upon many of us a train of nervous and stomach orders that are very difficult to manage. Investigation and chemical analysis to discover such compounds as will help those suffering from such ills has resulted in the discovery of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which has taken very high rank as a specific remedy.

H. P. Owens, a traveling man thirty years of age, who is well-known in this community and generally liked because he is a bright, energetic young fellow, resides with his mother at 335 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio. He has been a victim of dyspepsia which took the form of continuous constipation, and, strangely enough, his mother suffered from the same trouble. Mr. Owens testified to the merits of Pink Pills, in a most enthusiastic way, and said to the Enquirer reporter:

"I am glad to say anything I can for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, because they did me great good and other people ought to know of their virtues as a medicine in stomach troubles. It was some time ago when I felt a heavy feeling in my stomach and I grew very constipated. I did not consult a doctor, but having heard of the Pink Pills I bought a box of them. In two or three days the heavy feeling in my stomach disappeared and my bowels were regular. I did not have to use more than a box of them before I was well. Since that time I have occasionally been troubled with constipation and I never get worried because I know just what to do. Mother was also troubled with indigestion and the Pink Pills did the same for her they did for me—cured her, didn't they, mother?"

When appealed to Mrs. Owens answered: "That is right. I found that it was a great medicine, so easy to take and so quick and lasting in its results."

Mr. Owens continued: "I believe that these pills are also good for nervousness. When I had my stomach troubles I was also quite nervous and that disappeared with the dyspepsia. The Pink Pills were all that were claimed for them. You can make any use of this testimonial that you see fit."

H. P. Owens has occupied several positions of trust in this city. [illegible] time an employe of the Commercial-Gazette. He will go on the road in a few days for a prominent business house here. Mrs. Owens is quite as enthusiastic as her son about the Pink Pills and her host of lady friends can verify her good opinion of this wonderful remedy if they feel disposed to do so at any time. Where the testimony is so general and unanimous as to the excellencies of Pink Pills as the Enquirer has found it to be there is certainly good reason to believe all the good things said—about the safe and simple remedy.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., at 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

WHAT A STENOGRAPHER EATS.

Sumptuous Lunches of Rolls, Coffee and Ginger Snaps.

The price of the lunch that the New York girl eats varies from five cents to two or three dollars, says the New York Sun. It seems hardly credible to the uptown girl who drops into a fashionable restaurant and eats dainty nothings at 50 cents a swallow that she could satisfy her hunger for a nickel. But that is the way the downtown stenographer manages to live on her five or six dollars a week.

Five cents will buy a good sandwich anywhere, but that is not quite enough for even a typewriter's lunch and this economical person has found it better to eat three penny rolls spread with two cents' worth of butter, as they are more "filling." There are several different kinds of penny rolls, but the most common are milk rolls, "long buns" and "horns." "Three horns and butter" is a favorite lunch which sounds heavy and indigestible, but the "horns" are only crescent-shaped rolls which are as wholesome as toast.

The ten-cent lunch offers more variety of choice. For a dime one can add coffee or tea or cocoa to the above-mentioned five-cent meal. Beans furnish a large proportion of the typewriting population with lunch. The New York girl varies her bean diet by having them baked in Boston style one day and in New York style the next, but no regular downtown luncher ever stops to dignify the dish with its full name. It is either "ham and Boston" or "ham and New York" and it can be had for ten cents.

Between the five and ten-cent lunches there are a few alternatives, but it is possible to get two "long buns" or two "horns" and coffee for seven cents and for another cent a couple of ginger snaps winds up quite a sumptuous lunch.

In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

The Urgency Deficiency Appropriation Bill in the House.

The Bill Making Appropriations for the Military Academy Will be Taken Up—A Sub-Treasury at Savannah—The Monroe Doctrine in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—In the house of representatives the programme of business for the coming week is about as follows:

The urgency deficiency bill will be reported by the committee on appropriations Monday, and it is expected that immediate consideration will be given it. Following that, the bill making appropriations for the military academy for the next fiscal year will be taken up. But little time will be occupied in considering these, and opportunities for action on bills by unanimous request will be numerous. It is expected that next Friday the committee on invalid pensions will invoke the rule providing for the night session on that day to begin the consideration of private pension bills. During the week the committee on ways and means will give several hearings. On Monday advocates of a bill to establish a sub-treasury at Savannah will be heard, and on Wednesday will be held the final hearing on the customs administrative act.

The report from the senate committee on foreign relations of the Monroe doctrine resolutions Monday will probably cause the subject to divide the time with the senate free coinage substitute to the house bond bill, which is still the unfinished business. The extreme position taken by the committee resolutions in one direction, and those of Mr. Sewell, of New Jersey, in the other, will give the debate a wide range. Mr. Davis has been instructed by the committee to urge prompt action on the resolution, and, while it can not supersede the financial question as the unfinished business, it will probably receive much discussion this week.

Mr. Sewell may address the senate Monday during the morning hour on his resolution, which declares that the president has gone too far in his message in enunciating the Monroe doctrine. The committee resolutions will doubtless be discussed by Messrs. Morgan, Sherman, Cullom, Lodge, Frye, Davis and others in favor and antagonized probably by Mr. Gray. It is believed that the result will be almost unanimous in favor of their adoption and the vote may be taken this week.

Mr. Teller and Mr. Daniels have given notice that they will speak this week on the financial question, and Mr. White and Mr. Cockrell may also speak. Additional interest to the week's proceedings will be given should the finance committee report the tariff bill. This will be done, it is understood, without another meeting being held. The nature of the report will depend upon the position taken by Jones, of Nevada. Should he still insist upon increasing the duty on raw sugar an adverse report will be made; should he vote with the republicans, then the bill will be reported as it came from the house. As soon as Mr. Jones signifies how he desires to vote the bill will be reported. This may be Monday.

Troops in Florida to Be Kept in Readiness.

JACKSONVILLE, Jan. 20.—It is reported on what is asserted to be good authority that the war department at Washington has requested Gov. Mitchell to see that the Florida troops are kept in readiness to take the field at a moment's notice. The report has caused great excitement.

It is stated as coming from the executive office that the Washington authorities have reason to believe that a deal is pending between Spain and Great Britain for the sale of Cuba to the latter, and that the United States is preparing to resist the transfer of the island, and that the flying squadron is coming to American waters to be ready for war with the United States that will inevitably follow the attempted cession of Cuba.

The Fireman Was Killed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Passenger train No. 441 on the Harlem branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which left New Rochelle at six o'clock Sunday morning, ran into a part of a freight train near Van Nest station. The engine was badly smashed and derailed, and the fireman was literally cut and smashed to pieces. Only two passengers were aboard and neither was injured. The engineer escaped with a shaking up and a few bruises.

Prominent Baltimorean Dead.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 20.—Otto Sutro, one of Baltimore's best-known men and medical educators, died Sunday night from an affection of the bladder. He was born in Aix La Capel, Rheinish Prussia, February 24, 1833. He married Arianna, daughter of Judge Alex H. Handy, late chief justice of the supreme court of Mississippi.

New Baseball League to Be Formed.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 20.—A meeting to organize a baseball league will be held January 30, the place to be fixed later. Toledo, Wheeling, New Castle and Washington, Pa., have already been chosen as four of the towns in the eight-club league to be formed. Delegates will also be present from Dayton, Springfield, Akron, Sandusky, Mansfield, Canton and Hamilton.

To Drill Cuban Cavalry.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 20.—Henry Floerchind, for five years drill sergeant in the German army, has accepted an offer from the Cuban patriots to join their forces and drill their cavalry. Saturday he closed out his liquor store here and prepared for departure. The matter is purely a business one with the sergeant, and he goes with the consent of his family. It is well known that St. Louis is the point of quiet departure of American volunteers for Cuba, and the moment belligerent rights are granted the insurgents several large expeditions will depart from here.

A Serious Step.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—The Daily News Monday says that it regards the adoption by the committee on foreign relations of the United States senate Friday of the resolutions of Senator Davis supporting the Monroe doctrine, as a most serious step.

It adds:

"The sooner Lord Salisbury discovers a method of arbitration the better. The Venezuelan commission hangs fire, not, perhaps, without President Cleveland's connivance. If he is giving us time we would be foolish not to take it."

THE CHAPLAIN'S PRAYER

Followed by Applause in the House—General Pension Appropriation Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Applause following the delivery of a prayer in the house is an unusual, probably unprecedented, incident in its proceedings, but when Chaplain Couden Friday offered the following invocation:

"Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the degree of special liberty which we as a people enjoy, and our hearts go out for those in other lands who are struggling for a wider liberty. Especially do we pray for the Cubans, and ask that if they be right their efforts may be crowned with success. And we pray that our country may do for them all that it can without compromising its dignity or in disregard of its sacred obligations and duties to other nations."

There was a lively outbreak of handclapping all over the floor.

A message from the president was laid before the house, asking prompt legislation to further extend the time by which legislation in relation to the forfeiture of railroad land grants may be prosecuted by the attorney general. It was read and referred to the committee on public lands.

The house went into committee of the whole, Mr. Dingley (rep., Me.) in the chair, on motion of Mr. W. A. Stone (rep., Pa.) to consider the general pension appropriation bill under the five-minute rule.

Mr. Steele (rep., Ind.) offered an amendment providing that the regulations made in the pension bureau for the consideration of pension claims shall be public and not contravene the laws of the United States nor the rules of evidence recognized by the courts in the District of Columbia, and that all papers bearing upon a claim shall be open to the inspection of claimant and his attorney. To this Mr. Bartlett (dem., N. Y.) made the point of order that it changed existing laws and was therefore obnoxious to the rules. After some debate the point of order was sustained.

Mr. Harmon (rep., Ore.) proposed an amendment establishing a one-cent per diem service pension to every soldier who served more than 90 days, the minimum to be eight dollars a month, and making that sum the minimum pension paid under any law to a veteran or his widow. Ruled out on a point of order.

Mr. Mahon (rep., Pa.) offered an amendment making a pension once granted a vested right, to be disturbed only on the ground of fraud. This was passed over temporarily.

After a debate continuing almost uninterruptedly over five days, the general pension appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1897, was passed by the house Friday afternoon.

FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Of the Engagement of Ex-President Harrison and Mrs. Dimmick—The Wedding Will Take Place After Lent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Ex-President Harrison Friday night formally announced his engagement to Mrs. Dimmick at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

There was a crowd of newspaper men and others about the hotel shortly before 9 o'clock when Secretary Tibbitts appeared and handed them the following:

"Gen. Harrison authorizes the announcement that he and Mrs. Dimmick are engaged to be married and that the marriage will not take place until after lent."

Col. Tibbitts refused to further discuss the announcement and, although the ex-president was upstairs in his room at the time, he denied himself to all newspaper men.

Col. Tibbitts said that Gen. Harrison would remain in the city until after Sunday, when he would go to Indianapolis and from there to Washington.

Mrs. Dimmick's full name is Caroline Lord Dimmick. She is the daughter of the late Mrs. Lord, the oldest sister of Gen. Harrison's first wife. She is the widow of a naval officer. After her husband's death she lived for some time with her mother in Pittsburgh. Mr. Lord died during the time that Gen. Harrison was president. Mrs. Harrison thereupon sent for her favorite niece and namesake to come to the white house and made the young widow her private secretary. During Mrs. Harrison's illness, both at the Adirondacks cottage and in the white house, Mrs. Dimmick was her faithful and devoted nurse.

CAMPOS RELIEVED.

He Turns Over the Civil and Military Government to Gens. Marin and Pando.

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—A meeting of generals was held Friday evening at the palace of the captain-general, at which Marshal Campos announced that he had cabled to the government at Madrid, stating the result of his conference with the leaders of the political parties and signifying his intention to abide loyally by any decision that the cabinet might make in the matter. To this dispatch he said that he had already received a reply advising him in view of the conditions existing to turn over the civil and military government of the island to Gens. Marin and Pando. This he had done so far as was possible, Gen. Pando being in Santiago de Cuba. Gen. Marin had taken over the government temporarily and his responsibility would be shared by Gen. Pando shortly. The news that Marshal Campos had practically been relieved of his command caused little excitement in the city.

EXAGGERATED

There is No Inclination on the Part of the People or Authorities to Precipitate an Issue—Venezuelans Satisfied With the Prospects of Arbitration.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—C. Marzen-Erazo, who arrived in New York Saturday by the steamer Philadelphia from Venezuela, where he represents the large commercial interests of Flint, Eddy & Co., was interviewed Sunday. Mr. Marzen-Erazo stated that the reports published in the newspapers here as to the war-like spirit and excitement in Venezuela were grossly exaggerated.

He had been traveling for the past two months over a large portion of Venezuela, from Ciudad Bolivar to the capital, and he was impressed everywhere with the absence of anything like bravado, and the feeling prevailing among Venezuelans that the questions be settled without war.

Nobody in Venezuela seems to believe in war, and there is no inclination on the part of the authorities or on the part of the people to precipitate an issue. The country is prosperous, and business is progressing in its usual channels without any disturbance.

The people of Venezuela are entirely satisfied with the prospect of arbitration, and both in official and unofficial circles there is a determination to abide by it, whether to contrary or favorable to Venezuela, but they are at the same time determined that they shall not be despoiled by force without a hearing.

Mr. Marzen-Erazo, in conclusion, said that nothing but positive aggression on the part of England could bring about war.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Two Fine Apartment Houses in Chicago Destroyed—Loss $300,000.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Two of the finest apartment houses on the south side of the city were destroyed by fire Sunday evening. The buildings were owned by Lincoln Brooks and located at the southwest corner of Wabash avenue and Thirty-sixth street. The one on the corner contained 40 apartments and was unoccupied, being just about completed. The building next door and just south on the avenue was filled with tenants and contained over 30 apartments.

Both buildings are a total loss, which will reach $300,000.

The fire started in the corner building, on the fifth floor, through the falling of one of 17 salamanders which were being used to dry plastering. Before assistance could be called the fire got beyond all control.

Only a little furniture was saved from the wreck. The excitement in the second building which burned grew almost into a panic, and rumors were started that many people had been burned to death. Several people were injured by fire and stray bricks from falling walls, but no one was fatally hurt.

To add to the excitement the horses attached to a hook and ladder truck ran away and dashed into a crowded street, rolling many people over into the water covered streets and bruising several severely.

MRS. M'ADOW,

One of the Woman Managers of the World's Fair, 1893, Dies.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Clara A. McAdow, aged 58 years, died at her residence here Sunday morning from a complication of diseases after an illness which lasted nearly six months. She was the wife of Hoyt A. McAdow, and was a Michigan woman. She and her husband went to Montana many years ago and were interested in mines, one of which, "Spotted Horse" proved a bonanza. She returned to Michigan some years ago and settled in this city. She represented Montana on the board of woman managers of the World's fair in 1893. The gold for the base of the famous $80,000 silver statue at the World's fair was taken from one of Mrs. McAdow's mines and was contributed by her. Mrs. McAdow leaves a fortune estimated at $2,000,000.

MYSTERIOUS CASE.

The Wife of a Dead Saloonkeeper at Chicago Under Arrest on Suspicion.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Jacob Johansen, a saloonkeeper at 2828 Cottage Grove avenue, was found dead in bed at 11 o'clock Sunday night. His wife was found in another room in hysterics. She managed to tell the police that three or four men had broken into their house, killed her husband and robbed them of $1,500 in money which she drew from the bank Saturday.

The case looked suspicious, and the police, in searching the place, found a coffee cup filled with a fluid, suspected to be poison, in the kitchen. The woman was placed under arrest and taken to Mercy hospital, where she will be guarded until able to stand an examination. Three men who were seen about the saloon early in the evening, were also arrested.

TO BERMUDA.

That is the Rumored Destination of the British Flying Squadron.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—A Washington special says:

The report that the British squadron is on the way to Bermuda caused much surprise here, and there is talk of introducing a resolution in the house instructing the committee on foreign affairs to report on Mr. Livingston's Venezuela resolutions without more delay. No confirmation or denial of the report of the squadron's movement is obtained from authentic sources at the navy department, but belief exists that it is probably true. If it proves true to the satisfaction of the department, it is thought probable that the white squadron will be ordered to Venezuelan waters.

"I have no doubt of the accuracy of the report that that British flying squadron is headed for Bermuda," said Congressman Livingston, of Georgia, Friday. He added: "Moreover the squadron will go thence to Venezuela. I knew it the other day when I offered my resolution directing the president to check the British advance and to compel them to withdraw their reinforcements at their Venezuela outposts. I tried so to inform the house, but Boutelle objected. The squadron will, I understand, choke the payment of the $7,500 damage bill out of Crespo and then offer him three or five millions in gold for the disputed territory. My information is reliable."

"How about the Venezuela constitution prohibiting the transfer of territory to another nation?"

"Five millions of dollars in gold, backed up by the British squadron, are not unlikely to play —— with a South American institution."

"What are you going to do about it?"

"I can do nothing until the foreign affairs committee makes its report. That done, I shall push my resolution directing the president to stop this hostile action of Great Britain, and I have no doubt it will go through the house like a flame through a train of powder.

"We have got to act. This nation can not afford to permit the Venezuela question to be settled in such, to us, ignominous manner. The administration may think it all right and in conformity with the Monroe doctrine to have European nations buy land on this side of the water, but congress does not; neither do the people, as will shortly be proved to the satisfaction of everybody, on this side and on the other side of the globe, as soon as we get a chance to vote on the question."

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Though the admiralty refuses to either confirm or deny the statement that the new flying squadron is destined for Bermuda, it can be stated on the authority of officers attached to the squadron that they believe that if they do not go to Bermuda they will go to some point in the West Indies. They do not know the nature of the service they are going on, but in view of the dispute with Venezuela the fact of dispatching of the squadron to the West Indies causes some anxiety.

SNOW SLIDE.

An Avalanche of the Beautiful That Carried Everything Before It.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Jan. 18.—A vast avalanche of snow swept down from the mountain top into Silver Bow basin, near Juneau, Alaska, last week, killing John T. Pearl and destroying a quartz mill and other property worth $40,000. Advices received here Friday on the steamer City of Topeka, stated that the avalanche came with such force as to sweep the ground clean of all buildings in its path. A mining shaft was choked with snow and debris. The slide started from the head of Gold creek and tore a path 200 yards wide for five miles. It struck the protruding point of a mountain, carrying away millions of tons of rock and earth. The roar was indescribable. It struck the mining camp's buildings and carried away the quartz mill, and the building together with the machinery was wiped out of existence. Many unoccupied miners' cabins were swept away, but fortunately the occupants were absent spending the holidays in Juneau, otherwise many deaths would have resulted.

STATE DELEGATIONS

Chicago Hotels Will Make No Contracts Until After the National Committee Has Been Housed.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Managers of the big hotels respect the agreement made by the Chicago committee with the democratic national committee at Washington not to make arrangements for state delegations headquarters until the national committee has decided where it will be housed during the convention. The hotel men, however, are not disposed to wait a month before making contracts for state delegations and will expect the national committee to make known its choice with as little delay as possible. Manager Southgate, of the Auditorium, said on Friday that he felt certain the New York state delegation would be quartered at that hotel. Don M. Dickinson has engaged the best suite of rooms at the Richelieu, and scores of individual applications for rooms were received and acted on by the hotelkeepers during the day.

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—SENATE—Monday, Pritchard (N. C.) dug up the old election frauds in New York, revamping the John Y. McKane business and engaged in sundry other innuendoes that at once put Mr. Hill on his mettle. Mr. Butler, the populist colleague of Mr. Pritchard, also took a hand, and incidentally Mr. Allen, the populist from Nebraska, interjected an occasional question. When this had blown over Mr. Morgan of Alabama, the sage of the democratic side of the chamber, took the floor to address the senate on the bond bill. His speech was, of course, an argument for the free coinage of silver. In his speech Senator Sherman was subjected to a terrible roast by Mr. Morgan.

HOUSE—The House, after devoting an hour to the consideration of business reported from the District of Columbia committee Monday took up the pension appropriation bill. General debate on the pension bill consumed the day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—SENATE—Two bills were passed in the senate Tuesday—a railroad bill and a private pension bill. The first grants to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co. the right of way over a part of the Sac and Fox and Iowa Indians' reservation in Kansas and Nebraska. The second gives a pension of $75 per month to the widow of Brig.-Gen. Cogswell, of Massachusetts. The remainder of the day's session was consumed in the delivery by the populist senator from North Carolina, Mr. Butler, of a prepared speech on the house bond bill, with the free silver substitute to it, reported by the finance committee. Adjourned until Wednesday.

HOUSE—For four hours Tuesday the debate on the general pension appropriation bill ran along in the house without special incident, the only spice of variety being the occasional efforts of Mr. Bartlett (Dem., N. Y.), to defend the position he had taken in his speech Monday in which he supported the administration by the pension bureau of the laws entrusted to it for execution. Then Mr. Cummings, (dem., N. Y.), made a most vigorous attack upon the policy of the pension bureau. Mr. Curtis (rep., N. Y.), presented the military academy appropriation bill, which was placed on the calendar. Adjourned until Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—SENATE—The senate listened Wednesday to two long speeches against the further issue of United States bonds and in favor of the use of silver money. The first was made by Mr. Mills (dem., Tex.) on his resolution in favor of the coinage of silver and for other purposes, and the second by Mr. Peffer (Kas.) Mr. Mills' remarks were particularly severe on President Cleveland. On the motion of Mr. Wolcott (rep., Col.), it was ordered that when the senate adjourned Thursday it adjourn until Monday next. Mr. Pugh (dem., Ala.), stated that on account of the absence of several senators he would not call up his resolution (the Stanley Matthews measure) until Monday next. After a short executive session the senate at 4:55 p. m. adjourned until Thursday.

HOUSE—Senate bills were passed amending the land grant for future acts as to purchasers of land, included within the forfeited grants, to purchase segregated tracts up to a maximum limit of 320 acres; and to grant an American registry to the steamer Miami, rebuilt from the British steamer Nerito. The greater part of the session was devoted to the discussion of the pension appropriation bill, various members criticising the administration of the pension bureau. Mr. Walsh (dem., N. Y.) united with his colleague, Mr. Cummings, in assuring the house that the democrats of New York approved a liberal pension policy.

WASHINGTON, Jan 17.—SENATE—The consideration of the silver bond bill proceeded in the senate Thursday, with Mr. Peffer continuing his speech began Wednesday. Mr. Hale spoke for an hour in favor of a Pacific cable connecting the United States and Hawaii. The senator expressed the opinion that the annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States was certain to be accomplished at an early day. The Cuban question was briefly discussed in connection with Mr. Call's resolution calling on the state departments for information on the status of the uprising. Mr. Sewell (rep.), of New Jersey, introduced a resolution on the Monroe doctrine, declaring that the president has pressed the doctrine beyond what it was intended, and that his interpretation of it will involve us in foreign complications, and virtually extend a protectorate over Mexico, Central and South American states. A number of petitions were presented.

HOUSE—Among the bills introduced in the house Thursday were the following: A petition from the G. A. R. of Indiana, through Adjt.-Gen. R. N. Sleock, of Indianapolis, asking that each honably discharged union soldier be placed on the pension rolls at $8 per month, when he has arrived at the age of sixty years; a petition from Robert M. Snodgrass, commander of John Stewart post, No. 310, of Reed, Delaware county, Ind.; asking that a service pension of $8 per month be granted to the surviving veterans of the war; to pay Isaac D. Armstrong, of Frankfort, Clinton county, Ind., $4,000 for United States bonds stolen from him February 17, 1865, payment on which bonds was ordered stopped by the treasury department July 10, 1865.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—SENATE—Not in session Friday.

HOUSE—The house went into committee of the whole for the consideration of the pension appropriation bill. The general debate on the bill closed Thursday, and the bill was Friday open to amendment under the five minute rule. Mr. Herman (rep., Ore.) offered an amendment, which was practically a per diem pension bill, that also went down under a point of order, Mr. Mahon (rep., Pa.) offered an amendment declaring a pension to be a vested right, not to be suspended on charges of fraud until such charges have been proved in a court of law. The clause allowing pensions rejected, suspended or dismissed to date from their first application passed. The committee then rose, and the bill, as amended, was passed. The house adjourned until Monday.

THAT NEW BOND ISSUE.

Republican Rottenness in the Present Congress.

Congress has been in session but a short time, yet a brief review is necessary to a fair and intelligent understanding of the present situation. When Speaker Reed accepted his present position he said among other things, that "We must, above all things, avoid crude and hasty legislation." No one has ever credited Mr. Reed with the breadth and depth of a great statesman. His previous record has made him notorious as a man who would compass his ends at almost any cost, but there was a belief that he would appreciate the opportunities opened to him as an avowed presidential candidate and pursue that course of conduct which would merit the approval of all who are without selfish interests to serve. But despite his pronouncement against crude and hasty legislation and the dictates of policy as affecting his political prospects, he has promoted a most disastrous course of legislative proceeding.

An obsequious committee on ways and means whipped through the house, after a discussion of three hours and forty minutes, a tariff bill covering more than 3,000 articles of import. With a like want of consideration there was rushed through a financial measure providing for large government loans and purporting to relieve the treasury of grave embarrassments. The tariff measure is an arrant imposture, intended not to raise $40,000,000 of revenue as pretended, but to gain firmer hold upon the element of wealth within the party for which its sinews of war are derived. So far as can be gathered from the evidence obtainable, the financial bill, instead of affording any permanent relief to the treasury by its issue of "coin" bonds at three per cent. interest and for the prevention of the retirement of the greenbacks, was intended chiefly to conciliate the bonanza miners and the champions of fiat money.

In view of these facts as well as of the further fact that the measures referred to are to be the subject of long discussion in the senate, where every financial heresy has an advocate among the republicans or their populist allies, the expected happened when Secretary Carlisle made his latest issue of bonds. Time and time again President Cleveland has given the country the most positive assurance that he would under any and all circumstances maintain the public credit by maintaining the gold reserve. When impending financial disaster became sufficiently probable to make delay hazardous, the promise was made good. A four per cent. bond alone could be issued under existing law. Everything that would tend to popularize it has been done and provision is made for the issuance of bonds under a new law should it be provided in time to make such a step practicable.

The pledge of the administration has been carried out as a matter of safety. The course of the republican party with the radical difference of sentiment that has asserted itself in the senate, has not been such as to create faith at home or in the financial world. The people, whose most vital interests are at stake, will not consent that partisanship shall prevail to jeopardize public and private credit. Thus far the majority in congress has impressed the country with a conviction that there are divided councils and greater efforts for factional advantage than for the general good. It is a matter for the heartiest congratulation that there is a strong administration to meet the dangers with which congress is showing itself incompetent to cope.—Detroit Free Press.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——Several republican members of congress have shown that it is not in them to be patriotic for more than three days at a stretch.—Detroit Free Press.

——The 47 republicans who voted against Czar Reed's bond bill will see that Mr. Reed gets no votes from the parts of the country which they represent.—St. Paul Globe.

——If Mr. Foraker and Mr. McKinley will settle their difficulties in Ohio, we will go on with the presidential aspirations of the various candidates. We pause for a reply.—Iowa State Register. (Rep.).

——With a man like Sherman going wrong on the financial question, a suspicion is aroused that the g. o. p. is getting ready for another national platform that will mean just what anybody wants it to.—Detroit Free Press.

——The republicans are again in control in congress, but the tenure of their power will depend on the character of their stewardship. If they fail to meet the just requirements of all intelligent and patriotic people the next election will result in their overwhelming defeat and condemnation. The claims that bind voters to party are no longer steel or iron, and the first exhibition of selfishness in legislation will provoke such a destruction of links and strands as will make the future party contests problematical.—Kansas City Star.

ITS EFFECT ON WOOLENS.

The Republican Tariff Policy is Fatal to Business.

We have shown how the tariff policy of the republican party, as expressed by the bill recently passed, would increase the cost of woolen goods, both foreign and domestic, to consumers. The bill calls for an addition of about 30 per cent. to the cost of foreign woolens until August 1, 1898, and the party leaders openly promise to make a further increase at that time if they shall have the power to make it. On the other hand, they would increase the cost of domestic woolens now by adding 42½ per cent. to the cost of the raw material, with the understanding that they intend to add about 30 per cent. more by and by.

We invite the attention of American manufacturers of woolens to the effect of such a policy. They have been using great quantities of wool, both foreign and domestic, during the last 11 months. They have been able to use the best wools of the world free of tariff tax. They have imported more than 125,000,000 pounds of clothing wools. Having set out to adapt their industry to the new conditions and to take advantage of them, they are now threatened by the republican party with the imposition in the near future (if the house bill should or could become a law) of a duty which would increase the cost of such wool by 42½ per cent., or from an average of 15½ cents to about 22 cents a pound, and with "compensation" amounting to about 30 per cent. of the value of foreign woolens.

It is openly proclaimed, moreover, by the republican leaders that they would prefer now to impose a duty which would increase the cost price of such wool from 15½ cents to 26½ cents a pound, and the promise is clearly made that they will impose this additional tax in 1898 if they shall then control the government.

That is to say, the republican policy, as affecting the American manufacturers of woolens, is to take the manufacturers' raw material from the free list now and tax it for 42½ per cent. for two years, and at the end of the two years to increase the tax to more than 70 per cent. What must be the effect of such repeated disturbance upon any great industry? What would be the effect of it upon the domestic manufacture of woolen goods? Can such a policy be adopted by American woolen manufacturers with complacency? We urge them to give the matter thoughtful consideration.—N. Y. Times.

TINKERING THE TARIFF.

Trust Agents Manipulating the Republican Statesmen.

Czar Reed's party in congress is about to treat the country to one of the most unique specimens of tariff tinkering ever witnessed. Lobbyists of various interests are gathering at the federal capital, like vultures at the odor of carrion. They come from near and far to give counsel to the lawmakers about what industry should be protected by further legislation, and show cause why the ones they are retained by should be considered of most importance to the people in the land. The wool man, the sugar man, the iron man, the tin man, the coal man—will all abuse themselves hoarse trying to prove their rights to thrust their arms into the people's pockets and rob them right and left.

The national lawmakers, under this incitement, if not naturally, will begin [illegible] for home interests. They will [illegible] "rag" for increasing the revenues of Uncle Sam $40,000,000 a year. Each congressman will try to tickle his own constituency to fix up his fences for reelection.

And this tariff tinkering will go on, engineered by Mr. Reed's party, for the benefit of plutocratic monopolists, until the trusts [illegible] and store the bandit tribute levied upon the people by the McKinley robber tariff, and [illegible] the people again repudiate that party at the polls.—Illinois State Register.

——After a great triumph at the polls Ohio republicans are preparing for a dangerous conflict over the patronage. The Foraker element is on top, and the leaders are [illegible] the spoils system. It is the Foraker men who are now opposed to third terminism for the men who have held the offices during McKinley's two administrations. They will carry the day, too, and the rotation will begin soon. [illegible] the inevitable dissatisfaction accompanying a distribution of the spoils, and it is certain to add to the disturbance of the public service, due to putting it in inexperienced hands. Ohio republicans will be fortunate if all these [illegible] do not [illegible] their party.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

W. L. RIDDELL, Proprietor.

LOUISVILLE discovered, before the balloting was begun, that she had no chance to land the Democratic National Convention, and all Democrats should rejoice that she was not in the contest. Louisville ought not to ask anything of the Democratic party.

The way to cure a cough is to stop the coughing. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey cuts loose the mucous, heals the lungs and bronchial tubes quickly. Cures grip cough in one night. Guaranteed by all dealers. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington, and T. B. Castleman, Florence, Buchanan & Co., Petersburg, O N. Grant, Grant, Ky.

MCKINLEY has nothing to do now except look after his Presidential boom, which needs attention very much at this time. The Republican people are beginning to think he is a single ply statesman, and are inclined to join Tom Reed or some other Presidential aspirant whose qualifications for President are not so distressingly limited.

IT did not take the Ohio legislature very long to elect J. B. Foraker to succeed Hon. Calvin S. Brice. Mr. Foraker's declaration on the money question is being construed by both gold bugs and silverites to be favorable to them. He did say that the demonetization of silver by the world was a mistake a statement which construes its self.

Weak eyes are made strong, dim vision is made clear, styes are removed and granulated lids or sore eyes of any kind may be speedily and effectually cured by the use of Sutherland's Eagle Eye Salve. A BILL has been introduced in the legislature which if passed will abolish the office of County Assessor. The measure has many advocates who believe that the work of that office can be done at less cost and more satisfactorily if given to the Justices of the Peace, each of whom will assess his district. Should the Assessor's work be divided out between the Justices it would make their offices worth more than at present.

THERE will be nothing gained for the Democracy in this State by the Democratic members of the Legislature trying to prevent the election of a Republican United States Senator by filibustering. The voters at the last State election spoke in favor of turning the offices over to the Republicans, and it is folly to try to hold on to them by questionable means. The medicine has been prescribed and now let the party take it, and determine that it shall be the last dose.

A mountain correspondent of the Stanford Interior Journal thus describes a meeting with a moonshiner: "Near Ellisburg I caught up with a man with a pair of new boots tied together and thrown across his shoulder. He seemed to be pretty boozy, but stopped all he met to ask if they wanted any moonshine. There being no jug in sight I asked him where it was. He showed me he had a quart bottle full in each boot and a gallon in his coal oil can that he carried."

GOV. BRADLEY is very much in trouble just now. He appointed a negro saloon-keeper at Hopkinsville stewart of the Western Lunatic Asylum. The position is a responsible one with a good salary attached, and many white Republicans sought the appointment. When the plum fell into the negro's lap, the white Republicans in Christian county became greatly enraged, and are now almost in open rebellion against the Governor, who hopes the Democratic Senate will come to his rescue by refusing to confirm the negro. The Senate ought to stand by the Governor and confirm his appointment.

Good Old Granny Metcalf, 86 years old, living at 618 Monroe street, Paducah, Ky., says that Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey is the best grip cure, cough, lung and bronchial remedy that has been offered during her life. It cost R. J. Patterson, of near Cloverport, this State, $160 to send 208 barrels of apples to Liverpool, England; but as he got $500 for his apples, he's not grumbling; and the item itself is of interest in that it shows what it costs to ship apples from Kentucky to Liverpool.

The Maysville Fair Grounds, including about 100 acres of land, were sold recently by the assignee for $11,000. Thomas A. Keith, of that city, is the purchaser. The buildings alone cost over $13,000 a few years ago. The preferred debt of the company are about $10,000.

The dead body of B. J. Cloud, of Clark county, was found in a field frozen stiff and the fingers eaten off by field mice. Cloud was a well known stock trader, and was under the influence of liqnor when last seen alive. The supposition is that he had been dead some days when found.

The ministers of Frankfort held a meeting and accepted the invitation of the House of Representatives to open that body with prayer each morning. They will take this course alphabetically, according to name, both white and colored, and notice fixing dates will be published for the information of the legislature.—Argus.

The trouble with our friends in the Kentucky Legislature is," said the most prominent member of the National Democratic Committee, the Courier Journal's correspondent, "that the Republicans will have absolute control of the Federal Senate March 4, 1897, and will admit the Senator whom the Republican members of the Legislature cast their votes for if a constitutional quorum is present. There is no doubt of this. Otherwise the Democrats could fight off the election perhaps to their advantage. As it is I look for a Republican Senator from Kentucky as the successor of Senator Blackburn. It is pretty tough, but we will have to stand it. I take but little stock in these after-the-election fights. The time for Democrats to do their fighting for their men and party is in the campaign and at the polls. The National Democracy will waste no sympathy on the Democrats in Kentucky in their present efforts. The best thing they can do is to throw up their hands and take their medicine, and get ready for next November.—C. J.

Mr. Will Skillman has had sore eyes for years. The RECORDER owes its Hathaway correspondent and Mr. Robert Adams an apology, for allowing an error to creep into the Hathaway items last week whereby Mr. Adams was reported as giving a dance, when correspondent wrote, "party." The typo misread his copy, a thing that will sometimes occur.

I desire to thank all my friends and patrons for their past favors and solicit a continuance of the same, and take this method of informing the public that I will be found, from now on, at my shop in Bellevue on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week. All work done promptly and at reasonable prices. Jos. M. BIRKLE.

Floyd, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ryle, of Erlanger, was bitten by a dog with which he was playing last Wednesday. The child was brought to Burlington on Thursday and the Tanner mad-stone was applied to the wound to which it adhered for about thirty minutes. The dog had shown no signs of hydrophobia, but the stone was applied as a precaution.

An assistant Hamilton county, Ohio, prosecutor and a detective called on Jack Horton at the jail, one day last week. They spent some time with Horton and informed him that he, Ward and Lightner had been indicted for murder in the first degree by the Hamilton county grand jury. Horton reiterated his confession implicating himself, Ward and Lightner, saying that he had contradicted the confession on a former occasion because he was afraid of Ward. Horton says he does not see how he can be hurt as he took no part in the killing—only saw it done.

Quite an enjoyable day was spent last Tuesday at the home of Uncle Jim and Aunt Alcinda Delph. The occasion was their annual woodsawing, and the word was received with delight by the ladies as well as the gentlemen. The dinner deserves special notice, for with 13 of old Boone's best cooks, it was sure to be a success, and was highly appreciated by the men after a forenoon of hard work. Everything served was of the very best quality and plenty of it. Dinner being over the gentlemen returned to their work, while the ladies assembled around the open fireplace with the view of cultivating sociability and with such an entertaining spirit as Mrs. Cy Crisler, the afternoon passed very pleasantly, and at the close of the day, goodbye was reluctantly said.

"Miss Monica Utz, 16, daughter of Mrs. Anna Utz, of 22 West [illegible] Street, Covington, had a miraculous escape shortly after 8 o'clock this morning from being ground to death beneath the wheels of south-bound L. & N. train.

"Miss Utz is a pupil of the high school and was on her way to her studies at the time of the accident. She was crossing the C. & O. tracks on Russell Street, and, unmindful of the fact that a train was not 50 feet away, she walked directly in front of the engine. The next instant the cow-catcher on the engine struck Miss Utz, hurling her fortunately to one side. In falling, however, she was thrown up against the depot platform at that point and would have been thrown back under the wheels of the engine had not Mr. Nat Poyntz, an expressman, who was standing near by, run to her assistance. He noticed Miss Utz before the engine struck her and saw at a glance that she was absorbed in something and unconscious of her danger. He called to her, but she did not pay any attention to the warning. After she was struck Poyntz caught hold of her and prevented her from falling back on the track. It was at first thought that Miss Utz was badly injured. She was assisted to her feet, when it was seen that she sustained only a slight sprain of the right ankle.

"Miss Utz was able to walk to her home, where Dr. J. C. Terrill attended her. She was completely prostrated after she arrived home, but later she recovered somewhat from the shock and will be all right again in a few days. Miss Utz has been ill for some days and was compelled to be absent from school. She is a hard student and despite her mother's objection she insisted upon going to school today. She had been taking quinine for the past few days and it affected her hearing, it is thought."

A BIG VERDICT.

Mr. Simeon Tanner, the present constable at Constance, was employed as a carpenter at the plant of the consolidated distilling company (a branch of the whisky trust), just west of Millcreek in Cincinnati, Ohio, on November 2nd, 1894, and while standing in a drive way in the rear of the distillery, sawing boards to be used in siding up a boiler shed, about ten feet of the top of a large sheet iron smokestack fell upon, and injured him severely. The stack was being painted at the time by a colored man, who was working under a boss painter, who had a contract to paint all the smoke stacks on defendant's premises. The painter was suspended from the top of the stack by means of hook, ropes and swinging seat, and his weight, combined with the defective condition of the stack at the point where it broke, caused the same to break and fall on Mr. Tanner. His injuries consisted of a broken leg above the knee, a severe injury to his right knee, which will cripple him for life, and other painful cuts and bruises on and about his body. He employed Atty. J. C. Clore to bring suit in the United States Court for damages.

Judge Taft, referred same to a special Master to hear testimony and report to him. The case was heard before Mr. Henry A. Morrill, and was defended by C. B. Mathews, a brother of Justice Stanley Mathews, at one time, a Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, and ex-Judge Shroder, of the Common Pleas Court. After taking all the testimony before Mr. Morrill, the case was argued five days and, about three weeks thereafter, Mr. Morrill filed a fifteen-page typewritten report, finding in Tanner's favor, and allowing him damages in the sum $3,200.

This report was filed with the clerk of the United States Circuit Court, and came up before Judge Taft for confirmation. The plaintiff excepted to the amount as being too small, and asked for an increase. The defendants excepted to every finding in the report, and asked to have same set aside. Judge Taft sustained every finding of law and fact made by the Master, and increased the amount from $3,200 to $4,500.

At this point, the defendants took an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, which, if prosecuted to final judgment, would have kept the plaintiff out of his money for six months. He therefore settled the case last Monday week for $4,000, defendant paying all costs. Mr. Thos. L. Michie assisted Mr Clore.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Teachers' Association of the First Magisterial District was held at the Bullittsville school house, last Saturday. The teachers present were Messrs. L. H. Voshell, T. W. Balsly, O. C. Stephens, William Gaines, H. L. Harrison and Misses Sadie Kirtley and Etta Graves.

The meeting was called to order by Prof. Voshell.

The welcome address by O. C. Stephens was short, but to the point and was appreciated by all present.

Prof. William Gaines addressed the meeting on compulsory education, which subject he affirmed in a very able manner.

Prof. Voshell, in his usually entertaining style, made an interesting talk on general topics.

"How to Secure Cooperation of patrons," was discussed in a general manner, teachers to whom it had been assigned, not being present.

"How to Improve the Present Trustee System," was handled in a very satisfactory manner by T. W. Balsly, the other gentlemen who were to assist him not being present.

"How can we Extend the Length of the School Term," brought out another interesting talk on the part of Supt. Voshell, after which the Association adjourned for dinner, when an ample repast was served.

Afternoon—"Amendments to the School Law" were discussed in a general way. The subject was followed by experience in the School Room for the Term," by Miss Fannie Finch and H. L. Harrison. This closed the programme, and the meeting was voted a success in every particular.

The following resolutions were adopted.

Resolved, That we, the teachers of this the First Magisterial District of Boone county, do appoint Superintendent Voshell a committee to State our objections to the present School Law System to the proper State authorities as we believe it to be our only method of obtaining redress of grievances.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Boone County RECORDER.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Recorder;

I think it would be advisable for you to procure a more reliable correspondent from Erlanger. The little item that appeared in your paper of last week to the effect that I anticipate entering the coal business, &c., for the ensuing year is an infamous lie. This is about the second time I have suffered a slam from his pen, and is about twice too often, and I would kindly inform him if it occurs again it will not be so well for him. I think if he would embark in honest business instead of roaming over the country, living off of others, it would show more good, hard sense. I would suggest that he accept the position he so kindly offers others as it would better suit his station than trying to pose as a correspondent for your valuable paper.

Very Respectfully,
CLAYTON WALTON.

Prof. Collin's school will be out in a few days, and he has a subscription paper in circulation, [illegible] for a spring term.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Adams, Mrs J. G. Furnish and J. C. Revill, united with the Baptist church at this place last Saturday, by letter.

Hon. J. G. Furnish came home last Friday evening and remained until Monday morning, when he returned to his legislative duties at Frankfort.

Warren Meeks, of the Dry Creek, Kenton county neighborhood, was in town last Thursday to see about giving a concert here at an early date in the future.

F. Riddell's commission as notary public bears date January 13, 1896, and he claims that his is the first appointment made in this county by Gov. Bradley.

Among our visitors last week was Mr. Andrew Acra, of Middle creek, an associate of our boyhood. Us frisky boys of years ago are bearing silvery locks and other marks of fleeting time.

Messrs H. G. Blanton and Charles Souther, of Erlanger, were in town Sunday evening, ostensibly for the purpose of securing the promise of some of Burlington's musical talent to assist in the concert at that place, February 22, for the benefit of the Baptist church.

James Smith, who resides on Long Branch, was in town one day last week. Mr. Smith says that for many years he very seldom ever came to Burlington, but in the last few years he comes over quite often, and the habit appears to be growing on him, so much so that when a county court day comes around if it is too cold and rough to ride, he cuts a stick and walks. The only inconvenience he encounters on his journey to the capital presents itself in the shape of a very large black dog about two miles out of town, and which sometimes forces him to take part in a foot race for 200 or 300 yards. Fortunately Mr. Smith has, so far, come out winner in every contest, although he was a reluctant entry.

AN OPEN LETTER.

VERONA, KY., Jany., 18, 1896.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Desiring to make an explanation and to correct a misrepresentation to the people of this community, I find it most convenient to do so through the columns of the RECORDER.

First.—The petition which was drawn up in regard to the drug business (not whisky business) was written by me, but not before careful and serious consideration and consultation with many prominent citizens of this precinct. I considered it then, as now, both right and needful in my business, and I was both sorry and surprised to see an opposing faction arise in sudden rebellion. Some opposed it from a conscientious stand-point, which was right, of course; but many, I believe, were influenced to oppose it through misunderstanding and misrepresentation.

But upon hearing of the opposition which I had it took me but a short time to arrive at a different conclusion and that was to surrender my petition, and restore peace and harmony in the community, and avoid harsh feelings which might otherwise exist against me by not understanding our petition. Our petition simply called for a vote of the people of the precinct of Verona for the right to keep and sell whisky and wines as a medicine and not as a beverage. But the opposite is so often the result that our first impressions are invariably thus. Hence our opposition and compromise.

I was also misrepresented in another particular, doing me gross injustice. That was this: That when I purchased my business location here, that I agreed never to have any whisky or wine in the house. Suffice it to say that is false, as business men or intelligent men will readily recognize. I am not an advocate of the whisky traffic. I oppose it as a beverage, but as a medicine it is often as needful as any drug kept in a store. While it has profited nor lost anyone nothing, the discussion has been funny. Someone has said that the only difference between a temperance man and one who makes no profession towards temperance is that the latter will enter a saloon at the front door, while the temperance man will put himself to the inconvenience of going round to the side door. But I am not prepared to accept that. I know there are people more temperate than that. Rather than enter a saloon I would order my beverage by the jug or even by the keg, and have it shipped to some distant express office in the name of some of my deceased or feeble ancestors, then slip out some bright, moonshine night, bring it home and turn the key. Then if my neighbor should visit me the following day he would be none the wiser, and I would save the dram, which, otherwise I might be obligated to give him. And now in conclusion I am sorry to state that after I surrendered my petitions and offered to burn them the opposing party objected and continued to agitate the question, and sought signatures to an opposing petition all the following week, which I consider gross injustice to me and my friends, which also releases me from any obligation if I choose to carry my petition through. Very Respectfully,
J. H. MARSHALL

PETERSBURG—The citizens of our town were made sad, last Saturday morning, by the speedy news that Wade H. Tilley had died rather suddenly at 6 o'clock. He first took the mumps about two weeks ago and rheumatism followed. He had been thought quite sick, but so little prepared were the family for the calamitous event that no one was watching when the spirit took its flight. It is the universal verdict here that a model, christian young man has gone to rest. Only about 23 years of age, with the prospect of a useful life before him, it is a mysterious providence that should have taken him and left the aged, the crippled, the disabled. The funeral took place from the Christian Church, of which he was an honored member, Monday at 1:30 o'clock p. m. To the bereaved father, mother and brothers, the sympathy of the whole town and community is extended The one great thing now to be desired is, that his bright example of sobriety, uprightness and purity of life may be imitated by his many young comrades, among whom he was the acknowledged favorite.

A juicy one is told on a prominent stock buyer of this place. A man living near town went to him and wanted to sell a cow for $15. "$15 for a cow!" said the p. s. b. "Why, she isn't worth 15 shocks of fodder. Now, I have a No. 1 milch cow that I'll sell for $15" "You will?" said the man. "Yes," replied the p. s. b. "Well," said the man, "Here is the money," drawing it from his pocket, "and she is my cow." "Hold on, my wife has something to say in the selling of that cow," said the p. s. b. "Not a thing," said the man, "You've said it all" and he drove off a fine milch cow worth $25 or $30.

Mrs. Fannie Stephens, who is suffering with a severe attack of pneumonia, was the only one of Mrs. Waite's daughters that was not at her funeral. It is cheering to know, that, at this writing, she is much better.

Dogs, sometimes in the lonely hours of the night, pay visits to former homes. This was illustrated a few nights ago, when some gentlemen prone to midnight promenades were paying a visit of inspection to either Mrs. Arnold's smoke house or hen house. The time was 1 a. m. By chance, a dog that had been raised on the premises, paid the place a flying visit at the same time, and finding strangers prowling around the house at that unusual hour raised a greater racket than the muchly advertised "Seven Barks medicine" once did. The noise woke the inmates who were preparing to go out and show the the intruders around, when they suddenly left, after vainly trying to chase the dog out of the yard.

A new theory in the treatment of coughs, lung and bronchial affections has been advanced by the manufacturers of Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. It is truly a wonderful remedy. All dealers sell it on a positive guarantee. For sale by W. F. McKim, Burlington, T B. Castleman, Florence, Buchanan & Co., Petersburg, O. N. Grant, Grant.

La Grippe, for Colds, Coughs, AND LUNG TROUBLES,
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband,—reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,—procured, for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. I have used the Pectoral for my children and in my family, whenever we have needed it, and have found it a specific for colds, coughs, and lung troubles."—EMILY WOOD, North St., Elkton, Md.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WHIPPING LITTLE GIRLS.

An Effort Is Asked For to Abolish the Privilege in England.

The authorized flogging of little girls is a piece of barbarism which now that the subject has been definitely raised, will receive, we trust, no countenance from the home secretary, says the London Daily News. Mr. Riley says that girls in the elementary schools are caned, a bit of information which we commend to the immediate notice of Sir John Gorst. The public of London has outgrown the days of Mother Brownrigg, and Mother Brownrigg, as the Newgate "calendar" informs us, was not sustained by judge, jury, public opinion, or Jack Ketch in her theories and her practices as to the castigation of girls. There were philosophers, to be sure, who approved of the whipping of girls. Locke approved of a mother who whipped her little daughter nine times in order to compel her to confess some error; and Johnson commended a mother who whipped her daughter in the interest of future truthfulness because the girl had said she came in through one door, when in fact she had come in through another. But those were days when children were supposed to be born only that they might be birched as far as possible out of their share of original sin. Women were publicly flogged at the cart's tail in the days of Locke and of Johnson—and, of course, in the interest of discipline and order and morals. We cannot go back to those days, and any serious and public attempt to get back to them would be an absurdity as well as an outrage.

TENNESSEE WILL CELEBRATE.

Purpose of the Centennial Which Will Be Observed Next Year.

The purposes of the Tennessee centennial are threefold. First, to celebrate the state's birth. Second, to show the rest of the sisterhood how really important Tennessee is. Third, to show Tennesseeans whatever the other states and foreign countries may want to show them. According to history, Vermont and Kentucky preceded Tennessee into the union, but in a good-natured way Tennesseeans claim that the technicalities in the case entitle their commonwealth to the right of the first born. At any rate, Tennessee is the first to celebrate the 100th anniversary of her statehood, and that thought has awakened an unprecedented patriotism throughout the state. The products of the commonwealth are peculiarly well adapted to display. No state is famous in more lines than Tennessee. In the production of marble, iron, zinc and coal, the state is known throughout the land, as it is for the growing of tobacco, wheat, corn and cotton, and as the home of race horses and fine cattle. More hard woods are annually cut in Tennessee than in any other state, and within 30 miles of the capital there are boundless beds of phosphate. What Tennessee puts on display at her exposition will astonish the world. From abroad it is intended to bring the striking inventions and arts of man wherever found.

If you have borrowed from health to satisfy the demands of business, if your blood is not getting that constant supply of fat from your food it should have, you must pay back from somewhere, and the somewhere will be from the fat stored up in the body.

The sign of this borrowing is thinness; the result, nervousness. You need fat to keep the blood in health unless you want to live with no reserve force—live from hand to mouth. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"Let the Redeemed of the Lord Say so," the Text.

Spread the Glad Story Over the Land—Many Recite Experiences of Every-Day Life, But Never Tell of the Good Done by the Lord.

Rev. Dr. Talmage never produced a more practical and suggestive sermon than Sunday. We believe it will stir Christendom. His subject was "Say so," and the text selected was Psalms cvii, 2: "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

An overture, an antiphone, a doxology is this chapter, and in my text David calls for an outspoken religion, and requests all who have been rescued and blessed no longer to hide the splendid facts, but to recite them, publish them, and as far as possible let all the world know about it. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." There is a sinful reticence which has been almost canonized. The people are quite as outspoken as they ought to be on all subjects of politics, and are fluent and voluble on the Venezuelan question and bimetallism, and tariffs high and low and remodeled, and female suffrage, and you have to skillfully watch your chance if you want to put into the active conversation a modest suggestion of your own; but on the subject of divine goodness, religious experience, and eternal blessedness they are not only silent, but boastful of their reticence. Now if you have been redeemed of the Lord, why do you not say so? If you have in your heart the pearl of great price, worth more than the Koh-i-noor among Victorian jewels, why not let others see it? If you got off the wreck in the breakers, why not tell of the crew and the stout lifeboat that safely landed you? If from the fourth story you are rescued in time of conflagration, why not tell of the fireman and the ladder down which he carried you? If you have a mansion in Heaven awaiting you, why not show the deed to those who may by the same process get an emerald castle on the same boulevard? By the last two words of my text David calls upon all of us who have received any mercy at the hand of God to stop impersonating the asylums for the dumb, and in the presence of men, women, angels, devils, and all worlds, "say so."

In these January days thousands of ministers and private Christians are wondering about the best ways of starting a revival of religion. I can tell you a way of starting a revival, continental, hemispheric and world-wide. You say a revival starts in Heaven. Well, it starts in Heaven just as a prosperous harvest starts in Heaven. The sun must shine and the rain must descend, but unless you plow and sow and cultivate the earth you will not raise a bushel of wheat or a peck of corn between now and the end of the world. How, then, shall a universal revival start? By all Christian people telling the story of their own conversion. Let ten men and women get up next week in your prayer meeting and, not in a conventional or canting or doleful way, but in the same tone they employ in the family or place of business, and tell how they crossed the line, and the revival will begin then and there, if the prayer meeting has not been so dull as to drive out all except those concerning whom it was foreordained from all eternity that they should be there. There are so many different ways of being converted that we want to hear all kinds, so that our own case may be helped. It always puts me back to hear only one kind of experience, such as a man gives when he tells of his Pauline conversion—how he was knocked senseless, and then had a vision and heard voices, and after certain number of days of horror got up and shouted for joy. All that discourages me, for I was never knocked senseless, and I never had such a sudden burst of religious rapture that I lost my equilibrium. But after awhile a Christian man got up in some meeting and told us how he was brought up by a devout parentage, and had always been thoughtful about religious things, and gradually the peace of the Gospel came into his soul like the dawn of the morning—no perceptible difference between moment and moment—but after awhile all perturbation settled down into a hope that had consoled and strengthened him during all the vicissitudes of a lifetime, I said: "That is exhilarating; that was my experience," and so I was strengthened. In another prayer meeting a man got up and told us how he once hated God and went through all the round of iniquity, until we were all on nettles lest he should go too much into the particulars, but one day he was by some religious power hurled flat and then got up a Christian, and had ever since been going around with a Baxter Bible with large flaps under his arm, a floating evangelist.

Well, under this story many are not helped at all, for they know they never hated God, and they were never dissolute. But after awhile some Christian woman arises and says: "I have nothing extraordinary to tell, yet I think the cares of life, the anxieties about my children, and two graves opened in our family plot, made me feel the need of God, and weak and helpless and heart-broken, I flung myself upon His mercy, and I feel what the Bible calls the 'peace of God which passeth all understanding,' and I ask your prayers that I may live nearer to the Christ who has done so much for me." I declare that before that woman got through we were all crying, not bitter tears, but tears of joyful emotion, and in three days, in that neighborhood, all the ice had gone out of the river in a spring-time freshet of salvation. "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

I have but little interest in what people say about religion as an abstraction, but I have illimitable interest in what people say about what they have personally felt of religion. It was an expression of his own gratitude for personal salvation which led Charles Wesley, after a season of great despondency about his soul, and Christ had spoken pardon, to write that immortal hymn:

Oh, for a thousand tongues, to sing
My great Redeemer's praise.

It was after Abraham Lincoln had been comforted in the loss of "Tad," the bright boy of the white house, that he said: "I now see as never before the preciousness of God's love in Jesus Christ, and how we are brought near to God as our Father by Him."

What a thrill went through the meeting in Portland, Ore., when an ex-attorney general of the United States arose and said: "Last night I got up and asked the prayers of God's people. I feel now perfectly satisfied. The burden is rolled off and all gone, and I feel that I could run or fly into the arms of Jesus Christ."

What a record for all time and eternity was made by Gellacius, the play actor, in the theater at Heliopolis. A burlesque of Christianity was put upon the stage. In derision of the ordinance of baptism a bath tub, filled with water, was put upon the stage, and another actor, in awful blasphemy, dipped Gellacius, pronouncing [illegible] the Holy Ghost. Coming fresh from the burlesque baptism, he looked changed, and was changed, and he cried out to the audience, "I am a Christian; I will die as a Christian." Though he was dragged out and stoned to death, they could not drown the testimony made under such awful circumstances, "I am a Christian; I will die as a Christian." "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so."

What a confirmation would come if all who had answers to prayers would speak out! If all merchants in tight places because of hard times would tell how, in response to supplication, they got the money to pay the note. If all farmers in time of drought would tell how, in answer to prayer, the rain came just in time to save the crop. If all parents who prayed for a wandering son to come home would tell how, not long after, they heard the boy's hand on the latch of the front door.

Samuel Hick, an English Methodist preacher, solicited aid for West India missions from a rich miser and failed. Then the minister dropped on his knees, and the miser said, "I will give thee a guinea if thou wilt give over." But the minister continued to pray, until the miser said, "I will give thee two guineas if thou wilt give over." Then the money was taken to the missionary meeting. Oh, the power of prayer! Melancthon, utterly discouraged, was passing along a place where children were heard praying, and he came back, saying: "Brethren, take courage; the children are praying for us." Nothing can stand before prayer. An infidel came into a Bible class to ask puzzling questions. Many of the neighbors came in to hear the discussion. The infidel arose and said to the leader of the Bible class: "I hear you allow questions asked?" "Oh, yes," said the leader; "but at the start let us kneel down and ask God to guide us." "Oh, no," said the infidel, "I did not come to pray; I came to discuss." "But," said the leader, "you will of course submit to our rule, and that is always to begin with prayer." The leader knelt in prayer, and then arose and said to the infidel: "Now you pray." The infidel replied: "I can not pray; I have no God to pray to. Let me go! Let me go!" The spectators who expected fun, found nothing but overpowering solemnity, and a revival started, and among the first who were brought in was the infidel. That prayer did it. In all our lives there have been times when we felt that prayer was answered. Then let us say so.

There lingers on this side of the river that divides earth from Heaven, ready at any time to cross over, the apostle of prayer for this century, Jeremiah Calvin Lamphier, the founder of the Fulton Street prayer meeting, and if he should put on his spectacles and read this I salute him as more qualified than any man since Bible times in demonstrating what prayer can do. Dear Brother Lamphier! The high Heavens are full of his fame. Having announced a meeting for 12 o'clock, September 23, 1857, he sat in the upper room on Fulton street, New York, waiting for people to come. He waited for a half hour, and then a footfall was heard on the steps, and after awhile in all six persons arrived; but the next day 20, and the next day 40, and from that time to this, for over thirty-eight years, every day, Sabbath excepted, the Fulton street prayer meeting has been a place where people have asked prayer and answers to prayer have been announced, and the throb of that great heart of supplication has thrilled not only into the Heavens, but clear around the world, more than any spot on earth. That has been the place where the redeemed of the Lord said so!

Let the same outspokenness be employed toward those by whom we have been personally advantaged. We wait until they are dead before we say so. Your parents have planned for your best interests all these years. They may sometimes, their nervous systems used up by the cares, the losses, the disappointments the worriments of life, be more irritable than they ought to be, and they probably have faults which have become oppressive as the years go by. But those eyes, long before they took on spectacles, were watching for your welfare, and their hands, not so smooth and much more deeply lined than once, have done for you many a good day's work. Life has been to them more of a struggle than you will ever know about, and much of the struggle has been for you, and how much they are wrapped up in your welfare you will never appreciate. Have you by word or gift or behavior expressed your thanks? Or if you can not quite get up to say it face to face, have you written it in some holiday salutation? The time will soon pass, and they will be gone out of your sight, and their ears will not hear and their eyes will not see. If you owe them any kindness of deed or any words of appreciation, why do you not say so?

In conjugal life the honeymoon is soon past and the twain take it for granted that each is thoroughly understood. How dependent on each other they become, and the years go by, and perhaps nothing is said to make the other fully understand that sense of dependence. Impatient words sometimes come forth and motives are misinterpreted, and it is taken as a matter of course that the two will walk the path of life side by side until about the same time their journey shall be ended; but some sudden and appalling illness unloosens the right hands that were clasped years before at the altar of orange blossoms, the parting takes place, and among the worst of all sorrows is that you did not oftener, if you ever did at all, tell her or tell him how indispensable she was, or how indispensable he was to your happiness, and that in some plain, square talk, long ago, you did not ask for forgiveness for infirmities and neglects, and by some unlimited utterance make it understood that you fully appreciated the fidelity and re-enforcement of many years. Alas! how many such have to lament the rest of their lives: "Oh, if I had only said so!"

My subject takes a wider range. The Lord has hundreds of thousands of people among those who have never joined His army because of some high ideal of what a Christian should be, or because of a spirit of procrastination. They have never publicly professed Christ. They have as much right to the sacrament and as much right to all privileges of the church as thousands who have for years been enrolled in church membership, and yet they have made no positive utterance by which the world may know they love God and are on the road to Heaven. They are redeemed of the Lord, and yet do not say so. Oh, what an augmentation it would be if by some Divine impulse all those outsiders should become insiders. I tell you what would bring them to their right places, and, perhaps, nothing else will. Days of persecution! If they were compelled to take sides as between Christ and His enemies, they would take the side of Christ, and the fagots and the instruments of torture, and the anathemas of all earth and hell would not make them blanch. Martyrs are made out of such stuff as they are. But let them not wait for such days as I pray [illegible] obligations, [illegible] Let the redeemed of the Lord say so.

This chapter from which I take my text mentions several classes of persons who ought to be outspoken; among them all those who go on a journey. What an opportunity you have, you who spend so much of your time on rail trains or on shipboard, whether on lake, or river or sea! Spread the story of God's goodness and your own redemption wherever you go. You will have many a long ride beside some one whom you will never see again. Some one who is waiting for one word of rescue or consolation. Make every railroad train and steamer a moving palace of saved souls. Casual conversations have harvested a great host for God. There are many Christian workers in pulpits, in mission stations, in Sabbath schools, in unheard-of places who are doing their best for God, and without any recognition. They go and come, and no one cheers them. Perhaps all the reward they get is harsh criticism, or repulse, or their own fatigue. If you have ever heard of any good they have done let them know about it. If you find some one benefited by their alms, or their prayers, or their cheering word, go and tell them. They may be almost ready to give up their mission. They may be almost in despair because of the seeming lack of results. One word from you may be an ordination that will start them on the chief work of their lifetime. A Christian woman said to her pastor, "My usefulness is done. I do not know why my life is spared any longer, because I can do no good." Then the pastor replied, "You do me great good every Sabbath." She asked "How do I do you any good?" And he replied: "In the first place, you are always in your seat in the church, and that helps me; and in the second place you are always wide awake and alert, looking right up into my face, and that helps me; and in the third place, I often see tears running down your cheeks, and that helps me." What a good thing he did not wait until she was dead before he said so!

There are hundreds of ministers who have hard work to make sermons because no one expresses any appreciation. They are afraid of making him vain. The moment the benediction is pronounced they turn on their heels and go out. Perhaps it was a subject on which he had put especial pains. He sought for the right text, and then did his best to put the old thought into some new shape. He had prayed that it might go to the hearts of the people. He had added to the argument the most vivid illustrations he could think of. He had delivered all with a power that left him nervously exhausted. Five hundred people may have been blessed by it and resolved upon a higher life and noble purpose. Yet all he hears is the clank of the pew door, or the shuffling of feet in the aisle, or some remark about the weather, the last resort of inanity. Why did not that man come up and say frankly, "You have done me good?"

Why did not some woman come up and say: I shall go home and take up the burden of life more cheerfully? Why did not some professional man come up and say: "Thank you, dominie, for that good advice. I will take it. God bless you?" Why did they not tell him so? I have known ministers, in the nervous reaction that comes to some soon after the delivery of a sermon, with no seeming result, to go home and roll on the floor in agony.

But to make up for this lack of outspoken religion there needs to be, and will be, a Great Day, when amid the solemnities and grandeur of a listening universe, God will "say so." No statistics can state how many mothers have rocked cradles and hovered over infantile sicknesses, and brought up their families to manhood and womanhood, and launched them upon useful and successful lives, and yet never received one "Thank you" that amounted to anything. The daughters became queens in social life or were advanced in the highest realms of prosperity; the sons took the first honors of the university and became radiant in monetary or professional spheres. Now the secret of all that uplifted maternal influence must come out. Society did not say so; the church did not say so; the world did not say so; but on that day of all other days, the last day, God will say so.

There are men to whom life is a grind and a conflict, hereditary tendencies to be overcome, accidental environments to be endured, appalling opposition to be met and conquered, and they never so much as had a rose pinned to their coat lapel in admiration. They never had a song dedicated to their name. They never had a book presented to them with complimentary word on the flyleaf. All they have to show for their lifetime battle is scars. But in the Last Day the storm will come out, and that life will be put in holy and transcendent rhythm, and their courage, and persistence, and faith, and victory will not only be announced, but rewarded. "These are they that came out of great tribulation and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb." God will say so!

We miss one of the chief ideas of a Last Judgment. We put into the picture the fire, and the smoke, and the earthquake, and the descending angels, and the uprising dead, but we omit to put into the picture that which makes the Last Judgment a magnificent opportunity. We omit the fact that it is to be a day of glorious explanation and condemnation. The first judgment that millions of unrewarded, and unrecognized, and unappreciated men and women get will be on that day, when services that never called forth so much as a newspaper line of finest pearl or diamond type, as the printers term it, shall be called up for coronation. That will be the day of enthronement for those whom the world called "Nobodies." Joshua, who commanded the sun and moon to stand still, needs no Last Judgment to get justice done him, but those men who do need a Last Judgment, who at times, in all armies, under the most violent assault, in obedience to command, themselves stood still. Deborah, who encouraged Barak to bravery in battle against the oppressors of Israel, needs no Last Judgment to get justice done her, for thousands of years have clapped her applause. But the wives who in ages have encouraged their husbands in the battles of life, women whose names were hardly known beyond the next street or the next farmhouse, must have God to say to them, "You did well! You did gloriously! I saw you down in that dairy. I watched you in the old farmhouse, mending those children's clothes. I heard what you said in the way of cheer when the bread-winner of the household was in despair. I remember all the sick cradles you have sung to. I remember the backaches, the headaches, the heartaches. I know the story of your knitting needle as well as I know the story of a queen's scepter. Your castle on the heavenly hill is all ready for you.

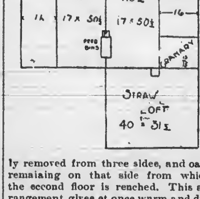
SPLENDID BANK BARN.

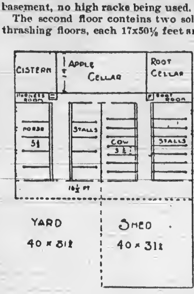
The Style Most Popular Among the Farmers of Pennsylvania.

It is an old saying that settlements of Pennsylvania Germans ("Dutch") may be known by their red barns and small houses. This is true of the barns, and, while the houses are not so large as the barns, they are always substantial and well furnished. The accompanying plans of a type of bank barn quite common in the central portion of the state. The size given is intended for a farm of 100 acres The length of the main structure is 65 feet, with a width of 60½ feet, there being an overshoot of 16½ feet in front. The shed for straw is 40 by 30½ feet. The basement or stable walls are built of stone, and are 10 feet to the floor above. The basement is furnished with large windows on three sides and will conveniently stable ten horses and 16 cows, besides giving space for a large cistern, apple cellar, root cellar, harness-room and root-room. This basement is entirely above ground, the earth being entirely removed from three sides, and only remaining on that side from which the second floor is reached. This arrangement gives at once warm and dry stables, which are well lighted and well ventilated. The ventilators are along the whole front of the stables, immediately under the barn floor and out under the overshoot. There is an unobstructed view over the whole basement, no high racks being used.

PENNSYLVANIA BANK BARN.



The second floor contains two solid thrashing floors, each 17x50½ feet and two hay mows each 16x50½ feet and 22 feet to the square. The arrangement of hay and straw funnels and of granary and feed bins is given in the cut, and will be found to be convenient for all purposes intended. The two hay mows which, owing to their great height, hold a large amount of hay, are first filled. Then the wheat crop is placed on floor No. 1. The oats crop can be stored on overheads of floor No. 2 and on the wheat. When the crops are thrashed the machine is set on floor No. 2, and the straw passed directly into the straw loft, which is large enough to hold it all. Floor No. 1 may then be used for storing the cornfodder. The granary is conveniently situated for running the grain into the wagons below. Underneath the straw shed is ample space for storage of all manure until it is removed to the fields. The apple cellar may be used for storage of potatoes.



As planned this barn should face the east. If, however, conditions prevail which necessitate its facing the south, then the straw shed should be built to the other side of the barn, which will permit the morning sun to enter the stable yard and will also place the shed on the west, where it will serve as a protection from prevailing winds.—George G. Groff, in N. Y. Tribune.

SECURE FEED BOX.

An Excellent Contrivance for Keeping Poultry Food Clean.

Where soft food is given fowls, it is usually trampled upon by the fowls before fully eaten. To avoid this, make a shallow box and hinge to it a cover of slats made of laths. Through these the fowls can reach all the food, but cannot soil it. The same device may also be used with a smaller box for giving water. Have a box just large enough to set the dish of water within, and shut the slat cover down over it. A similar device for giving water in a way to keep the fowls out of the water vessel is to have a moderately high box, with slats up and down one side. Then set the water dish within, and the fowls can drink through the slats. The top of the box or cover, should be sloping to keep the fowls off from it.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Hints About Marketing Honey.

There are a few points well worth knowing in the marketing of honey. The first thing necessary is to see that the honey is carefully assorted. Then it should be thoroughly cleaned and put into neat, white crates. Another very important thing is, the crates should be the same thing all through; that is, the honey should be just what it appears to be on the face of it. There is a great deal of talk nowadays about low prices and slow sales, but the man who has an honest, clean, first-class article of any kind need not go begging for customers, even in these hard times.—Farm and Home.

RUNYON DEAD.

The Distinguished Lawyer, Soldier, Statesman and Diplomat

Was the Victim of Heart Failure—The President Notified of His Death at an Early Hour Monday Morning—A Short Sketch of the Man's Life.

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—Hon. Theodore Runyon, the American ambassador here, died of heart failure at 1 o'clock Monday morning.

Hon. Theodore Runyon was born at Somerville, N. J., October 25, [illegible]. He graduated from Yale college in 1842, and in 1844 was admitted to the bar. In 1853 he was made city attorney and in 1856 city counsellor of Newark, N. J., a position retained until 1864, when he became mayor of the city. He was appointed in 1856 a commissioner to revise and codify the militia laws of New Jersey and in 1857 was made brigadier general and subsequently major general of the New Jersey national guard.

At the outbreak of the civil war he was placed in command of the New Jersey brigade of volunteers. In 1865 he was democratic candidate for governor of his state, but was not elected. From 1873 to 1878 he was chancellor of New Jersey. In March, 1893, he was appointed by President Cleveland American minister to Germany, and shortly afterward was made ambassador. The degree of L. L. D. was conferred upon him by Yale, Rutgers and Wesleyan colleges.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The sudden death in Berlin of the American ambassador, Theodore F. Runyon, Sunday night, was communicated to the president by the United Press. Beyond that information the government has not been advised of the startling news. Its occurrence at so late an hour in the night, of course, prevented the possibility of anything like general circulation. It is certain that the president and the state department will have official notice before the hour for the beginning of business Monday and whatever action that necessarily should be taken will be promptly attended to.

THE BOND BILL.

A Vote Will Probably Be Taken on the Measure by the Senate This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The week beginning Monday ends the second month this congress has been in session. Despite the fact that there has been no holiday recess but little has been accomplished owing largely to consideration of the substitute to the house bond bill. Although this measure was speedily disposed of in the house it has been the unfinished business of the senate for several weeks. The end, however, is in sight, for on Friday last Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, in charge of the bill, gave notice he would ask the senate to remain in session Thursday next until the bill was disposed of. It is hardly likely that a vote will be reached on that day, as a number of senators have expressed their intention of speaking on the pending substitute and time is too short after the morning business each day has been attended to to permit of their delivery of the speeches. It is probable, however, that before the week is out a vote will have been taken and the free coinage substitute adopted by the senate.

IN THE HOUSE.

A Forecast of the Proceedings for This Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The time of the house this week will be largely occupied in the consideration of appropriation bills. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill is ready to be reported. Debate upon it may begin immediately. Under the rules, Monday is assigned to the District of Columbia, but as yet the committee on affairs of the district has placed before the house only two unimportant measures, relating to the study and practice of medicine. The diplomatic and consular bill will probably be good for several days' debate, and when it is disposed of, the District of Columbia appropriation bill will be ready for report to the house. The committee on elections, particularly committee No. 2, of which Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.) is chairman, will be prepared with reports on one or two of the contests referred to them, in case the house should lack occupation.

Anti-Lynching Bill Passes the Virginia House.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 27.—The bill designed to prevent lynching passed the house Saturday by an overwhelming majority. It provides that charges of assault on women, shall have precedence over all other cases in the courts, and shall be speedily tried. The examination shall be in the presence of only the court officers, jury, counsel and prisoner, and on cross examination the judge shall allow no unnecessary questions to be asked of the woman.

Coffee-Raising in Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—A special to a morning paper from the city of Mexico says: "The representative of a syndicate of English capitalists have just purchased 500,000 acres of coffee land on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. The tract will be planted in coffee trees. American capitalists have invested several hundred thousand dollars in the coffee lands on the isthmus within the past few months.

New Battleships.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The opinion was expressed by members of the house naval committee Saturday that the naval appropriation bills for the coming fiscal year will provide for two new battleships, and possibly three. The matter has not been even informally discussed by the committee, but so far as can be learned the disposition is general to provide for as many first-class fighting ships as the condition of the national finances will permit. It is expected, also, that the bill will carry an appropriation for a number of torpedo boats, probably as many as 12 in all.

In Danger of Lynching.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 27.—Friday evening Grace McClamock, the 15-year-old daughter of Lemuel McClamock, a wealthy farmer, died a horrible death. Philip Houck, her school teacher, and Dr. Stout, of Covington, are the parties accused of causing her death. When the death became known a mob of angry men came driving into Crawfordsville bent on vengeance. Houck anticipated their coming end, placing himself in the hands of the officers, was taken to Covington, 30 miles away, and lodged in jail. The angry farmers threaten to follow him there.

A HURRICANE

Destructive Windstorms in the East and Canada.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 25.—Friday afternoon the worst easterly storm of the season commenced and Friday night continued unabated. The streets are filled with water and slush and are almost impassable. There is a heavy storm at sea and the lower harbor is filled with coasters and fishing vessels. It is impossible to learn whether any marine disasters have occurred as a telephone line between this city and Jerry's Point life-saving station is down.

WINSTED, Ct, Jan. 25.—The wind blew a hurricane throughout northwestern Connecticut and the southeastern part of New York late Friday.

At Copake, N. Y., the wind traveled at the rate of 60 miles an hour. Upon the arrival here Friday afternoon of train No. 2, on the Philadelphia, Reading & New England railroad from Campbell Hall, N. Y., the engineers told a thrilling story of their ride between Copake and Norwalk, Ct. The wind blew with such force while the train was rounding a curve at Copake that the coach wheels on one side of the track left the rails and the roof was partly raised from the rear passenger coach. Some of the passengers left the train before they reached the points to which they had purchased tickets. Freight trains are stalled.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 25.—The storm kept up all afternoon with unabated fury, but began to moderate about seven o'clock Friday evening. Telegraphic and telephonic communication is badly crippled, and in this city miles of streets are practically impassible, being strewn with debris of wires, poles and trees. Many pedestrians had narrow escapes from falling wires, and several horses were killed by contact with live wires. So far no loss of life is reported.

Reports from outside points are very meagre but enough has been received to show that the damage will be very great and that the storm was the worst experienced in this part of the country for years.

THROUGH A DRAW.

Cleveland Fire Engine and Crew Fall Through a Viaduct.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 25.—The engine of Fire Engine No. 2 lies at the bottom of the Cuyahoga river, and the magnificent team of horses that drew it are drowned. Al Rose, driver, and Charles Cooledge, one of the crew, are injured to an extent not yet determined. Three other members of the crew escaped by jumping.

At 2:30 Saturday morning an alarm of fire was turned in from Barrett's lumber yard, and Company No. 2 responded. The route selected was via Seneca Street hill, at the bottom of which a drawbridge spans the Cuyahoga river.

The fire boat John Farley had started for the Barnett yards, and, in response to her signal, the draw was opened. The speed of the engine coming down the steep hill was too great to be checked in time to avert the plunge when the men in charge of it saw the draw had been swung. The fire boat saw the approaching engine and stopped, otherwise there would have been a collision between the boat and engine on the surface of the river. The engine, with its team and the two men on the driver's seat, shot over the end of the bridge and down 45 feet to the water.

OUT OF MONEY.

The Iowa State Treasury in an Almost Bankrupt Condition.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 25.—The state treasurer of Iowa is likely to be compelled, for the first time in seven years, to refuse to cash warrants presented to him. There have been unusual drafts on the state revenues in the last half year, chiefly on account of the code revision, the census and the assemblage of the legislature; and the taxes have come in very slowly from the counties, owing to hard times. As a result the treasury has been in such condition that state auditor could have swamped it at any time in the last three months if the utmost care had not been exercised in the issuance of warrants. The condition is getting worse, cash is very low and prospects are before the legislative session is over a good many warrants will have to be stamped "No funds" when they are presented. The condition is serious, but there is no present help for it.

AT REST.

Funeral of the Late Gen. Thomas Ewing at Yonkers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The funeral of Gen. Thomas Ewing, whose death was occasioned by a Third avenue cable car, took place Friday. The funeral cortege left the late residence of the deceased in the St. George apartment house at 12:30 o'clock and proceeded to the Grand Central depot, where the body was placed on the train which left at 1:10. No services were held at the house, and only the immediate mourners accompanied the body to the depot, where those who were to attend the funeral services in Yonkers were gathered. The services were held in the First Presbyterian church at Yonkers at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Deadlock Still Unbroken.

GEN. GARCIA SAILS.

He Goes at the Head of a Most Formidable Expedition.

On the High Seas He Will Be Met by Another Expedition on Board a Fruit Steamer—They Will Make for Some Port Near Havana.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—A morning paper says:

Gen. Calixto Garcia, the most distinguished Cuban general now outside of Cuba, has escaped the watchful eyes of Spanish agents and has sailed from Philadelphia, it is said, on the fruit steamer Bernard, bound for Cuba.

Gen. Garcia goes to Cuba at the head of the most formidable expedition that has ever left this country, of which he will take command on the high seas, where he will meet another fruit steamer, the Jasof, with over 500 men on board and a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

From those familiar with Gen. Garcia's plans it was learned that the expedition will make for some port near the boundary line of the province of Pinar Del Rio and the province of Havana. Gen. Gomez is thoroughly informed of all the plans for the expedition, and at the point agreed upon for the landing of the expedition he will have a strong body of troops. Owing to his great popularity in that district it is expected that Gen. Garcia will at once place himself the head of a strong body of men in the province of Pinar Del Rio.

Among Cubans in this country great hope is placed in this expedition. One of the drawbacks of the Cuban cause has been the lack of commanders, who combine both bravery and military sagacity. Should some misfortune befall either Gen. Maximo Gomez or Gens. Jose or Antonio Maceo, the Cuban's cause would be in a rather embarrassing position.

Gen. Garcia, however, is fully competent to take either general's place at a moment's notice, and when news of the successful landing of his expedition reaches this country, there will be rejoicing among the Cubans.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Wife of a Hotel Keeper Under Arrest for Attempted Poisoning of Her Husband—A Barkeeper Held as an Accomplice.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 27.—A sensation occurred Sunday afternoon at Girard, this county, when Mary H. Nellis was arrested for poisoning with intent to kill her husband. Peter H. Nellis, proprietor of the Nellis house, and Edward Gardner was arrested as an accomplice. The prisoners were brought here Sunday night and lodged in jail.

Nellis is wealthy, and his wife is a handsome woman. Last summer Mrs. Nellis spent some time at Lilydale, and brought home with her for a bartender Edward Gardner, whom she had met at the spiritualistic resort. Nellis carried a $10,000 policy on his life in favor of his wife. Several weeks ago he was taken sick and vomited severely. He has since been in declining health, and his brother-in-law, Dr. Rogers, of Conneaut, O., became suspicious, and set Maggie Hulbrook, a dining room girl, to keep watch on events in the hotel.

Saturday at noon Nellis got a dose of tartar emetic in his coffee. Saturday night the girl caught and saved another dose which Nellis was to have taken. Nellis got another dose Sunday but was relieved with a stomach pump. The arrests followed and created great excitement. The feeling was so strong in Girard against Gardner that only his timely removal by the officers saved him from probable lynching.

SHOT HIS WIFE.

Her Injuries Are Believed to Be Fatal—Her Husband Defies Arrest.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 27.—Sunday evening at Swansea, Blount county, Frank Jones, superintendent of the Swansea Coal Co.'s mines, quarreled with his wife, of whom he was insanely jealous, and, procuring his shotgun, fired a load of buckshot into her breast, inflicting injuries believed to be fatal. The couple were at home with their two young children when the shooting occurred. After the tragedy Jones went out in the street still armed and defied arrest. He was still at large late Sunday night.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR'S

Interview With the Sultan of Turkey Was Not Cordial.

LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Daily News Monday publishes a dispatch from its Constantinople correspondent stating that the interview had with the Sultan by Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, when he delivered to his majesty the letter written by Queen Victoria was not cordial. The sultan kept Sir Philip and his dragoman waiting in a cold room an hour before they were admitted into his presence. Sir Philip caught a severe cold and has been confined to his room ever since.

ADOPT ISLAMISM.

Unless Armenians Apostatise Extreme Cruelties Are Inflicted Upon Them by the Turks.

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—A letter has been received here from a Bostonian in Constantinople in which the correspondent writes that details of individual cases of butchery, deception, lying and apostatizing are daily coming to hand. One poor woman from a village near Arabkir writes to her husband in this city and bewails that her whole village has turned Moslem and that she is compelled to write under her new Turkish name.

Another woman writes to her husband here from Arabkir, where out of 2,000 Armenian houses only 150 remain; where 1,000 Armenians were slain and where some 9,000 souls are now huddled together in the remaining 150 houses; writes how the husband's father, with a family of nine, raised and paid to their Moslem neighbors on their demand $110 for protection; how, on the second day of the massacre those Moslem neighbors came and told the family they could protect them no longer unless the family accepted the "True Religion" (Mohammedanism); how, thereupon, the woman fell at the father's feet and begged that she might be left to die for Jesus and not be compelled to apostatize; how the father commended her, and said that he too was ready to die for Jesus, which soon after he did; how on the third day of the massacre the family without the father were told by the Moslem neighbors to run to the Armenian reading room, which they did, and on account of the press found there only standing room for six days and nights; how after the six days the Turks told them to go back to their home, which they found utterly stripped, though it had not been burned, because contiguous to a Moslem house; and how, finally, with forty persons in a room, the family remained in utter destitution, terror and despair.

Such is one of the numberless tales of woe coming to the thousands of Armenians in this city. The work of compulsory apostatizing is being carried on so rapidly and to such an extent that by the time the Red Cross agents get there the Turkish authorities will probably tell them that in certain provinces there are no Christians to be helped. The day of doom for the Armenians seems to have come; at least in the six provinces which were to be reformed. The Armenian community at Adiaman has been almost entirely obliterated. Out of 800 Armenian houses and 4,000 souls, 780 were destroyed and their inmates massacred and only twenty houses were spared by reason of their apostatizing.

It is clear that in some places in the interior, few if any Armenians will be left for the missionaries to labor for. Nowhere will the apostatized Armenians dare to come near the missionaries. Another letter says:

"The sultan clearly means to make Asia Minor a purely Mohammedan land, and thus, as he thinks, to get rid of European intervention. He has still to kill or make to apostatize at least three million Armenians, Greeks and Catholics. But he has made such progress the past three months, and has been so completely free from European or American intervention, that no doubt he is greatly encouraged. Unless God removes him we see no possible deliverance for the remnant of Armenians save through a Russian occupation."

Charged With Delaying the Mails.

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Warrants have been served on R. M. Wallace, Ike Heyman, W. B. Derrick, Thomas McElroy and Pleasant Neville, charging them with delaying the United States mails. The arrests are a sequel to the lynching of Jos. Robertson and Elias McGaba by a Lewisburg mob recently. The Negroes were being taken to the penitentiary, and the train they were on was delayed until the mob could reach the scene. The post office department investigated the affair.

Night Session of the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—There was a fair attendance of members, when at 8 p. m. the house met for the first pension session of the Fifty-fourth congress. Among the 13 bills which received favorable consideration was senate bill granting a pension of $75 per month to the widow of the late Brig. Gen. and Representative Wm Cogswell, Mass., and house bill increasing to $72 a month the pension of the late Col. Wm. Dulaney. At 10:30 the house adjourned till Monday.

Delaware's Senator.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The senate committee on privileges and elections discussed the Dupont case from Delaware Friday morning for an hour and a half, but reached no conclusion. No effort was made to take a vote. The discussion Friday morning indicated that a report favoring the admission of Mr. Dupont and the filling of the vacancy in Delaware's representation in the United States senate will be ordered.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—SENATE—The Monroe doctrine was the chief topic of discussion in the senate Monday. Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, led the opposition to the application of the doctrine to the Venezuelan question. The silver bond was laid aside temporarily, as no senator was ready to speak. Mr. Platt and Mr. Hale pointed out the delay in this measure, and Mr. Platt asked that a day be set for a vote. Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, in charge of the measure, declined to fix a time, as several senators were still to be heard. Mr. Pugh's resolution for silver payments of outstanding government obligations did not reach a vote, although urged by its author. Senator Davis, of the foreign relations committee, rose at the opening of the house and presented a favorable report on the Monroe resolution.

HOUSE—The house Monday, in a brief session, disposed of the second of the appropriation bills—the military academy bill. In the morning hours resolutions and bills were agreed to extending the time for the completion of Arkansas Pass harbor: donating condemned cannon to various grand army posts; incorporating the supreme Council Thirty-third Degree of Scottish Rite Masonry for the southern jurisdiction, and to print 5,000 copies each of the postal laws. The president's message in response to the house resolution of inquiry relative to Ambassador Bayard's Edinburgh and Boston (England) speeches, with Secretary Olney's report thereon, was laid before the house and referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—SENATE.—At the close of the morning hour Tuesday the house bond bill, with the free coinage substitute, came up as unfinished business. Mr. Teller (Rep., Col.), who had the floor to speak upon it, readily yielded to the suggestion of the postponement of his speech until Wednesday, and Mr. Jones (Dem., Ark.) who has the parliamentary management of the bill, just as readily consented to have the bill go over for the day. The Cuban question, however, came in for a measure of attention indirectly in connection with the two resolutions offered by Mr. Call (dem., Fla.), one in reference to the arrest of United States citizens in Havana, and the other calling on the state department for copies of reports of United States consuls in Cuba relating to the progress of the war on that island.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday passed its third appropriation bill, that providing for urgent deficiencies for current and past fiscal years. The total amount carried by the bill, as prepared by the committee on appropriations, was $4,415,9.3, and as passed by the house $4,420,403. Earlier in the day a joint resolution providing for an increase of twenty in the number of representatives and documents furnished the state department gave rise to a discussion of the printing bill passed at the last session of congress. It was criticised by Mr. Cannon (rep. Ill.) and defended by Mr. Richardson (dem., Tenn.) who managed its passage through the house.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—SENATE—The special feature of Wednesday's session in the senate was the speech of Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, in condemnation of the proposed extension of the Monroe doctrine and in criticism of the action of the executive and legislative departments of the government on the Venezuelan question. After Mr. Wolcott's address the presiding officer stated that the morning hour had expired, and that the house bond bill, with the free coinage substitute, was now before the senate as the unfinished business. The measure was discussed by Messrs. Teller, Sherman, Gorman, Hoar, Aldrich and Lindsay until 5:50 when the senate adjourned until Thursday.

HOUSE—Two-thirds of the three-hour session of the house Wednesday was occupied in the consideration of a senate joint resolution authorizing the expenditure of $53,000 all told for the employment of outside assistance to the supervising architect of the treasury in the preparation of plans and specifications and supervision of the Chicago public building. In the course of the debate the conduct of the architect's office was the subject of considerable criticism. The joint resolution was passed. The unanimous report of elections committee, No. 2, that H. C. Miner was elected to the seat now occupied by him as representative from the Ninth New York district, and that Timothy J. Campbell, contestant, was not entitled thereto, was agreed to without discussion. The house, at 3:30, adjourned until Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—SENATE—Senator Daniel, of Virginia, made a strong defense of the Monroe doctrine's application to Venezuela Thursday in the senate, and the remainder of the session was devoted mainly to debate on the bond substitute. Several private bills were introduced. In an executive session appointments by the president were confirmed. Adjourned until Friday.

HOUSE—The rules of the Fifty-first congress were adopted, including the quorum-counting rule, which was favorably reported with some minor amendments. Ex-Speaker Crisp vainly attempted to have the rules of the Fifty-third congress adopted as a substitute. A number of private bills were introduced and the house took a recess until Friday night.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—SENATE—The concurrent resolution reported last Wednesday from the committee on foreign relations on the subject of the Armenian outrages was taken up in the senate Friday and was passed after a highly interesting discussion. An effort was made by Mr. Jones (dem., Ark.) to have a time fixed for taking the vote on the house bond bill, with the free coinage substitute, but, as objection was made by Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.), Mr. Jones gave notice that he would ask the senate next Thursday to remain in session until that matter is disposed of. Mr. Thurston (rep., Neb.) gave notice that on Tuesday he would address the senate on the Monroe doctrine resolution. Mr. Baker (rep., Kan.) offered an amendment to the free coinage substitute, limiting its operations to the American product alone, and addressed the senate in advocacy of it. The senate, after a short executive session, at 4:15 adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE—There was a fair attendance of members when, at 8 p. m., the house met for the first pension session of the Fifty-fourth congress. Among the 13 bills which received favorable consideration were senate bill granting a pension of $75 per month to the widow of the late Brig. Gen. and Representative Wm. Cogswell, of Massachusetts, and house bill increasing to $72 a month the pension of the widow of the late Col. Wm. Dulaney. At 10:30 p. m. the house adjourned till Monday.

Bushnell has received a letter from President Diaz, of Mexico, asking that Ohio appoint a commission to represent the state at the national exposition to be held in Mexico next year. Gov. Bushnell will ask permission from the legislature to appoint the commission, the legislature to fix the number and other details.

THE REVENUE BILL.

A Measure That Is Full of False Pretenses.

The more the measure is examined the greater becomes the doubt whether the Dingley tariff bill is a revenue bill or not. There has never been any doubt that the assertion that it was intended to get rid of the deficit in the treasury was distinctly a false pretense. There is no deficit in the treasury, but on the contrary a surplus of more than $100,000,000. How it got there is immaterial to this inquiry, though it has frequently been explained in these columns. It is sufficient [illegible], and that it is likely to increase rather than diminish.

But there are other reasons why the Dingley bill is not properly a revenue bill. It was avowedly framed to increase the protection on competitive articles. Besides, it increases every existing tax except that on the best revenue commodity imported, namely, [illegible]. Senator Jones, of Nevada, objected to it because there was no increase in the duty on sugar. In doing this, he was not looking to revenue, but was solicitous to give further protection to beet sugar mills. Nevertheless, sugar gives a large amount of revenue to a small per cent. of protection, and this is one reason why the republicans wish to let it alone. The chief reason, however, is because they dare not offend the sugar trust, but are also afraid to grant it any additional favors. Being between the people on one side and the trust on the other, they prefer to let sugar alone.

It was pretended when the Dingley bill was first introduced that it would afford $40,000,000 additional revenue. The more the bill is studied the less probable this proposition appears. It is based in part on the theory that the imports of wool will be as great when it is taxed as when it is free. The same mistake is made as to woolens, which are not now free, but upon which 60 per cent. of the McKinley rates are to be imposed in addition to the rates of the Wilson bill. Both these contentions are absurd. On all other taxed commodities the Dingley bill proposes to increase the tax 15 per cent., and it is an open question whether this will not check importations to such an extent as to reduce rather than raise the revenue. The conclusion of several experts who have made estimates is to the effect that the increase in revenue will not amount to half, or perhaps not a quarter, of $40,000,000.

There are other articles which could easily be made to yield considerable revenue without causing the consumer to pay any tribute to home producers. There is tea, for example, many of the dealers in which desire to see it taxed 10 or 15 cents a pound. Prior to 1870 it was taxed 25 cents a pound. In that year the tax was reduced to 15 cents. In 1872 it was put on the free list, and has remained there ever since. In 1895 we imported upward of 97,000,000 pounds, which, at 10 cents a pound, would have yielded $9,700,000 in revenue; at 15 cents, $14,550,000. This is on the supposition that the tax would not decrease imports.

As a rule, a tariff tax will reduce the volume of imports, but the tea dealers say that a tax of 10 or 15 cents on tea would not have that effect. The reason they assign for desiring a tax is that it would exclude the low-grade and spurious teas. The average import price of tea has decreased from 37.7 cents per pound in 1873, the year after the tax was removed, to 14.6 cents in the fiscal year 1895. Consumers, however, have been accustomed to paying 50 to 60 cents a pound for good tea, and think that when less is asked the [illegible] is not good. Hence has grown up the practice of giving crockery with tea, which the dealers say demoralizes the trade.

This may be true, but it is best not to put too much stress on the fine-spun theories of interested parties. The fact remains that tea is an article on which $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 of revenue may be raised without increasing the burden of consumers seriously, if at all. If the senate wishes to raise revenue, it can amend the house bill by taxing a commodity concerning whose revenue-raising properties there is no doubt at all. It is a pretty safe guess, however, that this will not be done, because it would not turn any revenue into the pockets of individuals, which is the peculiar characteristic of a tariff for protection.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——It is growing plainer every day that the McKinley element in congress is going to make it very hard sledding for Thomas B. Reed, without regard to what the result may be to the country.—Detroit Free Press.

——It is now ex-Gov. McKinley, of Ohio. Mr. McKinley has put in the last two years legging for the presidency, and the results of his second administration cannot be summed up until the last ballot has been taken at St. Louis.—Kansas City Star.

——Speaker Reed desires that house appropriations be cut to the bone in the interest of economy. Objector Holman never cut deeper than the bone, yet he was reviled as a cheese-parer and reminded that this was a billion dollar country. The country hasn't shrunken any since that valuation, but a presidential election is coming on, and if Mr. Reed shall have his way the coming contest will be money in the country's pocket.—Philadelphia Record.

——The unfathomable piety of the republican party has always been the first article of its faith. It is taught from the pulpit by clergymen in its ranks, but it is chiefly insisted on by thugs, scoundrels and thieves, who claim that their acts are holy, because done in what they assume to be a holy cause. Very early in its history the republican party voted to take the Almighty into partnership with them, subject, however, to the condition that they were to have all the offices and all the honor.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——To obtain possession of the committees and petty offices of the senate the republicans affected a coalition with the half dozen populists, and the result is an infamous free coinage bill, which has been prepared and agreed to by the free silver majority of the finance committee, all of whom were appointed by the republicans. A viler bargain and a more natural sequence of such a bargain have seldom if ever been in evidence, but fortunately for the country the bargain and its consequences will fail of the disastrous or ruinous effects their authors intended they should have. No such bill can become law as long as Mr. Cleveland remains president.—Pittsburgh Post.

TOPSY-TURVY LOGIC.

Artful Sophistry of the Protection Argufyer.

Says a philosopher after the order of McKinley: "Ancient Tyre, Athens, Rome, Damascus and other great seats of ancient science and art became such because they supplied other nations with their products."

Without pausing to inquire as to the historical accuracy of the assumption that the cities named "supplied other nations with their products" to any great extent, one's attention is irresistibly drawn to the philosophical theorem that they became great seats of science and art because they supplied other nations with their products.

One can readily understand how a commercial people, trading extensively with other people, acquire more knowledge of men and things, and so acquire more materials of science, if not of art, than isolated people holding little or no communication with others. But how the mere sending abroad of their products to supply the wants of others can advance a people in either science or art passes understanding utterly.

The context of the theorem quoted shows that when its author used the word "products" he had in mind chiefly manufactured products, or products of mechanical or artistic skill, rather than the crude products of comparatively unskilled labor. But that does not make the general proposition any more true. The mere supplying of foreigners with our products, whether crude or highly wrought, cannot make us great in science and art.

The context serves only to show how the confusion of thought arises or to expose an artful sophism intended to produce confusion of thought in careless minds. First attention is drawn to the almost self-evident fact that the products of skill in the world's history have been supplied mostly by nations advanced in science and art. Then the inference is artfully suggested that the supplying of such products has caused the advancement.

When the proposition is thus stated it becomes apparent at once that advancement is not a consequence of supplying products of skill, but that the supplying of such products is a consequence of advancement in the arts and sciences. A people must have the knowledge, art and skill before they can turn out highly wrought and artistic products for export. The export of such product is an evidence and a consequence, not a cause, of greatness in science and art.

The McKinley philosopher might as truthfully have said that the sun become the great source and center of light and heat in our system by supplying the earth and other planets with those forces or modes of motion. It is characteristic of the protectionist to transpose everything, putting antecedent for consequent and consequent for antecedent, cause for effect and effect for cause. The great system of plunder under the shelter and with the aid of law does not admit of defense by honest and straightforward reasoning.—Chicago Chronicle.

WHEREFOR ART THOU, REED?

What Has Become of the Great and Fearless Czar?

Where is the courage and dash that once made the Hon. Thomas Reed a heroic figure in the republican party? When was Reed ever at a loss for words, or indeed, for ideas, until ambition for the presidency congealed his brain and spiked his tongue? Now he has nothing to say. The New York Journal asks him for an opinion on the bond question, and he replied that he doesn't want to discuss it. He adds:

"I would not care to make any suggestion as to what might be done to make the loan a popular loan or bring it before the people in any different form. The matter is being managed from the white house, and I've no suggestions to make. I will say, however, that present difficulties so far as a solution of our financial troubles are concerned lodge in the white house and senate. If the people of this country want a remedy for the financial evils let them bring the pressure of popular influence to bear on the executive and the senate of the United States. The house of representatives stands ready to do its part, and has from the opening of congress. The cure for money ills should be applied at the white house and the other end of the capitol. THOMAS B. REED."

Is this like the fearless czar known to fame for his quorum counting abilities in the billion dollar congress? Is this like the Reed that was in congress only to "do business?" Is this like the bold Reed who could ever be relied upon to say something to win the applause of the most hide-bound of his partisan associates? Alas, no. It is Reed the presidential candidate, who is tremblingly hopeful of support in the sparsely settled silver states, and at the same time catch the delegates from the states whose votes are essential in the electoral college.

But this isn't the Reed that won the republican heart at all. It was the reckless, quorum-counting, billion-dollar-spending Reed that the republicans admired and proposed to make president. It was not the timid, fearful, non-committal Reed who now presides over the do-nothing house of representatives, and who refers inquirers on public questions to the other end of the capitol or the white house.

"Fear never yet a generous mind did gain."—Utica Observer.

Shy on the Sugar Question.

The republicans desire to avoid any discussion about sugar because the insincerity of their attack upon the democratic sugar schedule would be exposed. They have denounced the democrats for having granted the protective differential of one-eighth of a cent a pound. They now have an opportunity to cut off this differential in their bill. Can they be induced to do it? They have attacked the democrats for having imposed the differential of one-tenth of a cent on German sugar—a special tax which caused retaliation in Germany—and they might now remove this differential. Does anyone believe they could be persuaded to remove it? But if both of these differentials should be reported, either as they stand or with an increase of 15 per cent., how could our republican friends defend their action? It can be easily be seen for what reasons they are "unwilling to revive the sugar question."—N. Y. Times.

——It is increasingly probable [illegible] not even on the pet hobby of the [illegible] may the republicans hope for [illegible] party action in the face of [illegible] manding power of the [illegible] lican senators. The [illegible] states' admission [illegible] senate has brought [illegible] chickens home [illegible] gua.

Arizona is asking to be admitted into the union as a State.

It now looks like the Democrats will succeed in electing the State Librarian.

They are having a warm time in Louisville trying to fill the vacancy in the office of Mayor.

Mr. Harrison has fessed up, and it will be only a few months until he takes unto himself a wife.

If Mr. Graziani's pool-room bill passes the legislature, he will be next Mayor of the city of Covington.

The Covington people will make a strong fight for the passage of Graziani's anti-pool room bill now pending in the legislature.

The most recent entry for Congressional honors in this district is State Senator R. H. Elliston, of Williamstown, Grant county.

The General Assembly, by agreement is dead-locked on the Senatorial election. Some think the dead-lock will never be broken.

The legislature is near about half out, and nothing of importance has been done. About the time it adjourns the machinery will be in good running order.

Some of the Republican members of the legislature have come to the conclusion that Gov. Bradley is the only member of their party who can be elected Senator.

There is considerable sickness among the members of the legislature, and it is causing much uneasiness on the part of the two candidates for the U. S. Senatorship.

The old colored man who had been a faithful servant of the late Hon. Isaac Wilson from the close of the war until his death, will receive of Mr. Wilson's estate $1,000 in cash.

That Columbus, Ohio, grand jury has given a great many exlegislators in that State, cause for not sleeping well at night. As a class Republican ex-lawmakers in Ohio are very uneasy just now.

Hon. J. G. Furnish has introduced a bill to amend the law in regard to line fences. It is intended to compel each land owner to keep up or pay for keeping up his half of his line fences.

James E. Campbell's recent campaign in Ohio has commenced bearing fruit, and the charges he made against the last Ohio Legislature is being investigated by a grand jury, and several indictments for accepting a bribe have been returned.

The indications are that the Republicans have put up a game of freeze-out with Dr. Hunter; but he will not lay down the nomination that anyother member of his party may have a chance at the office. The Doctor is very much in need of the hearty support of his party.

The Recorder is in receipt of the Courier-Journal Almanac for the current year. It is a valuable book, containing a vast amount of interesting information, and should be in every family. Send 25 cents to the office in Louisville and secure a copy. You will soon agree that the money was well spent.

An aspirant's politcal prospects are often times blighted by a single act, and this is the condition of some of those Democratic members of the legislature, who refused to go into the Senatorial caucus, and then signed an address, hoping to vindicate themselves. But their vindication did not vindicate at all.

The incorporators of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association acknowledged and filed with the county clerk, their articles of incorporation, last Wednesday. The work of arranging the grounds and putting up the buildings will be pushed from now on. The amphitheater will be constructed on the plan of the old one, but some larger. The exhibition ring will be larger than the old one, and around it, and under a roof, will be ten tiers of seats, elevated one above the other. Around the top and outside row of seats will be a promenade nine feet wide. In the center of the exhibition ring will be a music stand, two stories high, the musicians to occupy the second story and the Judges, the lower. By fall everything will be in readiness and a good three days fair will be given.

The State of Kentucky will owe a debt of gratitude to Senator Stege, of Louisville, if he proves true to his promise and prevents the election of Dr. Hunter to the United States Senate. It has been the custom of the Old Commonwealth to place in that post of honor her ablest sons, men of whom she felt proud, and who were a credit to the State. That Grant county is for Joe Blackburn for United States Senator was thoroughly demonstrated last week. Petitions were being circulated asking our Representative to vote for Joe in the caucus and had the caucus been held this week a petition would have been forwarded to Dr. Daugherty, containing the signatures of more than 1,000 Democrats, urging him to cast his vote for Blackburn. He voted for Blackburn, however, on his own knowledge of the sentiment of the people of the county.—Williamstown Courier.

They will petition the Council at its next meeting to pass an ordinance to close saloons at 12 o'clock midnight, and also to enforce the Sunday law. During the campaign Gov. Uncle Jimmy Brandebnurg, as he is usually called, living at the mouth of Sturgeon Creek, in Lee county, who is now in his eitghy-eighth year, enjoys the unique distinction of having lived in the same house in three different counties; first in Estill County, where he had to travel a distance of 22 miles to vote and elections were held three days. Next he lived in Owsley County, which was composed of part of Clay and Breathitt Counties. Lee county, where he yet lives, was composed of parts of Breathitt, Owsley and Estill. He has been a voter nearly 67 years, and voted for General Jackson, the twelfth President of the United States, in 1832.

Nearly one hundred years ago Henry Clay introduced a bill into the Kentucky General Assembly to remove the seat of government from Frankfort. From that good day to this, if our memory serves us correctly, a similar bill has been presented, and all have met the same fate. Now is it not time to get a bill to construct decent buildings to house State officers, and let the removal chestnut remain in its grave? Kentucky has never expended over $250,000 on her buildings since she became a State, and during that period not a dollar has she ever expended for ground on which to erect her public buildings. Let us get down to practical business, and improve the State.

A proposed amendment to the constitution has been presented to the House to remove the seat of government from Frankfort. If our new Governor's opinion is correct, that money to erect Capital Buildings cannot be secured unless through a vote of the people, empowering a tax for such purpose, there is little difference where the seat of government is located. It may be, however, that the new [illegible] think the price of living too high in Frankfort, and believe this will reduce prices.—Argus.

The first case involving many vital points in the secret ballot election laws of this State was decided by the Court of Appeals last week, and the decision contains some surprises. The questions were raised in the case of Houston, County Judge, &c., vs. Steele, from Boyd County, and the Court, in its opinion, says the Canvassing Board, composed of the County Judge, Sheriff and County Clerk, must examine and count or reject all the uncounted and doubtful ballots returned by the election officers, and must not be governed exclusively by certificates of the officers in counting the votes cast. The next point decided is that a ballot marked with a lead pencil instead of with ink and stencil is valid and must be counted, and further, that marks, blurs or blots on the ballot that appear to be accidental are not such distinguishing marks as will invalidate the ballot. If the stencil mark should be made just outside the square that contains the party device or just outside the little square opposite any one candidate's name, it does not invalidate the ballot and it should be counted that is if the mark is near enough to the device or square to leave no doubt as to the voter's intention. It is a most important decision and bears directly upon several contested elections from Louisville and other places that are now in the Courts for adjudication.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

The bill to reduce the salaries of State officers was put to sleep upon its first appearance in the House after the committee had examined it.

The legislature has decided to ascertain whether the treasury knows whereof he speaks when he says Kentucky owes $2,500,000.

Several Sheriffs failed to execute bond in the time prescribed by law, and a bill has been introduced giving them until the 15th of next March to execute bonds.

The bill to prohibit the selling of pools on horse racing in this State, is meeting with opposition.

A bill to amend the election law has been introduced.

A bill to unite the office of Sheriff and Jailer has been introduced.

Illness of members of the General Assembly may yet solve the senatorial problem. The damp weather of the past two weeks has given severe colds to about twenty of them, and at least half a dozen are threatened with pheumonia or fever.—Courier Journal.

It is now practically conceded that the Senatorial deadlock will be continued until Feb. 6, the date on which the new member from Nelson County will succeed the late Representative Wilson (Dem.) will arrive. The Legislature as originally chosen, stood: Republicans 68, Democrats 68, and Populists 2. The death of Representative Wilson in the second week of the session broke the deadlock. The Nelson County election to fill the vacancy caused by Wilson's death occurs next Saturday.

We have heard nothing from the entertainment and supper at Bullittsville, last Friday evening. The weather was not at all favorable, but there is no question but the programme was most successfully carried out in every detail, as the ladies who were at the head of the affair know no such thing as fail in their undertakings.

LATER—Since the above was put in type, we have seen Mr John Stephens, and he gives a glowing account of the great success achieved. A large amount of money was cleared.

A large acreage of tobacco will be set in the southern part of the county next spring, if the present intentions of the farmers are carried out successfully. The destruction of tobacco by the freeze last fall has not advanced the price of tobacco as was expected, and a very large per cent. of the '95 crop remains in the hands of the producers. Yet, with his barns full of the weed and the price but little, if any, above the cost of production, the farmer arranges to cultivate all he can again this year. There is something fascinating about the crop.

One day last week a hunter did some very careless shooting in the East Bend neighborhood. He fired a load of shot into the side of a school house, while the children were out at play, sprinkling them considerably. Mr. Peter Hager's little boy was struck on the cheek just below the eye, but the shot wasn't carried with force sufficient to bury it in the flesh. The legislature should supply a remedy that will put a stop to such recklessness on the part of hunters.

Neighborhood News.

WALTON—A notable event transpired at the Methodist Church on the evening of the 23rd inst Two persons on matrimony intent were not afraid to be married in the presence of their friends and acquaintances. Although the weather was very unpropitious, the church, which had been very tastefully decorated, was packed with the elite of town and country long before the time announced for the ceremony to be performed. A. M. Edwards' hack was kept on a sharp move, bringing the participants and friends of the couple, up to the last moment When the wedding march was played, Miss Eva E. Stanslfer, most becomingly arrayed in a handsome gown in beautiful, soft colors, leaning upon the arm and against the manly form of her betrothed, Mr. Wm. D. Kennedy, moved with graceful, measured step down the aisle to the altar, where they were met by the Rev. Mr. Hoffmon, who, in a brief but very impressive manner, performed the ceremony that made them man and wife. The countenance of the bride was irradiated with beams of the greatest human felicity, and the calm satisfied look of the groom convinced the beholders that the seri[illegible] and responsibilities of the new situation before them had been carefully considered. The Rev. Mr. Davis, of the Presbyterian church, offered an eloquent and touching prayer for the welfare of the newly wedded pair that found an echo in the hearts of all present. After the congratulations the couple repaired to the residence of Clifford Youell, brother-in-law of the bride, where a sumptuous repast had been prepared for them and their immediate personal friends. After the festivities, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy repaired to the home of the bride, and commenced housekeeping. Through its representative the RECORDER tenders its hearty congratulations.

Ricketts Johnson and Mont Rouse have been spreading it all over such players as Dr. Adams and Geo. Ransler at Crokonole. The other night Ricketts invited Marion Northcutt to bring up his partner and they would be shown how to play the game. Marion took John Kipp with him, and in seven games they got six to Ricketts and Rouse's one, the first game being a clear-cut whitewash. The champions may not have been in good form, or, peradventure, they were rattled.

Johnson & Dean have opened a branch store in Crittenden, in charge of Mr. Dean.

The matrimonial fever appears to be epidemic in Walton. It is strange that our prepossessing friend, Henry Holder, has not been caught in the meshes of Hymen's net. He is only bashful. This is only mentioned because it is leap year He is only trying to hide his confusion when he sings,

"A man that is married has a life full of ills,

PETERSBURG—January 20.—The saddest funeral that has occurred here in a long time was that to-day of Wade Hampton Tilley, who died on the 18th inst., in his 22d year. He was the most popular young man in town; an earnest, active member of the Christian church at this place, and died fully assured of receiving the reward provided for the christian in the bright beyond. He had no fear of death, and just before the grim messenger laid its icy hand on him, he said to his mother, "Mamma, are you praying for me?" He then requested her to sing to him, and she sang, "I'm Praying for Thee." At the conclusion of the song the spirit of the loved one took its flight to the God who gave it. The funeral services were conducted by Elder Elvin J. Curry. The floral tributes were very handsome and appropriate. The pall-bearers were Misses Ella Alcorn, Nellie Krutz, Bessie Berkshire, Maud McWethy, Lizzie Weindel, Bessie Hurd, and Messrs. Leslie Walton, Wallace Grant, Everett Helms. J. S. Evans, Earl Whiting, Earl Walton. The heart broken family have the sympathy of the entire community. EVERETT.

About 6 o'clock p. m., last Tuesday a cry of fire! fire! was resounded and of course, the town turned out. Some who were a little slow met others more prompt, saying, the fun was over. It was a defective flue in Mr. Loder's kitchen that caused the trouble The damage was very slight.

Mrs. Margaritte Smith, wife of Mr. John Smith, died at 2:30 o'clock p. m., Friday, January 24th, 1896. She had been sick only a few days, but had been subject to a peculiar throat affection for years, which developed so rapidly that all remedies proved worthless. Mrs. Smith was a woman of very rare business and social qualities and will be sadly missed by her family and neighbors and numerous relatives. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist Church at this place by Rev. Fizer at 11 o'clock a. m , Sunday the 27th in the presence of a large assembly of sorrowing friends, after which the remains were placed in the vault at Petersburg cemetery. Last Sunday at about 12 m. there was quite an excitement near Gunpowder at the residence of Mr. John Vaughn. Some of the near neighbors, hearing someone near the house hallooing in a very distressed voice as they thought, as if they had met with some great calamity. They ran over in a great hurry to render any assistance in their power. When they got near the house they saw it was Diddie, Mr. Vaughn's son, who was out at the woodpile, standing on a log, clapping his hands, and laughing most boisterously. John saw his neighbors approaching, met them and explained matters by saying, "come in, and take a glass of cider—don't mind Diddle, he's just crowing over the advent of a 9 pound girl baby his wife has just presented him."

In memory of our loved one, who has gone before, E. E. UITZ, in the 68th year of his age; lived and died trusting in Jesus. He embraced a hope in Christ early in life. He bore his sufferings without a murmur—fought the good fight, and said, "all is well, the angels I see—the gate is open wide and I am passing through." He was a good husband, a loving father and devoted christian. He said that there was but one true church and that was the church of God. He is only asleep in Jesus. Thou art gone, meek, suffering one; thy weary spirit breathed itself to sleep. May the God of consolation comfort the hearts of the sorrowing ones; and may we all, having been guided by His counsel, be at last received into glory. He bade his little children obey their mother, live right and do right, and meet him in heaven.

TURNING GRAY AND THREATENED WITH BALDNESS
The Danger is Averted by Using
AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

"Nearly forty years ago, after some weeks of sickness, my hair turned gray and began falling out so rapidly that I was threatened with immediate baldness. Hearing Ayer's Hair Vigor highly spoken of, I commenced using this preparation, and was so well satisfied with the result that I have never tried any other kind of dressing. It stopped the hair from falling out, stimulated a new growth of hair, and kept the scalp free from dandruff. Only an occasional application is now needed to keep my hair of good, natural color. I never hesitate to recommend any of Ayer's medicines to my friends."—Mrs. H. M. HAIGHT, Avoca, Neb.

CHRISTIAN SOLDERS.

The Tactics By Which Great Battles Were Won.

How to Storm the Citadel of Sin, and Win Everlasting Victories in the Cause of Christ—Sermon by Rev. Dr. Talmage on the Power of Example.

In his sermon Sunday Rev. Dr. Talmage took for his subject "The Power of Example." The text selected was Judges ix., 48: "And Abimelech took an ax in his hand and cut down a bough from the trees, and took it and laid it on his shoulder and said unto the people that were with him, What ye have seen me do, make haste and do as I have done. And all the people likewise cut down every man his bough."

Abimelech is a name malodorous in Bible history and yet full of profitable suggestion. Buoys are black and uncomely but they tell where the rocks are. The snake's rattle is hideous, but it gives timely warning. From the piazza of my summer home, night by night, I saw a lighthouse 15 miles away, not placed there for adornment, but to tell mariners to stand off from that dangerous point. So all the iron-bound coast of moral danger is marked with Saul, and Herod, and Rehoboam, and Jezebel, and Abimelech. These bad people are mentioned in the Bible not only as warnings, but because there were sometimes flashes of good conduct in their lives worthy of imitation. God sometimes drives a very straight nail with a very poor hammer. The city of Shechem had to be taken, and Abimelech and his men were to do it. I see the dust rolling up from their excited march. I hear the shouting of the captains and the yell of the besiegers. The swords clack sharply on the parrying shields and the vociferation of two armies in death grapple is horrible to hear. The battle goes on all day, and as the sun is setting Abimelech and his army cry: "Surrender!" to the beaten foe. And, unable longer to resist, the city of Shechem falls and there are pools of blood and dissevered limbs and glazed eyes looking up beggingly for mercy that were never shown, and dying soldiers with their head on the lap of mother, or wife, or sister, who have come out for the last offices of kindness and affection, and a groan rolls across the city, stopping not, because there is no spot for it to rest, so full is the place of other groans. A city wounded! A city dying! A city dead! Wail for Shechem, all ye who know the horrors of a sacked town!

As I look over the city I can find only one building standing, and that is the temple of the god Berith. Some soldiers outside of the city in a tower, finding that they can no longer defend Shechem, now begin to look out for their own personal safety, and they fly to this Temple of Berith. They go within the door, shut it, and then say: "Now we are safe. Abimelech has taken the whole city, but he can not take this Temple of Berith. Here we shall be under the protection of the gods." O Berith, the god! do your best now for these refugees. If you have eyes, pity them. If you have hands, help them. If you have thunderbolts, strike for them. But how shall Abimelech and his army take this Temple of Berith and the men who are there fortified? Will they do it with sword? Nay. Will they do it with spear? Nay. With battering ram, rolled up by hundred-armed strength, crushing against the walls? Nay. Abimelech marches his men to a wood in Zalmon. With his ax he hews off a limb of a tree, and puts that limb upon his own shoulder, and then he says to his men: "You do the same." They are obedient to their commander. There is a struggle as to who shall have axes. The whole wood is full of bending boughs, and the cracking, and the hacking, and the cutting, until every one of the host has a limb of a tree cut down, and not only that, but has put it on his shoulder just as Abimelech showed him how. Are these men all armed with the tree branch? The reply comes "All armed." And they march on. Oh, what a strange army, with that strange equipment! They come up to the foot of the temple at Berith, and Abimelech takes his limb of a tree and throws it down; and the first platoon of soldiers come up and they throw down their branches; and the second platoon, and the third, until all around about the temple of Berith there is a pile of tree branches. The Shechemites look out from the window of the temple upon what seems to them childish play on the part of their enemies. But soon the flints are struck, and the spark begins to kindle the brush, and the flame comes up and through the pile, and the red elements lean to the casement, and the woodwork begins to blaze, and one arm of flame is thrown up on the right side of the temple, and another arm of flame is thrown upon the left side of the temple, until they clasp their lurid palms under the wild night sky, and the cry of "Fire!" within and "Fire!" without announces the terror, and the strangulation, and the doom of the Shechemites, and the complete overthrow of the temple of the God Berith. Then there went up a shout long and loud from the stout lungs and swarthy chests of Abimelech and his men, as they stood amidst the ashes and the dust crying "Victory! victory!"

Now I learn from this subject the folly of depending upon any one form of tactics in anything we have to do for this world or for God. Look over the weaponry of the olden times—javelins, battle-axes, habergeons, and show me a single weapon with which Abimelech and his men could have gained such a complete triumph. It is no thing to take a temple thus armed. I have seen a house where, during revolutionary times, a man and his wife kept back a whole regiment hour after hour, because they were inside the house and the assaulting soldiers were outside the house. Yet here Abimelech and his army come up, they surround this temple, and they capture it without the loss of a single man on the part of Abimelech, although I suppose some of the old Israelitish heroes told Abimelech: "You are only going up there to be cut to pieces." Yet you are willing to testify to-day that no other mode—certainly not by ordinary modes—could that temple so easily, so thoroughly, have been taken. Fathers and mothers, brethren and sisters in Jesus Christ, what the church most wants to learn, this day, is that any plan is right, is lawful, is best, which helps to overthrow the temple of sin and capture this world for God. We are very apt to stick to the old modes of attack. We put on the old-style coat of mail. We come up with the sharp, keen, glittering steel spear of argument, expecting in that way to take the castle, but they have a thousand spears where we have ten. And so the castle of sin stands. Oh, my friends, we will never capture this world for God by any keen saber of sarcasm; by any glittering lances of rhetoric, by any sapping and mining of profound disquisition, by any gunpowdery explosions of indignation; by sharpshootings of wit, by howitzers of mental strength made to swing shell five miles, by cavalry horses gorgeously apparisoned pawing the air. In vain all the attempts on the part of these ecclesiastical foot soldiers, light horsemen and grenadiers.

My friends, I propose a different style of tactics. Let each one go to the forest of God's promise and invitation and hew down a branch and put it on his shoulder, and let us all come around these obstinate iniquities, and then, with this pile, kindled by the fires of a holy zeal and the flames of a consecrated life, we will burn them out. What steel can not do, fire may. And I announce myself in favor of any plan of religious attack that succeeds—any plan of religious attack, however radical, however odd, however unpopular, however hostile to all the conventionalities of church and state. If one style of prayer does not do the work, let us try another style. If the church music of to-day does not get the victory, then let us make the assault with a backwoods chorus. If a prayer meeting at 7:30 in the evening does not succeed, let us have one as early in the morning as when the angel found wrestling Jacob too much for him. If a sermon with the three authorized heads does not do the work, then let us have a sermon with 20 heads, or no heads at all. We want more heart in our song, more heart in our almsgiving, more heart in our prayers, more heart in our preaching. Oh, for less of Abimelech's sword and more of Abimelech's conflagration! I had ofteen heard

There is a fountain filled with blood.

Sung artistically by four birds perched on their Sunday roost in the gallery, until I thought of Jenny Lind, and Nilsson, and Sontag, and all the other warblers; but there came not one tear to my eye, nor one master emotion to my heart. But one night I went down to the African Methodist meeting house in Philadelphia, and at the close of the service a black woman in the middle of the audience began to sing that hymn, and all the audience joined in, and we were floated some three or four miles nearer Heaven than I have ever been since. I saw with my own eyes that "fountain filled with blood"—red, agonizing, sacrificial, redemptive, and I heard the crimson plash of the wave as we all went down under it.

For sinners plunged beneath that flood
Lose all their guilty stains.

Oh, my friends, the Gospel is not a syllogism; it is not casuistry; it is not problemic, or the science of squabble. It is blood-red fact; it is warm-hearted invitation, it is leaping, bounding, flying good news; it is efflorescent with all light; it is rubescent with all summery glow; it is arborescent with all sweet shade. I have seen the sun rise on Mt. Washington, and from the Tip-Top house; but there was no beauty in that compared with the day-spring from on high when Christ gives light to a soul. I have heard Parepa sing; but there was no music in that compared with the voice of Christ when He said: "Thy sins are forgiven thee; go in peace." Good news! Let every one cut down a branch of this tree of life and wave it. Let him throw it down and kindle it. Let all the way from Mt. Zalmon to Shechem be filled with the tossing joy. Good news! This bonfire of the gospel shall consume the last temple of sin, and will illumine the sky with apocalyptic joy, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners. Any new plan that makes a man quit his sin, and that prostrates a wrong, I am as much in favor of as though all the doctors, and the bishops, and the archbishops, and the synods, and the academical gownsmen of Christendom sanctioned it. The Temple of Berith must come down, and I do not care how it comes.

Still further, I learn from this subject the power of example. If Abimelech had sat down on the grass and told his men to go and get the boughs and go out to the battle they would never have gone at all, or if they had it would have been without any spirit or effective result; but when Abimelech goes with his own ax and hews down a branch, and with Abimelech's arm puts it on Abimelech's shoulder and marches on, then, my text says, all the people did the same. How natural that was! What made Garibaldi and Stonewall Jackson the most magnetic commanders of this century? They always rode ahead. Oh, the overwhelming power of example! Here is a father on the wrong road; all his boys go on the wrong road! Here is a father who enlists for Christ; his children enlist. I saw in some of the picture galleries of Europe that before many of the great works of the masters—the old masters—there would be sometimes four or five artists taking copies of the pictures. These copies they are going to carry with them, perhaps to distant lands; and I have thought that your life and character are a masterpiece, and it is being copied, and long after you are gone it will bloom or blast in the homes of those who knew you, and be a Gorgon or a Madonna. Look out what you say. Look out what you do. Eternity will hear the echo. The best sermon ever preached is a holy life. The best music ever chanted is a consistent walk. If you want others to serve God, serve Him yourself. If you want others to shoulder their duty, shoulder yours. Where Abimelech goes his troops go. Oh, start out for Heaven to-day, and your family will come after you, and your business associates will come after you, and your social friends will join you. With one branch of the tree of life for a baton, marshal just as many as you can gather. Oh, the infinite, the semi-omnipotent power of a good or a bad example.

I saw last summer, near the beach, a wrecker's machine. It was a cylinder with some holes at the side, made for the thrusting in of some long poles with strong leverage; and when there is any vessel in trouble or going to pieces in the offing, the wreckers shoot a rope out to the suffering men. They grasp it and the wreckers turn the cylinder, and the rope winds around the cylinder, and those who are shipwrecked are saved. So at your feet, to-day, there is an influence with a tremendous leverage. The rope attached to it swings far out into the billowy future.

Your children, your children's children, and all the generations that are to follow, will grip that influence and feel the long-reaching pull long after the figures on your tombstone are so near worn out that the visitor can not tell whether it was 1896, or 1796, or 1696 that you died.

Still further, I learn from this subject the advantage of concerted action. If Abimelech had merely gone out with a tree branch, the work would not have been accomplished, or if 10, 20 or 30 men had gone; but when all the axes are lifted and all the sharp edges fall, and all these men carry each his tree branch down and throw it about the temple, the victory is gained—the temple fails. My friends, where there is one man in the church of God at this day shouldering his whole duty, there are a great many who will never lift an ax or swing a bough. It seems to me as if there were ten drones in every hive to one busy bee; as if there were 20 sailors sound asleep in the ship's hammocks to four men on the stormy deck. It seems as if there were 50,000 men belonging to the reserve corps and only 1,000 active combatants. Oh, we all want our boats to get over to the golden sands, but the most of us are seated either in the prow or in the stern, wrapped in our striped shawl, holding a big-handled sunshade, while others are blistered in the heat, and pull until the oarlocks groan, and the blades bend until they snap. Oh, you religious sleepy heads, wake up! You have lain so long in one place that the ants and caterpillars have begun to crawl over you! What do you know, my brother, about a living Gospel made to storm the world? Now, my idea of a Christian is a man on fire with zeal for God; and if your pulse, ordinarily beats 60 times a minute when you think of other themes, and talk about other themes, if your pulse does not go up to 75 or 80 when you come to talk about Christ and Heaven, it is because you do not now know the one, and have a poor chance of getting to the other.

In a former charge, one Sabbath, I took into the pulpit the church records, and I laid them on the pulpit and opened them, and said: "Brethren, here are the church records. I find a great many of you whose names are down here off duty." Some were afraid I would read the names, for at that time some of them were deep in the worst kind of oil stocks, and were idle as to Christian work. But if ministers of Christ to-day should bring the church records into the pulpit and read, oh, what a flutter there would be! There would not be fans enough in church to keep the cheeks cool. I do not know but it would be a good thing if the minister once in a while should bring the church records in the pulpit and call the roll, for that is what I consider every church record to be, merely a muster-roll of the Lord's army; and the reading of it should reveal where every soldier is and what he is doing.

Suppose, in military circles, on the morning of battle, the roll is called, and out of a thousand men only a hundred men in the regiment answered. What excitement there would be in the camp! What would the colonel say? What high talking there would be among the captains, and majors, and the adjutants! Suppose word came to headquarters that these delinquents excused themselves on the ground that they had overslept themselves, or the morning was damp and they were afraid of getting their feet wet, or that they were busy cooking rations. My friends, this is the morning of the day of God's Almighty's battle! Do you not see the troops? Hear ye not all the trumpets of Heaven and all the drums of hell? Which side are you on? If you are on the right side, to what cavalry troop, to what artillery service, to what garrison do you belong? In other words, in what Sabbath school do you teach? in what prayer meeting do you exhort? to what penitentiary do you declare eternal liberty? to what almshouse do you announce the riches of Heaven? What broken bone of sorrow have you ever set? Are you doing nothing? Is it possible that a man or woman sworn to be a follower of Jesus Christ is doing nothing? Then hide the horrible secret from the angels. Keep it away from the book of judgment. If you are doing nothing, do not let the world find it out, lest they charge your religion with being a false face. Do not let your cowardice and treason be heard among the martyrs about the throne, lest they forget the sanctity of the place and denounce your betrayal of that cause for which they agonized and died.

May the eternal God rouse us all to action! As for myself, I feel I would be ashamed to die now and enter Heaven until I have accomplished something more decisive for the Lord that bought me. Oh, my brethren, how swiftly the time goes by! It seems to me as if the years had gained some new power of locomotion—a kind of speed electric.

PARALYSIS.

From the Press, New York City.

Morris Preslauer of No. 1 Pitt Street, New York, who is real estate agent and collector of rents, caught a severe cold early last spring, which settled upon his kidneys. Soon he began to suffer severe pain in his backbone, sides and chest. His symptoms grew rapidly more alarming, until at last he was as helpless as a child and could scarcely move as he lay on his bed. As Mr. Preslauer is well-known in the part of town where he resides, he had many sympathisers, who did all they could to help him.

Though a native of Berlin, Mr. Preslauer has lived in this country for forty years, having served the country of his adoption by three years' hard service in the civil war. He enlisted with the Nineteenth Illinois Infantry, taking part in many battles and marching with Gen. Sherman to the sea. While in Georgia Mr. Preslauer was promoted to first sergeant for bravery on the field of action. He is now a member of Koltes Post, G. A. R., and is one of the most popular men in the Post.

Mr. Preslauer told a reporter the story of his dreadful illness and the wonderful recovery. The reporter met him as he was returning from a long walk, and, saying that he had heard of his wonderful cure, asked him to tell the story. When Mr. Preslauer was comfortably seated in his pleasant parlor, he told the following story, which, he said, he hoped everyone who was suffering as he had suffered would read. His words were as follows: "To begin with, I was taken sick just a year and a month ago, having taken a severe cold which settled on my kidneys. At first I thought the pain I suffered would soon pass away, but, instead of doing this, it grew more intense every day, so that in a week I could walk only with considerable difficulty.

"I called in a doctor, who said I had locomotor ataxia and began treating me for that disease. He did me no good, and all summer long I could scarcely attend to my business at all. Then I called another doctor and took his medicine for several weeks, but experienced no relief. Dr. Truman Nichols, of No. 387 East Broadway, who I at last called in, helped me more than any of the other doctors, but along towards fall I grew worse, despite his treatment. I think Dr. Nichols is a good doctor and understood my case, but despite this fact his medicines did me no lasting good.

"Early in November the little strength I had in my legs left me and I was unable to stand. The pain in my back and sides became almost unbearable, and my limbs grew cold. An electric battery I bought failed to help me, and for weeks I felt myself gradually growing weaker until all hope left me.

"Some time before this I had read of a wonderful cure a man had received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but was so prejudiced against what I thought was a patent medicine of the usual worthless character that I could not make up my mind to try them. As my pain increased and death seemed coming near, I thought of what I had read and of the symptoms of the man who had been cured. They were precisely the same as mine, and at last, with my wife's earnest entreaty, I consented to try the Pink Pills.

"I am now convinced that these pills saved my life. Gradually my strength began to return, the desire to live grew stronger within me. After having taken three boxes I left my bed. This was early in March. All pain had left me, and that terrible dead feeling in my legs had gone away. I was still very weak, but before I had taken the fourth box I was able to get down stairs for a short walk in the open air. Now I feel as if I had been born again and am as happy as a [illegible] pleasant day I take a walk, and am sure that in a month I will be as well as ever."

All diseases, such as locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, partial paralysis, sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, effects of la grippe, pale and sallow complexions, and all forms of weakness, either in man or woman, disappear when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are taken. Pink Pills can be bought of any dealer, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold by the hundred or in bulk) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

KEEP ON THE NIGH SIDE.

Nature Has Set the Rule Which Humanity Mechanically Follows.

The "off ox" is the ox on the right side of the team. The one on the left side is the "nigh ox." This comes from the fact that the driver in this country drives from the left side, says the Milwaukee Journal. Teams turn out to the right and this gives the driver command of the situation. Plows turn the furrows to the right, so the driver can be on the unplowed land. The terms "nigh" and "off" apply to any team or riding animal, and perhaps have a wider application in describing relative positions. Riders always mount from the nigh side of the horse, and artillerymen ride the nigh horse. There are countries where the driver is usually on the off side, but it is not the rule. In copying pictures in engraving the right and left sides must be reversed on the plates to show properly on the print. If this is not done we have what is often seen, the driver on the off side with his whip in his left hand. When one is spoken of as being "on the off side" of any question it implies that he is somewhat out of control, as the off ox is not usually as manageable as the nigh one; he does not come so close to the driver, not in personal contact with him.

He Was Disappointed.

The following example of a quaint, philosophic Scotch character is related in the Scotch-American: The season had been an exceptionally bad one for farmers, but in a country church, not 100 miles from Arbroath, the office bearers had resolved, according to custom, to hold the annual harvest thanksgiving service. It was noticed that on that particular Sunday Mr. Johnstone, a regular attendant and a pillar of the church (whose crops had turned out very poorly), was not in attendance. The minister in the course of the following week met Mr. Johnstone, and inquired of him the reason for his absence from the church on such an important occasion. "Weel, sir," replied Mr. Johnstone, "I dinna care aboot approachin' my Maker in a speerit o' sarcasm."

Sandpaper.

Sandpaper is at present made with powdered glass instead of sand. Glass is readily pulverized by heating it red hot and throwing it into water and finishing the powdering in an iron mortar. By the use of sieves of different sizes of mesh the powder can be separated into various grades of fineness. A strong paper is tacked down and covered with powdered glass of desired fineness; when the glue is dry the surplus glass is shaken or brushed off. Muslin is better than paper and lasts much longer.

HURRAH FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

The farmers of Pennsylvania are to be congratulated. M. M. Luther, East Troy, Pa., grew over 200 bushels Salzer's Silver Mine Oats on one measured acre. Think of it! Now there are thirty thousand farmers going to try and beat Mr. Luther and win $300 in gold; and they'll do it. Will you?

Then there is Silver King Barley, cropped on poor soil 116 bus. per acre in 1895. Isn't that wonderful—and corn 230 bus. and potatoes and grasses and clovers, fodder plants, etc., etc. Freight is cheap to all points.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with 10c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will receive their mammoth catalogue and ten packages grains and grasses, including above oats, free. (K.)

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. Bubbles or Medals.

"Best sarsaparillas." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is———? . . . . There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could, if you were chemists. But then, do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it,—and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

THE SUBSTITUTE

To the House Bond Bill Passes the Senate.

Mr. Allen's Amendment Prohibiting Future Issue of Bonds Without the Consent of the Congress Was Defeated—Seigniorage Amendment Defeated.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—When the senate met at 11 o'clock Saturday morning after taking a recess from 10 o'clock Friday evening, the attendance of senators was rather slim, there being perhaps twenty in attendance.

The vice president laid before the senate a deficiency estimate of appropriation by the secretary of the navy of $500,000 for new practice vessels for the naval academy.

Mr. Morrill (rep., Vt.), chairman of the finance committee, then addressed the senate in opposition to the free coinage substitute reported by the committee for the house bond bill.

Mr. Morrill concluded his speech at 11:45. Mr. Teller (rep., Col.) replied to the assertion of Mr. Morrill that silver was being mined at a ridiculously low cost. He maintained that gold and silver were to-day being mined at 25 cents an ounce. He had ample testimony to show that gold had been mined at from ten cents to three dollars an ounce, and it was unfair to say that silver was a cheap metal.

Discussion proceeding under the five-minute rule Mr. Daniel (dem., Va.), opposed the amendment proposed by Mr. Butler (pop., N. C.), requiring the secretary of the treasury to pay out gold or silver, as the case may require, when the two metals were not at a parity, as one that was impracticable.

Mr. Lindsay (dem., Ky.) held that the proposed amendment was contrary to the very principle on which the friends of free coinage based their claims.

Mr. Butler's amendment was defeated, 13 to 60.

Mr. Allen (pop., Neb.) offered an amendment depriving the secretary of the treasury of the power to issue bonds without the proper authority of congress.

Mr. White (dem. Cal.) thought it unwise to load the measure with "Greek" amendments. Gifts of that character might result in the defeat of the substitute.

Mr. Allen's amendment, prohibiting the future issue of bonds without congress having declared the necessity therefore, was defeated by a vote of 21 yeas and 54 nays.

Mr. Morrill (rep., Vt.) offered an amendment providing that the seigniorage equal to the difference between the coinage and the commercial value of the silver shall be retained by the United States. This was so fair a proposition, he said, that he believed it would be agreed to.

Mr. Gorman moved that the amendment offered by the committee on finance be laid upon the table. It was defeated by a vote of 43 to 34.

Mr. Morrill's amendment relating to seigniorage, the difference between the coinage and the commercial value of the silver proposed to be coined, was defeated by a vote of 44 to 33.

At 12:20 o'clock Mr. Baker (rep., Kas.) desired to offer his amendment, limiting the coinage to the American product, and Mr. Lodge (rep., Mass.) his amendment providing for a $100,000,000 loan for coast defenses.

Mr. Cockrell (dem., Mo.) and Mr. Harris (dem., Tenn.) insisted that the agreement stipulated the final vote on the substitute should be taken at 3 o'clock. A parliamentary wrangle then followed. Various amendments were withdrawn, and the final vote on committee amendments was proceeded with. The committee amendments prevailed by a vote of 43 to 34.

So the free coinage substitute was agreed to.

Mr. Lodge, when the bill was taken from the committee of the whole to the senate, offered his amendment providing for the issue of one hundred millions of bonds for a coast defense loan. Mr. Teller moved to lay the amendment on the table, and that motion prevailed.

The bill as amended by the senate providing for free coinage was finally passed by a vote of 42 to 35.

PUBLIC DEBT.

An Increase of Over Five Million Dollars for the Month of January.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt issued by the treasury department shows the public debt on January 31, 1896, less cash in treasury, to have been $953,046,237, an increase over last month of $5,747,975, which is accounted for by a decrease during the month of $6,435,423 in the cash in the treasury. The debt is classified as follows: Interest-bearing debt, $747,362,820; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,673,190; debt bearing no interest, $375,602,005; total debt, $1,124,638,013, which does not include certificates and treasury notes outstanding amounting to $562,542,773, which is offset by an equal amount of cash in the treasury. The cash in the treasury is recapitulated as follows:

Gold, $99,693,356; silver, $505,421,818; paper, $153,279,225; bonds, disbursing officers' balance, etc., $16,159,324, making an aggregate of $774,553,723, against which there are demand liabilities amounting to $602,961,947, leaving a cash balance of $171,591,778.

Canadians Stealing Timber.

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 3.—It is likely a huge claim will be made against Canada for timber depredations in the northern part of the state. Col. T. A. Root, government inspector for Montana and Idaho, has received many complaints lately from settlers in northern Montana, that the Canadians have for some time been coming across the border and cutting trees until the forests in two counties are nearly stripped of timber. It is believed that two or three million dollars' worth of timber has been taken in this way, as the thieving has been going on for some time.

Two Brothers Murdered in Oklahoma.

PERRY, Ok., Feb. 3.—Near Weiwoka, a few miles southwest of here, John and Jacob Mantz, aged 60 and 75 years, have long resided. They had a fine tract of land and lived in an ordinary house and were reputed to be very wealthy. Sunday morning while a neighbor was passing the Mantz homestead he was astonished to find the elder brother lying in the yard dead with a rope around his neck and a bullet hole through his body. Further investigation disclosed the younger brother dead in the house with several bullet holes through him. There is no clew to the murderers.

Printed in London in 1794, Places the British Guiana Limits About the Same as the Venezuelans Now Claim.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—A dispatch to the Herald from Caracas, Venezuela, says: Antonio Fernandez, president of the state of Falcon, has telegraphed that in the archives of Coro, capital of the state and the oldest city in Venezuela, has been found a map published in London in 1794, in which the limits of British Guiana are given about as Venezuela asserts are right. Minister of Foreign Affairs Rojas sent an answer to President Fernandez thanking him for the information and asking him to send all documents he might discover which could aid the work of the special commission engaged here in copying and preparing maps, etc., for the boundary commission appointed by President Cleveland.

Reports from the west say that the revolution there still continues. Gen. Ricart, who had started for Caracas, returned, and in a fight with the rebels captured four of their leaders.

Carvajal, who was recently released from the rotunda, has been rearrested in Puerto Cabello.

The city of Valencia, capital of the state of Carabobo, has been left in darkness because of a fight with an electric light company. A contract was made by the authorities with an American named Bird to light the city, but an Englishman named Lomax, who was in control of the plant, refused to allow the electric current to be turned on. Great confusion has been caused by the trouble.

INTERNATIONAL CANAL.

Between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean—Canadian Commissioners Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The secretary of state is in receipt of a note from the British ambassador giving the names of the Canadian commissioners who are to meet and confer with the committee appointed by the president pursuant to the act of congress approved March 2, 1895, with a view to reporting the feasibility of building such canals as shall enable vessels engaged in ocean commerce to pass to and fro between the great lakes and the Atlantic ocean. They are: O. A. Howland, M. P., international president Waterways association; T. C. Keefer, C. E. and C. M. G., and T. Monro, C. Inst, C. E., president Canadian Society of Civil Engineers.

The commissioners representing the United States already announced are: James B. Angell, president of Ann Arbor university, Michigan; Lyman B. Cooley, civil engineer, Chicago, and John E. Russell, of Massachusetts.

No arrangements for the meeting of the joint committee has been made by the state department and it is probable that the matter will be left to the commissioners for settlement between themselves.

Returned With Interest.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 1.—Friday the secretary of the Commercial club received a draft for $103 from Grand Island, Neb., the same being money with interest donated by the jobbers of this city to drought sufferers in 1894. A letter accompanying the draft says the farmers who were helped in 1894 raised good crops last year and intended to discharge their obligations. The money was sent as a gift, not as a loan, and its return was a surprise and something unprecedented.

The Indian Appropriation Bills.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The sub-committee of the committee on Indian affairs, in charge of the preparation of the Indian appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1897, will report the measure to the full committee Saturday for its action. As at present arranged the bill carries a total in round numbers of $8,478,000, a decrease from the total of the appropriation for the current fiscal year of about $400,000. New legislation in the bill relates to relatively unimportant subjects.

The committee set Friday next for hearing arguments on the bankruptcy bill and March 11 for hearing on the proposition to recognize God in the constitution.

Extreme Cruelty.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 1.—Miles Williams, a Negro, was driving a pair of mules here Friday, when one of the animals balked. This angered the Negro, who jumped from the wagon, tied one end of a rope securely to the balking mule's tongue and hitched the other end to the traces of the other mule and pulled the balking beast's tongue from its mouth, roots and all. Of course the animal died. Williams is in jail and will be severely dealt with.

A CONFLAGRATION.

The Quaker City Visited by a Disastrous Blaze.

The Hazeltine Building, American Baptist Publication Society, Dry Goods Store of Homer Le Boutelier & Co., and the Hotel Lafayette Damaged.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—The fiercest, most stubborn and most destructive fire that has visited Philadelphia in years originated at 3:30 Sunday morning in the cellar of the Hazeltine building Nos. 1416 and 1418 Chestnut street, and before it had been subdued the Hazeltine building and the American Baptist Publishing society's building at Nos. 1420 and 1422 Chestnut street were destroyed, the dry goods store of Homer, Le Boutelier & Co., Nos. 1412 and 1414 Chestnut street was badly damaged, and the rear of the Hotel Lafayette, which faces on Broad street, was damaged to the extent of $75,000. The approximate total loss by the fire is $1,075,000, the greater part of which is covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is not definitely known. When the firemen arrived the Hazeltine building was already a mass of flames. The building was several stories in height, with an ornate front of brick and terra cotta. It was very substantially built, and at first the firemen thought that they could confine the fire within the walls. The flames, however, spread through the building with great rapidity, and the fire was soon beyond the control of the department.

The rear stories of the Lafayette hotel towered high above the Hazeltine building and the flames poured over the wall toward the hotel. By this time most of the guests in the hotel had been awakened, and as the building seemed in imminent danger, they were warned to leave. Scantily clothed men and women poured out into Broad street, dragging with them their trunks and baggage.

The fire in the meantime had spread from the Hazeltine building to the four-story marble building of the Baptist Publication society and this, too, was soon a mass of flames. Like the Hazeltine building, it extends 230 feet back from Chestnut to Sansome street. The Lafayette hotel has only been recently reopened after having been altered and refurnished at a cost of $500,000. The firemen directed the most of their attention towards saving this building. It was on fire at least a half hundred times, but the department did splendidly efficient work and confined the flames to the rooms on the eighth and ninth floors, facing the fire. The party wall of the Hazeltine building, towering three stories above the dry goods store of Homer, Le Boutelier & Co. fell in upon the latter piece and crashed through a skylight in the center of the store into the cellar. The firemen, however, poured a great volume of water upon the smoking mass of bricks and saved the store from destruction. It was not until the Hazeltine building and Baptist building had been entirely destroyed, and after five hours' hard work, that the fire was subdued.

Eight or nine firemen were injured by falling bricks, but none of them was dangerously hurt. Frank Hines, of Pittsburgh, a guest at the Lafayette hotel, in descending the stairs, tripped and fell, breaking his arm and several ribs. These were the only casualties.

THE ST. PAUL.

Thousands of People Visited the Vicinity of the Stranded Steamer Sunday.

LONG BRANCH, Feb. 3.—This famous seaside resort never saw larger crowds than those which have visited the "Branch" since the American line steamer St. Paul has been aground opposite the Grand View hotel. A conservative estimate of Sunday's visitors is 25,000. The Pennsylvania railroad ran eight excursion trains from Philadelphia. Among the sightseers were hundreds of the employes of Cramps' ship yards, where the St. Paul was built. The chief engineer of the yards was one of the number. Two special trains were run from New York, and the trolley cars from Asbury Park, brought thousands of passengers. Farmers drove in from the country, liverymen had all their rigs hired out, and bicycle riders were out in large numbers.

The wind was strong from the northwest all day, causing an extremely low tide, lower in fact than at any other time since the liner stranded. At three o'clock Sunday afternoon there was not over five feet of water on the bar.

Sixteen feet of the red water line of the St. Paul showed, indicating that the steamer was in the sand and clay to the depth of at least six feet. Capt. Merritt, one of those in charge of floating the ship, says that she will be pulled off with two or three more high tides.

Three People Missing.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Col. Arnold, the superintendent of Swinburne Island hospital, reports that during his absence three of his employes, John F. Ferguson, the boatman; Louis von Moes, the butler, and Mary von Moes, the cook, wife of the butler, started for South Beach in a small boat and have not been heard of since their departure. At the time of leaving a dense fog prevailed in the lower bay, and it is feared that they have been carried to sea by the ebb tide.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Consideration of the District of Columbia Bill—Measures Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The house Friday in the committee of the whole entered upon the consideration of a bill making appropriations for the District of Columbia, ending June 30, 1897, and after acting on some of its schedules the committee rose and the house took a recess until eight o'clock for the consideration of private pension bills.

The following bills were passed earlier in the day:

Authorizing the secretary of the treasury to exclude from the operations of the internal revenue laws except as to payment of taxes, brandies made from all fruits, as well as that made from apples, peaches or grapes, as provided in the present tariff law; changing the time of holding district and circuit courts in the northern division of the eastern district of Tennessee; joint resolutions to permit the society of Christian Endeavor to use the White lot just south of the white house, during its national convention in Washington next July, authorizing the secretary of the navy to appoint ex-Naval Cadets Ryan, Morris and Wells as assistant engineers.

The contested election case of Rosenthal vs. Crowley, from the Tenth Texas district, was settled in favor of the sitting member (Crowley, dem.) upon the unanimous report of the committee on elections No. 3. Mr. Rosenthal did not avail himself of the privilege accorded him Thursday of addressing the house for an hour in his own behalf.

At the night session of the house two private pension bills were ordered laid aside with a favorable recommendation. The session lasted two hours and a half, the major part of the time being consumed in filibustering by the opposition. The house at 10:30 adjourned until Saturday.

HAS NO EQUAL.

Expert McFarlane Declares the Venezuela Gold Mines to Be the Richest in the World.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 1.—Edward McFarlane, a well-known mining engineer, of Colorado, and founder of the town of Telluride, has returned from the gold regions of northern South America, occupying two years. Mr. McFarlane proposes to organize a colony, proceed to Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, apply for concessions from the government and lead the party to the gold fields in the disputed territory, which he says are the richest in the world.

In the opinion of Mr. McFarlane there is no danger of encounter with the British. He is of the opinion that the boundary line will be located without bloodshed.

TREASURY STATEMENT.

Receipts and Expenditures for the Month of January.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—In round figures the treasury statement to be issued Saturday will show the receipts for January to have been $29,000,000, expenditures $32,500,000, making the deficit for the month $3,500,000 and for the fiscal year to date $19,000,000.

Pacific railroad bonds to the amount of $3,800,000, which fell due January 1 last, have been paid as fast as presented, but $1,500,000 still remain unpaid.

These are not accounted "ordinary" expenditures and do not figure in expenditures, but will figure in the cash statement in the monthly debt statement.

Three Divorces.

SALEM, Ill., Feb. 1.—On the chancery docket of Judge Burroughs' court at the present term there were three divorce suits in one family. Francis Searcy sued his wife for a divorce, and at the same time Steven Deniel and William Branch, sons-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Searcy, commenced similar suits. All of the cases were disposed of in one day and divorces were granted. A general family disturbance caused the separations.

Another Shover of the Queer Arrested.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The secret service officers have captured another of the gang of Italians engaged in the circulation of the spurious $5 bills. The prisoner is Antonio Langano, who has a saloon at 54 James street, and $50 in bad bills have been traced directly to his place. Langano was arrested by secret service agents, and was brought before Commissioner Shields shortly after noon Friday. He was held in $5,000 bail.

Joe Choynski Ill.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Joe Choynski, the pugilist, is seriously ill at his home here. "Parson" Davies telegraphed him to join the Sullivan troupe and take the place of the disabled ex-champion. When he returned from New York after his fight with Jim Hall his friends noticed that he was not all right physically, and his illness is attributed to the punishment he received from Hall.

Republican Senators Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The republicans of the senate held a caucus Friday afternoon for the purpose of coming to some conclusion, if possible, on the subject of reorganizing the elective officers of the senate. Nothing was done, and after a discussion of more than an hour an adjournment was taken until next Friday afternoon. The discussion showed a wide difference between senators.

Mining Laws to Be Revised.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—At the meeting of the house committee on mines and mining Friday a favorable report was ordered made on the bill authorizing the payment to each of the public land states 25 per cent. of the receipts from sales of public lands in the several states for the maintenance of schools of mines, provided the states themselves shall appropriate a like sum for the same purpose. A similar bill has passed the senate. A bill providing a general revision of the mining laws was discussed for some time, and was finally referred to a sub-committee.

Those Armenian Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—There is reason to believe that the request made in the Armenian resolutions adopted by the senate and house that a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the six treaty powers of Europe, does not meet with the favor of the administration. The question came up at the cabinet meeting Friday and it is understood that the president and his advisors did not see their way clear to comply with the wishes of congress in the manner in which action is asked. The matter, however, is said to be still in abeyance.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—SENATE—During the session of the senate Monday there were numerous conferences between silver and anti-silver republicans and democrats. There was every evidence of a desire to get together on the financial question. The two senators from Utah were sworn in Monday. Lots were drawn to decide which was to fill the long term, closing March 3, 1899, and which was to fill the short term, closing March 3, 1897. Mr. Cannon was fortunate enough to win the long term from his colleague, Mr. Brown, he having to take the short one.

HOUSE—The house Monday discussed for four hours and passed, by a vote of 243 to 26, the senate concurrent resolution declaring it to be an imperative duty, in the interest of humanity, to express the earnest hope that the European concert brought about by the Berlin treaty may be speedily given its just effect in such decisive measures as shall stay the hand of fanaticism and lawless violence, and as shall secure to the unoffending Christians of the Turkish empire all the rights belonging to them as men and Christians, and as beneficiaries of the explicit provisions of that treaty; requesting the president to communicate these resolutions to the five signatory powers thereof, and declaring that congress will support the president in the most vigorous action he may take for the protection and security of American citizens in Turkey and to obtain redress for injuries committed upon the persons and property of such citizens.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—SENATE—Tuesday Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb) gave notice of an amendment to the pending silver bond bill, depriving the secretary of the treasury of the power to issue bonds unless the authority is granted by congress. Mr. Call's resolution, for an investigation of the arrest of Eugene V. Debs, came up, and Mr. Call urged immediate action, saying that the laboring interests of the country desired the inquiry. Senator Hill (dem., N. Y.) wanted the resolution referred to the judiciary committee. Mr. Allen declared that such action would kill it.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday passed the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill with very little ado. The bill carries $1,637,058, being $98,600 in excess of the appropriation for the present fiscal year. Mr. Hadley (rep., Ill.) announced the death of his predecessor, Frederick Remann, from the Eighteenth Illinois district, July 4, 1895, and the house, as a mark of respect, adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—SENATE—Senator Morgan (dem., Ala.) reported from the foreign relations committee a resolution favoring the recognition of the Cuban insurgents. The resolution was accompanied by a report. Mr. Gray (dem., Del.), from the committee on foreign relations, made a favorable report on the resolution calling on the secretary of state for information as to the arrest of Mark R. Rodriguez on the United States mail steamer Olivette, at Havana, on the 15th inst., and also the arrest of Louis Somellian and his son, in Havana, at the same time. Mr. Call's resolution directing the inter-state commerce committee to investigate and report on a canal across the state of Florida, was agreed to. The resolution as to Eugene V. Debs was referred to the judiciary committee on the assurance of Mr. Hoar, chairman of the committee, that early action would be taken.

HOUSE—Bills Introduced: To correct the military record of Abraham O. Waucow, late captain of company F, 118th Ohio and grant him an honorable discharge. To pension Amelia A. Taylor, widow of Buelard B. Tayler, late captain in the United States navy at $100 per month: to grant two condemned cannon and two pyramids of cannon balls to the Indiana Soldiers' home at Lafayette; to refer to the court of claims the claim of William J. Sandram, late collector of internal revenue for the Eighth Kentucky district, for $5,346.26.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—SENATE—Most of the morning hour was consumed in a discussion about the joint resolution ordering the purchase and distribution of seeds by the secretary of agriculture (on which no action was taken), and during the remainder of the day, after 2 o'clock, speeches were made on the house bond bill, with the finance committee's substitute. Senator Call (dem., Fla.) and Mitchell (Ore.) argued in support of the substitute. Notice was given by Mr. Morrill (Vt.) of his purpose to occupy from 40 to 60 minutes in a speech on the bond bill next Saturday. And the senate, at 6 p. m., took a recess until noon Friday—the recess form being adopted so as to avoid the delay incident to prayer, the reading of the journal and the transaction of morning business.

HOUSE—The following bills were passed in the house Thursday: Directing the pension bureau, in claims by widows for pensions, to accept as evidence of the soldier's death proof of his unexplained absence for seven years; transferring to the state of Nebraska the military reservation of Fort Omaha for a school for instruction of the national guard of that state; to reorganize the customs collection district of Alaska; to open the forest reservations of Pike's Peak, Plum Creek and the South Platte, Colorado, in the Cripple Creek district to the location of mining claims; confirming certain cash entries of "offered lands" in the state of Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—SENATE—An agreement was arrived at in the senate Friday that the vote on the silver substitute should be taken at two p. m. Saturday, with Mr. Hill reserving the right of motions to indefinitely postpone, lay on the table or take up another bill before that hour. Incidental to this were the propositions for a recess from four until seven o'clock Friday, another recess until 11 a. m. Saturday, then the five-minute rule of debate, except in the case of Mr. Morrill, and a vote at two o'clock. The debate proceded till four o'clock, when a recess was taken till seven o'clock. The evening session was spent in debate.

HOUSE—Bills passed: Authorizing the secretary of the treasury to exclude from the operations of the internal revenue laws except as to payment of taxes, brandies made from all fruits, as well as that made from apples, peaches or grapes, as provided in the present tariff law; changing the time of holding district and circuit courts in the northern division of the eastern district of Tennessee; joint resolutions to permit the Society of Christian Endeavor to use the White lot just south of the white house, during its national convention in Washington next July; authorizing the secretary of the navy to appoint Ex-Naval Cadet Ryan, Morris and Wells as assistant engineers. At the night session of the house two private pension bills were ordered laid aside with a favorable recommendation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—SENATE—The free silver substitute for the house bond bill was passed by the senate at seven minutes past three Saturday afternoon, by a vote of 42 to 35. This majority of seven was larger than was anticipated; 21 democrats, six populists an 15 republicans voted for it, while 22 republicans and 13 democrats recorded in opposition. The finance committee amendment to the house bond bill was substituted for that bill by a vote of 43 to 34. Senator Mills, who afterward voted against the substitute bill, voting for it in order to kill the bond bill, as he said, because he deemed the bond bill dangerous.

HOUSE—Not in session Saturday.

Captured in the Knobs.

DANVILLE, Ky., Feb. 3.—Winfield Blevins, charged with horse stealing, was arrested in the knobs, six miles from this city, Saturday night, and brought to jail here. Blevins is a brother of Gano Blevins, who was killed by Eugene Owens.

Bank Cashier Suicides.

ROME, N. Y., Feb. 1.—Hon. George Barnard, cashier of the Fort Stanwix national bank, was found on the third floor of the bank building Friday forenoon. He had tied a cord to a door knob and with a slipnoose around his neck had braced his foot against the door and throwing his head back had strangled himself to death. He had been missing since Wednesday morning. A meeting of the bank directors has been called, and Bank Examiner Van Ranken is here. It is believed that Mr. Barnard had become insane.

SMALL POLITICS.

Republican Senators Trifling with a Serious Matter.

It has been evident almost from the first that there has been no intention in either house of congress to treat the president's appeal for legislation for the relief of the treasury as anything but a ball to be tossed and batted in a partisan game. Not one representative or senator has risen to the occasion and treated the matter in a statesmanlike manner, as its importance demands.

Look at the loan bill. The president wanted two things: First, authority to borrow gold on the security of a bond promising to pay gold and bearing, say, three per cent. interest, and, second, authority to redeem legal tender notes so that they would stay redeemed. The former would enable him to get the needed gold on the best possible terms and at the least cost to the people. The latter would reduce the amount to be borrowed to the lowest limit, and thus contribute toward reducing the cost to the people.

At no time has there been manifested a disposition to grant either of these things. The house bill provided for "coin" bonds at three per cent. and forbade the sales either of these or the bonds already authorized except by public advertisement, while the house refused to entertain for a moment the suggestion that when legal tender notes were redeemed they should stay redeemed.

The bill as it passed the house was worse than worthless for the purpose for which legislation was asked. Then the finance committee of the republican senate took it and made it as bad as any financial measure could be by converting it into a sixteen to one free silver bill, pure and simple. It having now become evident that the bill thus transformed would pass the senate some time and then go to the legislative garbage box it was due to the [illegible] should go to its destiny without delay.

But this was not to be. We have had many dreary days of talk, partly about this miserable bill and partly about the distribution of hay and pumpkin seeds, and the end is not yet. The amendment stage has not yet been passed. The political fine workers have yet to bring forward the compromise schemes designed to round up certain classes of voters.

Senator Lodge, republican, has already offered a substitute amendment leaving out all about silver and gold and authorizing a loan of $100,000,000 in greenbacks or anything else that comes handy for the construction of coast defenses. Senator Faulkner is reported to have an amendment up his sleeve providing that the secretary of the treasury may borrow gold enough to retire the greenbacks and treasury notes, but that the mints must be opened to the coinage of silver for the benefit of depositors until the amount of silver dollars so coined equals the amount of notes retired. And Senator Gorman is said to be ready with a similar amendment, but providing for unlimited free coinage of silver not only during, but forever after, the retirement of legal tender notes.

All this babble and playing small politics is less hurtful than it would be if there were any probability that any one of the numerous schemes to undermine the public credit should be successful. But it does harm not only because it discourages the hope of any reasonable action for the improvement of the currency and the protection of the standard, but because there is a possibility of mischievous legislation, like that of 1890, or worse, and in great numbers of transactions possibilities as well as probabilities have their influence for good or ill. If congress would let the worst be known and go home, it would render the country a negative service.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE REED RULES.

A Significant Argument Against Shady Methods.

After all the glorification of the rules of the 51st congress by our republican friends, the principal rule invented by Mr. Reed was repudiated. To add to the horror of this incident, a rule proposed by a democrat, Randolph Tucker, was substituted for that of Reed, with some slight modification.

There has been a great deal of misrepresentation with reference to the criticism of Mr. Reed. When the 51st congress met, it adopted no rules at all. The speaker professed to be guided by "general parliamentary law," which in this country is based on the rules of the house of representatives. Mr. Reed reversed the practice of the house as to quorums, and had no law to support him but his own will.

It was by means of counting quorums when none voted that Mr. Reed was enabled to secure the adoption of his rule for counting a quorum. Thus the rule itself was of no binding force, having been adopted by a disregard of a rule that had universally prevailed. The counting of a quorum under a lawfully adopted rule and such counting in opposition to the practice of 100 years are two very different matters. Besides, it is known that Mr. Reed counted members who were not present when necessary to make a quorum. But the abandonment of the rule by the party which adopted it is a sufficient argument against it.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

——The republican leaders and organs made themselves very merry while the last congress was in session over the inability of the majority to carry a measure regarded by the party leaders as important, and they laughed themselves almost into fits when the measure had to be shorn of some of its best features in order to get it passed by a semi-traitorous senate. They are laughing now—as the saying is—on the other side of the mouth. With a majority far bigger than the democracy had in the last congress the g. o. p. finds itself utterly unable to carry the simplest measure though it has proclaimed vociferously that the welfare of the country and its most cherished interests are at stake.—Detroit Free Press.

——Speaker Reed, it is said, wants congress to adjourn by May. Amen! Congress has shown that it is not going to pass any legislation that will do the country any good. The next best thing it can do is to adjourn before it can pass any legislation that will do the country any harm.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MANUFACTURERS AND POLITICS

An Association Which Is Not a Credit to the Country.

If the newly elected president of the American Manufacturers' association is a fair representative of the prevailing sentiment in the association, the latter is to be congratulated on his selection; but the country is not to be congratulated on the association. The country has abundant use for an association devoted to the encouragement of manufactures and manufacturing interests; but it has no use for an organization which holds these purposes subordinate to the establishment of partisan political theories and which proposes to commit the manufacturers of the country to a protective tariff. The number of manufacturers who do not believe in the protective theory or doctrine is very large—quite as large probably as the number of those who do believe in that doctrine. Such an effort as the newly elected president of the association made in his address to commit the association to protection must inevitably result—if the members have the courage of their opinions—in splitting the association in twain, and such a result is one upon which the country will look with a good deal of complacency.

There is an unwritten law—a law of decency—which ought to prevent a man put in the position of this newly chosen head of the manufacturers' association from making any such display of himself as Mr. Search did in Chicago. Under that unwritten law politics have no place in such an organization; and the man who seeks to introduce them or to commit his hearers or the organization to his own partisan views on any subject is a transgressor. If the republican manufacturers of the country wish to form an organization for the booming of protection or any other article in the party creed they have an undoubted right to do so. They have no right to commit or attempt to commit an organization composed of democrats as well as republicans, of free traders and revenue reformers as well as protectionists, to republican tenets on any subject. It is not only bad taste, but bad faith to do so; and the new president of the American association must be convicted of both.

It has no necessary bearing upon the good taste or good faith of the official mentioned to say that he is not even an intelligent exponent of the principle for which he contended before the association, and to which he sought to commit that body; but such is the patent fact. When he talked about securing adequate protection for American industries by the reenactment of the McKinley tariff, and in the same breath of an abundance of revenue being the one thing needful, he showed himself utterly incapable of grasping or comprehending the first principles of protection or of revenue. If he had had any capacity in that regard, or if he had ever read the history of the tariff and McKinleyism, he would have known that the latter was and is utterly incompatible with the "adequate revenue" which he professes to regard as of prime necessity, and that its being so is its chief merit in the eyes of its intelligent advocates. It was for the decreasing of revenue, not increasing it, that the McKinley tariff was adopted, and, as we have shown on more than one occasion, it served admirably the purpose its framers had in view.

If President Search would for a moment forego his partisanship and consider the subject intelligently, he would see that this must be so. He would see that just in proportion as a tariff becomes really protective it ceases to produce revenue because it prevents the importation of the goods from which a revenue is to be collected.

It is not at all to the credit of the American Manufacturers' association that it listened without protest to the partisan harangue of its new president. It would have been far better occupied in discussing and adopting the resolutions of sympathy with struggling Cuba.—Detroit Free Press.

——Reed, a flippant and shallow mixture of Blaine and Ingalls; McKinley, a commonplace droner of one song, who never yet could lead a tariff debate; Allison, a coaxer and a bending reed—here are the three mighty men of the republican host. Morton in his prime was not strong enough to deal with Garfield, except through abler men, and now stands for nothing except Tom Platt's dummy.—St. Louis Republic.

——Mr. Platt's aggressive boom for Gov. Morton has already struck an ugly snag. The fact has been unearthed—doubtless by some mousing McKinleyites—that the governor while a member of congress steadily supported New York city's commercial interests "against those of the American manufacturer, mechanic and farmer," and voted to put [illegible] on the free list. IF Congressman McCreary, ex-Governor Buckner or anyother Democrat entertaining their views on the money question had been nominated by the overwhelming vote received by Senator Blackburn in the Senatorial caucus, and a few silverites were refusing to vote for the caucus nominee as some of the gold bugs have been doing, the gold bug papers that are applauding the action of Senator Weissinger and others for refusing to vote for Senator Blackburn, would be denouncing the silverites as disorganizers, traitors to their party, political renegades, etc. Senator Blackburn won his nomination for reelection tairly and overwhelmingly, and is entitled to the support of every Democratic member of the General Assembly. If Messrs. Weissinger, Carroll & Co. are determined that a man's views on the money question shall be the test of his Democracy, they should vote for Dr. Hunter, who was nominated as a gold bug, and, who according to the Weissinger, Carroll & Co. standard, is a good Democrat.

GOV. BRADLEY recommends that the legislature pass a law making a county in which a lynching occurs liable to the legal representatives of the party lynched in the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars. He says he believes such a law would put a stop to mob law in this State. Such a law would have for its object the punishment of the many for the evil deeds of the few, and somtimes a county would be subject to the penalty denounced by the law, when the members of the mob are citizens of another county. When a community is worked up sufficiently to indulge in lynch law it is not going to stop to consider what the unlawful act will cost the county. The penalty for taking part as a member of a mob is severe, but nevertheless persons can be found who will take the risk of being severely punished, and organize lynching parties. If the fear of personal punishment will not prevent mobs, how can the law proposed by the Governor be expected to accomplish any good?

THE following is Prof. Hicks' forecast for this month. "About the 2d temperature will rise in the west, and storms will organize and start eastward. Mixed rain and snow will fall for two or three days, advancing eastward, and much colder weather will follow behind until the 7th and 8th, when warmer, reactionary storms will return. From 8th to 13th more cold. Heavy storms about 13 to 16th. Cold behind storms by the 17th. The 19th to 21st will bring rain and snow, followed by cold weather. The 25th to 28th sleet with much rain and snow. Colder weather will follow. The month ends with gales and a cold wave."

IT is said that there is some uncertainty as to Dr. Hunter's position on the financial question. This somewhat accounts for his election to the United States Senate hanging fire. If his record as a gold bug was unquestioned, his Democracy would be entirely satisfactory to Weissinger, Carroll & Co.," and he should have been elected by the first joint ballot.

THE Supreme court of the United States has decided that a worn or abraded silver coin "is legal tender as long as it bears the semblance of a coin." The decision affirms judgment for $315 damages against a street car company for rejecting a slick dime and ejecting the person offering it.

THE real fun will begin in the legislature this week. The Shelby county member will take his seat, and one or more Democrats in the Houe will be fired, and if the Democratic Senators carry out their programme several of the Republican members of that body will have to walk the plank. The outlook is first class for an interesting time during the balance of the legislative session, and scenes entirely new to Kentucky's legislative halls will be enacted.

Missionary societies are becoming very numerous in the mountain sections of Kentucky. The Presbyterian society is erecting three churches, one at Harlan Court House, one at Booneville, Owsley county. The Baptists have a large college at Williamsburg; the Christian church has a large school at Corbin, under the control of the State Mission Board, and the Congregationalists have missions and schools in nearly every county in Southeastern Kentucky. Another bright omen is that within the past two weeks, two bright, newsy Democratic papers have been started. To these should be added the schools being established by the Methodists at London, Point Burnside and Campton, the school of the Christian church at Hazel Green, the school of the Presbyterian church at Jackson.

An Indiana man, who doesn't want much, wrote to Peter Strange, keeper of the Bowling Green Kennel Club, to know at what price he could get "a three or four-year-old black and white fox-hound; a good looker, and one that has, and can do it yet, catch a stout old red fox in from one to three hours." The Indiana man adds: "I want the dog to be guaranteed to do this, and one that will never quit a race till the fox is caught or holed. I can't pay no big price for such a dog." The same man is looking out for "an experienced colored man, thirty or forty years old, of good habits, and an experienced fox hunter, to come and live with him and do errands around the house and garden and go hunting when needed." He will board and clothe such a man "if he comes well recommended." Keeper Strange says he can't fill the order.

Bruce Marcum, of Jackson, Breathitt county, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for one year from Wolfe county, The crime for which young Marcum must suffer was a very singular one, indeed, and the records of the courts of the Commonwealth will doubtless show very few similar instances. During the summer of 1895 Miss Ella Short and A. J. Johnson, who were bent on matrimony, were having a difficult time of it, since the father of the bride opposed them, and license could not be obtained in Breathitt county, as the bride was not yet of age.

Bruce Marcum, among other young men, was very much in sympathy with Johnson and his troubles, and volunteered his services to go over to Wolfe county to see if the license could not be obtained there. He succeeded in obtaining the license from the Clerk of the Wolfe County Court, under which the young couple were soon made man and wife.

Most people thought this would be the end of the little love affair, but the bride's father was obdurate, and never forgave young Marcum for the active part he took in securing the marriage of his daughter without his consent. Moreover, it was mainly through his instrumentality that young Marcum was indicted for fraudulently obtaining the license, and is now sent to reap the rewards.

Young Marcum is well connected in Breathitt county, being the son of Capt. Ned Marcum, ex-County Clerk, and a prominent man in political and Grand Army circles, and a nephew of Hon. J. B. Marcum, one of the leading attorneys at the Jackson bar. Great sympathy is expressed for the unfortunate young man, who, it is thought, did not properly estimate the enormity of his crime, and was only seeking to help a friend out of trouble.

STOCK AND CROP.

According to the Government's final figures on the 1895 corn yield the crop is estimated at 2,151,000,000 bushels.

Woodford & Buckner, of Bourbon county, have sold their noted campaigner, Free Advice, by Leonatus, to Patt Dunn, for $3,500.

C. T. Wills, of Madison county, who took two car loads of mules to Atlanta, Ga., sold at from $85 to $110 per head. He reports a fair trade.

Frank Cason, colored, of Scott county, sold his crop of about 6,000 pounds of tobacco to Mr. Layton, of Newtown, for 10 cts. and $25 premium, the green tobacco to be left out.

As evidence of the amount of tobacco being shipped from this county we might mention the fact that nearly 150 hogsheads of Henry county tobacco were sold in Louisville last week.—Local.

A Missouri farmer figured it out one rainy day that he had walked 300 miles in cultivating one acre of corn. He therefore sold his farm and moved to a town, where he walked 600 miles to find a job.

Mr. R. P. Sherlock brought to the Times office a double leaf of tobacco or two leaves on one stem. He found it while stripping the crop of the McNally Brothers. Tobacco handlers never saw anything like it before.—Georgetown Times.

During the last six months of 1895 there were 38,331,098 bushels of corn exported from America, as against less than six million bushels during the corresponding period twelve months previous. Nearly ten million bushels were exported during December alone, and the movement since Jan. 1st has been heavy.

As the time for sowing tobacco beds is arriving, a correspondent wants to know if it would do to use the same beds as were used last year. In this section virgin soil is preferred, but in the East permanent plant beds are not infrequent. Some good commercial fertilizer is liberally used and the ground should be well burned and dug to get rid of weed seed.—Winchester Democrat.

Horses are very cheap all over Kentucky now, but the record for low prices seems to have been smashed at Darleyton. A correspondent, writing from that place to the Greenup Gazette, says: "Ollin Williams, of the Lower Flats, was in this neighborhood trying to sell a horse. Ollin says he offered to take a song for his horse, but when the fellow wanted him to sing it himself he backed down, then and there."

It is a very remarkable fact that as soon as the farmer disposes of what he has to sell at the lowest price of all the year the very thing which he has sold for a song begins to "go up." Most of the hog crop in Grant county went off at about 3 cents per pound and the farmers made very little money out of their porkers. Since the large majority of the hogs have been sold the prices have been going up day by day and are now quoted at $5,50 per hundred pounds. The farmer generally receives the short end of everything in the way of prices.—Courier.

Tobacco and corn were never such a drag on the market as at the present. The local market for tobacco is at a stand still and very few crops have been sold owing to the price, which is governed by the city markets, which at present are in a very demoralized state, the price being very discouraging to both buyers and producers. Corn has not been in demand at even 25 cents per bushel, the current price, and many of the farmers are discouraged over the outlook. All are awaiting better prices, but the prospects are by no means flattering—Warsaw Independent.

The farmers and fruit raisers all over Kentucky are very much afraid the fruit crop is going to be killed because of the unseasonable weather we have been having this month. They say the buds are already swelling, and that the continued warm atmosphere, followed by rain, put the trees far in advance of the season, and that the peach trees will be budding in a little while. The oldest fruit raisers in Harrison county, which by the way, is right in the center of Kentucky and Indiana fruit belt, say the cold weather that is likely to follow the spring-like seasons of recent weeks is sure to kill the white heaths and clingstones.

The Chicago cattle market fell off nearly half million beeves last year. Chicago dealers explain this away by attributing it to the drouth that prevailed in the northwest during 1893. It requires three years to fit a beef for market. The drought burned up the feed in the northwestern States, and farmers were obliged to sell calves and grown animals for what they could get. It left a shortage in the beef market for 1895. This partly explains the case but there is another cause which Chicago stock dealers are loath to admit. It is that St. Louis and Kansas City are making such rapid strides in beef slaughtered and live cattle marketing that they are sensibly affecting the Chicago trade.

A number of County Judges met at Frankfort Monday and decided to ask the Legislature to allow the Quarterly Court to hold monthly sessions, instead of only quarterly sessions. A bill to this effect will be at once presented.

Senator Martin, of Harrison county, introduced a bill for the benefit of the Mexican soldiers. The bill authorizes the appropriation of a sufficient sum of money to purchase buttons or emblems, to be presented to them as a token of the high regard in which they are held by the State.

Auditor Stone, in response to the Legislative resolutions of inquiry, sent a statement of the State's finances to the two Houses, which shows that the State needs some wise, practical legislation, quite so bad as it does a United States Senator. Auditor Stone fixes the deficit in the Treasury or the net floating debt on January 6 at a little more than $1,200,000, and estimates that the total floating debt on next June 30, will be a little more than $2,000,000.

Case of the Commonwealth vs. Lou Davis, for breaking into Conway's and Stockdale's store, defendant was acquitted. Lewis Driskell, who confessed, got one year at Frankfort. Driskell went back on his testimony given before Judge Donaldson, in which he said he was with Davis and saw him get the shoes. He further stated that he was hired by Conway and Stockdale to get Davis in it. It was plain, however, that Driskell had been "fixed" while in jail, and on the testimony of Conway and Stockdale, both honorable, upright men, before the grand jury, he was indicted for perjury. What Ails Democracy?

To the Editor of the Recorder:

BALSLEY'S LANDING, FEB. 1.

"What ails Democracy? Is it sick? No. Its teaching is as healthy and its principles as firm as at any time during its history. But with those who compose the Democratic party it is different.

The average Democrat believes that in the beginning God predestined him to dictate—in fact he believes he is a leader to the "manor born." It he can not lead he will not follow.

Had he lived in the days of Bonaparte he would never had fought after the battle of Wagram, had he but conceived the idea he should have lead instead of Mc Donald.

If by chance or some inexplainable or mysterious cause he bows to the great omniscence and accepts his plan of salvation, and should finally arrive at the pearly gates of the New Jerusalem the chances would be 100 to 1 that he'd take issue with St. Peter in regard to his manner of guarding that celestial portal, and would forthwith refuse to enter, and would do all in his power to switch off all trains into the enemy's country.

It matters not where you find him whether behind the plow or behind the counter, he thinks he is the Esculapius so to speak, whose remedy is the panacea that will cure all the ills imaginary or otherwise, resulting from a State or National Administration.

He has the self-satisfaction that he possesses great intellectual powers and he realizes that within him lies dormant some premeditated greatness. All others may err but he never. One will not support Cleveland because of his Venezuelan message. Another is inimical because of his stand for sound currency. Another says he trampled on the Chicago platform.

Some will not support Blackburn because he believes that free coinage of silver is one thing needful in the United States, and so on adinfinitum.

Many minds may combine and their total production is null and void because it does not embrace his views. The acts of a convention or a caucus often angers him, and causes him to ride his hobby until it is dead or his party is defeated.

Organization is the life of a party. Conventions and caucuses are necessary to its success, and all nominees named by those bodies should be supported by all members of the party.

The financial plank of the Chicago platform is claimed by both wings of the party. The silver men say it calls for free coinage of silver viz: "We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country and to the coinage of both gold and silver with out discriminating against either metal exchange for mintage."

The gold man says, "yes, it provides for free coinage of silver, but on conditions," and he begins to quote where the silver man quit: "But the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangable value, or be adjusted through international agreement, or by such safe guards of legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals, and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the markets and for payments of debts; and we demand that all paper currency shall be kept at par with and redeemable in such coin."

Cleveland and Carlisle are carrying out the latter part of this platform and their endorsement at Louisville virtually made the Kentucky Democratic platform one for sound currency, yet, our own Joe, repudiated it, and like a good average Democrat, bolted. He received the nomination of his party, but there happened to be some average Democrats in his legislature, who, probably, will not support him. They too, are wiser and greater than their party. If we expect success we must throw away these petty differences and follow the path mapped out by our party. Is Democracy sick? No, but it is probably placed hors de combat, because we have so many average Democrats.

ONE OF THE AVERAGE.

THERE IS SOMETHING NEW IN TOWN!

If the mild weather continues much longer the fruit will be put in jeopardy thereby. A cold snap is needed to check the advancing of the buds to the danger line.

The fire seen here Saturday night, and supposed to be at Lawrenceburg, was caused by the burning of 32 freight cars which were wrecked on the Big Four road near Tanner's creek, a few days before.

Few consumptives believe they are in danger till medicine is of little avail. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral taken in the early stages, has prevented further progress of the disease, and saved many a life. At any stage of phthisis, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral affords great relief.

We were somewhat amused, recently, to observe one of our popular young men, lately commissioned to solicit orders for a Cincinnati pantaloon house, displaying his samples to a number of our pretty girls. We trust he will not succeed in taking their orders.

The new legal firm in Burlington, beginning with the new year is Lassing & Riddell, the members of the firm being J. M. Lassing and N. E. Riddell, son of F. Riddell, for many years a member of the local bar. They present themselves asking the public for their share of its patronage.

There was considerable activity manifested in local educational circles last week, but matters have assumed the even tenor of their way, and Professor Collins will continue his school at the public school house, while Miss Mattie Whitson will teach in the old school house, which belongs to R. S. Crisler.

"Fellow Citizens;" exclaimed the campaign orator, "Take unto yourselves the motto of the Greek's warrior, Bozzaris, Strike for the green graves of your sires; strike till the last armed foe expires; strike—." At this point a small boy on the front row yelled out, "Say mister dats three strikes—you're out."

Jailer Crisler, assisted by T. W. Finch, built a new fence on two sides of the jail lot, last week. The new fence is a good one, and was badly needed. The county ought to put up a hitching rack along and near the new fence. It is badly needed, and besides it would serve as a protection for the fence.

I desire to thank all my friends and patrons for their past favors and solicit a continuance of the same, and take this method of informing the public that I will be found, from now on, at my shop in Bellevue on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week. Thirty-nine years ago, says the Winchester Democrat, a lad named Edwards, aged about eighteen, one morning started from his home, in Fleming county, to go fishing in the Licking river. Nothing was ever seen or heard of him from that day until last week, when he returned home without any fish. It is very often the case that a Burlington boy goes fishing and returns without any fish, but no one has been known to protract his stay so long as the Winchester lad.

FLORENCE.—Last Thursday morning Fred Cull, after eating breakfast, went to Perry Carpenter's woods to get some fuel. Before he left, his wife complained of feeling badly, when he suggested that she lay down until he returned from the woods. When he returned from the woods, Mr. Cull found his wife's clothing lying on the kitchen floor. A search was immediately instituted, and in a few minutes Mrs. Cull's body was found in the well, life being extinct. Mrs Cull had been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism, and had been demented for several months. She was 71 years of age, a native of Germany, and 40 years a resident of Florence. She was a devoted member of the Catholic church here, where her funeral was conducted last Saturday morning, after which the remains were followed by a large concourse of sorrowing friends to St. Mary's cemetery and placed in the vault.

Metcalfe, for the product of 200 acres to be planted in pickles, at the rate of 40 cents per bushel for them, limited to exceed not more than four inches in length, and 12 cents for cucumbers exceeding that size. The pickles are to be delivered at the Short Line depot, and will be paid for here. The product of not more than 300 acres will be received at this point.

The Walton Canning Co., will not make any contracts for tomatoes until after the 1st of February next. Mr. Metcalfe hopes to make such an arrangement with one of the most prominent houses in the city that will enable the The W. C. Co. to ship all the tomatoes above the requirements of the factory here. If he should be successful, let the farmers, with one accord, arise and call him blessed.

It transpires that the cow trade mentioned in a former communication was not wholly palatable to our old friend, Mr. J. A. Sanders, who had a transaction of that kind some two years ago. After assuring him that no allusion was made to any person in particular, and that it was only published as a good one on stocktraders in general, he told the story, and it is given here in his own words: "About two years ago I had a fine, shapely animal that gave an abundance of milk, which would not make an ounce of butter to a churnful of it. I fell in with Dab Lunsford, who said he wanted to buy a good milch cow. I told him I had a good milker (emphasis on milker) that he might have for $20. He asked which one it was. By this time we had come to my home, and I showed him. He said he would take her. I asked him to let me keep her until Saturday, as we could not be without milk. He readily agreed, but early next morning was down to my home, and paid the money. He thought I was bluffing. I was mighty glad when she was driven from my ranch." Mr. Sanders felt so good after giving his account of the trade that he made your correspondent agent for the sale of a handsome cottage beautifully situated in South Walton.

The Municipal Board of Equalization, Messrs. H. C. Diers, A. R. Hanee and Geo. Rausler, concluded their labors on the 27th inst. About $25,000 was added to the city tax duplicate, and the community seems to be well satisfied.

Messrs. Ransler, Diers and Metcalfe, were appointed a committee to have suitable crossings placed on the streets. They are to-day (the 29th), having the rock put down.

Mr. W. B. Sanders is building a very pretty cottage on High street; although he expects to make his home in Butler when he is able to go on duty.

Mrs. Geo. W. Bagby had her face seriously burned by accidentally falling against the grate bar.

Mrs. Alice Coffman had a very narrow escape from a frightful injury, the other day. Her father-in-law, Mr. Cyrus Coffman had placed the kindling in the cooking stove which was hot, banked the coal on top of it and then applied a liberal dash of coal oil. Mrs. Coffman came in, placed a lighted match to the structure and there was an explosion of the gas generated by the hot stove. Mrs. C's eyebrows and bangs, and also her face and one side of her head was badly burnt. She fainted, when her husband, who came in very opportunely, caught her and prevented a dangerous fall. Dr. A. N. Jones attended both cases

Mr. L. B. Stephens left this morning (the 29th), to visit his daughter, Mrs. Shouse, of Louisville.

Mrs. Geo. Rogers has returned from a visit to her father, Benjamin Vest, who lives in Missouri.

Richard Finnell, a young telegraph operator of this place, and one of the most worthy young men of the town has ever produced, has returned from Florida, whither he had gone for his health, is quite ill. It seems that he did not improve, but grew worse, became disheartened, and returned home.

January 30—

While out hunting to-day Geo. Hite, colored, was accidentally shot through the head and killed by a gun carried by his brother Sam, a boy about 15 years old. 'Squire Roberts impaneled a jury, which returned a verdict of death from the accidental discharge of gun, in accordance with the statement above. Sam is now in jail, and it would be interesting to know by what law he is held.

LATER—The prisoner has been released.

Miss Lizzie Kipp's school will be for a term of four months instead of three.

Only 13 acres more to reach the maximum limit of 300 acres to be planted in pickles for the Weller Co.

The handsome new sidewalk of Walton-made brick, in front of Dr. Bagby's residence, is a credit to the town, and has improved the value of the Doctor's property ten per cent. at least. The Doctor has good ideas on improvement, especially when the enhancement of value is taken into consideration.

Your Waterloo correspondent makes the following sad wail: "This neighborhood has more than its share of bachelors. Can someone suggest a remedy?" This is an easy one. Walton has more widows in it than any other town of the same dimensions in the State, and is fairly running over with pretty girls. Probably some of your bachelors could be relieved from the unity of their lives, provided they are able to make a good impression, which may be rather doubtful, as our girls are somewhat particular in regard to their beaux.

Persons desirous of communicating any items of interest for the columns of this paper, will confer a favor by addressing "The Recorder" at this postoffice, giving their true name.

PETERSBURG, Jan'y. 31.—We are sorry to report the death of Mrs. Emily Fullilove, of Big Bone. She died on the 29th ult., in her 80th year. She was the widow of the late Benjamin Fullilove, a pioneer citizen of this county, who died December, 1883, in his 84th year. Mrs. Fullilove was buried by the side of her husband in the "Old Uncle Johnny Powers burying ground." Four daughters survive their aged mother—Mrs. Sue Helms, of this place; Mrs. Mattie Jordon, of Covington; Mrs. Elizabeth Thomasson, of Newport, and Mrs. Emma McIntyre, of Big Bone.

Our citizens are very much excited over a phenomenon witnessed by Len Ruth as he was going to the butcher shop before day the other morning. When near the Bank building he discovered what appeared to be a ball of fire as large as a wooden bucket, floating in the air about 10 feet from the ground, in front of Berkshire & McWethy's store. It traveled in a zigzag course to the corner of First and Tanner Streets, when it disappeared. Mr. Ruth is a gentleman whose veracity is beyond question, and some think what he saw is an omen of approaching evil.

One of our young gallants, who is afraid to be alone after dark, gave his brother two cents to come around and escort him home from his best girl's, the other night; but his brother bought candy with the money and failed to show up according to promise, very much to the discomfeiture of the youthful beaux.

Miss Sallie Berkshire, who has been quite ill for several months, visited all the apartments in her house the other day, saying it would be the last time she would ever see them; and, in anticipation of death at an early day, she then sent out farewell messages to her friends.

Mrs. E. T. Krutz is in Paris, Ky., at the bedside of her mother, whose death is expected momentarily.

A protracted meeting is in progress at the M. E. Church, conducted by Rev. Fizer, who will be assisted by Dr. Hiner, next week. Much interest is manifested, and the meeting will continue several weeks.

Doc Wingate has gone to Louisville, from where he will take a produce boat to New Orleans. John Botts will have charge of his undertaking business during his absence.

James Tolin was in town Thursday, and said he was about knocked out by a cold.

It is reported that the cooper shops are soon to close down permanently. Hope it is a mistake.

A few days ago Woody Hoffman shipped five fine chickens to a party at Glasgow, this state.

LIFE SAVED
By the Persistent Use of
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia.

Scrofula

Manifests itself in many different ways, like goitre, swellings, running sores, boils, salt rheum and pimples and other eruptions. Scarcely a man is wholly free from it, in some form. It clings tenaciously until the last vestige of scrofulous poison is eradicated from the blood by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands of voluntary testimonials tell of suffering from scrofula, often inherited and most tenacious, positively, perfectly and permanently cured by

A Reporter's Abbreviation.

In a paper on "Some Humors of Parliamentary Reporting" in Macmillan's is the following: "There is a well authenticated story current in the reporter's gallery of a strange freak of a telegraph clerk in the transmission of the report of a parliamentary speech by Mr. Foster to a daily paper in Bradford. The subject of the speech was education; the word 'children' was frequently used, and for the sake of brevity the clerk substituted 'kids,' trusting that the alteration would be corrected by the operator at the other end of the wire. The message, however, was not only written, but printed just as it was transmitted. Imagine the faces of the right honorable gentleman's constituents when they read the next morning: "You know of Wordsworth's profound saying: 'The kid is father to the man.'"

French Blue Laws.

One of the most curious applications of a Sunday law is reported from a French town, where a wheelman was arrested for repairing the tire of his wheel on the road on Sunday and condemned to pay a fine of 25 francs ($5). The defense of the wheelman claimed the absolute and immediate necessity of repairing a punctured tire being a proper motive for doing the work, which did not need the assistance of any professional laborer and which should not come under the law of Sunday rest. The court took a different view, however, and sentenced the wheelman.

A HIGHWAY

That Many Have Traveled and Others Are Trying to Get On.

Rev. Dr. Talmage's sermon Sunday was a picture of the road that many have traveled and others are trying to get on, and is no more appropriate for the capital of the nation than for all places. The text chosen was Isaiah xxxv., 8, 9, 10: "And an highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for those: the wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon; it shall not be found there; but the redeemed shall walk there; and the ransomed of the Lord shall return, and come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness; and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

There are hundreds of people in this house who want to find the right road. You sometimes see a person halting at cross roads, and you can tell by his looks that he wishes to ask a question as to what direction he had better take. And I stand in your presence conscious of the fact that there are many of you here who realize that there are a thousand wrong roads, but only one right one; and I take it for granted that you have come in to ask which one it is. Here is one road that opens widely, but I have not much faith in it. There are a great many expensive toll gates scattered all along that way. Indeed, at every rod you must pay in tears, or pay in genuflexions, or pay in flagellations. On that road, if you get through it at all, you have to pay your own way; and since this differs so much from what I have heard in regard to the right of way, I believe it is the wrong way. Here is another road. On either side of it are houses of sinful entertainment, and invitations to come in and dine and rest; but from the looks of the people who stand on the piazza, I am certain it is the wrong house and the wrong way. Here is another road. It is very beautiful and macadamized. The horses' hoofs clatter and ring, and they who ride over it spin along the highway, until suddenly they find that the road breaks over an embankment, and they try to halt, and they saw the bit in the mouth of the fiery steed and cry: "Ho, Ho!" But it is too late, and—crash!—they go over the embankment. We shall turn and see if we can not find a different kind of road.

You have heard of the Appian Way. It was 350 miles long. It was 24 feet wide, and on either side of the road was a path for foot passengers. It was made out of rocks cut in hexagonal shape and fitted together. What a road it must have been! Made of smooth, hard rock, 350 miles long. No wonder that in the construction of it the treasures of a whole empire were exhausted. Because of invaders, and the elements, and Time—the old conquerer who tears up a road as he goes over it—there is nothing left of that structure but ruin. But I have to tell you of a road built before the Appian Way, and yet it is as good as when first constructed. Millions of souls have gone over it. Millions more will come.

> The prophets, and apostles, too,
>   Pursued this road while here below;
> We, therefore, will, without dismay,
>   Still walk in Christ, the good old way.

First, the road of the text is the King's Highway. In the diligence you dash on over the Bernard Pass of the Alps, mile after mile, and there is not so much as a pebble to jar the wheels. You go over bridges which cross chasms that make you hold your breath; under projecting rock; along by dangerous precipice; through tunnels adrip with the meltings of the glaciers, and, perhaps for the first time, learn the majesty of a road built and supported by governmental authority. Well, my Lord the King decided to build a highway from earth to Heaven. It should span all the chasms of human wretchedness; it should tunnel all the mountains of earthly difficulty; it should be wide enough and strong enough to hold fifty thousand millions of the human race, if so many of them should ever be born. It should be blasted out of the "Rock of Ages," and cemented with the blood of the cross, and be lifted amid the shouting of angels and the execration of devils. The King sent His Son to build that road. He put head and hand and heart into it, and after the road was completed waved his blistered hand over the way, crying: "It is finished!" Napoleon paid 15,000,000 francs for the building of the Simplon road, that his cannon might go over for the devastation of Italy; but our King, at a greater expense, has built a road for a different purpose, that the banners of heavenly dominion might come down over it. Being a King's highway, of course it is well built. Bridges splendidly arched and buttressed have given way and crushed the passengers who attempted to cross them. But Christ, the King, would build no such thing as that. The work done. He mounts the chariot of his love, and multitudes mount with him, and he drives on and up the steep of Heaven amid the plaudits of gazing worlds! The work is done—well done—gloriously done—magnificently done.

Still further: This road spoken of is a clean road. Many a fine road has become miry and foul because it has not been properly cared for; but my text says the unclean shall not walk on this one. Room on either side to throw away your sins. Indeed, if you want to carry them along you are not on the right road. That bridge will break, those overhanging rocks will fall, the night will come down, leaving you at the mercy of the mountain bandits, and at the very next turn of the road you will perish. But if you are really on this clean road of which I have been speaking, then you will stop ever and anon to wash in the water that stands in the basin of the eternal rock.

Aye, at almost every step of the journey you will be crying out: "Create within me a clean heart." If you have no such aspirations as that, it proves that you have mistaken your way; and if you will only look up and see the fingerboards above your head you may read upon it the words: "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof is death." Without holiness no man shall see the Lord; and if you have any idea that you can carry along your sins, your lusts, your worldliness, and yet get at the end of the Christian race, you are so awfully mistaken, that, in the name of God, I shatter the delusion.

Still further: The road spoken of is a plain road. "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein." That is, if a man is three-fourths an idiot he can find this road just as well as if he were a philosopher. The imbecile boy, the laughing stock of the street, and followed by a mob hooting at him, has only just to knock once at the gate of Heaven, and it swings open; while there has been many a man who can lecture about pneumatics and chemistry, and tell the story of Faraday's theory of electrical polarization, and yet has been shut out of Heaven. There has been many a man who has stood in an observatory and swept the heavens with his telescope, and yet has not been able to see the Morning Star. Many a man has been familiar with all the higher branches of mathematics, and yet could not do the simple sum: "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Many a man has been a fine reader of tragedies and poems, and yet could not "read his title clear to mansions in the skies." Many a man has botanized across the continent, and yet not known the "Rose of Sharon, and the Lily of the Valley." But if one shall come in the right spirit, asking the way to Heaven, he will find it a plain way. The pardon is plain. The peace is plain. Everything is plain. He who tries to get on the road to Heaven through the New Testament teaching will get on beautifully. He who goes through philosophical discussion will not get on at all. Christ says: "Come to Me, and I will take all your sins away, and I will take all your troubles away. Now what is the use of my discussing it any more? Is not that plain? If you wanted to go to some city, and I pointed out the highway thoroughly laid out, would I be wise in detaining you by a geological discussion about the gravel you will pass over, or a physiological discussion about the muscles you will have to [illegible] after the Bible has pointed out the way to Heaven, is it wise for me to detain you with any discussion about the nature of the human will, or whether the atonement is limited or unlimited? There is the road—go on it. It is a plain way. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." And that is you and that is me. Any little child here can understand this as well as I can. "Unless you become as a little child, you can not see the kingdom of God." If you are saved it will not be as a philosopher, it will be as a little child. "Of such is the kingdom of Heaven." Unless you get the spirit of little children, you will never come out at their glorious destiny.

Still further: This road to Heaven is a safe road. Sometimes the traveler in those ancient highways would think himself perfectly secure, not knowing there was a lion by the way, burying his head deep between his paws, and then, when the right moment came, under the fearful spring the man's life was gone, and there was a mauled carcass by the roadside.

But, says my text, "No lion shall be there." I wish I could make you feel your entire security. I tell you plainly that one minute after a man has become a child of God he is as safe as though he had been 10,000 years in Heaven. He may slip, he may slide, he may stumble; but he can not be destroyed. Kept by the power of God, through faith, unto complete salvation. Everlastingly safe. The severest trial to which you can subject a Christian man is to kill him, and that is glory. In other words, the worst thing that can happen a child of God is Heaven. The body is only the old slippers that he throws aside just before putting on the sandals of light. His soul, you can not hurt it. No fires can consume it. No floods can drown it. No devils can capture it.

> Firm and unmoved are they,
>   Who rest their souls on God;
> Fixed as the ground where David stood,
>   Or where the ark abode.

His soul is safe. His reputation is safe. Everything is safe. "But," you say, "suppose his store burns up?" Why, then it will only be a change of investments from earthly to heavenly securities. "But," you say, "suppose his name goes down under the hoof of scorn and contempt?" The name will be so much brighter in glory. "Suppose his physical health fails?" God will pour into him the floods of everlasting health, and it will not make any difference. Earthly subtraction is heavenly addition. The tears of earth are the crystals of Heaven. As they take rags and tatters and put them through the paper mill, and they come out beautiful white sheets of paper, so often the rags of earthly destitution, under the cylinders of death, come out a white scroll upon which shall be written eternal emancipation. There was one passage of Scripture, the force of which I never understood until one day at Chamounix, with Mont Blanc on one side, and Montanvert on the other, I opened my Bible and read: "As the mountains are around about Jerusalem, so the Lord is around about them that fear Him." The surroundings were an omnipresent commentary.

> Though troubles assail, and dangers affright;
> Though friends should all fail, and foes all unite;
> Yet one thing secures us, whatever betide,
> The Scripture assures us the Lord will provide.

Still further: The road spoken of is a pleasant road. God gives a bond of indemnity against all evil to every man that treads it. "All things work together for good to those who love God." No weapon formed against them can prosper. That is the bond, signed, sealed and delivered by the president of the whole universe. What is the use of your fretting, Oh child of god, about food? "Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly father feedeth them." And will he take care of the sparrow, will he take care of the raven, will he take care of the hawk, and let you die? What is the use of your fretting about clothes? "Consider the lilies of the field." Shall he not much more clothe you, oh, ye of little faith? What is the use of worrying for fear something will happen to your home? "He blesseth the habitation of the just." What is the use of your fretting lest you will be overcome of temptations? "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape that ye may be able to bear it." Oh, this King's highway. Trees of life on either side, bending over until their branches interlock and drop midway their fruit and shade. Houses of entertainment on either side the road for poor pilgrims. Tables spread with a feast of good things, and walls adorned with apples of gold in pictures of silver. I start out on this King's highway, and I find a harper, and I say, "What is your name?" The harper makes no response, but leaves me to guess, as with his eyes toward Heaven and his hand upon the trembling strings this tune comes rippling on the air: "The Lord is my light and my salvation. Whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life. Of whom shall I be afraid?" I go a little farther on the same road and meet a trumpeter of Heaven, and I say: "Haven't you got some music for a tired pilgrim?" And wiping his lip and taking a long breath, he put his mouth to the trumpet and pours forth this strain: "They shall hunger no more, neither shall they thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat, for the Lamb which is in the midst of a throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." I go a little distance farther on the same road, and I meet a maiden of Israel. She has no harp, but she has cymbals. They look as if they had rusted from sea-spray; and I say to the maiden of Israel: "Have you no song for a tired pilgrim?" And like the clang of victors' shields the cymbals clap as Miriam begins to discourse: "Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriously; the horse and the rider hath he thrown into the sea." And then I see a white-robed group. They come bounding toward me, and I say: "Who are they? The happiest and the brightest and the fairest in all Heaven—who are they?" And the answer comes: "These are they who came out of the great tribulations, and had their robes washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb."

I pursue this subject only one step further. What is the terminus? I do not care how fine a road you put me on. I want to know where it comes out. My text declares it: "The redeemed of the Lord come to Zion." You know what Zion was. That was the King's palace. It was a mountain fastness. It was impregnable. And so Heaven is the fastness of the universe. No howitzer has long enough range to shell those towers. Let all the batteries of earth and hell blaze away; they can not break in those gates. Gibraltar was taken, Sebastopol was taken, Babylon fell; but these walls of Heaven shall never surrender either to human or Satanic besiegement. The Lord God Almighty is the defense of it. Great capital of the universe! Terminus of the King's high way!

Dr. Dick said that, among other things, he thought in Heaven we would study chemistry, and geometry, and conic sections. Southey thought that in Heaven he would have the pleasure of seeing Chaucer and Shakespeare. Now, Dr. Dick may have his mathematics for all eternity, and Southey his Shakespeare. Give me Christ and my old friends—that is all the Heaven I want. Christ and His people that I knew on earth—that is Heaven enough for me. O, garden of light, whose leaves never wither, and whose fruits never fail! O, banquet of God, whose sweetness never palls the taste, and whose guests are kings for ever! O, city of light, whose walls are salvation, and whose gates are praise! O, palace of rest, where God is the monarch and everlasting ages the length of His reign! O, song louder than the surf-beat of many waters, yet soft as the whisper of cherubim!

O, glorious Heaven! When the last wound is healed, when the last heartbreak is ended, when the last tear of earthly sorrow is wiped away, and when the redeemed of the Lord shall come to Zion, then let all the harpers take down their harps, and all the trumpeters take down their trumpets, and all across Heaven let there be chorus of morning stars, chorus of white-robed victors, chorus of martyrs from under the throne, chorus of ages, chorus of worlds, and there is but one song sung, and but one name spoken, and but one throne honored—that of Jesus only.

The increasing emigration to the south from the northwest has induced a sort of return tide. It is said more than a thousand land agents have gone from southern states to the northwest since January 1 for the purpose of presenting the advantages of different localities and inducing homeseekers from the northwest to locate in the south. A large proportion of those now going south are Union veterans and pensioners, and southern people are congratulating themselves that the latter fact will add materially to the money in circulation in that section.

The United States makes a good deal of champagne, the consumption of which, if included in the above estimate, would show us to be the largest consumers of that beverage of any people on earth. California turns out large quantities of it, New York state produces much more than is supposed.

CHEAP POULTRY HOUSE.

Can Be Constructed of Sod or Lumber by Any Bright Man.

The exceedingly practical and convenient poultry house, an illustration of which embellishes our columns below, is 30 feet long by 24 feet wide and can be constructed of sod or lumber. As shown in the ground plan, the space is divided into four main parts. The principal room occupies the entire right side of the building, as shown in the ground plan, in which F F are roosts 14 feet long; B, a box 5 by 5 feet for straw in which to throw grain in winter to induce exercise, and H, a coop 4 by 6 feet for shutting up sitting hens. In the left-hand upper corner of the ground plan is the laying room 10 by 12 feet, with nests all about the sides. Just below it is the room 6 by 12 feet for sitting hens, while in the lower left-hand corner is a room 10 by 12 feet for chickens. I is a box in which to put lime and oyster shells. L L L are feed boxes and troughs; V V receptacles for green feed; M M M are drinking vessels; A A are nests 18 inches square. Windows and doors can be arranged as shown in the illustration or to suit the taste of the builder. There is a partition in the room for chickens, dividing it into two parts, one for those quite small and the other for larger ones. A lath door between this room and the main room allows the chickens to pass.—Farm and Home.

THE CANADIAN THISTLE.

Method of Exterminating This Most Destructive of Weeds.

Get the land well set in clover, and the richer the better. Let it stand until just as the thistles begin to show bloom, then mow it, being sure to cut all thistles. It is well to apply some plaster to start a quick growth of the clover. When the clover is up a good growth, say at the middle or last of July or first of August, plow the field and be sure that it is all plowed. Do not cut the clover, but plow the whole ground, having a chain on plow if necessary to put all the grass under. Roll at once and harrow so as to cover all the thistles. Keep the field well cultivated all the following fall. Every time a thistle shows go over it with some broad-toothed cultivator, having the teeth sharp, and in two days after follow with hoe, cutting off the heads of every last thistle. Follow up until late fall; then in the fall plow the field and you will have the best of all fitted fields for barley or oats, and if the work is thorough I will give you a dollar apiece for every thistle that ever shows again, unless it comes from the seed.—J. S. Woodward, in Prairie Farmer.

FATTENING FOWLS.

No Way in Which Corn Can Be Fed to Better Advantage.

"How can I best fatten fowls for market?"

This is a very simple matter, and one not requiring any special tact or skill. It is a very profitable proceeding, too, for fowls that are thin and light can be made to put on the heaviest possible weight in a very short time if they are properly handled.

Fowls fatten best in confinement, and those which are to be sold should be shut up in rather close quarters, and fed all they will eat of corn meal coarsely ground. We have tried various mixtures for fattening fowls, but never found anything superior to coarse corn meal and plenty of pure water. Just these two things will make a tough, thin old hen plump and tender in two weeks, and when she comes to the table her flesh will be as sweet, juicy and tender as a spring chicken.

Fowls that are sent to market fat and plump always bring the best prices, and this because they present an inviting appearance. There is no better way in which corn can be fed to advantage than to use it in finishing a lot of thin fowls in preparation for market. The fowls should be sold as soon as they are well fattened, for after this is accomplished it is a waste of food to keep them any longer.—Farm and Fireside.

Theory as to Hog Cholera.

Waldo F. Brown, in the Maine Farmer, says: "In 35 years I have but once had this disease (hog cholera) among my hogs and then I lost but two, one a stunted pig and the other a sow taken sick when her pigs were born. All the herd were very sick and so fevered that their ears dropped off after they got well and they did not eat anything for more than a week, but they recovered and fattened as well as any hogs I ever fed. I believe that if these hogs had fed on corn alone from weaning time that four out of five of them would have died. I am a firm believer that exclusive corn feeding is responsible for a large per cent. of the loss from cholera which often sweeps off whole herds."

The Mission of Weeds.

Weeds are feared by farmers who have made mistakes in the management of their fields, by virtue of which the weeds have found a chance to prosper. Weeds, therefore, may be said to have a mission; first, to educate the farmer; and, second, to ameliorate the soil. Good and judicious tillage and cropping are the only effective means of keeping down weeds. A foul place can be cleaned by inaugurating, for a time, a stout and vigorous rotation of crops.—Southern Cultivator.

A BOOK OF TRAVEL.

The Southern Pacific Marks an Era in Railway Literature by the Publication of a Sumptuous Book.

The railway literature of the past decade has, in some instances, been so surprisingly good that as examples of book-making it has occasioned revolutions in the art of printing.

The Passenger Department of the Southern Pacific is about to put forth a book which will make a distinct advance upon anything heretofore achieved in this line, and which is likely to astonish those conservative people who wonder how costly books, especially prepared, can be given away. The work referred to is entitled "Through Storyland to Sunset Seas," and was written by H. S. Kneedler. It will be issued as a handsome volume of 250 pages, printed on enameled paper, made especially for the work, and illustrated by two hundred fine half tone engravings executed in the highest style of art. The work contains no advertising, except as the narrative indirectly advertises the Southern Pacific.

It is a narrative, largely in dialogue, of the journey which four people made over the entire Southern Pacific System, and it tells cleverly all the things of interest which they saw and learned along the way. The unpublished romance which attached to the section of Louisiana traversed—the story of the Acadian and the traditions of La Fitte, as well as much of romance in family history, are dwelt upon, together with anecdotes of the Texas plains and the table lands of Arizona and New Mexico where Indian and Spanish rule have left a legacy of tragic history. Then up and down through California the story takes the reader to every point of interest, and as far North as Portland, Oregon, and out on the Central Pacific across the Sierras to Salt Lake.

The book is the embodiment of careful research and it describes all the points of interest along the line and tells so graphically the story of what is to be seen that it is a perfect guide book, while at the same time the narrative style which has been adhered to takes it out of the class of guide books and makes it what it really is—a work of travel, and one as fascinating to a person who has never seen the great Southwest or the Paradise of the Pacific Coast, as to him who has traversed all the region. It is a book which people will read and keep, and when one contemplates the cost of publishing such a work it is a marvel that the Southern Pacific generously offers to send it to any applicant who will send 20 cents in stamps to pay the cost of postage. Write to S. F. B. Morse, General Passenger Agent, Southern Pacific, New Orleans, La., enclose 20 cents in stamps and receive in return a book which, in the regular way, would cost you $1.50 or $2.00.

Time and Tide.

"Time and tide wait for no man," saith the adage but there are many other things of the non-waiting kind which will not be put off and ought not to be. Half the misery of the world is caused by delay, and Rheumatism is one of those insidious ills which demands prompt attention, especially in mid-winter, when the cold accelerates its action and intensifies pain. If allowed to have its way, it will wait for no man in its rapid development of the chronic stage. When this is reached, then come troubles, not only in its misery but in many ways where a helpless condition throws the sufferer out of work and money. But whether in its acute, chronic or inflammatory stage, don't wait. The tide of pain will go on and so will loss of time. At the same time we all know that St. Jacobs Oil is made and sold for the express purpose of curing the worst cases in their worst form at any stage. It has cured and will cure in nine cases out of ten.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

FT. THOMAS MURDER.

Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling Jailed for the Terrible Crime.

They Make Partial Confessions, Implicating Each Other—Walling Says Jackson Committed the Deed, Then Cut Off the Girl's Head and Burned It.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 7.—The mystery of the Fort Thomas murder last Friday night, in which a young girl was beheaded, is coming to light. The clothing and shoes of the victim were recognized by the family of Alex. Bryan, a prosperous farmer and dairyman of Greencastle, as that of their daughter and sister, Pearl Bryan. The girl had got into trouble with one Wm. Wood, it is alleged, and came to this city in January to have a criminal operation performed. Two dental students named Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, also from the vicinity of Greencastle, Ind., received the girl, and she was last seen in their company on Friday evening. On instructions from the Bryan family they were arrested Wednesday evening and locked up charged with Pearl Bryan's murder.

Jackson after a restless night weakened, making a partial confession, throwing the blame on Walling. He claims that Walling undertook to perform the operation but instead he believed he killed her. He took the body over to Ft. Thomas and beheaded it. When he came back he threw the head into the river. Jackson admits that he helped to hide the crime by disposing of the girl's surplus wearing apparel.

Alonzo Walling Thursday night made a confession to a reporter. He says Pearl Bryan was killed by a hypodermic injection of prussic acid, administered by Jackson. The deed was done absolutely in cold blood, there was no effort at criminality; the death of the poor girl alone was intended. The girl was taken to Ft. Thomas and beheaded.

Walling says the head was buried somewhere in Cincinnati by Jackson.

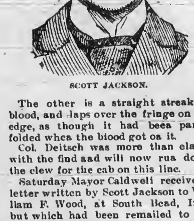
Wm. Wood was arrested and brought here from South Bend, Ind., Thursday afternoon. The testimony against him is somewhat doubtful, and he was released on $5,000 bond.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 8.—At noon Friday Walling made another confession to Mayor Caldwell, in which he said that Jackson gave the girl four grains of cocaine in sixteen drops of water and then drove her to Ft. Thomas, where he cut off her head.

Friday night Jackson sent for Secretary Tibbette, of the Y. M. C. A., and made a second confession. It is in writing. In it he declares that he is not guilty of the murder. He was the means of getting Pearl Bryan to come to Cincinnati to undergo the operation. Walling was to get $50 for the job. He says he does not know where Walling killed the girl or what he did with her after the killing. Will Wood was to send the $50 through Jackson for performing the abortion.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 10.—On a clew from Cabman Rigsby, Officer Mount went to work on the theory that it was possible for a cab to have been used in the Bryan murder case, and that the man who drove in place of Rigsby could have very easily placed a figure one in front of the real number, 176, with grease paint, thus deceiving the bridge collector, who said the cab was 76.

Officer Mount decided to take up the matter closely, and Saturday afternoon he went to the Metropolitan stable, where Rigsby keeps his cab and with a lantern examined the carriage. He found a light summer lap robe of pink and white material, well fringed. He took it to the light, and there discovered that there were several big blood stains. They are in the corner of the robe, and one spot is as big as a man's hand.



SCOTT JACKSON.

The other is a straight streak of blood, and laps over the fringe on the edge, as though it had been partly folded when the blood got on it.

Col. Deitsch was more than elated with the find and will now run down the clew for the cab on this line.

Saturday Mayor Caldwell received a letter written by Scott Jackson to William F. Wood, at South Bend, Ind., but which had been remailed to the mayor by the postmaster at that place, as per instruction.

As soon as he received it the mayor sent for D. D. Woodmansee, the attorney for Jackson, and with his consent opened the communication. It was dated February 5, the day on which Jackson was arrested. It was marked 8:30 p. m., less than two hours before his arrest. It was written on letter heads of the Palace hotel, of this city, while the envelope bore the style of Al Heider's hotel, on Fifth street. The letter says:

> "2-5-96.
>
> "Hello, Bill—
>
> "Write a letter home signed by Berts name telling the folks that he is somewhere & going to Chicago or some other place—has a position etc—and that they will advise later about it—Say tired of living at home or anything you want. You know about the way he writes. Send it to some one you can trust—How will Smith at LaFayette—tell the folks that he has not been at I but at La Fayette and traveling about the country get the letter off without one seconds delay—and burn this at once. Stick by your old chum Bill—And I will help you out the same way or some other way—some time—Am glad you are having a good time— D.
>
> "Be careful what you write to me."

"Bert" in the letter means Pearl. In that portion of the communication which explains that "he has not been at "I." "I" evidently stands for Indianapolis.

The letter was signed "D," which stands for "Daisy," a nickname that Jackson went by among his acquaintances. The reference to "Bert" and "he" was evidently prearranged, meaning, as they did, "Pearl" and "she." This is shown by the fact that where the words "he" appears "she was written first and then altered.

Arrangements have been made to turn Jackson and Walling over to the Kentucky authorities, and it is likely they will be transferred to Newport on Monday. The exact time is not given, as mob violence is feared.

Evidence of a damaging nature was discovered against Jackson and Walling, the accused murderers of Pearl Bryan, Sunday afternoon. The discovery, in all probability, solves the problem as to how the unfortunate girl lost her life, or at least how she was first attacked.

A bloody handkerchief, which was wrapped around a good-sized rock, making a most formidable weapon, and the hat which was worn by the dead girl when she came to Cincinnati were found.

ALONZO WALLING.

According to the officers, the hat was found the day after the murder, or Saturday, February 1, a short distance out of Newport, on the Alexandria pike. The person who found the hat is Mrs. Mary Morgan, who peddles milk for a living. The hat was lying at the side of the road, near some privet bushes. In the center of the hat was a bowlder about the size of a man's fist. Underneath the stone was a man's handkerchief, which was covered with blood spots.

The hat was positively identified by Walling as belonging to Pearl Bryan. He also says the handkerchief found belongs to Jackson. Jackson, however, denies it.

The question has arisen to what extent Jackson is criminally liable, assuming that he is instrumental in the death of the girl.

If it be proved that he did no more than a criminal operation, and that the girl died under the effects of a drug administered to facilitate the work, then the probable extent of his crime would be manslaughter.

If it develops that he premeditated actually doing away with the girl in any of the horrible ways said to have been devised by him and brought out by Walling's testimony, then it would appear that his crime would be that of first degree murder, and he would be tried on that charge.

AT INDIANAPOLIS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 7.—During the 1894-95 term of the Indiana dental college Scott Jackson and his mother roomed at the home of J. R. Lotshaw, on New York street. Mrs. Jackson was very solicitous for the welfare of her son, who had not been following the path of rectitude, according to those who knew him.

The police records show that Jackson was arrested and fined January 1, 1895, for associating with lewd women and he was sent to the work house to serve out a fine of $10 and costs. One woman with whom he associated was accustomed to call at his rooms. This is one of the reasons why Mrs. Jackson left Indianapolis and did not permit her son to finish his college course here. The dental college students knew him very well, and among them he had the reputation of being a coward.

The Remains in Greencastle.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Feb. 10.—The remains of Pearl Bryan arrived here Sunday morning at 12:26 o'clock over the Vandalia from Cincinnati. The cortege was accompanied by Fred Bryan and Mrs. Mary Stanley, brother and sister of the dead girl; F. A. Harris and Undertaker E. E. Black. The fact of the arrival of the body was kept a profound secret, and upon the arrival of the train the remains were taken directly to Forest Hill cemetery and placed in the public vault, where they will be kept until further developments in the case. Shortly after nine o'clock the Bryan family viewed the remains, and every member of the family fully identified them. The scene was most pathetic.

Will Wood in Greencastle.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Feb. 10.—Rev. Wood arrived home Saturday morning with his son, Will Wood, who is out on $5,000 bail. Wood is here to be with his mother until the 13th. He does not appear on the streets for fear of being lynched. Public sentiment against him is very strong.

Marshal Starr Saturday afternoon notified Wood to leave town before night to save his life. Wood lost no time and left on the 2 o'clock train east with his father and mother. A lynching Saturday night was evident.

The Fight to Take Place in Mexico.

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 10.—A gentleman who will not allow his name to be used, but is known to be very close to Dan Stuart Friday evening said: "The Maher-Fitzsimmons fight will take place on the estate of Dr. Alexander, a retired United States army surgeon, who has one of the finest grape vineyards in Mexico, located four miles from El Paso. This estate consists of 4,000 acres of land in a body."

Victoria Revises Her Will.

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The death of Prince Henry of Battenberg, husband of Princess Beatrice, youngest daughter of the queen, caused her majesty to revise her will. It is reported that she will leave Osborne house to Princess Beatrice, and will also bequeath to her the leasehold of Abergeldie house. The duke of Connaught, it is said, will get Balmoral, the queen's residence in the Highlands.

THE CONGRESS.

Various Appropriation Bills Will Be Considered in the Senate.

Amended Resolution to Recommit the Tariff Bill Will Come up Early—The House Will Discuss the Silver Coinage Bill—Amendments Will be Offered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Although the present congress has been in session for more than two months, without the customary holiday recess, the senate will only this week get down to the actual business of the session, and begin the consideration of the appropriation bills. Mr. Hansborough's seed resolution is the unfinished business, and he expects to have a hearing upon it within a few days, although the understanding is that it is to be laid aside temporarily whenever appropriation bills are ready to be considered.

Mr. Quay's amended resolution to recommit the tariff bill to the senate, which was laid over until Monday, will come up early. Mr. Quay says that while the vote will be close, he believes it has an even chance of passing. The populists, however, at their recent conference, decided to vote against recommitment, and if they do so, together with the entire democratic vote, the resolution will not prevail. Mr. Smith, of New Jersey, will address the senate Monday on the Monroe resolutions, now pending. It is believed that he will take ground between the ultra conservatism of his colleague, Mr. Sewell, and the radicalism of Mr. Davis, of Minnesota. The fact that Mr. Smith had conferred with the president on this subject, and his speech, to a certain extent, is believed to reflect the views of the chief executive, will give it interest. Mr. Blanchard, of Louisiana, will also speak on the same subject Tuesday. The effort to change the elective officers of the senate may be made during the latter part of the week, but there is more or less of conjecture, owing to this. While there is abundant work before the senate in the shape of appropriation bills, those having been reported to the senate being the urgent deficiency, military academy, pensions, and the consular and diplomatic bills. None of these have many additions been made, save in the urgent deficiency bill, to which, at the request of the treasury department, a large amount for unprovided expenses of the department of justice has been inserted. The house will further discuss the bond silver coinage bill until 12 o'clock Tuesday morning. Notice has been given that a large number of amendments will be offered, and it is not certain when a final vote on the senate free coinage substitute will be reached. It was hoped that it may be had on Wednesday. The silver advocates concede that the republican vote in favor of the substitute will not be as large as that given against the passage of the bond bill last December. It is variously estimated by them at from 25 to 40.

After the financial matter has been disposed of, appropriation bills will again come to the front. There are two of these—the agricultural and military bills—now on the calendar, and the Indian bill is ready for report to the house.

The elections committee have two or three [illegible] cases ready which they can bring in at any time.

HON. WM. H. ENGLISH,

Capitalist, Politician and Literateur, Dies After a Six Weeks' Illness.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 8.—At 12:35 Friday afternoon Hon. Wm. H. English, capitalist, politician and literateur, died in his room at English's hotel after an illness of six weeks. He was unconscious for an hour before his death. Around his death bed were his son, Will E. English; his daughter, Mrs. Rose Walling, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Miss Hedges, Mr. English's stenographer, and Dr. Franklin W. Hays, who attended him.

Mr. English has been ill for about six weeks. He was at first attacked by grip. This was followed by inflammation of the air passages and the membranes of the throat. Of this he almost recovered, but two weeks ago he was seized with inflammatory rheumatism, which, with organic disease of the heart of several years' standing, completely exhausted him. His condition had been [illegible] for 24 hours preceding death, and it was said as early as Thursday that his demise was but a very few hours distant. He leaves an estate variously estimated at from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Wm. Hayden English was a native of Indiana. He was born at Lexington, Scott county, August 27, 1822. His father, Elisha G. English, one of the pioneers of the state, was honored with many public trusts during a period of 40 years, and his mother was the daughter of Philip Eastin, an officer in the war of the revolution. Mr. English was educated in the common schools, and at Hanover college studied law and entered upon the active duties of life. When he was only 18 years old he was one of two delegates from this county to the democratic state convention in Indianapolis, January 8, 1840. The other delegate was his father, then a member of the legislature. For a quarter of a century he was actively identified with all the democratic state conventions held in Indiana. He was licensed to practice law before he was 21 years old, and before he was 23 had been admitted to practice in the Indiana supreme court and the United States supreme court. He was four times elected to the congress of the United States, serving during the eight years of intense excitement immediately preceding the great civil war, and was the author of a compromise measure in relation to the admission of Kansas as a state, which became a law and was a prolific theme of controversy in the heated political contests of that day under the name of the "English bill." He was ever a friend of the union of the states, and was always a democrat in politics. In 1861 he declined a re-election to congress, and since that time engaged in banking, street railroad and various other enterprises, and thus added the reputation of a first-class financier to the reputation he had previously acquired as a statesman.

In 1880 Mr. English was unanimously nominated for vice president of the United States on the ticket with Gen. Hancock. Although the ticket was defeated it received a greater number of votes in Indiana than the state ticket of the democratic party received at the election held only a few weeks before. During the last ten years of his life Mr. English was engaged in the work of preparing and collecting material to perpetuate the early history of his native state. This work he only partially completed, but one volume, that touching on the conquest of the northwest territory, being in print.

Randolph, late a first class pilot in the Mississippi squadron, at $12 per month; to pension Margaret M. Stitch, widow of Jos. Stitch, late first lieutenant in the Forty-eighth Ohio, at $12 per month; to refer to the court of claims the claim of S. M. Trout at $12 per month; to pay $1,750 to Wm. M. Stakes, of Calloway county, Ky., for property furnished the United States during the late war.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—SENATE—Mr. Morrill, (rep., Vt.) chairman of the committee, reported back from the committee the house bill "to temporarily increase revenue to meet the expenses of the government and provide against a deficiency," with an amendment to strike out all after the enacting clause and to insert in lieu thereof the free-coinage substitute adopted by the senate last Saturday. By a vote of 23 to 44 the senate refused to take up the urgent deficiency bill, and by a vote of 40 to 24 it was decided to take up Mr. Dubois' (rep., Id.) resolution to amend the rules, which was discussed until 5:30, when it went over without action, the senate adjourning until Wednesday.

HOUSE—Mr. Dingley (rep., Me.) chairman of the committee on ways and means, reported with a recommendation that the house do not concur in the senate substitute for the bill passed in December, authorizing the issue of bonds to protect the gold reserve and to provide against temporary deficiencies in the revenue. By unanimous consent a number of measures were considered and passed, among them a house bill authorizing the appointment of commissioners to treat with the Shoshone, Arapahoe and Bannock Indians in Wyoming and Idaho, for the surrender of any rights claimed by them under treaties with the United States to hunt upon unoccupied land.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—SENATE—The concurrent resolution which the senate committee on foreign relations reported last week, requesting the president of the United States to use his influence with the government of Spain to recognize the Cuban revolutionists as belligerents was practically set aside Wednesday, by a substitute reported from the same committee. The joint resolution directing the secretary of agriculture to carry into effect the provisions of the agricultural appropriation for the current fiscal year, for the purchase and distribution of seeds and farmers' bulletins, was taken up and discussed during the morning hour.

HOUSE—In committee of the whole Wednesday the report of the committee on ways and means upon the senate substitute for the bond bill was considered. Mr. Dingley (rep. Me.) said that at the proper time he would move to nonconcur in the action of the senate, and to insist upon the bill that passed the house. The house was entitled to some answer to the propositions contained in its bill, and he took it that the house intended to insist upon the proposition as it had originally framed them. The debate on the free coinage substitute sent over by the senate was continued in the house in a night session, beginning at 8 p. m. There was a pretty fair attendance of members and the house galleries were well filled.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—SENATE—Mr. Quay's resolution to recommit the tariff bill with instructions to report two separate propositions was amended so as to instruct the committee to simply re-examine the bill, and in this shape it went over until next Monday. Mr. Quay believes that in this shape it may pass. Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, consumed an hour of the day in a speech on the subject of the election of senators by popular vote, a text upon which Mr. Turpie makes a speech annually. Senator Sherman Thursday presented Mr. Foraker's credentials to succeed Senator Brice March 4, 1897, and the senate passed a resolution calling for detailed statements concerning the [illegible]. Shortly before two o'clock the house bill prohibiting prize fights in the territories was brought over from the house and was at once taken up and passed.

HOUSE—The bond bill discussion consumed the entire session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—SENATE—Friday's session of the senate presented some interesting features. The officiating clergyman (not Mr. Milburn, but a substitute—Dr. Hugh Johnston, of Washington), in the opening prayer, expressed thanks for "the confidence of the people in the financial strength of the nation." A president pro tem. of the senate was chosen without dissent, in the person of Senator Frye, of Maine, and the Dubois resolution to distribute the appropriation bills among several committees was practically defeated by being referred to the committee on rules, with instructions to report it back on the first Monday in December next.

HOUSE—Chairman Henderson asked unanimous consent for the committee on judiciary to sit during the sessions of the house, which was given. A message from the president was laid before the house, transmitting the report of the board of engineers on the Nicaragua canal. The remainder of the session was devoted to the further consideration of the bond silver coinage bill. There was an hour and a half of debate before Friday's legislative session began, the house meeting at 10:30 o'clock. At 5:10 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 o'clock with the understanding that further continuation of the day's session be held at 10:30 Saturday morning, the silver debate to be the only business.

TRIBUTE TO STATESMEN.

The Best Place for a Beginning in Working the Salvation

Of the Nation is at the National Capital—As the Apostles Began in Jerusalem, so Should the Start be Made at Washington—Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

"There it is," said the driver and we all instantly and excitedly rose in the carriage to catch the first glimpse of Jerusalem, so long the joy of the whole earth. That city, coroneted with temple and palace and radiant, when looked up at from the Valley of Jehoshaphat or gazed at from adjoining hills, was the capital of a great nation. Clouds of incense had hovered over it. Chariots of kings had rolled through it. Battering rams of enemies had thundered against it. There Isaiah prophesied, and Jeremiah lamented, and David reigned, and Paul preached, and Christ was martyred. Most interesting city ever built since masonry rang its first trowel, or plumbline measured its first wall, or royalty swung its first scepter. What Jerusalem was to the Jewish kingdom, Washington is to our own country—the capital, the place to which all the tribes come up, the great national heart whose throb sends life or death through the body politic, clear out to the geographical extremities.

What the resurrected Christ said in my text to His disciples, when He ordered them to start on the work of gospelization, "beginning at Jerusalem," it seems to me God says now, in His Providence to tens of thousands of Christians in this city: Start for the evangelization of America, "beginning at Washington." America is going to be taken for God. If you do not believe it, take your hat now and leave, and give room to some man or woman who does believe it. As surely as God lives, and He is able to do as He says He will, this country will be evangelized from the mouth of the Potomac to the mouth of the Oregon, from the Highlands of the Navesink to the Golden Horn, from Baffin's bay to the Gulf of Mexico, and Christ will walk every lake, whether bestormed or placid, and be transfigured on every mountain, and the night skies, whether they hover over groves of magnolia or over Alaskan glacier, shall be filled with angelic overture of "Glory to God and good will to men."

Again and again does the Old Book announce that all the earth shall see the salvation of God, and as the greater includes the lesser, that takes America gloriously in. Can you not see that if America is not taken for God by His consecrated people, it will be taken for Apollyon! The forces engaged on both sides are so tremendous that it can not be a drawn battle. It is coming, the Armageddon! Either the American Sabbath will perish and this nation be handed over to Herods, and Hildebrands, and Diocletians, and Neros of baleful power, and alcoholism will reign, seated upon piled-up throne of beer-barrels, his mouth foaming with domestic and national curse, and crime will lift its unhindered knife of assassination, and rattle keys of worst burglary, and wave torch of wildest conflagration, and our cities be burned into Sodoms, waiting for Almighty tempests of fire and brimstone, and one tidal wave of abomination will surge across the continent, or our Sabbaths will take on more sanctity and the newspapers will become apocalyptic wings of benediction, and penitentiaries will be abandoned for lack of occupants, and holiness and happiness, twin son and daughter of Heaven, shall walk through the land and Christ reign over this nation either in a person or by agency so glorious that the whole country will be one clear, resounding echo of Heaven.

It will be one or the other. By the throne of Him who liveth forever and ever, I declare it will be the latter, if the Lord will help me, as He always does—blessed be His glorious name!—I will show you how a mighty work of grace begun at Washington would have a tendency to bring the whole continent to God, and before this century closes.

William, the Conqueror, ordered the curfew, the custom of ringing the bell at midnight, at which all the fires on the hearths were to be banked, and all the lights extinguished, and all the people retire to their pillows. I pray God that the curfew of the century may not be sounded, and the fires be banked, and the lights extinguished, as the clock strikes the midnight hour that divides the nineteenth century from the twentieth century, until this beloved land, which was to most of us a cradle, and which will be to most of us a grave, shall come into the full possession of Him who is so glorious that William, the Conqueror, could not be compared to Him, even the One who rideth forth "conquering and to conquer."

Why would it be especially advantageous if a mighty work of grace started here, "beginning at Washington?" First, because this city is on the border between the north and the south. It is neither northern nor southern. It commingles the two climates. It brings together the two styles of population. It is not only right but beautiful that people should have especial love for the latitude where they were born and brought up. With what loving accentuation the Alabamian speaks of his orange groves. And the man from Massachusetts is sure to let you know that he comes from the land of the Adamses—Samuel, John, and John Quincy. Did you ever know a Virginian or Ohioan whose face did not brighten when he announced himself from the southern or the northern state of presidents? If a man does not like his native clime it is because while he lived there he did not behave well. This capital stands where, by its locality and its political influence, it stretches forth one hand toward the north and the other toward the south, and a mighty work of grace starting here would probably be a national awakening. Georgia would clasp the hand of New Hampshire, and Maine the hand of Louisiana, and California the hand of New York, and say, "Come, let us go up and worship the God of nations, the Christ of Golgotha, the Holy Ghost of the Pentecostal three thousands." It has often been said that the only way the north and the south will be brought into complete accord is to have war with some foreign nation, in which both sections, marching side by side, would forget everything but the foe to be overcome. Well, if you wait for such a foreign conflict you will wait until all this generation is dead, and perhaps wait forever. The war that will make the sections forget past controversies is a war against unrighteousness, such as a universal religious awakening would declare. What we want is a battle for souls, in which 40,000,000 northerners and southerners shall be on the same side, and shoulder to shoulder. In no other city on the continent can such a war be declared so appropriately, for all the other great cities are either northern or southern. This is neither, or rather, it is both.

Again, it would be especially advantageous if a might work of grace started here, because more representative men are in Washington than in any other city between the oceans. Of course there are accidents in politics, and occasionally there are men who get into the senate and house of representatives and other important places who are fitted for the positions in neither head nor heart; but this is exceptional, and more exceptional now than in other days. There is not a drunkard in the national legislature, although there were times when Kentucky, Virginia, Delaware, Illinois, New York and Massachusetts had men in the senate or house of representatives who went maudlin and staggering drunk across the high places. Never nobler group of men sat in the senate or house of representatives than sat there yesterday and will sit there to-morrow, while the highest judiciary, without exception, has now upon its bench men beyond criticism for good morals and mental endowment. So is all departments of official position, with here and there an exception, are to-day the brainiest men and most honorable men of America. Now, suppose the Holy Ghost power should fall upon this city, and these men from all parts of America should suddenly become pronounced for Christ! Do you say the effect would be electrical? More than that. It would be omnipotent! Do you say that such learned and potent men are not wrought upon by religious influence? That shows you have not observed what is going on. Commodore Foote, representing the navy; Gen. Grant and Robert E. Lee, representing the northern and southern armies; Chief Justice Chase, representing the supreme court; the Frelinghuysens, Theodore and Frederick, representing the United States senate; William Pennington and scores of others representing the house of representatives, have surrended to that Gospel, which, before this winter is out, will, in this capital of the American nation, if we are faithful in our prayers and exertions, turn into the kingdom of God men of national and international power, their tongues of eloquence becoming the tongues of fire in another Pentecost. There are on yonder hill those who, by the grace of God, will become John Knoxes, and Chrysostoms, and Fenelons, and Bourdeleaus, when once regenerated. There is an illusion I have heard in prayer meetings and heard in pulpits, that a soul is a soul—one soul worth as much as another. I deny it. The soul of a man who can bring a thousand or ten thousand other souls into the kingdom of God is worth a thousand or ten thousand times more than the soul of a man who can bring no one into the kingdom. A great outpouring of the Holy Spirit in this capital, reaching the chief men of America, would be of more value to earth and Heaven than in any other part of the nation, because it would reach all the states, cities, towns and neighborhoods of the continent. Oh, for the outstretched right arm of God Almighty in the salvation of this capital!

Some of us remember 1857, when at the close of the worst monetary distress this country has ever felt, compared with which the hard times of the last three years were a boom of prosperity, right on the heels of that complete prostration came an awakening in which 500,000 people were converted in different states of the union. Do you know where one of its chief powers was demonstrated? In Washington. Do you know on what street? This street. Do you know in what church? This church. I picked up an old book a few days ago, and was startled, and thrilled, and enchanted, to read these words, written at that time by the Washington correspondent of a New York paper. He wrote: "The First Presbyterian church can scarce contain the people. Requests are daily preferred for an interest in the prayers offered, and the reading of these forms one of the tenderest and most effective features of the meetings. Particular pains are taken to disclaim and exclude everything like sectarian feeling. General astonishment is felt at the unexpected rapidity with which the work has thus far proceeded, and we are beginning to anticipate the necessity of opening another church." Why, my hearers, not have that again, and more than that? There are many thousands more of inhabitants now than then. Beside that, since then the telephone, with its semi-omnipresence, and the swift cable car, for assembling the people. I believe that the mightiest revival of religion that this city has ever seen is yet to come, and the earth will tremble from Capitoline hill to the boundaries on all sides with the footsteps of God as He comes to awaken and pardon and save these great populations. People of Washington, meet us next Thursday night, at halfpast 7 o'clock, to pray for this coming of the Holy Ghost—not for a pentecostal 3,000, that I have referred to, but 30,000. Such a fire as that would kindle a light that would be seen from the sledges crunching through the snows of Labrador to the Caribbean Sea, where the whirlwinds are born. Let our cry be that of Habakkuk, the blank verse poet of the Bible: "O, Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years, in the midst of the years make known; in wrath remember mercy." Let the battle cry be, Washington for God! the United States for God! America for God! the world for God! We are all tired of skirmishing. Let us bring on a general engagement. We are tired fishing with hook and line. With one sweep of the Gospel net let us take in many thousands. This vast work must begin somewhere. Why not here? Some one must give the rallying cry, why may not I, one of the Lord's servants? By providential arrangement, I am every week in sermonic communication with every city, town and neighborhood of this country, and I now give the watchword to north and south, and east and west. Hear and see it, all people—this call to a forward movement, this call to repentance and faith, this call to a continental awakening!

This generation will soon be out of sight. Where are the mighty men of the past who trod your Pennsylvania avenue and spoke in yonder national legislature, and decided the stupendous questions of the supreme judiciary? Ask the sleepers in the Congressional cemetery. Ask the mausoleums all over the land. Their tongues are speechless, their eyes closed, their arms folded, their opportunities gone, their destiny fixed. How soon Time prorogues parliaments, and adjourns senates, and disbands cabinets, and empties pulpits, and dismisses generations! What we would do, we must do quickly or not at all. I call upon people who can not come forth from their sick beds to implore the heavens in our behalf from their midnight pillows, and I call upon the aged who can not, even by the help of their staff, enter the church to spend their last days on earth in supplicating the salvation of this nation, and I call upon all men and women who have been in furnaces of trouble, as was Shadrack, and among lions, as was Daniel, and in dungeons of trouble, as was Jeremiah, to join in the prayer, and let the Church of God everywhere lay hold of the Almighty Arm that moves nations. Then senators of United States will announce to the state legislatures that seat them here, and members of the house of representatives will report to the congressional districts that elected them, and the many thousands of men and women now and here engaged in the many departments of national service will write home, telling all sections of the country that the Lord is here, and that He is on the march for the redemption of America.

Hallelujah! the Lord is coming! I hear the rumbling of His chariot wheels. I feel on my cheeks the breath of the white horses that draw the Victor! I see the flash of his lanterns through the long night of the world's sin and sorrow! We want in this country, only on a larger scale, that which other centuries have seen of God's workings: as in the reformation of the sixteenth century, when Martin Luther and Philip Melanchton led on; as in the awakening of the seventeenth century, when Bunyan and Flavel and Baxter led on; as in the awakening of the eighteenth century, when Tennant and Edwards and the Wesleys led on; as in the awakening of 1857, led on by Matthew Simpson, the seraphic Methodist, and Bishop MacIlvaine, the Apostolic Episcopalian, and Albert Barnes, the consecrated Presbyterian, and others just as good, in all denominations. Oh, will not some of those glorious souls of the past come down and help us? Come down off your thrones, Nettleton, and Finney, and Daniel Baker, and Edward Payson, and Truman Osborne, and Earle, and Knapp, and Inskip, and Archibald Alexander—that Alexander the Great of the Christian churches. Come down! How can you rest up there when the world is dying for lack of the Gospel? Come down and agonize with us in prayer. Come down and help us preach in our pulpits. Come down and inspire our courage and faith. Heaven can get along without you better than we can. But more than all (and overwhelmed with reverend emotion we ask it), come, thou of the deeply-dyed garments of Bozrah, traveling in the greatness of thy strength, mighty to save! Lord God of Joshua! Let the sun of this century stand still above Gibeon and the moon above the valley of Ajalon, until we can whip out the five kings of hell, tumbling them down the precipices as the other five kings went over the rocks of Bethhoron. Ha! Ha! It will so surely be done that I can not restrain the laugh of triumph.

From where the seaweed is tossed on the beach by the stormy Atlantic, to the sands laved by the quiet Pacific, this country will be Emmanuel's land, the work beginning at Washington, if we have the faith and the holy push and the consecration requisite. First of all, we ministers must get right. That was a startling utterance of Mr. Swinnock, when he said: "It is a doleful thing to fall into hell from under the pulpit, but, oh! how dreadful a thing thither out of the pulpit." That was a suggestive thing that Paul wrote to the Christians: "Lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I, myself, should be a castaway." That was an inspiring motto with which Whitfield sealed all his letters: "We seek the stars." Lord God! Wake up all our pulpits, and then it will be as when Venn preached and it was said that men fell before the word like slacked lime. Let us all, laymen and clergymen, to the work. What Washington wants most of all is an old-fashioned revival of religion, but on a vaster scale, so that the world will be compelled to say as of old: "We never saw it on this fashion." But remember there is a human side as well as a Divine side to a revival. Those of us brought up in the country know what is called "a raising," the neighbors gathered together to lift the heavy frame for a new house, after the timbers are ready to be put into their places. It is dangerous work, and there are many accidents. The neighbors had gathered for such a raising, and the beams had all been fitted to their places except one, and that very heavy. That one, on the long pikes of the men, had almost reached its place, when something went wrong and the men could hoist it no higher. But if it did not go in its place it would fall back upon the men who were lifting it. It had already begun to settle back. The boss carpenter shouted: "Lift men or die! All together! Yo—heave!" With mightier push they tried to send the beam to its place, but failed. Still they held on, all the time their strength lessening. The wives and mothers and daughters stood in horror looking on. Then the boss carpenter shouted to the women: "Come and help!" They came, and womanly arms became the arms of giants, for they were lifting to save the lives of husbands, and fathers and sons, as well as their own. Then the boss carpenter mounted one of the beams and shouted: "Now Altogether! Lift or die! Yo—heave!" And with a united effort that almost burst the blood vessels, the [illegible] beam went to its place and a [illegible] huzza was heard. That is the [illegible] it sometimes seems in the [illegible] Temples of righteousness are to be reared; but there is a ha[illegible] catch somewhere. A few [illegible] all they can, but we [illegible] at this raising [illegible] More Christian [illegible] Christian w[illegible] work [illegible] it [illegible] souls. All [illegible] of God. The Courier-Journal has been very uneasy ever since the balloting for Senator commenced, for fear Blackburn would be elected.

The Recorder is indebted to Hon. A. S. Berry for a copy of the "Constitutional Manual and Digest Rules and Practice of House of Representatives."

Major McKinley certainly has the best grounds for claiming that Mr. Harrison's declining to be a candidate for the presidency increases his chances for the nomination.

The action of Wessinger & Co., in the Senatorial dead lock is a clear case of the tail trying to wag the dog, and a very small stub of a tail at that.

Hon. J. G. Furnish was home from Saturday night to Tuesday morning. He is of the opinion that there will be no election of a United States Senator by the present legislature.

Four or five members of the legislature took a notion that they should dictate to the remainder of the Democrats in the State, who they should elect United States Senator.

After many years dispute the boundary line between Indiana and Kentucky has been definitely settled in so far as Green River Island is concerned, and the island belongs to Kentucky.

A Georgia man, who went over to Cuba to assist the insurgents, writes back that he has taken part in one battle, and that they are not as exciting or dangerous as a game of foot ball.

The Kentucky House adopted resolutions of sympathy for the Cuban Insurgents, urging the Kentucky delegation in Congress to advocate the recognition of the Cuban as belligerents.

The case of the Commonwealth against Elliston for the murder of Dickerson is on trial in Grant county, Circuit Court. Elliston is defended by able counsel but has no advantage of the State in that particular.

Why don't Wessinger, Carroll & Co., vote for Dr. Hunter and settle the senatorial deadlock so the legislature can do some work? They can defeat Blackburn by voting for Hunter, and that is all they want to accomplish.

It is thought by some that Mr. Harrison's friends expect to see a dead lock in the St. Louis conuention, which, at the proper time, they hope to break by springing the name of Harrison. So it is not altogether certain that Harrison will not be heard from at St. Louis next June.

Since Mr. Harrison has notified his party that he will not allow his name to go before the St. Louis convention as a candidate for President, the friends of each of the other candidates are claiming that their respective favorites have been greatly strengthened by Mr. Harrison's action.

The Ft. Thomas murder mystery is being slowly but surely unraveled. The body of them urdered girl was identified as Pearl Bryan, of New-Castle, Indiana, and Scott Jackson and his roommate, named Walling, two dental students have been arrested and each accuse the other of the murder. The head of the unfortunate woman has been not found, and the murderers will not tell what they did with it.

These Louisville papers that are assuming to take charge of and control the Democratic party in Kentucky should look about them and upon the destruction that has overtaken the Democratic party in Louisville while under their leadership. Only a few years since the Democrats had a safe majority in Louisville, but the wreckers succeeded in wiping it out, and aided materially in wiping out the majority in the State. Kentucky will never be restored to Democratic control if the party allows the Louisville contingent of so called Democrats to dictate the course it shall pursue.

The slot machine has seen its day in Louisville and has to go. The penalty for operating a slot machine, according to Commonwealth's Attorney Parsons, is very severe. The operator or manager is subject to a fine of $500, and imprisonment in the penitentiary not less than one nor more than three years, and they may be deprived of suffrage and can hold no office of trust or profit in the State, county or municipality. The owner of the premises on which the machine is operated may be fined from $200 to $500. The [illegible] of these machines in [illegible] to quit, [illegible] against [illegible] ville [illegible]

[illegible] "jabberwocks," [illegible] laid down the following propositions and challenged a denial thereof upon the part of those opposed to his then position in regard to the white metal:

"1. That the demonetization of silver, which has prevailed for some years up to this writing, both in the United States and Europe, has had the effect of advancing the value of gold about 40 per cent.

"2. That this has been accomplished by depressing the value of all other property to that extent.

"3. That about 40 per cent. of the property and producing resources of the people have thus been transferred to a comparatively small class of men whose stock in trade is gold investments.

"4. That in the exact proportion as gold has risen, the burden of debt and taxation has increased; and that in proportion as property and labor have declined, the capacity of the people to pay their debts and taxes has diminished.

"5 That the silver discount is creating a bonus of more than 30 per cent. in favor of the farm productions of India and Asia, which to that extent cheapens the wheat, cotton and various other productions of the United States.

"6. That these lamentable conditions have been produced by anti-silver legislation.

Had any five Democrats acted, in 1886, as Weissinger & Co., are now behaving at Frankfort, the C.-J. would have lambasted them in its inimitable style, because at that time Joe Blackburn's views on the money question were the same as those of the C.-J., but the latter has changed—Blackburn has not, and therefore he is a renegade, according to the C.-J.

The Hiseville correspondent of the Glasgow Times says: "Since the poultry show at Glasgow there has been a great spread of the chicken fever all over the country. Nearly everybody is talking chicken talk, and quite a number of fancy fowls have been bought for breeding purposes. There never has been as much interest in poultry here before.

A case of considerable interest was tried Tuesday before Judge Field, at Brooksville. The interested parties were Miss Anna Hanson and Adolph Berman, the merchant of this place. One day last July, while Mr. Benson was at dinner, Miss Hanson (who was a clerk in Berman's store at the time) found a roll of paper money in the store containing about $100. When Mr. Berman came in the money was turned over to him. A few weeks since Miss Hanson demanded the money, but Mr. Berman refused to give it up. Suit was brought by Frank Hanson, as next friend. At this writing Judge Field has not rendered a decision.—Bracken Demcrat.

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

While prices during the present week were perhaps not quite as high as they were on the best day of the previous week, there was certainly an increased activity in the market. The sales were larger, and in consequence there was more interest shown on the part of the buyers, they attended the breaks closer and seemed more anxious to make purchases. The stock of old is being slowly worked down; to slow, in fact, to get it out of the way before the new will be in full competion, and prices don't show much change. We think holders should proceed to close out.

In new tobacco, bright trashes are the best sellers, and in most cases are bringing above shippers marks. Receipts and offerings of new have increased considerably, and with favorable weather we may look for large sales from now on. With the increased offerings of the past week a better idea can be formed of the character of the new crop, and though there is surely a very large proportion of common and indifferent tobacco, we find, in some sections, as good an article as we have seen at any time. All the manufacturers are now buying it, and we think it a good time to make sales.

A good shipment of West Virginia Tobacco was received at the Globe Warehouse this week, and the reputation of these tobaccoes has caused strong competion among the buyers; prices were very satisfactory and the shippers were well pleased with their sales.

Taxes in Grant county during the Year of Our Lord, 1896, promisse to reach the highest mark in the history of the county. The county levy has already been fixed by the Fiscal Court at 50 cents on the $100 of taxable property and $1 50 on each poll. The State tax last year and for a good many years has been fixed at 42½ cents on the $100 and it is proposed to raise that rate to 55 cents. The necessity for the proposed raise in the fact that during the past three or four years the State has run behind some $3,000,000. This shortage has been largely produced by the shrinkage in the values of property and the consequent diminution of the taxable property in the State. If the people of Grant county have to pay $1 05 on each $100 of taxable property that they own in addition to paying local school and town taxes it will make the burden of taxation fall pretty heavy during these hard times. That rate of taxation will gather more than $50,000 from the taxpayers of Grant County, and the local school and town taxes will run the total of the taxes to be collected during 1896 to more than $60,000.

The weather this week indicates that winter is about over, as it has been remarkably mild for this season, there not being a day when it was freezing.

There is a movement on foot to establish a military company at Warsaw, and the parties who have the matter in charge are making rapid progress toward getting the necessary number of members.

State Senator R. B. Brown spent Saturday and Sunday here with his family and friends. He says the legislature is moving very slowly in business matters.

The roads are getting in very bad condition for travel on account of the very soft weather that has prevailed during the winter season.

Last Monday, Wm. Wheeler, a son of James Wheeler, residing on the Sparta pike, came to town and his actions aroused the suspicion of the people that he had become mentally unbalanced. He went into the Warsaw Deposit Bank, and going into the private office without invitation or ceremony, he demanded from the cashier, J. E. Mountjoy, "the money he had been stealing from him." Mr. Mountjoy thought Wheeler was joking, but on his sternly demanding the money again, and threatening to wear out a big hickory stick on Mr Mountjoy if he did not immediately comply, he saw the man was insane. He handled Wheeler very nicely, stating he would see about it and going into his main department armed himself with his revolver to protect himself, and then stepping to the door he quietly called a number of gentlemen into the Bank, who after disarming Wheeler, caused him to leave the Bank. He went to the Commercial Hotel, where Sheriff Everett Winn assisted by Charles Lillard, arrested him and took him to jail. Wheeler was tried Tuesday and ordered to the Lakeland asylum where he was taken Wednesday.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

Removal of the seat of Government of Kentucky again bobbed up serenely in the Legislature a few days ago. This time it is proposed to amend the constitution submitting the location to a vote of the people. Statesmen have appeared time and again with a scheme to expand, and its failure passed its author out of existence. In the midst of a Senatorial issue, when chaos reigns everywhere, the Capitol removal question is thrown in with a dull sound to awaken Franklin county's Representative to a sense of duty to his party and his people. Governor Bradley has already run his stilletto into any appropriation for Capitol buildings during his term, although he had previously professed great friendship for the Capital City. He side-tracked us, and now we are in danger, in this advanced age of Kentucky's progress, of being sandbagged in the assembly of our friends.—Western Argus.

Editor-Representative Richardson in Glasgow Times: I have been away from home three weeks today and it appears three months. A large part of that time I have been sick in body, and all of that time I have been sick at heart. When I get back in my home among the good people of Barren county, I am going to stay there, and the world, with its contentions and strife, may wag as it wants: I will not wag with it. These are troublous times and God only knows what is right before us. There will be more politics in the next twelve months than in the whole generation preceding. Meantime, let us all keep in the middle of the road, fight for for what we believe to be the right, and leave consequence to Providence. But I verily believe I will see more happen, politically, in the next year, than in my whole life before.

Last Tuesday quite a stir was created in the joint assembly when Representative Johns arose to explain why he changed his vote from McCreary to Blackburn, Lieut. Gov. Worthington deciding that his remarks were out of order. Senator Bronston went after Gov. Worthington in terms that were strong, and for a time things waxed warm in the Assembly; but Mr. Johns was permitted to explain his vote, and the ballot closed with considerable feeling.

The holding of State conventions for the selection of delegates to the national conventions will begin making politics interesting again in a few weeks.

The bill authorizing the borrowing of $500,000 to defray the current expenses of the State was not favorably considered by the committee to which it was referred.

Mrs. Guy, the Democratic nominee for State Librarian, was elected last Thursday. All the Democrats, the two Pops. and one Republican voted for her.

The bill for borrowing $500,000 to meet current expenses of the State Government was recommitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A bill has been introduced to enable landlords to eject tenants after ten days notice when they are a month behind with their rent.

The House Committee on Revenue and Taxation decided to report favorably the bill to abolish the State Board of Equalization.

The committee on constitutional amendments has reported favorably the bill to submit the capital removal question to the people.

Mr. Violett, of Fraukfort has asked for an appropriation of $1,000,000 for the erection of a new state-house at Frankfort.

A bill providing for the redistricting of the State into 100 legislative districts has made its appearance in the House.

The bill to abolish the Register of the Land office, has been reported favorably by the Senate committee.

Dr. Daughterty presented a bill requiring the United States flag placed on all public school buildings.

The House passed a bill which provides for the punishment of stray gamblers as vagrants.

A bill was introduced by Senator Stege to pay jurors $1.50 instead of $2 per day.

STOCK AND CROP.

A Clark county man has rented 9 acres to go in tobacco, at $30 per acre.

In Mercer, the Burgin Elevator Co. has stored over 60,000 bushels of No. 2 wheat and are buying more.

The general belief around the Chicago stock yards is that March hogs will bring $5 per hundred. This is based on reports of commission men who have been to that country and find supplies shorter than expected.

In Illinois, 75 head of Poland-China hogs sold at from $15 to $430. In commenting on the recent sales of pigs at which "record prices" have been established, Col. F. M. Woods writes: "In my opniion sows will touch the $1,000 mark inside the next twelve months."

Speaking of the conditions in North Dakota in special reference to wheat crop, Mr. W. J. McCabe, of Glasston, N. D., said that the amount of wheat held by the farmers there had been greatly overestimated by all estimates made. [illegible] at the outside. As to the size of the new crop, I do not think it will be so large. In the first place the last crop was very large, and it was disposed of so late that fall plowing was neglected, and not nearly so much wheat will have been sown for the new crop. The ground is either lying idle or being put in barley. The prospect is for better prices.

A CARD.

Florence, Ky., February 6th.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I feel it to be my duty to myself and to my best and most faithful friends, to make the following statement to the public generally:—In October, 1893, I was stricken with a very severe spell of nervous prostration, superinduced by overwork mentally; having had (besides my own business) some sixteen different things in the way of business to look after and attend to for other people, corporations, companies, societies, &c., &c., for several years preceding that date; and for three days and nights during that affliction, my physicians hardly thought it possible for me to recover. I am free to acknowledge that since that affliction I have not been as competent to attend to business properly as I was before, owing to the shattered condition of my nervous system and impared memory, and I made some unfortunate investments.

I was forced by circumstances, over which I had no control, (some of which were the stringent times, the depreciation of the value of property both real and personal, and my inability to collect debts), to make an assignment last July for the benefit of my creditors, giving up every thing I owned both real and personal, including my homestead.

I first commenced selling goods in Florence in March, 1853, which will be 43 years ago next month, and during that whole time (as those who know me best can and will testify) I have always done an honest and straightforward business, never wronging anybody, man, woman or child to the value of anything, knowingly and intentionally,—and if all of my assets could have been sold for the amount they cost me, it would have been more than sufficient to pay every dollar I owe; or, if I now had all the money I lost by selling goods on credit, I could pay every dollar I owe and have $10,000.

The thing that is the greatest source of regret, sorrow and trouble to me in connection with the whole matter, is the fact that some of my best friends are involved with me, and will lose some money; but some of them, with noble big hearts in them, have come to see me and have given me a hearty, sympathetic, brotherly shake of the hand, and have said to me that "money is not the most desirable and valuable thing in this world," and have given me other evidences of their kindly feelings for me and confidence in me and their heartfelt sympathy for me in my present condition, in ill health, without any home or means of any kind. There are some people however, who once professed to be my friends, who now look at me and speak to me (if they speak at all) as though I were a stranger to them, or at least a slight acquaintance.

I have recently been informed that an infamous and outrageously slanderous lie, was told and circulated on me shortly after my assignment, the particulars of which it is unnecessary now to explain, as I know that the author of it knew it to be a lie when it was told and circulated, but such creatures (I will not call them human beings) are beneath the notice of any gentleman.

T. L. Swetman.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

We, the citizens of Verona and vicinity, desire to answer, through your paper, "An Open Letter," dated, Jan. 18th, 1896. In the first place, we would make our statement in regard to the misrepresentation and injustice referred to in said letter. The petition in question, designed to test the voice of the community as to the selling of whisky in drug store by prescription, was drawn up by the author of the letter; and in said letter, he plainly states that it took but a short time to arrive at a different conclusion and surrender petition.

We are glad to infer from this that the petition itself was misrepresenting the gentleman, hence its recall; it not proving to be the medium for popularity in this vicinity.

We are also aware that some who signed that petition are now acknowledging their mistake, and expressing their regrets. These facts are highly gratifying. We would hope and believe that injustice was intended by no one, but that all are now interested in insuring justice to homes, to loved ones, and to the community in general.

When the gentleman was seeking a site in Verona to locate a drug store, the first question from those to whom he applied for a lot was, "Do you wish to sell whisky." The answer invariably was, "I have no desire to do any thing of the kind."

We are happy to see the promptness with which a test for a change was met, and humbly trust that all are now and will remain of same opinion as when drug store was received into our community.

Very Respectfully Citizens.

They landed him in the Covington jail that afternoon. Lapold has been around here for sometime, and a great many are of the opinion that Lapold was concerned in the robberies committed in the Hebron and Bullittsville neighborhoods last winter.

[illegible] Jessie F. Crigler's will [illegible] her husband's [illegible] to F[illegible]. By this will she left her whole estate, which was a very valuable one to her husband with the following minor exceptions:

"Appreciating the uncertainty of life, I, Jessie F. Crigler, desire to direct by form of will, the disposition of all property—real and personal, by me possessed, or to which I may be entitled at time of my death.

"On this, the 7th day of Feby, 1896, in the city of Cincinnati, Hamilton county, Ohio, I will, devise and bequeath, with love, as follows:

"To Robert, my dear husband, who has made my life so bright and happy, all my possessions—both real and personal, excepting such bequests, as are indicated in the following

"To my dear mother $2,000, my cluster diamond ring, that sister Katie gave me, and such articles of my wearing apparel as she may desire.

"To darling little Homer, $500, said amount, to be held in trust for him, by my dear husband, until such season, as in his good judgment, it is wise to give him a portion of it, or the full amount, whether it be at the age of 21 or earlier. Should he die in the mean time, said amount is to be given to the Children's Home of Cincinnati.

"To dear Aunt Ell, $500, the emerald ring she so kindly gave me, and such articles of my wearing apparel as Ma and Robert may arrange for.

"To dear Addie, the [illegible] wife of my deceased brother, $500, one pair of my linked bracelets and some article from my wardrobe that she may select.

"To faithful Anna, $100, one of my plain gold rings, and some article from my wardrobe that she may desire.

"It is my intention, by this will, to give unto my said husband Robert, all the property of which I may be seized or possessed, at the time of my death; to have and hold; use, enjoy and possessed, forever, in his own right, charged only, with the payment of the bequests, herein made, and to the person, named. I also appoint him sole executor, without bond, of this my only will.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal on the day and year afoesaid."

[Signed] Jessie F. Crigler.

Several of the patrons and friends visited Prof. Collins' school, last Friday afternoon, to witness the closing exercises. The exercises having been concluded, Miss Fannie Hogan, on behalf of the school, presented Mr. Collins with a handsome gold pen and holder. The following is Miss Fannie's neat, little presentation speech:

"Mr Collins, my schoolmates and myself wish you to know that we are sensible to your kindness and the forbearance you have ever shown us, and appreciate your efforts in our behalf. We wish you to accept this little token as coming from those who wish to testify in this manner, the esteem and good will they bear you. In the future may your relations to other pupils be as pleasant as they have been to us. In behalf of the school I present you this pen, hoping that you will sometimes think kindly of the givers."

Prof. Collins accepted the present in a few appropriate remarks.

At this time Master Shelby Cowen approached Miss Fannie Finch, and presented her with a volume of James Whitcomb Riley's pooms, saying:

"Miss Fannie, my schoolmates wish me to present this book to you with a nice, little speech, but I am not a Demosthenese or a Cicero; neither am I a Joe Blackburn nor Gov Bradley, so please take it as coming from your pupils."

Miss Fannie thanked the pupils in a grateful manner.

Neither of the teachers was expecting the presents from the children, and were taken entirely by surprise.

A representative of the Carrollton Democrat was over in Trimble county, last week, and among those he called on was our old friend and preceptor, D. C. Peck. He writes: "I found myself at Mr. D. C Peck's hospitable home. Here I found very pleasant company in his two daughters for the evening. Mr. Peck having charge of a grammar school in the vicinity excused himself and one of his daughters to attend the school, while the other two, one of whom also teaches, entertained right royally, bringing out a handsome guitar and with a few of our old time songs two or three hours were whiled away, interspersed with pleasant conversation. The younger sister rendered some very nice productions on the piano. Mr Peck is a typical gentleman himself, and his family are jewels of the same water. Mr. Peck is one of the most scholarly men we have met; he is a leading spirit in educational matters, a member of the board of examiners and has given his children collegiate educations. One of his sons is employed in a goverument department at Washington."

COMMISSIONER'S SALES.

The Master Commissioner made several sales of real estate at the Court House door last county court day.

In the case of Geo W. Terrill's Exrs. vs Geo. W. Terrill's widow, S. W. Tolin bid the ferry property off at $725; all the other property was bought by B. R. Gaines, for $5,520

The West land sold was bought by A P. Glackin at $750.

In the case of Delph vs Delph, Jonas Delph was the purchaser at $275.

THE FOX-DRIVE.

The fox-drive last Saturday was not the success it should have been, considering the number who took part. Although there were between 200 and 300 men and boys in line, a gap was left between Bullittsville and James E. Duncan's, and the foxes, to the number of two or three escaped. Had the program been carried out to the letter, the round up would have been one of the most exciting scenes ever witnessed in this part of the country. There is talk of having a drive out at the Middle Creek cliffs in a few weeks.

WALTON—It is worthy of record that some respect is being paid to the town ordinances and the appearance of things in general. A M. Edwards has abolished the garden plats in front of his hotel. They were simply encroachments on the sidewalk. Sam Hind, sr, has built a new fence on a line continuing the eastern border of the sidewalk indicated by the front of Edwards' livery stable. They were induced to make the changes by the urgent and pertinent objections of Councilman H. C. Diers who was superintending the making of street crossings. By the way, it is hoped, that the public spirited gentleman aforesaid has not completed his labors. A crossing is badly needed about the north line of Verona Ave., one opposite Sam Hinds' drug store and another intermediate between the two, say about opposite Dr. Bagby's office.

Due credit has been given Dr. D. M. Bagby for the improvement made in his sidewalk. His attention is kindly called to the fact that he will confer a great favor on the ladies if he should devise some plan to keep his iron gate closed these dark nights. Miss Lizzie Kipp and Mrs. Ben Lee Johnson barely escaped accidents during the past week. The first came near falling over and the second near running her head into the gate Were it in front of a young physician's house who was struggling for practice, evil minded persons might be disposed to say it was an "accidental trap" constructed with an eye to business.

FATTENING HOGS COSTS ONE CENT.

The editor recently heard of a farmer fattening hogs at less than one cent a pound. This was made possible through the sowing of Salzer's King Barley, yielding over 100 bu. per acre, Golden Triumph Corn, yielding 200 bu. per acre, and the feeding on Sand Vetch, Teosinte, Hundredfold Peas, etc. Now, with such yields, the growing of hogs is more profitable than a silver mine.

Salzer's catalogue is full of rare things for the farmer, gardener and citizen, and the editor believes that it would pay everybody a hundred-fold to get Salzer's catalogue before purchasing seeds.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with 10 cents postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., they will mail you their mammoth seed catalogue and 10 samples of grasses and grains, including above corn and barley. Catalogue alone, 5c postage. (K)

THE SPENDTHRIFT PARTY.

Predominating Propensities of the Profligate Republicans.

The republican party, as it chooses to be represented in congress, has two propensities which are, perhaps, more strongly marked than any others. One is the propensity so to legislate as to enable a few people engaged in pet industries to get rich out of the earnings of other people. The other is to make prodigal expenditure of the money contributed by taxpayers for public purposes.

The latter propensity was illustrated signally by the republican congress which in 1890 so increased the expenditures as to convert a surplus of over $100,000,000 a year into a deficit before the expiration of Harrison's term. That prodigal congress did its work so well by providing for continuous expenditures which cannot be reduced without breach of faith that the deficit continues. It was so skillful in its prodigality that the receipts are still below the expenditures, although they are more than sufficient to meet the expenditures of any year after the union army was paid off and disbanded until the Reed-McKinley congress made the money fly.

We have the same kind of a congress now with Reed at the front and the same propensity manifests itself in spite of all efforts at repression. From a republican source comes the proposal to spend $100,000,000 as fast as possible on coast defenses, and no telling how many millions more for big guns [illegible] all the other means and implements of wholesale murder.

It is Mr. Reed's chairman of committee who tells the public that there will be liberal appropriations for river and harbor improvements. Everybody knows what that means. Everybody knows it means the appropriation of many millions for useless "improvements"—useless for any other purpose than to enable congressmen to "make themselves solid" with constituencies who measure a man's statesmanship by his success in getting an appropriation for his "deestrick."

This eminently republican chairman proposes to be liberal because he says we have $175,000,000 in the treasury and are about to have $100,000,000 more, borrowed money. With this great pile in the treasury he professes to see no reason why congress should not be liberal in its appropriations.

ANYTHING TO WIN.

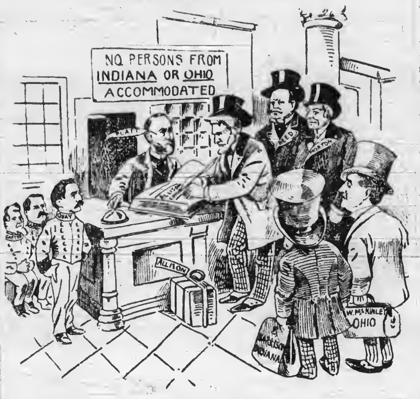
Conscienceless Policy of the Republican Rabble.

There is a manifest disposition on the part of numerous republican organs to denounce the democratic party as without any settled financial policy. So far as the administration is concerned it has left nothing in doubt or uncertainty regarding this matter. Both the president and the secretary of the treasury have committed themselves without equivocation to honest money and a permanent retirement of the legal-tender notes. No one has higher authority to speak for the party or has been more fearless in doing so. Their utterances in this direction are orthodox democracy, and wherever there is dissent within the party ranks there is a departure from the tenets of the true faith. There is no disposition to claim unanimity on this vexed question; but neither cowardice nor considerations of policy have caused the highest official representatives of the party to withhold an honest expression of their views.

But why do these same organs fail to tell the country how the presidential aspirants of the republican party stand on the financial issue? McKinley is one of the most approachable and voluble of men [illegible] interviewer or in his public [illegible] has he told what he thinks or knows about the monetary question. He has eluded and evaded with characteristic skill, refusing in any manner to commit himself. Harrison signed the infamous Sherman bill with its silver-purchasing clause and deliberately plunged the nation into the financial troubles which followed with no higher motive than to secure the party support of a few silver states. The whole scheme was conceived with that selfish purpose in view and was deliberately carried through by men who knew and afterwards acknowledged that it involved a sacrifice of principle.

Reed has dodged from one side of the fence to the other. In this matter he is all things to all men and is governed entirely by a desire to get all the votes possible. Allison has no record in this connection to which he can point with pride, for he has voted and talked on all sides of the question with a disregard for consistency that is simply astounding in a man holding his position and for years having a covetous eye on the highest office within the gift of the people. Of all these men there is not one who has shown any of the courage or the unswerving integrity that has characterized President Cleveland. He has never hesitated to avow his principle when the good of the country was involved and has never modified his views as a concession to policy. The course of these shifty statesmen who are after the presidency only foreshadows the financial plank of the republican national platform. It will be, as it has been in the past, a straddle, a cunningly-devised bid for votes which the tricky campaigner can interpret to suit any community to which he may be talking. These eager republican critics had best look at home.—Detroit Free Press.

MR. PLATT'S EXCLUSIVE HOTEL.



NO PERSONS FROM INDIANA OR OHIO ACCOMMODATED
ALLISON
W. HARRISON OHIO
HARRISON INDIANA

GOV. MCKINLEY—That's a fine way to run a hotel.
GEN. HARRISON—I have heard that at one time an Indiana woman conducted one in much the same manner.—Washington Post.

This free-handed statesman seems to have forgotten that during the holidays his party put what they called an "emergency" tariff bill through the house, insisting that the treasury receipts were running behind the expenditures and that more revenue was the one thing needed to relieve the treasury of all its troubles. He seems to have forgotten the outgiving of the republican party leaders, including himself, when this congress first convened that economy would be the watchword, for the present session, at least, and that the appropriations would be kept down to the lowest limit consistent with efficient administration.

The propensity to spend money is so dominating that under its sway all the fine promises of economy, all the moves in the game of politics and the actual fact of a deficit are forgotten or ignored. If this propensity is irresistible when the treasury is still running behind from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a month, if a republican congress will be prodigal when the treasury is in straits as at present, what would it do if the receipts were at the rate of $100,000,000 a year more than the necessary expenditures? We may learn from the history of that other Reed congress which came in with Harrison and by its spendthrift acts dissipated the large surplus left by Cleveland and created a deficit before the Harrison administration turned over an emptied treasury to its successor.—Chicago Chronicle.

More Bosh.

The high-tariff gentry have struck a new lead which they are working with much assiduity. It is Japan this time, not England, that is about to crush us with her competition in manufactures. The advantage of selecting Japan for this purpose is that she is further away than England, and her manufactures are not visible. Consequently there is more room for the play of the imagination. What some country is going to do is much more terrifying than what some other country is actually doing. The latter can be subjected to rules and tests of measurement. Her goods can be examined and the prices ascertained. If we are wearing English cloths and our wives are wearing French dress goods we can form some judgment as to the danger of their pauper labor, whereas, if nobody wears Japanese cloths and dress goods, nobody can deny any statement that any interested manufacturer may make concerning them. The argument is that because Japan is about to be such a tremendous competitor, we ought to take time by the forelock and whack up the duties. Of course, these duties, although destined only to keep out Japanese goods, will answer to keep out European goods also.—N. Y. Post.

——Careful perusal of the opinions of prominent republican politicians the country over makes it clear that Harrison's withdrawal makes perfectly certain the nomination of Reed, McKinley, Allison and Morton, besides much improving the chances of Gen. Alger.—Chicago Chronicle.

——The Morton boom labors under the disadvantage of having Tom Platt tied to its tail.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

——Every big republican schemer has a lariat around the McKinley boom. And McKinley thinks he is running like another Eclipse.—St. Louis Republic.

——Senator Tillman made just such a spectacle of himself as was confidently expected. It long since became an impossibility for him to further disgrace himself in the eyes of the country, and the speech that he made fell flat because of the fact that he made it.—Detroit Free Press.

——A beautiful example of political contortionism will be found in the position of the republicans who criticise the doctrine laid down by the president in his Venezuela message and at the same time praise the doctrine expressed in the resolution of Senator Davis on the Monroe doctrine.—St. Paul Globe.

——McKinley has a very active newspaper bureau. That is why some people think the Ohio man is in the lead in the presidential race. His friends are great advertisers. But the final decision will come from the calm consideration of what the lamented Garfield called the American firesides.—Iowa State Register (Rep.).

——The organization of a free silver party "would present the grandest opportunity to the republican party to get rid of the free silverites and free traders who misrepresent and dishonor it before the country and the world," says the Philadelphia Telegram (rep.), forgetting that free silver and protectionism are twins.—N. Y. Post.

——The republican party claims to be for sound money, while the senate which it controls is for free silver coinage at sixteen to one. For years past the mining camps have held the country by the throat, brought on a panic, deranged business and prevented needed financial legislation in order to force the payment of 100 per cent. bounty upon one of their products. Yet the republican leaders, for the sake of a few offices and with the hope of their help in the coming campaign, still cater to them and form a coalition even with those outside their own party by which they give them virtual control of financial legislation in the senate.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MURDER DONE BY A BIRD.

Oriole Resents Captivity by Killing Of Its Young.

It has been claimed by observers of birds that some of the feathered tribe will feed their young if they are caged, and if they fail after a certain time to release them they will bring them a poisoned weed to eat that death may end their captivity. A few days ago, at the Holstein ranch, says the Carson (Nev.) Appeal, the children captured a nest of three young orioles, and they were immediately caged and hung in a tree. The mother was soon about, calling her young, and in a little while brought them some worms. She continued feeding them regularly for some days without seeming to pay much attention to persons about. But on Sunday came the tragic ending that demonstrated the theory relative to birds. She brought them a sprig of green on Sunday morning and disappeared. In less than an hour they all died. The sprig was examined and proved to be the deadly larkspur, a weed that will kill full-grown cattle. The little creatures lay dead in the cage and slightly foaming at the mouth, victims of their mother's stern resolve that her offspring should die by her own act rather than live in captivity.

FOOLING THE VULTURES.

[illegible] Birds [illegible] Found Out Their Mistake.

Some sports recently took place at a station in Upper Burmah, one of the events being what is popularly known as a "Victoria cross [illegible]," the competitors have to ride some distance, taking two or three hurdles on their way, to a point where there are arranged a number of figures, shaped like human bodies; then they dismount, fire a round of blank cartridges, pick up a dummy each, and race back, says Pearson's Weekly.

In this case, after the sports were over, the dummies were left on the ground, and in about half an hour after the ground was deserted I noticed a vulture settle on the ground close to the dummies; in about another five minutes more than 30 had collected.

The birds seemed much puzzled as they carefully inspected each lay figure, walking from one to the next all along the line, and eventually, after sitting in a circle for a short time, flew away. The birds must have discovered the dummies by sight, though I have often heard that vultures rely on their sense of smell as well.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Walter Baker & Co.'s Cocoa to Be Sold in Ohio.

On the 5th December last, Messrs. Walter Baker & Co., Limited, Dorchester, Mass., well and widely known for more than a century as manufacturers of Cocoa and Chocolate preparations, issued a circular to the trade in which they stated that they had decided to withdraw all their grocers' goods from sale in Ohio. "We take this course," they said, "because it seems the only one open to us in view of the numerous prosecutions that have been instituted against parties selling our products since the recent decision of the Court of Common Pleas of Cuyahoga County in the proceedings against Mr. Rose, of Cleveland, for selling our Breakfast Cocoa.

"In that case the chemist employed by the State testified that the sample 'was made from pure cocoa, with no other adulteration than the removal of the oil.' He also testified that he never had examined any powdered cocoa 'except the oil had been removed or starch or sugar added;' and that, without such removal or addition, it was impossible to make a powdered cocoa which would keep in our climate.

"The name Breakfast Cocoa is applied only to powdered cocoa; and we have always stated conspicuously, on every can, exactly how ours is made—namely, by removing 'the excess of oil' without the use of any chemicals and without the addition of starch or sugar.

"Our object has been to produce an extract of cocoa containing the stimulating and exhilarating properties of the bean in the most convenient, concentrated and digestible form; and our success has been fully attested by the leading physicians and teachers of cooking. We fully believe we have adopted the best method known for the purpose, and there is no question that the demand for the product is great and greatly increasing."

On the 18th January, Messrs. Walter Baker & Co., issued another circular to the trade in which they said:

"The Circuit Court of Cuyahoga County has reversed the decision of the Court of Common Pleas to which we referred in our circular of December 5, and decided that our Breakfast Cocoa, being a pure article, made from the cocoa bean by the removal of the excess of oil, is not within the provisions of the food law of Ohio, and that it may be sold with its present label. This sustains us in the position which we have already maintained,—that the law is intended to prevent adulteration and not to interfere with trade in purified products, when sold under their appropriate names.

"We therefore take pleasure in announcing to you that we shall at once place our Breakfast Cocoa on sale again in Ohio; and for the convenience of the trade we shall see that a full supply reaches the State at an early day to replace what has been withdrawn."

WE EAT TOO MUCH.

Twelve Ounces of Food Is a Meal for a Brain Worker.

The present mode of eating now practised by the unscientific public at divers table d'hotes, beaneries and boarding-house boards three times a day, 365 days in the year is evidently all wrong. The unscientific public eats too much. In an article in the Food Reform Magazine, Dr. Nichols declares that the average quantity of water-free aliment required, say by business and literary men, is 12 ounces, and that men of great muscular activity are well fed on 16 to 20 ounces. Dr. Nichols' advice is to find the minimum quantity which enables a man to do his daily work without loss of weight, by experiment, and then habitually keep to it.

In the midst of the dietary counsels of the vegetarians on the one side and the raw-beef and hot-water theorists on the other, it is interesting to contemplate the possibilities of the eating of the future. It is probable that eating in the 20th century will be reduced to the minimum, and a century or so thereafter be abolished altogether, if the present trend of scientific dietetic discovery continues. The good old feasts of Thanksgiving and Christmas are decried as barbarous indulgence of the animal appetite, and it is only necessary to attend a high tea of a social new woman or a debutante luncheon of a cooking-school graduate to find evidence of the etherealization of the latter-day eating. Up to date no table d'hote has advertised its dinner by the metric sytem, and no restaurant has served meals by the solid ounce. But Americans are a nation of dyspeptics, and the end is not yet.

THE STORY OF A CARD.

It Changed a Miserly Millionaire Into a Public Benefactor.

"This play of 'The Fatal Card' we've been having here lately," said a Washington merchant to a Star reporter, "reminds me of a card story.

"When I was a youngster of 15 or less, which is now 40 or 50 years ago, I hadn't as much money as I have now, nor did my parents, but we thrived well, and I got the best education that was to be had at the time, owing to the kindness of a millionaire relative of mine, an old chap who died when I was about 20. We never knew the story until he died, and then it all came out in a letter he wrote and left with his will.

"It seems that when the old man was about 20 he went west with a young man of his own age, who had been brought up with him by the same people, both being orphans. They were as brothers, or even closer, in their affections, and when they started out to seek their fortunes they each wrote a card and gave it to the other. Just what the inscription was I don't know, but it was enough to signify that if one was in need the other would honor the card under any circumstances, and after any lapse of time, if he were financially able to do so.

"Well, they worked together for awhile, and then, by business change, and one way or another, they separated. For a long time they kept up a correspondence, but as the years went by that dropped, and they lost sight of each other. I fancy my relative did not seek to continue it, for in a few years he was very successful, while the other man was not, and you know how things go under those circumstances. A quarter of a century went by, and by that time my relative was a millionaire many times over, and the nastiest, meanest, stingiest, crustiest old cuss in ten states. He couldn't help that, perhaps, and I don't know that he tried.

"Anyhow, one day a ragged and starving man came into his office and asked to see him alone. He told him to state his business where he was. The man told a long story of suffering and want, and of a sick and starving wife and children, and the usual concomitants of that kind of a situation, and then handed my relative a dirty card. It was yellow and worn and dirty, but it was the same old card that he had given his boyhood friend. The old man gave the applicant a dime and told him to get out and not come back there any more. He obeyed the cruel command and went out silently. That evening a policeman came to the old man's office with a note and a card. All the note said was: 'Give this card to my boyhood friend, ——. He will understand.'

"The note was unsigned. The card which the policeman handed over had a hole through it as if cut with a knife, and there was blood about the edges of the cut. The officer explained that it had been found on the dead body of a man in an attic room in the slums, with a knife driven through it and into the man's heart. That was all the policeman knew. I don't know what the old man said, or how he felt, but I do know that from that day forward he was a changed man.

"He gave to every worthy person needing help; he sought out all his poor kin and took care of them judiciously, educating the girls, giving the boys a start in business and helping their parents; he organized charities and he offered a reward of a thousand dollars for the family of his dead friend. He never found it, however, and I fancy the friend never had a family. I guess he wasn't any good anyway, but whether he was or not, the way he took himself off was a blessing to the old man, and most emphatically to all of his kin."—Washington Star.

Lincoln as a Peddler.

He drove the oxen on this trip (the removal of the Lincoln family from Indiana to Illinois), he tells us, and, according to a story current in Gentryville, he succeeded in doing a fair peddler's business on the route. Capt. William Jones, in whose father's store Lincoln had spent so many hours in discussion and in story-telling, and for whom he had worked the last winter he was in Indiana, says that before leaving the state Abraham invested all his money, some thirty-odd dollars, in notions. "A set of knives and forks was the largest item entered on the bill," says Mr. Jones; the other items were needles, pins, thread, buttons and other little domestic necessities. When the Lincolns reached their new home near Decatur, Ill., Abraham wrote back to my father, stating that he had doubled his money on his purchases by selling them along the road. Unfortunately we did not keep that letter, not thinking how highly we would have prized it years afterwards."—McClure's Magazine.

"On the Shelf" at Twenty-Two.

Here is an interesting note about the Danish girl of society. She is confirmed between her 14th and 16th year, and is then considered "out," so that she makes her bow to society while English girls are still in the schoolroom. The result of this early entry into society can hardly be deemed satisfactory, for as soon as a girl has reached the age of 22, and is still "in maiden meditation, fancy free," she ceases to be asked to dances or youthful gatherings, and is, so to say, "on the shelf."—London Tit-Bits.

Sciatic Rheumatism and Its Cure.

From the Gazette, Burlington, Iowa.

The story of Mr. Tabor's nearly fatal attack of sciatic rheumatism is familiar to his large circle of acquaintances, but for the benefit of others and those similarly afflicted The Gazette has investigated the matter for publication. Mr. Tabor is Secretary and Treasurer for the Commercial Printing Company, with offices in the Hedge Block and resides at 417 Bassett Street, Burlington, Ia. A Gazette [illegible] Mr. Tabor at his place of business to-day, and, although he was busily engaged with imperative duties, he talked freely and feelingly on the subject of his recent severe sickness and subsequent wonderful cure.

"Yes," said Mr. Tabor, "I can safely say that I am a well man, that is, my old trouble with rheumatism has entirely disappeared, but I am still taking Pink Pills and will keep on taking them as long as I continue to grow stronger and healthier, as I have been every day since I began to use them. You will not wonder at my profound faith in the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People after you have heard what I have to tell you. About one year ago I was stricken suddenly with sciatic rheumatism and was confined to my bed. It grew worse and rapidly assumed the form of inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered constant and acute pains and all the tortures which that horrible disease is capable of inflicting. At length under the constant care of a local physician I was enabled to return to my work, but only at intervals. Severe attacks would appear regularly in my back and descend into my leg and foot, and threatened to make me a permanent cripple. I tried various remedies for rheumatism, but without any beneficial re[illegible] grew p[illegible] and haggard, and my family and friends grew alarmed at my condition.

"About eight weeks ago my mother induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and you know the result. Before I had used one box I felt greatly relieved and much stronger. I continued their use and improved rapidly. I have now [illegible] and completely cured, all of which is due to the efficacy of Pink Pills. They are invigorating and thoroughly wholesome, and have helped me in every way."

In reply to inquiries Mr. Henry, the druggist, stated that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were having a large sale, that it was particularly gratifying to him to know that the customers themselves were highly pleased with the benefits they had derived from their use; that many of them stated that the pills were the only medium that had done them any good; that they not only gave quick relief but permanent benefit. That the pills do sell and that the pills do cure is a certainty.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes only at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

"WE have no use for bear stories," said the editor. "Our readers demand something spicy." "Well," said the man with the manuscript, "this story is about a cinnamon bear."—Sports Afield.

Through Storyland to Sunset Seas.

This is the title of a handsome volume of 250 pages, printed on fine enameled paper and illustrated by 200 fine half tone engravings, which the Passenger Department of the Southern Pacific at New Orleans has just issued.

As an example of beautiful printing it is one of the most perfect specimens of book-making of the year. As an evidence of railway enterprise it is a marvel, for the giving away of so sumptuous a volume, so artistic in its details of workmanship, is the very triumph of that spirit of progress which attracts people to a railway. It is a clever narrative of the romance of the Southwest, together with a running description of the country traversed by the vast systems of the Southern Pacific, calling attention to the strange people and novel sights and beautiful natural scenery from New Orleans to Portland, Oregon. "Through Storyland to Sunset Seas" belongs to that class of fascinating works of travel which so delight and instruct one and is a book which will be read and kept as a valuable addition to the library.

It cost 20 cents to mail this book. If you will send this amount to cover postage to S. F. B. Morse, General Passenger Agent, Southern Pacific, New Orleans, La., the work will be forwarded to you.

"WHAT is the most convenient and economical way to travel in America?" inquired the visiting Englishman. "On a pass," replied Trotter, dryly.—Harper's Bazar.

Very Awkward Indeed.

This is precisely the kind of mistake a man makes if he "turns out" on the wrong side of the road when a vehicle comes toward him. That organ is on the right side, and the road to its relief is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine also adapted to the relief of dyspepsia, constipation, kidney and rheumatic ailments and malaria.

Rattlesnakes, Butterflies, and . . . ?

Washington Irving said, he supposed a certain hill was called "Rattlesnake Hill" because it abounded in—butterflies. The "rule of contrary" governs other names. Some bottles are, supposedly, labeled "Sarsaparilla" because they are full of . . . well, we don't know what they are full of, but we know it's not sarsaparilla; except, perhaps, enough for a flavor. There's only one make of sarsaparilla that can be relied on to be all it claims. It's Ayer's. It has no secret to keep. Its formula is open to all physicians. This formula was examined by the Medical Committee at the World's Fair with the result that while every other make of sarsaparilla was excluded from the Fair, Ayer's Sarsaparilla was admitted and honored by awards. It was admitted because it was the best sarsaparilla. It received the medal as the best. No other sarsaparilla has been so tested or so honored. I DONE IT.

Robert McLaughlin Murders His Wife and Niece.

He Then Sets Fire to the Building to Hide the Terrible Crime.

He at First Claimed That He Had Been Attacked by Burglars, and That They Did the Deed—Secretly Take Him to Maysville to Avoid Lynching.

AUGUSTA, Ky., Feb. 17.—The worst crime ever committed in Bracken county occurred about four o'clock Saturday morning.

Two persons lost their [illegible] the flames and a man was badly wounded. About three miles west of here Robert Laughlin and his wife, respectable country folks, reside. Saturday morning [illegible] was aroused by feeling a knife upon his throat. He [illegible] grabbed a man by the coat. The man made another stab and struck Laughlin's shoulder. It was light in the room and he saw two men, one with long black whiskers and a brown coat. Laughlin started out of the door and one of the men started after him with a knife.

Mr. Laughlin ran down the road to the residence of Mrs. Lyde McCracken to give the alarm. When he arrived there he turned and saw his home afire. He never heard a sound from his wife or from May Jones, 13, daughter of Charles Jones, of this city, who was spending the night with the Laughlins.

There were no men at the McCracken house, so Laughlin started back to the fire. There he met Lee Jones, a neighbor, who is a brother of Laughlin's wife, but the house was a mass of ruins. Laughlin has not an enemy in the world that he knows of and there was only about $1.40 in the house.

The wife was about thirty-five, and her maiden name was Jones. Peter Laughlin, brother of the bereaved man, brought the word to town Saturday morning.

Marshal Sayers and Constable Martin and about three hundred [illegible] boys at once went to the scene. The building was a four-room log house, and sits back in the yard. The bodies of the two unfortunate women were found lying in the cellar, Mrs. Laughlin's in the western part of the ruins. She had evidently got out of bed.

A ravine runs just west of where the building stood, and some tracks were found in the soft clay. Marshal Sayers kept the crowd back until the bloodhounds arrived.

E. W. Fitzgerald, of Covington, who is a special detective for the C. and O. railroad, arrived here at 11 o'clock Sunday, and proceeded at once to the scene of the murder. Mr. Fitzgerald was in company with Marshal Wm. Sayers, of this city, and in the name of Acting Coroner Louderback demanded the underclothing and outer shirt of Robert Laughlin.

Laughlin objected to handing them over at his sister's (Mrs. McCracken's) house, about a quarter of a mile from the scene of the murder. Upon examination the neck of the overshirt, which was of heavy checked cotton, was thoroughly saturated with blood. Just beneath the undershirt it was found equally as bloody, and both sleeves of both shirts were saturated with blood.

The front of the undershirt at its lower edge was also bloody. The drawers show the same signs. It is now current belief that Robert Laughlin knows more in connection with the murder of his wife and little niece than he has yet told, and detectives have him under guard.

LATER—It was Robert Laughlin who killed his wife and little niece, May Jones, and burned their bodies. He is also guilty of having first assaulted the little girl in the presence of his invalid wife.

It is the words of Laughlin himself, uttered in the presence of a reporter, which thus stamps him as an inhuman brute, he having made a full confession to save himself from threatened lynching. He was at once arrested, but the fact of the confession having been made was kept from the public, lest he should meet justice at the hands of his neighbors.

AUGUSTA, Ky., Feb. 17.—A little after 12 o'clock Sunday night Laughlin was secretly ushered into the Taylor house by Marshal Sayer and taken to room 9, on the third floor, where he immediately undressed and went to bed.

At 5 o'clock Monday morning Sayer quietly slipped Laughlin on board the steamer Courier, and before the people were awake he was on the way toward Maysville, as the jail there is new and strong; besides he has intimated his fear of being quartered in Covington, on account of Jackson and Walling's probably being predestined for that sanctuary.

New British Cruiser Launched.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The new British third-class cruiser Pelorus, the construction of which was begun in the dock-yards at Sheeness on May 21, 1893, was launched Saturday. The Pelorus is a representative of the type of the new British cruiser.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—SENATE—Foreign affairs again dominated the session of the senate Monday. Mr. Smith (N. J.) made a speech lasting about an hour, in which he deplored the ultra conservatism of his colleague, Mr. Sewall, and condemned the radicalism of Mr. Davis. Cuban affairs were brought to public attention anew through the medium of the joint resolution introduced by Mr. Cameron (Pa.), in which he declared that there was no means for securing peace to Cuba except by the recognition of its right to self-government. After the executive session Mr. Mills (dem., Tex.) announced the death of Representative Crain, and appropriate resolutions submitted by him was adopted. The vice president named Messrs. Mills, Gallinger and Kyle as a committee to represent the senate at the obsequies. At 3 o'clock, as a further mark of respect to the deceased, the senate adjourned until Tuesday.

HOUSE—The announcement of the death of Congressman Crain, of Texas in the house, [illegible] an adjournment [illegible] respect to his memory. Previous thereto an agreement was reached as to the disposition of the silver bond bill. It is to be taken up Tuesday after the business of the District of Columbia is disposed of, to be debated [illegible] the rest of the day, [illegible] the evening session and during Wednesday. Next Thursday at 12 o'clock the bill will be considered under the five-minute rule until four o'clock, when a vote will be taken upon reporting it from the committee of the whole to the house. Friday at 12 o'clock the final debate upon the bill will commence, to continue for an hour on each side, and then the vote will be taken upon concurring or non-concurring upon the senate amendments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—SENATE—In the senate Tuesday, on motion of Mr. Hoar (rep., Mass.) it was ordered that on February 22 (Washington's birthday), immediately after the reading of the journal Washington's farewell address be read to the senate. Mr. Quay consented that his resolution for the recommittal of the house tariff bill should go over without action, so as not to interfere with the consideration of the bill Wednesday, Mr. Morrill having given notice of his purpose to ask the senate to act upon it then. Mr. Blanchard (dem., La.) addressed the senate on the subject of the Monroe doctrine. At the close of Mr. Blanchard's speech a message from the president on the subject of imprisonment in France of Ex-Consul Waller, of Madagascar, was laid before the senate.

HOUSE—Bills passed: To incorporate the National university (an old institution); to extend the time within which the Maryland and Washington railroad (the new electric line joining Baltimore and Washington) may be completed: to regulate the issue of licenses to billiard and poolrooms: to regulate the trials before the metropolitan fire and police boards; to authorize the reassessment of water main taxes, after being declared illegal by the district courts; to incorporate and regulate medical colleges; to regulate the practice of medicine and surgery. The remainder of the session was devoted to the further discussion of the bond silver coinage.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—SENATE—[illegible]at little business transacted in the senate Wednesday. A bill for a memorial bridge across the Potomac, from the naval observatory grounds, Washington, to the Arlington place, was taken up and passed. The urgent deficiency bill was taken up and some progress made in it. At 4:45 p. m. the senate adjourned until Thursday.

HOUSE—Several big guns were fired in the financial debate in the house Wednesday and the proceedings were among the most interesting of the protracted discussion. The senate joint resolution appropriating $75,000 to pay the joint expenses of the survey of the boundary line between Alaska and the British North American possessions was reported from the committee on appropriations and passed. A recess was taken until 8 o'clock to further discuss the bill, general debate on which will close at noon Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Feb 14.—SENATE—The senate Thursday refused by a vote of 29 to 21 to take up the house tariff bill, with the free-coinage substitute, and that measure continues to lie upon the desk. The urgent deficiency bill, carrying appropriations to the amount of about $6,000,000, was passed, and the military appropriation bill was taken up and is now the unfinished business. The resolutions on the subject of Cuba were taken up under an agreement made a few days previously, but Mr. Call, of Florida, who had them in charge, consented to let them go over for the day. Among the bills reported from committees and placed on the senate calendar Thursday was one reported from the judiciary committee to withdraw from the supreme court jurisdiction to criminal cases (not capital) and to confer it upon the court of appeals. Adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—After nearly two weeks of almost continuous debate the house Thursday afternoon, in committee of the whole, by a vote of 190 to 80, recommended to the house proper nonconcurrence in the senate free-coinage amendment to the house bill providing additional revenue for the government, the issue of bonds to protect and maintain the gold reserve and the sale of treasury certificates to meet temporary deficiencies in revenue. The following amendments were voted down: providing that whenever the commercial ratio of the two metals shall vary from the coinage ratio the seigniorage shall be retained by the government: committing the United States to the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 15½ to 1. whenever Germany and France open their mints for the same purpose.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—SENATE.—Not in session Friday.

HOUSE—By a vote of 215 to 90 the house Friday, after debating the matter for almost two weeks, decided that it would not concur in the senate's free silver coinage substitute for the bill of the house, authorizing bond sales to maintain the gold reserve, sales of treasury certificates to meet temporary deficiencies in revenue and providing additional revenue for the treasury. Nothing else was presented in the course of the five hours' session. The hour of five o'clock having arrived, the house, under the rule, took a recess until eight o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of private pension bills only.

Convict Boyer Rearrested.

BLUFFTON, Ind., Feb. 15.—Emennel Boyer, a convict at the Michigan City prison, was brought to this city at the expiration of a sentence of five years for incest. He was immediately arrested and is now in jail under a bond of $2,500 awaiting trial for abortion. In 1891 Boyer, a prosperous and respectable farmer, was indicted immediately after the death of his daughter, aged 17, who died from the effects of a criminal operation. The main witness against him was a little daughter about ten years old, to whom her dying sister had made a complete revelation.

Black Faced Burglar's Desperate Work.

Killed on the Track.

HUNTINGBURG, Ind., Feb. 15.—The train out from Jasper to Evansville Friday morning ran over a man who was lying on the track, killing him instantly. The name of the victim was found to be Paul Schaefer. No blame is attached to the trainmen.

Diphtheria in a Hotel.

GREENTOWN, Ind., Feb. 15.—Diphtheria broke out in a leading hotel Friday, precipitating a small panic among the guests. The board of health Friday evening ordered the hotel and all the inmates under strict quarantine.

The Jury Disagreed.

JACKSON, O., Feb. 14.—After having been out from four o'clock Wednesday afternoon until 11 Thursday morning on the libel suit for $5,000 brought by Nathan Hill, of Glen Roy, against the Wellston Telegram, the jury failed to agree upon a verdict.

Fire at Lebanon.

LEBANON, Ky., Feb. 14.—Fire destroyed two residences of Mr. Dan Howard, on Upper Main street, at an early hour Thursday morning. Frank Harris, the L. and N. agent, occupied one of the houses. Loss about $4,000; partly insured.

A FORECAST.

The Week to Be Devoted to Appropriation Bills,

And Our Relations With Foreign Powers in the United States Senate.

A Majority on the Dupont (Delaware) Case Will Favor Seating Mr. Dupont—An Early Adjournment Already Talked of—Probable June 1.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The coming week in the senate will be devoted to action on appropriation bills and discussion on our relations with foreign powers. The better part of the week, not counting unexpected matters that may be injected during the morning hours, will be given over to the consideration of the military academy bill which now has the right of way, and the pension and consular and diplomatic appropriation bills. These will exhaust the appropriation bills so far reported to the senate by the committee, but inasmuch as the consular and diplomatic bill may cause a general discussion of foreign affairs, it is assumed that the entire week will be consumed in disposing of the appropriation measures now on the calendar. It is doubtful if Mr. Morrill will endeavor to call up the tariff bill again this week. Republicans who have carefully canvassed the situation say that such a motion would tend to complicate matters and that no good can grow out of it until they have brought about a cohesion of sentiment in their own ranks and secured the one necessary vote from the ranks of the populists. This, at present, seems impossible, and Mr. Morrill, it is believed, will not renew his motion until he is sure of its success. Mr. Davis, of the foreign relations committee and author of the resolution reported from the committee enunciating the Monroe doctrine, which has not yet been passed and possibly never will be passed, will address the senate upon that resolution Monday. This speech has been anticipated for some time with a great deal of interest owing to the advanced ground taken by Mr. Davis and his well-known familiarity with the whole subject. His speech is expected to set forth the position of the ultra radicals on the subject in a clearer light than has yet been cast upon it.

The Cuban resolution, supplemented recently by an additional report from the committee on foreign relations declaring it to be the opinion of congress that this government should remain neutral and grant all parties in the struggle now pending in Cuba equal rights, has the right of way as the unfinished business, temporarily displaced by the appropriation bills, and it will doubtless call out a number of speeches during the time that appropriation bills may not be under discussion. Mr. Mitchell, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections will Monday submit to the senate the majority report on the Dupont (Delaware) case, in favor of seating Mr. Dupont. The minority report, in the hands of Mr. Gray will soon follow, and this matter, involving a question of the highest privileges, may at any moment be called up for consideration.

An early adjournment is already talked of. A few senators are hopeful that congress may get through by the first of June. Among some of the republican leaders every nerve is being strained to accomplish this result so that nothing may interfere with their attendance upon the national conventions and the campaigns that will immediately follow.

There is nothing in sight in the house but appropriation bills. When the house adjourned Saturday afternoon general debate had just been concluded on the bill making appropriations for the agricultural department for the next fiscal year, but Chairman Wadsworth expects that a day or two more at least will be consumed in the discussion of the bill under the five-minute rule. There are, it is understood, other members than those who expressed their opinion Saturday who desire to say things about Secretary Morton's refusal to expend the appropriation made in the bill for the current year for the distribution of seeds. Besides the agricultural bill, there is on the calendar the army appropriation bill, and the Indian bill is ready to be reported.

COAL SUPPLY.

Wasteful Methods of Mining, If Not Checked, Will Soon Exhaust the Ohio Mines.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 17.—In accordance with a resolution passed by the State Association of Mining Engineers at its annual meeting here recently, a committee has been appointed which has a bill for presentation to the legislature under way, the object of which is to conserve the coal supply of the state.

The committee is W. H. Jennings, Dr. Edward Orton, Columbus; William Smurthwaite, Steubenville: H. D. Marble, Cleveland; William H. Gurner, Cambridge; W. F. Upson, Shawnee; H. L. Chapman, Jackson; W. B. Hanlon, New Philadelphia; Edward Orton, jr., Columbus, and Thomas H. Love, Leesville.

According to Dr. Orton, state geologist, if the state does not prevent the wasteful methods of mining there will be no coal in Ohio in 50 years.

Mistook His Father For a Burglar.

ZANESVILLE, O., Feb. 17.—Henry Boring, a potter at Crooksville was burning a kiln Saturday night and did not expect to go home until morning. He finished his work at two o'clock Sunday morning and attempted to climb into his residence by a window so as not to awaken the family, when he was shot twice in the head by an 18-year-old son, who mistook him for a burglar. He lived until noon Sunday with his brains oozing out of both bullet holes. He was a naval veteran and was about sixty years old.

FOR MURDER.

Campbell County Grand Jury Indict Jackson and Walling.

They Are Charged With the Killing of Pearl Bryan at Fort Thomas—A Bench Warrant Will Be Issued—The Cab and Cab Driver Has Been Found.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 12.—At 10:45 Tuesday morning Coroner Tingley began the inquest of the death of Pearl Bryan, at Newport, Ky. The jurors are Ed G. Lohmeyer, M. Donelon, A. J. Mosset, John Link, [illegible] Botts and A. Autenheimer.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 13.—The coroner's jury rendered a verdict in the case of Pearl Bryan Wednesday afternoon. It is as follows: "We, the jury of Campbell county, Ky., find that the headless body of the woman found on the premises of John Locke, at Ft. Thomas, [illegible] February 1, was that of Pearl Bryan, a resident of Greencastle, Ind.

"We further find that cocaine had been administered to Pearl Bryan for some reason unknown.

"We further find that the decapitation took place while Pearl Bryan was alive.

"We further find that Pearl Bryan was last seen in company with Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling. The three got into a cab on the George-street side of a saloon corner George and Plum streets, and were last seen in the cab turning toward Plum street."

The report of the post-mortem, the chemical analysis of the stomach and of Attorney Yontsey were ordered filed with the verdict.

Wright Rigsby, the cabman, has come into prominence and his conflicting statements warrant the police in making him prove, if he can, just where he was during the night of Friday, January 31.

The conclusion has been reached that if the cabman who drove the vehicle which left Wallingford's saloon with Jackson, Walling and Pearl Bryan on that Friday night can be found something startling may be developed.

Sheriff Plummer, Detectives Crim and McDermott, the mayor and Col. Deitsch have subscribed liberally to a reward which will be offered Thursday for any information that will lead to the identification of the cabman.

Postmaster Hetsch, of Newport, Ky., received the following letter Wednesday, which explains itself very fully:

"GREENCASTLE, Ind., 2-10, '96.

"To Whom It May Concern:

"This is to notify the people in and around Newport, Ky., that the people of Greencastle are ready to extend their aid in the punishment by 'lynch law' of the murderous brutes, Jackson, Walling and Wood, for murdering in cold blood the unsuspecting girl, Pearl Bryan, who they decoyed and entrapped to her sad fate. These three fiends are as certainly guilty as the sun rises and sets. Wood left here suddenly Saturday to save his neck, which, he well knows, connects the head of a guilty, dastardly brute. The friends here, as well as the poor, unfortunate girl's family, plead for revenge and punishment of these three cowardly brutes and say, for God's sake, let it be granted them.

"A FRIEND OF PEARL'S."

The postmaster still has the letter in his possession. It is hardly likely that, should the young men be sent to Newport, the people of that city would make any attempt to lynch them, unless, perhaps, a band of Greencastle people should arrive there and take the lead. The authorities will take especial note of all the strangers seen in the city after the prisoners are taken to Kentucky soil.

Lieut. William Krumpe Wednesday afternoon secured the services of several strong men and for several hours raked up and down the canal bed at the Plum street bend, in the hope of finding the missing head, but only succeeding in raking up a pile of old cans, hoopskirts and dead cats. After getting themselves thoroughly soaked, all gave up the job as a bad one.

NEWPORT, Ky., Feb. 14.—The Campbell county grand jury, in session here, at 10:30 o'clock on Thursday morning reported indictments for murder against Scott Jackson and Alonzo M. Walling. In their report they say:

"The said Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling on the — day of 1896, before finding of this indictment, in the county of Campbell, Ky., aforesaid, did willfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought kill and murder Pearl Bryan, with a knife or other sharp instrument, cutting off the head of the said Pearl Bryan, so that the said Pearl Bryan did then and there die; the said Alonzo Walling being then and there present, aiding and assisting the said Scott Jackson in the killing and murdering of said Pearl Bryan, by holding the person of the said Pearl Bryan while the cutting as aforesaid was done by Scott Jackson."

The report is signed by the grand jury, as follows: J. W. Thomason, John Reed, Peter Enslen, Alex. Duguid, John S. Weigand, J. W. Schuler, John R. Willis, Frank L. Hill, M. W. Ware, James Ragan, Evan Williams, Foreman James K. Stone.

Judge Helm ordered a bench warrant issued immediately for Jackson and Walling without bond.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 14.—Jackson, Walling and Woods' cases were called in the Cincinnati police court Thursday. Prosecutor Nippert moved that the charge of murder against Walling and Jackson be dismissed from the docket and that the prisoners' trial be continued on the charge of being fugitives from justice.

Attorney Morey, for Jackson and Walling, announced that his clients were ready for a trial Friday, but Judge Gregg maintained that the prosecuting attorney should have more time in which to prepare his case.

Attorneys David Davis and C. H. Blackburn, for young Wood, wanted the court to proceed at once with his examination.

"We have a number of witnesses," Blackburn said, "whose duties demand their presence in Indiana. We ask if the case against this young man is to be continued several days, that these witnesses be allowed to put their evidence in writing and return to their homes."

"This case is so important that the witnesses should be present in court," interposed Prosecutor Nippert.

The court took a similar view. There were consultations among the attorneys, during which Walling and Jackson glared nervously at the dense crowd around them.

Their faces did not change color when judge Gregg announced: "The charge of murder is nollied; the cases go to February 18 as fugitives from justice."

CINCINNATI, Feb. 15.—The first letter opened by Col. Dietsch Friday morning was one bearing the post mark, "Greencastle, Ind." The letter was from Pearl Bryan's sisters and contained the most important information developed in the case for some days. It read as follows:

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Feb. 13, '96.
Chief Deitsch, Cincinnati:

We identify the hat as one taken from our stock of millinery by sister Pearl and the one she wore from here. The identification is perfect. The other things we know nothing about.

MRS. J. T. STANLEY,
MRS. E. S. KELLAR.

I also identify the hat as that my daughter Pearl wore when she left home.

MRS. A. S. BRYAN.

On receipt of the letter Col. Deitsch immediately called in Detectives Crim and McDermott and instructed them accordingly. This makes the finding of the hat the most important clew of any and everything will be made subservient to following it. The argument now accepted is that the murdered girl was [illegible] the spot and with the improvised slungshot made of the handkerchief identified by Walling as Jackson's and the heavy bowlder tied in it. It would appear the assault occurred near this spot and the girl, after being beaten insensible, was afterward decapitated. What seemed a very slender clew of a woman's scream having been heard in the neighborhood at first is now regarded as important and will be run down. Crim and McDermott went across the river after receiving this information and made a second examination of every foot of ground surrounding the place where the hat was found. The "other things" mentioned by the letter were some handkerchiefs and other linen. The opal ring found at Phillip's pawn shop by Detective Strieff and said to have been pawned by a girl answering Pearl Bryan's description has also been sent for identification.

The police had a new clew to follow out Friday morning. William Wood, who is in the county jail, in talking confidentially to a fellow prisoner, stated that there was a third man in the murder of Pearl Bryan, and that his name would be known at the proper time. Wood, when seen by a reporter, declined to talk on the subject.

The Campbell county grand jury Friday made a very important change in the indictment against Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling, in which the latter was charged with holding Pearl Bryan while Jackson cut off her head.

The indictment was changed so that neither is made principal or accessory, but both are jointly charged with the murder of the girl. No specific action on the part of either appears in the altered indictment.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 17.—All hope of securing convicting evidence against Jackson and Walling rests in William Wood. He is the man of all men now under the eye of and known to the police who can throw any light on the cruel butchery of Pearl Bryan. It now can be stated on good authoritatively that at the proper time Wm. Wood will make a clean breast of his entire connection with the sending of Pearl Bryan to Cincinnati for the purpose of having a criminal operation performed on her. He will implicate both Jackson and Walling in the murder, and in a measure bear out Jackson's statement that arrangements were made to have Walling perform the operation. Wood will admit that he made arrangements to have the girl sent to Cincinnati. It is thought that he received some word or message of the unsuccessful and horrible termination of the attempt at an operation, and that his attorneys will advise him to tell all he knows of the case.

Jackson and Walling will be placed in the Covington jail if Gov. Bushnell recognizes the requisition warrants of Gov. Bradley of Kentucky. This course has been decided on by Sheriff Plummer. Gov. Bradley informed him at Frankfort that he would be held responsible personally and officially for the safety of the prisoners, and owing to the insecure condition of the Newport jail he decided it best to place them in Covington—when he gets them.

The apparent situation in Newport Saturday, so far as the safety of the prisoners was concerned, seemed to be a quiet reliance on the law to mete out justice, as the steps of the authorities over there all tend in that direction.

The man who drove the rig in which Pearl Bryan was conveyed to the spot near Ft. Thomas where she was so brutally murdered, has been found. He is George H. Jackson, colored, and was employed for the occasion by Walling and Jackson, both of whom he readily identified in a crowd of 40 people at the jail Saturday night.

His long silence is easily explained. Hired at first under false conditions, and later compelled to drive to the scene of the murder with a pistol at his head, threatened with death if he ever told of the terrible ride, glad to escape with his life, he was more than content to remain within the inclosure of his employer's yard after a long run from the scene of the killing through the mud and rain.

Jackson and Walling, he says, met him at George and Elm on the night of Friday, January 31, and engaged him to take them to Ft. Thomas in a surrey, drawn by a grey horse, which was in waiting. In the conveyance was a girl, who was beyond doubt Pearl Bryan.

Jackson drove the surrey to a point within 50 yards of where the body of the unfortunate girl was found. There the two men took the girl from the surrey and walked her away. She appeared to be stupefied. A few minutes later Jackson heard groans coming from the direction in which the girl had been led, and this so frightened him that he ran away, leaving the surrey and party behind. He walked back to Cincinnati. This story is the connecting link in the chain of circumstantial evidence forged about the prisoners.

Sunday the police received information that led them to inquire into hiring out, on the night of January 31, by Chester Mullen, a Walnut Hills livery man, of a coupe rockaway and an iron-grey horse to a young man whom he did not know, but who, as he describes him, somewhat resembles the barber, Albion, who has figured slightly in the background in this remarkable case from the very hour in which the murderers were arrested.

Mr. Mullen tells a very straight story about the transaction. He says the turnout left the stable some time between 4 and 7 o'clock, and was returned between three and four o'clock—he thinks nearer four Friday morning. Both horse and carriage were covered with mud, and bore evidence of having had a long drive over very muddy roads.

THE LORD'S SICKLE.

It Cuts Keenly in Gathering the Harvest of Ripe Souls.

The Gleaners Are Laboring in Every Field, Bringing in the Sheaves to the Master—Bended Knees Not Necessary to Salvation—Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

A change has taken place. Dr. Talmage, when first coming to Washington, preached only Sunday evenings, but so great has been the demands for his services that he now preaches Sunday morning and evening and takes charge of the Thursday evening meeting. The throngs are immense. The subject for his sermon Sunday was, "Bringing in the Sheaves," the text being Joel iii, 13: "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe."

The sword has been poetized and the world has celebrated the sword of Bolivar, the sword of Cortez and the sword of Lafayette. The pen has been [illegible] eulogized [illegible], has celebrated the pen of Addison, the pen of Southey and the pen of Irving. The painter's pencil has been honored, and the world has celebrated the pencil of Murillo, the pencil of Reubens and the pencil of Bierstadt. The sculptor's chisel has come in for high ecomium, and the world has celebrated Chantrey's chisel and Crawford's chisel and Greenough's chisel. But there is one instrument about which I sing the first canto that was ever sung—the sickle, the sickle of the Bible, the sickle that has reaped the harvest of many centuries. Sharp and bent into a semicircle, and glittering, this reaping hook, no longer than your arm, has furnished the bread for thousands of years. Its success has produced the wealth of nations. It has had more to do with the world's progress than sword, and pen, and pencil, and chisel all put together. Christ puts the sickle into exquisite sermonic simile, and you see that instrument flashed all up and down the Apocalypse as St. John swings it, while through Joel in my text God commands the people, as through His servants now He commands them, "Put ye in the sickle, for the harvest is ripe."

Last November there was great rejoicing all over the land. With trumpet and cornet and organ and thousand-voiced psalm we praised the Lord for the temporal harvests. We praised God for the wheat, the rye, the oats, the cotton, the rice, all the fruits of the orchard and all the grains of the field: and the nation never does a better thing than when in the autumn it gathers to festivities and thanks God for the greatness of the harvest. But I come to-day to speak to you of richer harvests, even the spiritual. How shall we estimate the value of a man? We say he is worth so many dollars, or he has achieved such and such a position; but we know very well there are some men at the top of the ladder who ought to be at the bottom, and some at the bottom who ought to be at the top, and the only way to estimate a man is by his soul. We [illegible] know that we shall live forever. Death can not kill us. Other crafts may be drawn into the whirlpool or shivered on the rocks, but this life within us will weather all storms and drop no anchor, and 10,000,000 years after death will shake out signals on the high seas of eternity. You put the mendicant off your doorstep and say he is only a beggar; but he is worth all the gold of the mountains, worth all the pearls of the sea, worth the solid earth, worth sun and moon and stars, worth the entire material universe. Take all the paper that ever came from the paper mills and put it side by side and sheet by sheet, and let men with fleetest pens make figures on that paper for 10,000 years, and they will only have begun to express the value of the soul. Suppose I owned Colorado and Nevada and Australia, of how much value would they be to me one moment after I departed this life? How much of Philadelphia does Stephen Girard own to-day? How much of Boston property does Abbott Lawrence own to-day? The man who to-day hath a dollar in his pocket hath more worldly estate than the millionaire who died last year. How do you suppose I feel, standing here surrounded by a multitude of souls, each one worth more than the material universe? Oh, was I not right in saying this spiritual harvest is richer than the temporal harvest? I must tighten the girdle, I must sharpen the sickle, I must be careful how I swing the instrument for gathering the grain, lest one stalk be lost. One of the most powerful sickles for reaping this spiritual harvest is the preaching of the gospel. If the sickle have a rosewood handle and it be adorned with precious stones, and yet it can not bring down the grain, it is not much of a sickle, and preaching amounts to nothing unless it harvests souls of God. Shall we preach philosophy? The Ralph Waldo Emersons could beat us at that. Shall we preach science? The Agassizes could beat us at that. The minister of Jesus Christ with weakest arm going forth in earnest prayer, and wielding this sickle of the Gospel, shall find the harvest all around him waiting for the angel sheaf-binder. Oh, this harvest of souls! I notice in the fields that the farmer did not stand upright when he gathered the grain. I noticed he had to stoop to his work, and I noticed in order to bind the sheaves the better he had to put his knee upon them. And as we go forth in this work for God we can not stand upright in our rhetoric and our metaphysics and our erudition. We have to stoop to our work. Ay, we have to put our knee to it or we will never gather sheaves for the Lord's garner. Peter swung that sickle on the day of Pentecost, and 3,000 sheaves came in. Richard Baxter swung that sickle at Kidderminster, and McCheyne at Dundee, and vast multitudes came into the kingdom of our God.

Oh, this is a mighty Gospel! It captured not only John the lamb, but Paul the lion. Men may gnash their teeth at it, and clinch their fists, but it is the power of God and the wisdom of God unto salvation. But, alas, if it is only preached in pulpits and on Sabbath days! We must go forth into our stores, our shops, our banking houses, our factories, and the streets, and everywhere preach Christ. We stand in our pulpits for two hours on the Sabbath and commend Christ to the people; but there are 168 hours in the week, and what are the two hours on the Sabbath against the 166? Oh, there comes down the ordination of God this day upon all the people, men who toil with head and hand and foot—the ordination comes upon all merchants, upon all mechanics, upon all [illegible] God says to you as He says to me: Go, teach all nations. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." Mighty Gospel, let the whole earth hear it! The story of Christ is to regenerate the nations, it is to eradicate all wrong, it is to turn the earth into a paradise. An old artist painted the Lord's Supper, and he wanted the chief attention directed to the face of Christ. When he invited his friends in to criticise the picture, they admired the chalices more than they did the face, and the old artist said: "This picture is a failure," and he dashed out the picture of the cups, and said: "I shall have nothing to detract from the face of the Lord: Christ is the all of this picture."

Another powerful sickle for the reaping of this harvest is Christian song. I know in many [illegible] the whole work is delegated to a few people standing in the organ loft. But, my friends, as others can not repent for us, and others can not die for us, we can not delegate to others the work of singing for us. While a few drilled artists shall take the chants and execute the more skillful music, when the hymn is given out let there be hundreds and thousands of voices uniting in the acclamation. On the way to grandeurs that never cease and glories that never die, let us sing. At the battle of Lutzen, a general came to the king and said: "Those soldiers are singing as they are going to battle. Shall I stop them?" "No," said the king, "Men that can sing like that can fight." Oh, the power of Christian song! When I argue here you may argue back. The argument you make against religion may be more skillful than the argument I make in behalf of religion. But who can stand before the pathos of some uplifted song like that which we sometimes sing:

Show pity, Lord, O Lord, forgive!
Let a repenting rebel live!
Are not thy mercies large and free?
May not a sinner trust in thee?

Another mighty sickle for the reaping of the Gospel harvest is prayer. What does God do with our prayers? Does He go on the battlements of Heaven and throw them off? No. What do you do with gifts given you by those who love you very much? You keep them with great sacredness. And do you suppose God will take our prayers, offered in the sincerity and love of our hearts and scatter them to the winds? Oh, no! He will answer them all in some way. Oh, what a mighty thing prayer is! It is not a long rigmarole of "ohs," and "ahs," and "for ever and ever, Amens." It is a breathing of the heart into the heart of God. Oh, what a mighty thing prayer is! Elijah with it reached up to the clouds and shook down the showers. With it John Knox shook Scotland. With it Martin Luther shook the earth. And when Philip Melancthon lay sick unto death, as many supposed, Martin Luther came in and said. "Philip, we can't spare you!" "Oh," said he, "Martin, you must let me go; I am tired of persecution and tired of life. I want to go to be with God." "No," said Martin Luther, "you shall not go; you must take this food and then I will pray for you." "No, Martin," said Melancthon, "you must let me go." Martin Luther said: "You take this food or I will excommunicate you." He took the food and Martin Luther knelt down and prayed as only he could pray, and convalescence came and Martin Luther went back and said to his friends: "God has saved the life of Philip Melancthon in direct answer to my prayer." Oh, the power of prayer! Have you tested it?

Dr. Prim, of New York, in his beautiful book entitled, "Around the World," described a mausoleum in India which it took 20,000 men 22 years to build—that and the buildings surrounding—and he says: "Standing in that mausoleum and uttering a word, it is echoed back from a height of 150 feet; not an ordinary echo, but a prolonged music, as though there were angels hovering in the air." And every word of earnest prayer we utter has an echo, not from the marble cupola of an earthly mausoleum, but from the heart of God and from the wings of angels as they hover, crying: "Behold, he prays!" Oh, test it! Mighty sickle for reaping this Gospel harvest, the sickle of prayer!

It does not make so much difference about the posture you take, whether you sit, kneel or stand, or lie on your face, or in your physical agonies lie on your back. It does not make any difference about the physical posture, as was shown in a hospital, when the chaplain said, as he looked over the beds of the suffering: "Let all those wounded men here who would like to be prayed for lift the hand!" Some lifted two hands; others lifted one hand; some with hands amputated could only lift the stump of the arm. One man, both his arms amputated, could give no signal except to say: "Me! Me!" "Oh, it does not make any difference about the rhetoric of your prayers: it does not make any difference about the posture; it does not make any difference whether you can lift a hand or have no hand to lift. God is ready to hear you. Prayer is answered. God is waiting to respond.

"Lift up your eyes upon the fields, for they are white already to harvest!" How many have you reaped for God? Do you ask me how many I have reaped for God? I can not say. Now, can you say how many you have reaped? I hope there are some who have been brought into the kingdom of God through your instrumentality. Have there not been? Not one? You, a man 35, 40, 50 years of age, and not one? I see souls coming up to glory. Here is a Sunday-school teacher bringing in 10 or 15 souls. Here is a tract distributor bringing in 40 or 50 souls. Here is a man you never heard of who has been very useful in bringing souls to God. He comes with 150 souls. They are the sheaves of his harvest. How many have you brought? Not one—what will God say? What will the angels say? Better crouch down in some corner of Heaven and never show yourself. Oh, that harvest is to be reaped now! And that is this instant! Why not be reaped for God this hour?

"Oh, says some man, "I have been going on the wrong road for 30, 40 or 50 years; I have gone through the whole catalogue of crime, and must first get myself fixed up." Ah, you will never get yourself fixed up until Christ takes you in charge. You get worse and worse until he comes to the rescue. "Not the righteous; sinners Jesus came to call." So, you see, I take the very worst case there is. If there is a man here who feels he is all right in heart and life, I am not talking to him, for he is probably a hypocrite. I will talk to him some other time. But if there is a man who feels himself all wrong, to him I address myself. Though you be wounded in the hands, and wounded in the feet, and wounded in the head, and wounded in the heart, and though the gangrene of eternal death be upon you, one drop of the elixir of divine life will cure your soul. Though you be soaked in evil indulgences, though your feet have gone in unclean places, though you have companioned with the abandoned and lost, one touch of divine grace will save your soul.

I do not say that you will not have struggles after that. Oh, no! But they will be a different [illegible] struggle. You go into that battle and all hell is against you, and you are alone, and you fight and you fight, weaker and weaker and weaker, until at last you fall and the powers of darkness trample on your soul. But in the other case you go into the battle, and you fight stronger and stronger and stronger, until the evil propensity goes down and you get the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Oh, come out of your sins! Have you not been bruised with sin long enough? Have you not carried that load long enough? Have you not fought that battle long enough?

I rattle the gates of your sepulcher to-day. I take the trumpet of the Gospel and blow the long, loud blast. Roland went into battle. Charlemagne's army had been driven back by the three armies of the Saracens, and Roland, in almost despair, took up the trumpet and blew three blasts in one of the mountain passes, and under the power of those three blasts the Saracens recoiled and fled in terror. But history says that when he had blown the third blast Roland's trumpet broke.

I take this trumpet of the Gospel and blow the first blast: "Whosoever will." I blow the second blast: "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found." I blow the third blast: "Now is the accepted time." But the trumpet does not break. It was handed down by our forefathers to us, and we will hand it down to our children, that after we are dead they may blow the trumpet, telling the world that we have a pardoning God, a loving God, a sympathetic God, and that more to Him than the throne on which He sits is the joy of seeing a prodigal put his finger on the latch of his father's house.

I invite any one the most infidel, any one the most atheistic, I invite him into the kingdom of God with just as much heartiness as those who have for 50 years been under the teaching of the Gospel and believed it all. When I was living in Philadelphia a gentleman told me of a scene in which he was a participant. In Callowhill street, in Philadelphia, there had been a powerful meeting going on for some time, and many were converted, and among others one of the most prominent members of the worst club-house in that city. The next night the leader of that clubhouse, the president of it, resolved that he would endeavor to get his comrade away. He came to the door, and before he entered he heard a Christian song, and under its power his soul was agitated. He went in and asked for prayer. Before he came out he was a subject of converting mercy. The next night another comrade went to reclaim the two who had been lost to their sinful circle. He went, and under the power of the Holy Ghost became a changed man, and the work went on until they were all saved and the infamous club-house disbanded. Oh, it is a mighty Gospel! Though you came here a child of sin you can go away a child of grace; you can go away singing:

Amazing grace, how sweet the sound,
That saved a wretch like me;
I once was lost, but now am found—
Was blind, but now I see.

Oh, give up your sins! [illegible] life is already gone. Your children are going on the same wrong road. Why do you not stop? "This day is salvation come to thy house." Why not this moment look up into the face of Christ and say:

Just as I am, without one plea
But that Thy blood was shed for me,
And that Thou bid'st me come to Thee,
O, Lamb of God, I come, I come.

God is going to save you. You are going to be among the shining ones. After the toils of life are over, you are going up to the everlasting rest, you are going up to join your loved ones, departed parents and departed children. "O, my God," says some man, "how can I come to Thee? I am so far off. Who will help me, I am so weak? It seems such a great undertaking." Oh, my brother, it is a great undertaking! It is so great you can not accomplish it, but Christ can do the work. He will correct your heart and He will correct your life. "Oh," you say," "I will stop profanity." That will not save you. "Oh," you say, "I will stop Sabbath breaking." That will not save you. There is only one door into the kingdom of God, and that is faith; only one ship that sails for Heaven, and that is faith. Faith the first step, the second step, the hundredth step, the thousandth step, the last step. By faith we enter the kingdom. By faith we keep in. In faith we die. Heaven a reward of faith. The earthquake shook down the Philippian dungeon. The jailer said: "What shall I do?" Some of you would say: "Better get out of the place before the walls crush you." What did the Apostle say: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." "Ah," you say, "there's the rub." What is faith? Suppose you were thirsty and I offered you this glass of water, and you believed I meant to give it to you, and you came up and took it. You exercise faith. You believe I mean to keep my promise. Christ offers you the water of everlasting life. You take it. That is faith.

Enter into the kingdom of God. Enter now. The door of life is set wide open. I plead with you by the bloody sweat of Gethsemane and the death groan of Golgotha, by the cross and crown, by Pilate's courtroom and Joseph's sepulcher, by harps and chains, by kingdoms of light and realms of darkness, by the trumpet of the archangel that shall wake the dead, and by the throne of the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb, that you attend now to the things of eternity. Oh, what a sad thing it will be if, having come so near Heaven, we miss it! Oh, [illegible] have come within sight of the shining pinnacles of the city and not have entered! Oh, to have been so near we have seen the mighty throng enter and we not joining them! Angels [illegible] God, fly this way! Good news for [illegible] tell the story among the red[illegible] high! If there be one there [illegible] longing for our salvation [illegible] know it now. We [illegible] rows. Glory be to [illegible] for such a pardon, [illegible] such a Hea[illegible]

THE Cincinnati police have had considerable exercise running down clews to the Bryan murder.

LOUISVILLE is soon to have a free silver Democratic paper with Dan E. O. Sullivan as editor.

ABOUT now is a good time for Senator Weissinger to practice what he preached during the State campaign.

NEITHER Senator Lindsey nor Congressman Owens want to attend the next National convention as a delegate.

SENATOR QUAY is a fully fledged Republican candidate for president. He will have Pennsylvania's big delegation at his back.

MCLAUGHLIN, the Bracken county murderer, is another person for whom hanging is too good. See account of his crime on first page.

CONSIDERING the temptations, the Kentucky legislature has behaved itself very well so far; but there is no telling what may yet develop.

IT is very strange that the Cubans should be able to keep up their war, when, according to the Spanish accounts, they are defeated in every battle.

THE Covington pool rooms did not open up for business last Monday morning, and it was hoped that they had given up the fight for existence.

THE Senate came to Governor Bradley's relief by refusing to confirm the appointment of a colored man to be stewart of the asylum at Hopkinsville.

A NEGRO who claims that he drove the cab in which Jackson, Walling and Pearl Bryan rode over to Ft. Thomas, has showed up, but his story is somewhat fishy.

IT will not do for the two old parties to straddle the financial question this year. They will have to come out straight on that issue and then those who do not like the position can go elsewhere.

IT was ascertained that Dr. Hunters' son secured a government position at Washington, and at the same time was drawing a salary as his father's private secretary. He was fired out of the former.

THE remarkable spectacle of the tail trying to wag the dog is yet to be seen at Frankfort. An appeal has been made to Secretary Carlisle to interfere in behalf of the dog, and assist it to do the wagging.

THE Republicans hope to catch a Democratic vote for U. S. Senator, and for that purpose it is said they will put Judge Holt on the track. Judge Holt is Tony Carroll's father-in-law. It is believed that if Carroll is given a chance he will make a Senator out of him.

THE three Republicans who broke away from the Hunter ranks last week, can not be prevailed upon to return, and it looks very much like the Republican nominee for Senator will have to permit some other member of the party to try his luck.

THE Chairman of Indiana's Republican Central Committee thinks Harrison's following in that State will be divided nearly equally between Reed, Allison and McKinley. Probably this is about correct. The McKinley people, however, are claiming everything.

SINCE 1885 both of the old Political parties have done the jerrymandering act in Indiana, and a few days ago the Supreme Court of that State decided each of the jerrymander acts unconstitutional, and the politicians of the Hoosier State are not now certain "where they are at."

THE Court of Appeals affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of the United States Building and Loan Association vs. Scott etc., of the Boyd County Building Association, which is a Minnesota corporation, and is said to have sought to charge an exorbitant rate of interest on an $800 loan. The Court holds that no foreign corporation can charge more than 6 per cent. interest, the rate allowed by law.

THERE seems to be little doubt that John B. Robinson of South Africa is the richest man in the world. His fortune is estimated at $350,000,000. In 1878 Robinson was in debt. He had kept a grocery store in Orange Free State, but he could not make both ends meet. He and his wife begged their way for 300 miles to Kimberly. Here Robinson laid the foundation of his enormous fortune by picking up a rough diamond worth $1,200. His ambition now is to be worth a billion.

THAT there has not been trouble in the Legislature is no fault of one or two sensational reporters for the daily papers. If their reports are to be believed, the members of the Legislature were about to spring at each other's throats, intent on murder, when the truth is that, probably at that very time, those members were [illegible] seated talking and [illegible] with each other, or gravely [illegible] the situation. These [illegible] have been sent out for an [illegible] and are entirely [illegible] by the real state of facts [illegible] There is always more [illegible] a close contest [illegible] but that [illegible] state of [illegible]

Hon. W. C. Owens has made a hit among the ladies at Washington, and of him in that connection the Louisville Post says:

"While Representative Owens is waiting for the committee to act on his case he is not idle. He does not do much in the House; in fact, there is nothing for him to do there, but vote, which he does with regularity of a new member. He is in that unfortunate position that any speech he would make would injure his chances before the Election Committee.

"But Bill Owens has become a great favorite in society. He has developed into a beau of almost the magnitude of Hon. Charles C. Bennett, of New York. There is nothing so exclusive that Owens is not present. He makes the rounds of pink teas in the afternoon, is at dinner, en costume, somewhat later, and at a late hours till he ambles carelessly into one of the fashionable salons of the capital.

"He really has made a great hit socially. He has torn down most of the barbed wire fences which dames of the capital are wont to put about their preserves to keep out the general run of Congressional cattle; for be it known that Congressman do not come high as social bric-a-brac. They are rather avoided than otherwise.

"But Bill Owens has made a hit. The women have gotten on to his personal appearance and quiet demeanor. They like to seize him, and stand him in a corner, where he will be seen, but not broken. They would mount him on a stand if they dared, but he is tall enough to show off to advantage, even in the crowed room. He is, withal, popular with the men, too, for he is not conceited, or, if so, hides it well.

"Sometimes, when standing in the aforesaid corner, surrounded by a bevy of beautiful young women and designing old ones, a longing and unsettled look comes into his eyes, and expression akin to pain passes over his face. Instantly a silent prayer goes up from those around him for his safety, for they all know that look, and know that it only comes when Owens has a passing thought of Denny and a passing vison of his seat occupied by another."

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

The Age of Consent Bill has passed the House.

The House passed the bill reducing the salary of the State Inspector and Examiner from $3,000 to $1,800.

The bill to permit women to become trustees of the A. and M. College, at Lexington, has been adversely acted upon by the Committee on Education.

By a vote of 23 to 6 the Senate passed a bill to compel Sheriffs to make a monthly report of all taxes collected and providing a penalty for a failure to turn over all such revenue.

The House refused to order to its second reading the bill drawn up at the suggestion of Governor Bradley making a county liable in the sum of $2,500 to the heirs of any person lynched within the county's borders.

The nomination of Postell was finally rejected by practically a party vote, 20 Democrats voting against him and 15 Republicans and 1 Democrat (Mr. Hays, of Louisville) voting for him. One Democrat and one Republican were absent.

Mr. Rice introduced a bill which makes it a felony for anyone to wilfully give to any editor or reporter of a newspaper or magazine a falsehood against anyone, or for any reporter to wilfully send a falsehood to a paper or magazine, or for any paper to publish a falsehood. The punishment is fixed at confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years.

The Compulsory Educational Bill as passed by the House embraces the following provisions, to wit: It makes it compulsory on all parents or guardians to send to school for at least twelve weeks in each year the children under their care. Eight weeks' attendance must be consecutive, and a penalty of a small fine for each offense shall not apply to parents or guardians sending their children to night schools, or to children in delicate health or whose parents are unable to clothe them properly. A white child shall not attend a colored school, nor shall a colored child attend a white school under the provisions of bill. It does not apply to children who live further than two miles from a common school.

Ashland iron men speak encouragingly of the outlook and express a belief that there will be a big increase in demand and prices in the coming three months. The Northern Iron Works, which has lost money steadily for a number of years has in the past five months made something near $30,000.

The Louisville Commercial suggests that Tony Carroll may break the dead lock by a vote for his father-in-law, Judge Holt. Not he. Carroll is a candidate for Congress, and while gold-bugism and caucus bolting would not hurt him in the slightest degree, to vote for a Republican, even though a father-in-law, would be too much even for a Louisville constituency.—Commonwealth.

The Eminence Constitutionalist wants the next Democratic State Convention to be held either at Lexington or Frankfort, in order to be free from the influence of capitalists. The proposition for the reason mentioned seems a little uncomplimentary commentation on the soundness and stability of the Kentucky Democracy.

At Paducah an old gentleman shot at a troublesome cat. He not only killed the cat but blew his favorite rooster into atoms and buried a shot in a neighbor boy's leg. A Carter county man shot at a dog that ran out after his horse while passing an Elliott county farmhouse, and the bullet struck and seriously wounded the twelve-year-old daughter of the owner of the dog.

On swapping day at Elkton one fellow who got tired of expatiating on the superior qualities of his mule hitched the beast to a post and tied a placard to the bridle, which read thus: "I am Bill Young's donkey; whose donkey are you? There is a general awakening in religious circles in this State. Revivals are in progress at innumerable places and the results in nearly every instance are very satisfactory to the church people. Meanwhile Hopkinsville is arranging for a series of meetings by Evangelist Dwight L. Moody in April, and Mt. Sterling is to have Biederwolf and Hillis, two of the associates of Evangelist Mills, next month.

The trial of Moses Cook, Jr., F. P. Apgar, Robert Henderson and William Proctor. For lynching Edwin Traughber July 15, 1894, two miles south of Adairville, resulted in acquittal. Principle McGuire, colored, the main witness against the accused men, died six months ago of consumption, while confined in the Warren-County Jail at Bowling Green. He is the man that drove the surrey for the lynchers, as claimed, and was threatened, it is said, with death if he ever revealed the secret.

Jessamine Journal: "Falcon" the gifted Kentucky writer, writes the following encouraging words to the faithful: "The landslide shall not last forever. Democracy cannot die in this free land. The day of reckoning will come. It is the Promised Land, it is God's country, intended for God's people. Those who waver in the faith now, and yearn for the flesh pots of Egypt, may go to making bricks without straw, but they shall never again taste the grapes of Eschol. The faithful shall enjoy the covenant of their father."

The Manchester Star contains this peculiar advertisement: "To all the young girls of Clay and adjoining counties between the ages of sixteen and twenty-two, whom it may concern, be it known: That I, Jarvis Pinner, whose postoffice address is Piegon Roost, Clay county, Ky., being of sound mind and capable of contracting and being contracted with—and possessed of an elegant farm of about 150 acres, with an orchard of 300 bearing apple trees, and stocked with latest improved Poland-China hogs and Spanish chickens, together with all necessary comforts of life—but like Adam, with an Eden—but no helpmate, do hereby promise to will to any young woman between the ages referred to, who will be Eve to me and share the comforts and joys of my home and fortune, being "flesh of my flesh" and "bone of my bone"—all of my realty and personal effects, and promise to be to her a kind and loving husband. Be it understood that no girl named Suse need apply. The girl, in order to be accepted, must be well recommended and of good form and pretty face. No cross-eyed woman need apply. This is a rare opportunity."

STOCK AND CROP.

Twenty jacks were sent last week from Madison county to Arizona.

A few choice lambs have been sold in Clark county for delivery June 1st, at five cents.

J. B. Darnell, of Bath county, has a work mule 24 years old, "as sprightly as a 4 year old."

M. B. Eubank, of Clark county, has a six year old cow that has given birth to seven calves.

A Logan county farmer has a sow 11 years old that has produced 210 pigs, which sold for $2,100.

Charles B. Ecton, of Winchester, refused 75 cents per bushel for two thousand bushels of wheat.

J. A. Cohen, of Woodford county, bought a car load of fat hogs for March 1st, delivery, at $3.50 and $3.75.

Solomon Obinchain, of Bellville, who is seventy five years old, raised $110,01 worth of tobacco on 5,000 plants last year.

In Woodford county, Hugh Mahin sold to John Arnett his crop of lambs at 5 cents for June and 4 cents for July delivery.

The banner tobacco crop thus far reported in this section, says Shelbyville News, was raised by G. M. Johnson on five acres of land on the farm of R. Stegall. It yielded 7,000 pounds and brought the handsome sum of $700 at home.

Eminence Constitutionalist: W. J. O'Bannon reports his tenant, on his father's place, near town, having cultivated ten acres of tobacco that netted him $1,711,50. The same piece of ground, in four crops, three of them successive, yielded between $5,000 and $6,000.

The corn crop of 1895 turns out to have been one of the largest three on record, but the amount of it that was marketed is comparatively small. Past experience has taught the farmers the importance of holding surplus crops for higher prices, and there are more cribs of corn on western farms at the present time than has ever been known.

Spring lambs promise to be a plentiful commodity this year. The Winchester Democrat says: "This has been an ideal winter for early lambs. A very large per cent. of the ewes are giving birth to twins and the loses are phenomenally small. There is more new grass than usual for this time of year, and the little fellows are growing nicely."

It is said that the Pillsbury mills at Minneapolis expect to grind 4,500,000 barrels of flour this year. The chances are that other mills will each grind about as much. If they carry out their intentions the output flour there will be about 14,000,000 barrels. Allowing four and a half bushels of wheat to a barrel of flour it would mean 63,000,000 bushels of wheat, which will take up a large part of the surplus of the spring wheat crop.

The Madisonville Hustler makes a timely suggestion to farmers in the following: The time for planting corn will come along in about two months, and we want to make a suggestion to the farmer, a suggestion that every one of them will see at once is a good one. Begin at once to select your seed corn. As you feed your stock and find a good ear of corn lay it aside for future use. Get the very best you can find, reject all that is imperfect or has unsound seed. By so doing you will be ready for the planting season. You also get the best. With corn, as with everything else, like begets like. Well selected corn for seed insures a better stand; it also insures a better yield. All seed should be selected with care.

John Sandford was chopping wood, one day last week, when a stick flew up and smashed his nose. The pain occasioned by the blow having subsided, John resumed chopping, and the first stick he struck, flew up, welting him in the mouth, loosening one front tooth, and producing the usual amount of pain. As soon as he was able to speak John made a few remarks that would not look well in print, and then retired from the woodyard.

Louisville's groundhog did not make its appearance until the 12th inst. The entrance to its winter abode had been watched closely since the first of this month, in order that the question of groundhog day might be definitely settled. It was in an emaciated condition, and after partaking of a lunch provided for it, it took a survey of the surroundings, and then departed for its subterranean retreat.

To my old Friends and Customers:

Calling attention to the advertisement of the Old Reliable Stove Company in this issue, I take pleasure in expressing my sincere thanks to my many friends for past favors shown me, and heartily recommend A. H. Bryant, my successor, as an honorable and straightforward business man, and can assure all my friends of courteous treatment and fair dealings at his hands.

Very Respectfully,

A week ago Sunday afternoon—groundhog day—Mr. John Younker noticed a large flock of strange birds flying towards his house. There were probably 300 of them. Their flight was like that of crows, but when they came close to him he saw that they had white breasts. They were pronounced magpies. They had evidently flown a long distance, for they were so tired they could not rise to pass over his house, but part of them went on one side and part on the other.—Aurora Independent.

CHAS. W. ZELL, Cincinnati, O.

At the sale of the Geo. W. Terrill estate at Burlington, Ky., last week, the one-half interest in the ferry property failed to bring a certain amount and was not sold. Something will have to be done with the ferry before a great while, as the boat in use is old and out of date, and a new one will be necessary to take its place in the near future. Capt. Billy Hartman is a good ferryman, and it is to be regretted that he has been unable to secure control of the ferry privileges in order that a new boat of modern style could be constructed and more efficient service rendered.—Lawrenceburg Register.

[illegible] that S. W. [illegible] bought the interest in the ferry.

It is not generally known that the legislature of Kentucky passed a law requiring all insurance companies in case of fire, where no fraud was shown, to pay the face of the policy, and that this law has been sustained by the circuit courts of the State, although the insurance companies still insist on writing their policies with the three-quarter clause.

The contracts for the construction of the amphitheater at the fair grounds at Florence, were awarded last Saturday. If you are fond of that kind of amusement, you can exercise your mental faculties for a while on the following: "A lady started to market with a basket of eggs. When she sold them to the grocer she counted them by twos and she had one egg over; she counted them by threes and had two eggs over; by fours and had three eggs over; by fives and had four eggs over; by sixes, had five eggs over; by seven and had six eggs over; by eights and had seven eggs over; by nines and had eight over. The fox that was turned loose out at John Berkshire's one morning last week, after few hours' run went into the ground near Henry Phipps', where it was again captured. Thursday morning it was turned loose at Asa Cason', but after a short run it took refuge from its pursuers in a chicken coop at Benule Kelley's, where it was captured a third time. It was decided to have another chase last Saturday morning, and the fox was imprisoned at Asa Cason's to rest and be ready for the fun. At an early hour Saturday morning a large number of hunters, with their dogs assembled at Mr. Cason's, but very much to their chagrin, they found reynard cold in death, having hustled off the mortal coil only a few hours before the time appointed for the race. Not intending to be completely out done, reynard's jacket was slipped off and used for a drag, and a short but nice race was witnessed. And so ended the career of the largest fox the hunters have seen in this part of the county this winter.

If Ohio and Indiana people want to [illegible] one another, [illegible] do it on their side of the river. The Ft. Thomas horror is the second murder of the kind committed on this side, The Billy Fee murder at the Lawrenceburg ferry was very similar to that at Ft. Just so long as people make heroes of cold blooded murderers, and ladies persist in tying bouquets on them, just so long will such horrors occur. THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE

She Has Ever Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—MRS. MAY JOHNSON, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

Prosperous Farmers.

Yankton Press and Dakotan: In Yankton county South Dakota, there are at least a thousand farmers who came here poor as the proverbial turkey of Job, and who to-day count their worldly possessions by thousands. Many of them started in with a house built of sod, and almost empty handed so far as horses and cattle go. To-day they occupy fine dwelling houses, have large barns, fine horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, granaries filled with grain, fruit orchards, and money in bank. We mention this to show that South Dakota farmers are the prosperous class. Prosperity is the rule—not the exception. With fair prices for grain and live stock they would be rolling in wealth. Prices, however, have nothing to do with the fertility of the soil and the favorable character of the climate. These natural advantages are here to stay and [illegible] prosperity [illegible].

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"Through Storyland to Sunset Seas"

Is the title of a sumptuous volume of 250 pages, printed on fine enameled paper and illustrated by 200 exquisite half tone engravings, which the Passenger Department of the Southern Pacific has just issued. It contains no advertising matter, but is a gracefully-told story of the romance of the country traversed by the Southern Pacific, and the narrative of what a party of four saw in a journey over this great trans-continental highway. As an example of book-making it is far in advance of anything heretofore attempted by any railway, and it is one of the marvels of modern commercial enterprise that the book is given away. By at once sending 30 cents to pay postage, you can, on application to S. F. B. Morse, General Passenger Agent, Southern Pacific, New Orleans, La., secure a copy of this work.

THE HOME OF WASHINGTON.

There dwelt the Man, the flower of human kind,
Whose visage mild bespoke his noble mind.

There dwelt the Soldier, who his sword ne'er drew
But in a righteous cause, to Freedom true.

There dwelt the Hero, who ne'er killed for fame,
Yet gained more glory than a Cæsar's name.

There dwelt the Statesman, who, devoid of art,
Gave soundest counsels, from an upright heart.

And, O Columbia, by thy sons caressed,
There dwelt the Father of the realms he blessed:
Who no wish felt to make his might a praise,
Like other chiefs, the means himself to raise.
But there retiring, breathed in pure renown,
And felt a [illegible] disdained a crown.

Washington's Famous Jump.

GEORGE WASHINGTON was a wonderful jumper. Thackeray, in "The Virginians," gives him the magnificent record of twenty-two feet three inches for a running broad. Young Henry Warrington, writing home from England a description of a jumping match in which he covered twenty-one feet three inches, thereby beating his competitor, Lord March, goes on to say: "I then told them that there was a gentleman at home who could beat me by a good foot, and when they asked me who it was I said Col. G. Washington, of Mount Vernon—as you know he can, and he's the only man in this country or mine that can do it." So if Thackeray is to be believed George stands the champion broad jumper of his time; indeed, up to 1889, he could easily have won all intercollegiate champion competitions and most of the nationals. What the agile young pater patria might have accomplished with piked shoes, a cinder path, and a nice plank "take off" no one can say, but it is not improbable that he would now stand not only first in peace, first in war, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, but first on the list of running broad jumpers as well.

It is rather unfortunate that the details of this remarkable jump are not to be found, but I have discovered a very pretty little story which gives him a record only two inches short of that given him by young Warrington.

In a pretty little village in Virginia there lived in 1775 a rich and eccentric old farmer whose daughter was declared to be the loveliest maiden in all the country round. The beautiful Annette was 18 years of age, and of course had many suitors for her hand and heart. Some offered her wealth, some position, others nothing but love and labor, yet, obedient to her father's wishes, she encouraged none of them.

On her 19th birthday the old man invited all the youth of the village to a grand haymaking frolic, and they came, among them a dozen handsome young fellows who were known to still retain a tender regard for the fair girl whose natal day they had come to celebrate.

The morning passed in merry labor. By noon the barns were filled with the fragrant hay, and all were ready for the feast of good things that had been spread under the shady branches.

"Now, my lads," said the old man, after the banquet was some time over, "I've got something to say to you. It seems that a good many of you have been casting sheep's eyes at my Annette. Now, boys, I don't care anything about money or talents, book larning or soldier larning. I can do as well by my girl as any man in the country; but I want her to marry a man of my own grit. Now perhaps you know it, and perhaps you don't, but when I was a youngster I could beat anyone in all Virginia in the way of leaping. Look here!"

He held up as he spoke three handsome medals.

"And all of them won in fair fight," he went on, "besides which I got my old woman by beating the smartest man on the eastern shore. Now listen: I've taken an oath that no man shall marry my daughter without jumping for it. There you have it, boys; yonder's the green, and here's Annette. The one who jumps farthest on a dead level shall marry her this very evening."

This peculiar address was received with great applause, and more than one youth, as he bounded away for the arena of trial, cast a glance of anticipated victory upon the lovely prize as she stood blushing beside her father.

Dropping their various amusements, the entire party wended their way, laughing and singing, toward the village inn, before which spread the green. In the center of this plot the ground was bare and admirably suited to exercises of the sort in which they were about to engage. Soon all was in readiness for the contest. The signal was given and the young competitors, stripped of their coats, stepped forward.

"Edward Grayson, 17 feet!" cried one of the judges. The youth had done his utmost, but it was clear by the look on his face that he had little hope. With a longing glance at the prize he could not win he left the grounds.

"Harry Preston, 19 feet 3 inches!"

"Well done, Harry!" shouted the spectators. "You tried hard for the acres and the homestead." Harry, who was a rattle-brained sort of a fellow, laughingly vowed he only jumped for the fun of the thing. It was thought, however, that he would not have said so if he had felt sure of winning.

"Charlie Simms, 15½ feet!"

"Hooray for Charlie! Charlie wins!" cried the crowd, with good-natured sarcasm. Charlie grinned, threw off his disappointment with a slight uplift of his shoulders, and was soon creating roars of laughter with his wit, which, by the way, was far more nimble than his legs.

There was now but one leaper left, for several had become discouraged and retired from the contest.

"Now for Harry Carroll!" shouted the spectators, and Harry stepped forward amid great applause. Carroll was the athlete of the village, and he was so general a favorite that everyone wished as well as anticipated his success. Moreover he was a handsome youth, and it was well known that between him and the beautiful Annette there existed a strong mutual attachment. Harry cast a swift glance at his sweetheart and at the villagers and then with a gleam of triumph in his eye he bounded forward.

"Twenty-one feet and a half. A magnificent leap!" cried the judge. "Hooray for Harry Carroll. Harry wins!"

Hands, hats and handkerchiefs were waved wildly by the delighted villagers, and the eyes of the happy Annette sparkled with joy.

Now, just before Harry had leaped, and while everyone's attention was fixed upon him, a stranger had entered the throng unperceived. He was a tall, gentlemanly young man in a military undress frock coat, who had at that moment arrived on horseback before the inn. He was just in time to witness Carroll's great leap.

The first burst of applause over, the spectators awoke to the stranger's presence. The man's handsome face and easy address at once attracted the eyes of the maidens, while his manly and sinewy frame, in which were happily united symmetry and strength, called forth the admiration of the young men.

"Mayhap, sir stranger, you think you can beat that," said Charlie Simms, remarking the manner in which the newcomer scanned the arena. "If you can outleap Harry Carroll, you beat the best man in the colonies."

"Is it for amusement you are pursuing this pastime?" inquired the youthful stranger, "or is there a prize for the winner?"

"The sweetest prize man ever strove for," answered one of the judges; "yonder she stands."

22 FEET 1 INCH.

"Are your lists open to all?" he asked.

"All, young sir," replied Annette's father, with interest, his youthful ardor rising as he surveyed the proportions of the straight-limbed young stranger. "If you will try you are free to do so. Here is my daughter, sir; look at her and decide."

With a smile the newcomer threw off his coat, drew his sash tighter around his waist, and stepped forward. Annette looked anxiously at Harry, who stood near with troubled brow and angry eye, and then she cast upon the stranger a glance of piteous entreaty. All hearts stood still as the young man bounded forward.

"Twenty-two feet and an inch!" The judge's words were received with murmurs of surprise and wonder. Not without a feeling of pity for poor Harry, all crowded round the new victor, offering him their congratulations. The old farmer approached, and grasping the young man's hand, exultingly called him his son, and said he felt prouder of him than if he were a prince. To the old athlete the true patents of nobility were physical strength and activity.

Resuming his coat, the stranger sought with his eye the fair prize he had, although nameless and unknown, so fairly won. She leaned upon her father's arm, pale and distressed.

Poor Harry Carroll stood aloof, gloomy and mortified, admiring the stranger for his ability, but hating him for his success.

"Annette, my pretty prize," said the victor, taking her passive hand, "I have won you fairly."

Annette's cheek became paler than marble, she trembled and clung closer to her father, while her drooping eyes sought the form of her lover. At the words of the stranger Carroll's face grew dark and determined.

"I have won you, my pretty flower, to make you a bride—tremble not so violently—I mean not myself, however proud I might be," he added, with gallantry, "to wear so fair a gem next my heart. I think there is a favored youth among the competitors who has a higher claim than mine. Young sir," he continued, turning to the surprised Harry, "methinks you were the victor in the lists before me—I strove not for the maiden, though one could not well strive for a fairer, but from love of the manly sport in which I saw you engaged. You are the victor, and as such, with the permission of this worthy assembly, you receive from my hand the prize you have so well and honorably won."

The youth sprang forward and grasped the stranger's hand with gratitude, and next moment Annette was weeping from pure joy upon his breast. The place rang with the acclamation of the delighted people, and amid the excitement the newcomer withdrew, remounted his horse, and rode briskly out of the village.

That night Harry and Annette were married, and during the festivities many and many a bumper was drunk to the health of the mysterious and noble-hearted stranger.

Passing on several years, we find that Harry Carroll has become Col. Harry Carroll, of the revolutionary army. One evening the colonel, after returning from a hard campaign, was sitting with his family on the piazza of his handsome country house, when an advance courier rode up and announced the approach of Gen. Washington and suite, who would crave the colonel's hospitality for the night. The necessary directions in reference to household preparations being given, the colonel ordered his horse and rode forward to meet the distinguished guest, whom he had never seen, though serving in the same widely extended army.

That evening at the table, Annette, now the dignified, matronly, and still handsome Mrs. Carroll, could not keep her eyes from the face of her illustrious visitor. Every moment or two she would steal a glance at his commanding features, and half-doubtingly, half-assuredly, shake her head and look again, to be still more puzzled. Her absence of mind and embarrassment at last became evident to her husband, who inquired affectionately if she was ill. "I suspect, colonel," said the general, who had been some time, with a quiet, meaning smile, observing the lady's curious and puzzled scrutiny of his features, "that Mrs. Carroll thinks she recognizes me as an old acquaintance." And he smiled with a mysterious air as he gazed upon both alternately.

The colonel stared, and a faint memory of the past seemed to be revived as he gazed, while the lady rose impulsively from her chair, and bending eagerly over the tea urn, with clasped hands, and an eye of intense eager inquiry fixed full upon him, stood for a moment, with her lips parted as if she would speak.

"Pardon me, my dear madam—pardon me, colonel—I must put an end to this scene. I have become, by dint of campfare and hard usage, too unwieldy to leap again 22 feet 1 inch, even for so fair a bride as one I wot of."

George Washington was indeed the handsome young athlete whose mysterious appearance and disappearance in the native village of the lovers is still traditionary; and whose claim to a substantial body of bona fide flesh and blood was stoutly contested by the village story-teller, until the happy denouement which took place at the hospitable mansion of Col. Carroll.—George H. Westley, in Chicago Inter Ocean.

WASHINGTON AND LAFAYETTE.

How They Obtained a Breakfast Ordered by Lord Howe.

A bit of traditional lore concerning Washington and La Fayette has come into print which seems to be better founded and more distinctly traceable to fact than is usually the case with traditions. It is related by Mr. J. F. Blandy, and came to him with but one intermediate telling from La Fayette himself, who told it at Elk Landing, Md., in 1821.

When the British under Lord Howe made their descent on Philadelphia in 1777, disembarking at the head of Elk river from Chesapeake bay, Washington advanced from Philadelphia to meet them. Early one morning he, accompanied by Marquis de La Fayette, made a reconnoissance from his camp at Chestnut Hill, Del., in the direction of Elk Landing. Here, at a point whence they could view the waters of Chesapeake bay, the two generals stopped at a farmhouse and asked if they could obtain their breakfast.

The hostess, Mrs. Alexander, appeared to be very glad to see them, and they were surprised to find the table already set with a bountiful and elegantly prepared breakfast. La Fayette was as much enchanted as he was astonished, as he afterward declared, to find such a repast in the course of a somewhat bold reconnoissance.

They had begun to partake of the meal, and La Fayette was eating leisurely, as a polite young Frenchman should do, when the mistress of the house stepped out for a moment. Washington touched La Fayette on the foot under the table, and whispered to him:

"Better eat quickly; this breakfast was not meant for us!"

La Fayette understood, and ate rapidly, but heartily. In a very short time the meal was finished. The two generals rose, hastily but warmly thanked Mrs. Alexander, and took their leave.

They had scarcely ridden away to a place of security when, turning about, they saw Lord Howe and his staff ride up to the Alexander house. They had ordered their breakfast here, and Washington and La Fayette had eaten it! Their chagrin, and the astonishment of their hostess, who supposed that she had already served Lord Howe to a very hearty meal, will have to be imagined by the world, for no record is left of their remarks.—Youth's Companion.

Decision in Favor of the De Long Hook and Eye.

Judge Acheson, in the United States Circuit Court at Pittsburgh, has just rendered, in the case of Richardson & De Long Brothers vs. Campbell & Smith, an important decision of great interest, sustaining letters patent owned by Richardson & De Long Brothers, which were granted to Frank E. De Long for a humped hook and eye, and enjoining the defendants from selling the "Golden Spring" hooks and eyes.

The hooks dealt in by the defendants were manufactured by the Golden Spring Hook and Eye Company, of Springfield, Mass. In these hooks the positions of the straight and curved portions of the De Long loop were reversed. The Court held that this did not void infringement, and directed a decree to be entered for the plaintiffs.

The case, which was a test one of great importance, was contested at great length, and has been pending for almost two years.

Messrs. Richardson & De Long Brothers were represented by Messrs. Strawbridge & Taylor, Bradbury Bedell, and John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, and Frederick P. Fish, of Boston, and the defendants by Messrs. Allan Webster and William L. Pierce.—N. Y. Times, February 3, 1896.

AMERICA'S GREATEST SEED GROWERS.

Thirty years ago when the Salzers were conducting in a small but profitable way, a market garden and green house business in La Crosse, Wis., they little dreamed that within a third of a century they would be the leaders in the seed-growing and seed-selling industry of America. The secret of this phenomenal success was quality, liberality, push. Nothing in the world advertises itself quicker and better, and more lasting than quality and to the superior merit of Salzer's northern grown seeds; to their unusual life and vigor and to their absolute surety of growth, in conjunction with their great producing qualities, and this coupled with the great liberality of the firm in the way of rare and many extras to each order and push back of all, has placed the firm in the van and entitles them to the proud distinction of America's greatest seed growers! The production of rare vegetable sorts and new farm seeds has long been a great specialty with this company, owning and operating many thousands of acres of land. Their great eight hundred acre trial farm in South Dakota was visited by thousands interested in higher farming, and all railroads gave half-fare rate within the state to any wishing to see the farm. The Salzers pay great attention to the new grasses, clovers and fodder plants, and their catalogue contains the largest list of rare farm seeds found in America.

A strong point of the John A. Salzer Seed Co. is that they keep large stocks of everything in the seed line on hand, so that a customer ordering of them is always sure of getting what he orders.

A slight idea of the magnitude of this firm's business can be gathered that they issue probably the largest number of catalogues of any American firm; that they use over $60,000 postage a year, employ in the packing and distributing of their seeds upwards of six hundred hands and require for their distributing warehouse over ten acres of floor room.

A five cent postage stamp sent to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., will bring you their great catalogue.

"The Wooden Hen."

The illustration shown herewith is small in size, but really large when we consider that the "Wooden Hen" is no larger than a live hen, yet has double the capacity. It weighs only 15 pounds, has a capacity of 28 eggs, and while not a toy, is just as amusing, besides being instructive as well.

We suggest that every reader of this write Mr. Geo. H. Stahl, Quincy, Ills., and ask for a copy of his handsome little booklet "K," describing the "Wooden Hen;" also his large catalogue of the Model Excelsior Incubator. All sent free. Mention this paper.

WHAT FAST SKATERS REQUIRE.

Physical Needs of Those Who Desire to Excel in Ice Racing.

The typical speed skater has a short body, capacious, round chest, with well-developed back; his thighs are strong and very long, as are also his legs. His feet are large and flat. His weak points are his calves, due to the long, flat skate to which his flattened foot is so closely bound. The large muscles of his chest are not exercised, and his arms, held lying idly along his back, are unused except in an occasional spurt, when they are brought down and swung straight from the shoulder. They say that they catch less wind held that way, and that the position is restful to the tense extensors of the back. This is, no doubt, true, says Popular Science Monthly, but the result is disastrous to symmetrical development. This type of figure is seen at its best in such skaters as the Donahues, McCormick, the old-time professional, who still skates a fast race, although now 40 years of age, and in Wilson Breen, a professional, who has been a winner of much gold and glory by means of his long legs and powerful thighs. The conclusion that speed skating alone is not a good exercise to develop a well-built, symmetrical man will be patent to anyone who reviews the facts. If indulged in it should be, as done by McCulloch, in conjunction with other forms of athletics which bring into action the muscles of the arm, calf, shoulders and chest.

It Might Come Handy.

Nantucket is famous for auctions. They are held in the public square. Meat auctions, furniture auctions. There are few things one cannot buy at auction if one bides one's time. Whenever an old home is broken up or a resident leaves the island the unwanted effects are closed out at auction for whatever they will bring. At the last one a refrigerator was put up. "Too late. The season's over," shouted some one in the crowd. "But there'll be another, and perhaps a hot one," said the auctioneer. "But one may die before that," said the other. "Well," replied the auctioneer, "if you die you'll be sorry that you hadn't bought a refrigerator and taken it along with you!"

LET THEM DIG.

Some Practical Advice on the Rearing of Children.

Dr. Bayard Holmes Considers the Ages of Six, Twelve and Seventeen as Critical Periods in a Boy's or Girl's Development.

Dr. Bayard Holmes says every boy and girl has an inalienable right to dig and climb—to dig in the earth and to climb trees. A child, he says, who lives the first eight years of its life in a flat has only half lived.

In his lecture before the Chicago Anthropological society the other day Dr. Holmes pointed out that at certain periods in the child's life it stopped growing for a time and that during these seasons of retarded development it was necessary that the child should receive special care and attention. As practical applications of his advice he gave these:

"I speak principally of the boy because I believe he has the hardest time of it, is the least studied, and is considered strong enough to develop properly whether he is treated rationally or not. The first thing a boy requires is room to grow. He should have a yard in which to dig as he should have trees to climb. He must not be hedged about with a high fence of 'don'ts' and 'take cares' and 'mustn't touch its' until he becomes timid, dishonest, vacillating. Give him plenty of room and there will not be much doubt about his rational development until he reaches the age of six. At this point he stops growing. Weigh him and he will weigh less than before. Test his strength and he will be found weaker.

"Now this is the age at which the majority of boys are considered old enough to go to some school. He may be old enough, but he is far from being strong enough. He should receive more attention, more tenderness, more consideration, from six to eight than for the two years previous. During these two years no boy should be in school nor inside any more than is necessary. He is bashful. He wants to burrow in the ground and have a place to hide things. He should not be restricted to regular meal hours and he must have plenty of sleep. During these two years he loses his front teeth and he should not begin regular public school duties until these are replaced. At eight he becomes a fine, manly fellow and is anxious to learn something more about the wonderful things he has noted while digging and climbing. He is full of questions which might puzzle many an old head to answer.

"Always remembering to give the boy plenty of freedom of the natural sort, he will grow vigorously from eight to twelve. At this age he should be taken from school for from six months to a year and given as much mild exercise and employment in the open air as possible. After resuming his studies he should have a man teacher and be taught with boys only. There is abundant scientific reason for this and it should continue until he is through the high school.

"At 17, the most critical period in his life, he should be kept out of school at light employment and under the most judicious direction, for from a year to two years. Not until this period of retarded growth is past should he enter college, no matter how much he may wish to forge ahead. Between 17 and 21 he should not play football, race, either on foot or on a bicycle, or indulge in any vigorous exercise. His heart is not equal to the size of his body, and he must rest till it grows. I may say that no boy should play so vigorous a game as football until after 21. Easy bicycle riding and light exercise are proper for him during this important period.

"All I have said applies with equal force to the girl. It should be noticed, however, that at the age of 12, 13 or 14 she outstrips the boy, not in inches but in talents. Her growth is much more radical than his during this period. For this reason there is greater danger in keeping the girl in school. This growth may be arrested and she may never become a fully developed woman. During this time the girl should be kept from school and from exciting society for a year or two, or until womanly functions are established. There is not as much danger with the girl after 17 as there is with the boy."

Singular Railroad Accident.

A Santa Fe train in Arizona was stalled for five hours by an odd accident a few days ago. The engine ran over a cow, and the cow's foot became firmly wedged in the blow-off cock, used to empty the boiler, with the result that all the steam and water went out and the engine was killed. A brakeman had to walk five miles to the nearest telegraph station to telegraph for another engine. It was five hours before another engine reached the stalled train, and the passengers played games among the sand hills and sage brush during the wait.

Ob coase, de gen'ral am a good man, and I ain't got nothin' to say against him, but still it beats me to think he'd turn preacher in his ole days. But, he's a powerful talker, Mars' Matt is, and I'll bet all de cotton I raise dis year dat he'll convert a wagon-load of sinners eber time he gits into de pulpit."

HON. M. D. HARTER DEAD.

He Committed Suicide While in Bed in the House of a Friend.

When Found He Had Been Dead for Some Time—Several Letters Addressed to Business Associates and One to His Wife Were Found in His Room.

FOSTORIA, O., Feb. 24.—Hon. Michael D. Harter was found dead shortly before noon Saturday, at the house of Superintendent Knapp, of the Interstate Grain Storage Co. He was in bed and by his side was a revolver. The bullet had entered the right temple and he had been dead for some time. Mr. Harter had been here for several days on business with the Isaac-Harter Co., of which he was president. He had been suffering from insomnia for several days and Friday complained of severe pains in his head. Friday evening he attended a supper at the Presbyterian church and seemed in good spirits. Returning to the home of Mr. Knapp he retired about his usual hour and nothing more was seen of him until he was found.

MICHAEL D. HARTER.

Several letters addressed to business associates and one to his wife, who is at her home in Philadelphia, were found in his room.

Michael D. Harter was one of the most prominent democrats in the 53d congress, his position upon the money question giving him a national reputation. He went to congress from Mansfield, representing Senator Sherman's home district, and he stood high in commercial circles. He was born at Canton, O., in 1846, and married a Miss Brown, of Massillon, O. Later he became a member of the important manufacturing firm of Aultman, Miller & Co.

Leaving Canton Mr. Harter went to Mansfield, where he entered the banking and manufacturing business. He was also interested in manufacturing establishments in Fostoria, and other Ohio cities.

Besides being a leader of the gold standard men, Mr. Harter achieved prominence as an original advocate of free trade. At the expiration of his congressional term he became identified with a banking firm in Philadelphia.

MANSFIELD, O., Feb. 24.—Mrs. M. D. Harter and children arrived here Sunday from Philadelphia, and went to their home on Park avenue. The body of Mr. Harter was brought here from Fostoria Sunday evening. It was learned Sunday that Mr. Harter carried $200,000 life insurance, of which $50,000 was in the Equitable, $30,000 in the Northwestern, $25,000 in the Pennsylvania, $25,000 in the Mutual Benefit of New Jersey and the balance in the Mutual Life of New York and other companies.

Weyler; and, in order to stop this bloody work the revolutionary committees in the city of Havana have issued a manifesto stating that if it is continued they will blow up the city with dynamite.

THE FIGHT.

Fitzsimmons Knocks Out Maher in the First Round—The Fight Lasted About a Minute and a Half.

LANGTRY, Tex., Feb. 22.—A slight rain is falling. The special train from El Paso, bearing Fitzsimmons, Maher and the other pugilists arrived here at 3:30 p. m., central time, unmolested en route.

The Texas rangers with Adjt. Gen. Mabrey at their head, alighted before the train had been brought to a standstill. The rangers were lined up at the north end of the depot under the command of Capt. McDonald. An immense crowd, which had been brought here from Eagle Pass, San Antonio and intermediate points, was in waiting. During the 15 minutes' stop at Sanderson, Maher took breakfast in the Chinese lunch room in the depot. It was a diabolical meal of greasy boiled cabbage, half-cooked ham, hot hoe bread, cheese, pie, and a vile imitation of coffee concoction. Maher ate heartily, to the amazement of veteran sports, who had never before seen a fighter put such a mess in his stomach, within three hours of going in the ring. To expostulations the Irishman smilingly remarked that he knew his business. Fitzsimmons' party had provided him with a commissary on his private car, and while Maher was gorging himself, he ate sparingly poached eggs on toast, chops and coffee. Later he took some raw eggs, milk and brandy and lay down for a nap. After leaving Sanderson there was suspicions of a rain-storm and it became certain that operation of the kinetoscope would be out of the question. Then the managers began to talk of postponing the mill until Saturday afternoon and keeping the party over night. A large majority of the crowd regarded this as decidedly risky. Decision was held in abeyance until pending the arrival here.

It took Robert Fitzsimmons just 95 seconds Friday afternoon to defeat Peter Maher and become the heavy weight champion of the world. The fight took place in the bottoms of the Rio Grande river on the Mexican side, a mile and a half distant from the Langtry depot. Even to his friends it was evident that the Irish lad was not in it from the start. Before the round had progessed 30 seconds Maher attempted a foul, and was heatedly warned by the referee. Fitzsimmons' coup was in the form of one of his famous upper hooks with which he knocked out Hall and broke the nose of Jack Stelzener, his trainer. Maher made a gallant effort to get upon his feet when time was called, but after getting half way to a recumbent position he fell back and still had his head on the floor when time was called and the decision was awarded to the Cornishman.

Fitzsimmons' admirers cheered him to the echo, and Maher's seconds carried the defeated Irishman to his corner. It was several minutes before he fully realized what had happened to him, and Fitzsimmons walked over to his corner and shook him by the hand. Fitzsimmons also shook hands with Quinn and the seconds in Peter's corner. Barring the slight bleeding at the nostrils, occasioned by the left hand jab of Maher's, the Cornishman showed no marks of injury and appeared as fresh as at opening of hostilities. Maher showed no signs of punishment except a slight break in skin just above the point of the left chin where Fitzsimmons' master stroke had landed.

THE SUGGESTION

For the Appointment of a Joint Commission to Settle the Venezuela Question Favored by Sir Henry H. Fowler.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Right Hon. Sir Henry Hartley Fowler, some time president of the local government board and secretary for India, has informed the Daily News that he strongly favors the plan for the appointment of a joint committee to settle the Venezuelan question. It would be, he says, a great mistake to waste time in wrangling. The details are insignificant in comparison with the supreme importance of an immediate agreement on a difficulty, which left unsettled, might suddenly assume a serious aspect.

The Daily News declares that the whole liberal party shares the views expressed by Sir Henry.

The Chronicle Saturday says it learns that matters have reached a less hopeful stage than is assumed in some quarters and expressed doubt that Great Britain will take any decisive action until the American high commission shall have reported.

The Standard says it is understood that Sir Richard Webster, the attorney general, has been revising the British case prepared by Sir Fred Pollack, corpe professor of jurisprudence at Oxford university. The case, so prepared and revised will be issued next week. The paper adds that it believes that the government regards the case as historically unassailable, although in its diplomatic aspect, it is not free from confusion.

In an editorial the Standard condemns those who advocate hasty and immediate settlement of the question. It urges that it is desirable to thoroughly master its difficulties and to trust to time and the good sense of the two nations for an amicable settlement.

Corbett Anxious to Meet Fitzsimmons.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—When James J. Corbett, the actor pugilist, received the news of Fitzsimmon's victory in the ring Friday night he sent the following telegram to the champion at Langtry, Tex., being informed that it would reach him there:

"Come to Chicago as soon as you possibly can. I will make a match with you for any amount, to fight any place on earth. Arrangements can be made at any place. I leave here to-morrow night and return March 1. Name the day you will be here between the first and sixth and we will have no trouble agreeing on terms."

Ex-Alderman Adjudged Insane.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Ex-Alderman Salo W. Roth, who, as secretary of two building and loan associations, is responsible for a shortage of $32,000 in the funds, was adjudged insane Friday by a jury in the county court, and ordered by the judge committed to the asylum at Wauwatosa, Wis. This judicial disposition of the case precludes a criminal prosecution for the defalcations, but the association will endeavor to recover the loss from the estate, which is estimated at less than $50,000. The evidence showed that Roth had been suffering from melancholia more than three years.

SEVEN LIVES LOST.

A Terrible Sunday Morning Fire in a Baltimore Residence.

Before the Inmates Could Be Aroused Egress Was Cut Off—Servant Girl Jumps to Death—Daring Deed of a Fireman—Others Perish in the Flames.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 24.—A fire in the fashionable district of North Baltimore about 8 o'clock Sunday morning was the cause of seven deaths and sent a feeling of horror into hundreds of homes in the city where most of the unfortunate victims were well known and highly respected.

The fire started in basement of 1806 North Charles street, the residence of Jas. R. Armiger, one of the best known men in the city.

As soon as the fire department arrived nets were stretched beneath the windows and the firemen called to the terror-stricken persons at the windows to jump. The crowd in the street not realizing the extent of the fire and smoke within the house, yelled "Don't jump." The bewildered inmates held back and some of them disappeared from the windows. Apparently they went back for clothing, or perhaps for some treasured or valuable possession. It was a fatal move, and in most instances cost a life.

The firemen had thrown up ladders in front of the house, and District Chief McAfee climbed up to the second story window, where Mrs. Armiger was crying for help. The ladder did not quite reach the window, and there was the wildest excitement in the crowd below as McAfee stood on the upper round of the ladder and grasped the window sill for support. He encouraged Mrs. Armiger to swing herself out of the window. As the chief grasped her with one arm, he steadied himself with the other, and had taken one step down the ladder when it slipped and McAfee, with the woman in one arm and with the other holding to the window frame, dangled in the air. A cry of horror went up from the crowd as it saw the peril of the daring fireman and his human burden. Fortunately for them McAfee caught the top round of the ladder on his toe, and pulling it back into position, released his hold upon the window and quickly descended with the woman to the sidewalk. A great cheer went up as rescued and rescuer reached terra firma.

At one of the third-story windows a man with a look of agony shouted to the multitude below. It sent him back an encouraging shout, and he, a moment later, before a ladder could be run up, disappeared. When the firemen reached the window the man was found lying beneath it, suffocated and badly burned. It was Harold Manuel, a New York stock broker and banker. In his arms was little Richard Riley, a grandson of Mr. Armiger, also dead.

Alice J. Williams, one of the colored servants, appeared at one of the fourth story windows, shrieking like mad. She leaned far out over the sidewalk. "Don't jump! Don't jump!" yelled a hundred voices. She stepped back wringing her hands. The terrorized woman drew half back in the window and with an awful shriek launched herself out in the air. Down she shot, her body turning over several times and struck the marble steps of the residence. The crowd stood transfixed with horror as the woman's body rebounded and rolled to the pavement. She was tenderly carried to Dr. Batchelor's office, opposite, where she soon died.

While the scenes of excitement and bravery were being enacted in front of the burning residence, other acts of bravery were being performed in the rear. Mr. Armiger's two daughters, Virginia, aged 25, and Eleanor, aged 15, occupied the second story back room. With the greatest presence of mind Miss Virginia, assisted by her young sister, made a rope of their bed linen, and with this Eleanor was lowered to the ground. Fearing to trust her weight upon the slender cord, Miss Virginia dashed back to the bed, grasped the mattress, pushed it through the window to the ground, 20 feet below. She then jumped and landed thereupon uninjured, with the exception of a slight shock.

The only other person of the 16 who were in the ill-fated house to be rescued was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armiger, Mrs. Lelia Riley. She was carried down the ladder by the firemen, having been overcome by the smoke.

When the fire was under control and the firemen made a search of the ruined residence Mr. Armiger was found in the hallway. When Whiting dashed upstairs with the alarm of fire Mr. Armiger left his wife in the care of the colored man and went to awaken the other inmates of the house. He had been overcome by smoke and flames and breathed his last as he was carried into the open air.

Wm. B. Riley, a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Armiger, was found dead nearby. He, with his wife and two children, had been seen at the third story window, and Mrs. Riley had been taken out by the firemen. But before the rescuers could return to the window Mr. Riley, with his two children clasped in his arms, succumbed to the smoke and flames. On the above were found the bodies of Mrs. Marion Camblin, a widowed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armiger, and her three-year-old child, Jane.

Slapped the Minister's Face.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Feb. 21.—Considerable excitement was created here Sunday afternoon on account of an assault Sunday morning upon Rev. C. E. Boswell by W. H. Dohn, a saloon-keeper. Boswell recently sent an open letter to a local paper against saloons, and in it said: "No decent family desires to live over or by a saloon."

Dohn and family live over Dohn's saloon, and he took exceptions to this remark, and on meeting Boswell hit him in the face. They were separated and Dohn arrested. Nothing can be said against Dohn, other than he is engaged in the saloon business.

Takes Laudanum.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Ex-Constable John J. Brophy, who was convicted of forging the name of Moses H. Niel, a prominent citizen, to a note for $1,000, took an ounce of laudanum with suicidal intent. He took the dose just after his wife and daughter had left his cell. Owing to the condition of his stomach, the dose had no serious effects.

Nearly Killed by Toughs.

JACKSON AND WALLING.

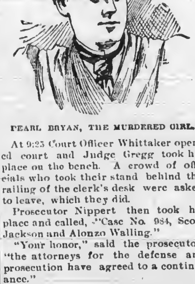
Alleged Murderers of Pearl Bryan Will Be Tried in Kentucky.

Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, Grants Requisition Papers—Their Preliminary Hearing Will Take Place in the Cincinnati Police Court February 27.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 19.—At 7:30 patrol No. 1 got word to proceed quietly to the jail and bring Jackson and Walling to the police court, where they were given a preliminary hearing.

The wagon went to the bastile, and all was as still as the grave. There were but few people on the street in front of the jail when the wagon drove up. The officers quickly alighted and walked hastily into the prison.

When the wagon backed up, people who were going to work stopped, and in a few moments there was a crowd of probably 200 persons. Jackson and Walling were taken from their cells handcuffed and marched up the steps and into the wagon between two lines of police. Not a hostile movement was made by any one in the crowd. The people were there to get a glimpse at the men to satisfy their curiosity that was all.



PEARL BRYAN, THE MURDERED GIRL.

At 9:25 Court Officer Whittaker opened court and Judge Gregg took his place on the bench. A crowd of officials who took their stand behind the railing of the clerk's desk were asked to leave, which they did.

Prosecutor Nippert then took his place and called, "Case No. 984, Scott Jackson and Alonzo Walling."

"Your honor," said the prosecutor, "the attorneys for the defense and prosecution have agreed to a continuance."

"All right," said the judge. "How long do you want it continued?"

"A few days," was the reply.

"Well, I will set the case for the 27th of February."

"That is all," shouted Whittaker. "Take them downstairs," and the men were led below. The prisoners were an hour later taken back to jail without any exciting incidents.

The most startling development in the Pearl Bryan mystery—or such of the Fort Thomas murder case as still remains a mystery—came Tuesday in the story of May Smith, the young woman who was closely intimate with Walling and Jackson, and who came to Cincinnati from Louisville a few days ago to regain possession of a ring she had loaned the former. Miss Smith Tuesday night told a reporter that Jackson had told her he intended putting Pearl Bryan out of the way, and upon her advising him not to do so, that he might be caught, he replied that he was too smart to be caught.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—The requisition papers for Jackson and Walling were taken into the office of Gov. Bushnell Tuesday morning by Sheriff Plummer. The sheriff came from Cincinnati alone. Gov. Bushnell at once sent for Attorney General Monett and requested him to examine the papers and ascertain whether they were strictly in form. Gen. Monett, after a careful scrutiny, pronounced them correct, and the requisition was granted by the governor.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 20.—Is George Jackson, who says he drove the carriage in which were Jackson, Walling and Pearl Bryan to Ft. Thomas, a victim of a morbid dementia? Medical annals present cases of that character, where men and women have confessed to crimes or participation in them, whereas it was all a hallucination. Many persons have subjected the Negro's statements to an analysis, and it must be said that the result is unsatisfactory to any one desiring to believe them.

Sheriff Plummer of Newport officially announces that no effort will be made to take Jackson and Walling to the Kentucky side until after February 27, the date of their arraignment in the police court. "It is not my desire to throw any obstacles in the way of the Ohio authorities or the men's attorneys," said he. "I will take plenty of time before bringing them to Kentucky."

Will Wood, the third person implicated in the crime, says he received letters from Jackson which he destroyed, that contained damaging admissions. In one of them, written February 5, Jackson is alleged to have said that he had made a big mistake, and that he feared trouble. He begged Wood not to forsake him.

Wood says he burned all the letters, but that they were read to persons who will testify to the fact.

Coachman Jackson's story has been exploded. It is established beyond a doubt that on the night of the murder he was at the house of Samuel Ewing, on Sixth street, until nearly 2 o'clock.

ABOUT EYES.

Dreaming of an adversary signifies that you are to overcome obstacles which are in your way.

Many specimens of worms and the larvae of insects are not provided with eyes. Their habitation being in the earth, eyes to them would be useless.

It seldom happens that both eyes are exactly alike. An examination with a magnifying glass usually discovers many differences between the two.

When the under arch of the upper eyelid is a perfect semicircle it is indicative of goodness, but also of timidity, sometimes approaching cowardice.

Scientists who have made a study of the eye say that a flash of light lasting 40-1,000,000,000ths of a second is quite sufficient for distinct vision.

The eye which when open presents a long acute angle to the nose invariably indicates comprehensive understanding and great intelligence in its possessor.

M. Jules Cambon, at present governor-general of Algeria, has accepted the position of editor in chief of the Journal des Debats, which has now become an evening paper.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

W[illegible]—SENATE—[illegible] Davis reproclaimed the Monroe doctrine in the senate Monday. Mr. Dupont (Del.) was seated. A large number of private bills were introduced, among them the following: To authorize the location of a branch home for disabled soldiers in Jefferson county, Kentucky, and to appropriate $200,000 for same; to pay Mary L. Platt, of Kentucky, $800 for property taken from her by troops of the U. S. army during the war; to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Alexander Nagent, late private in Company C, Seventy-seventh Ohio, and grant him an honorable discharge. The joint resolution of the Ohio legislature, asking congress to submit to the people a constitutional amendment for the election of United States senator by popular vote.

HOUSE—The agricultural appropriation bill occupied the house Monday. A great deal of criticism of Secretary Morton was indulged in on both sides of the political aisle, but, as on Saturday, no one arose in his defense. A resolution reported from the committee on ways and means was adopted calling on the secretary of the treasury for an exhaustive report relative to the sale of bonds under the resumption act between the two periods between 1879 and March 1, 1893, and between the latter date and January 1, 1896. It is understood that Mr. Cousins (Ia.) will offer an amendment directing the secretary of the treasury to withhold the payment of Secretary Morton's salary until the provision for the distribution of seed is executed.

[illegible]ON, Feb. 18.—SENATE—The resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Peffer (pop., Kan.) for a special committee to inquire into the circumstances of the recent bond issue was taken up Tuesday and discussed until the close of the morning hour, when, under the rules, it went on the calendar. The military academy bill was then taken up, considered for three hours and passed. The amendment offered Monday by Mr. Vilas (dem., Wis.) for two additional cadets-at-large from each state was defeated by three majority. The pension appropriation bill was then taken up, and passed, and the senate, at 5:45 p. m., adjourned until Wednesday.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday, after three days' consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill, finally disposed of it. Amendments incorporated in the bill make it mandatory upon the secretary to purchase and distribute seed, as had been the custom prior to the suspension of the practice last year, without reference to the requirements of the statute that they shall be "rare and uncommon," as that phrase was construed by Secretary Morton; the appropriation for seed was increased from $130,000 to $150,000, and the seed division abolished by Secretary Morton last year was rehabilitated with a full quota of clerks to enable the secretary to execute the law. The house entered upon consideration of the bill to extend the time within which the government may bring suit to recover title to lands illegally or erroneously patented, but adjourned without coming to a vote.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—SENATE—A resolution for the investigation as to the issue of bonds in 1894, 1895 and 1896, was offered by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, and went over till Thursday. Notice was given by Mr. Morgan (dem., Ala.) that he would bring up the Cuban resolution for consideration at 2 o'clock Thursday. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was presented and the conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was agreed to. The remainder of the day's session was spent in the passage of private pension bills.

HOUSE—The army appropriation bill was passed without much discussion, but most of the new legislation proposed by the committee on military affairs went out on points of order. Among the propositions thus rejected was the one to compel the president to appoint paymasters from the line officers of the army alone, shutting out civilians. The unanimous report of the committee on ways and means against the passage of the bill to regulate the issue of liquor licenses was submitted by Mr. Evans (rep., Ky.) and ordered printed. The [illegible] the conferees on the urgent deficiency bill was reported and concurred in. At 4:55 o'clock the house adjourned until Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—SENATE—For three hours and a half Thursday the senate was engaged in a debate on the resolution for the recognition of belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents and the alternative resolution for the recognition of Cuban independence. Mr. Cameron (rep., Pa.) offered a substitute for the concurrent resolution in these words: "That the president is hereby requested to interpose his friendly offices with the Spanish government for the recognition of the independence of Cuba." Mr. Morgan addressed the senate at length, but was not able to finish his speech. It will be continued at the session of Monday next, the senate adjourning at 5:30 o'clock until Saturday, when the president pro tem., Mr. Frye (rep., Me.), is to read Washington's farewell address.

HOUSE—Indian appropriation bill was called up Thursday. An amendment was offered to the paragraph providing for the pay of the Indian inspectors, to reduce their salaries from $3,000 to $2,500. Defeated. The general pension appropriation bill was sent to conference on the disagreeing votes of the two houses, and the senate amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill were agreed to. This now goes to the president for his signature. Mr. Willis (rep., Del.) reported favorably from the committee on agriculture, the senate resolution directing the secretary of agriculture to purchase and distribute seeds in 1896, as was done in former years, and asked immediate action, and on objection by Mr. Erdman (dem., Pa.) sent it to the calendar. The house, at 5:10 o'clock, adjourned until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—Representative Bromwell (Ohio), introduced in the house a bill providing for pure food. It is the same measure which was introduced in the house by Col. Hatch, of Missouri, in the last congress. It is a measure intended to prevent the sale of impure and adulterated food. Mr. Colson (rep., Ky.) Friday introduced in the house a resolution to appropriate $10,000 to investigate Secretary Carlisle's action in defining the Graves bid for bonds. The house committee on judiciary Friday agreed to report favorably a bill to abolish the fee system as applicable to United States district attorneys, United States marshals and their assistants and deputies, and to substitute salaries. A number of bills of a private nature were introduced.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—SENATE—As it was publicly known that the ordinary legislative proceedings in the senate Saturday were to be dispensed with, and that the day's session was to be devoted to the memory of the Father of his Country, the galleries of the senate were early crowded. The opening prayer was delivered by Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D. D., pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the church attended by both the vice president and the president of the senate pro tem. He offered special thanks to God "for him whose name is in all hearts to-day: for the inheritance of his memory and for the inspiration of his life and example." The reading of Thursday's journal was dispensed with, and the vice-president announced that, under the resolution of the senate, the farewell address of President Washington would be read by the president pro tem of the senate, the senator from Maine (Mr. Frye.)

HOUSE—Not in session.

Shooting Match at Shepherdsville.

SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 24.—Two Negroes, Coleman Tilford and F. Mace, engaged in a friendly game of snowballing, which terminated in a one-side shooting match, Tilford cracking down on Mace with a 38-caliber bulldog. Mace cut the mustard at a Nancy Hanks gait. No arrests.

Killed and Wounded by a Cave-In.

GUANAJUATO, Mex., Feb. 24.—A cave-in occurred in the San Lorenzo mine near here, the mass of earth falling upon a large number of miners. Three men were killed and ten others seriously wounded.

The Appointment Confirmed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—At 4:45 o'clock Judge Lacomb, in the United States circuit court handed down a decision to the effect that he would confirm the appointment of Frank G. Bigelow and Edward W. McHenry as receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. in place of the three old receivers who have resigned.

Execution in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 22.—Ivan Kovalev was hanged at Folsom at 10:40 o'clock Friday morning for murdering an aged couple. He was pronounced dead in ten minutes.

SAID BY M'KINLEY.

Facts Which the Major Persistently Overlooks.

McKinley's personal organ in this city prints in its loudest style "some of the best things" in that statesman's speech at the banquet of the Marquette club Wednesday night. We know that they were his "best things" because his personal organ says so, which is equivalent to saying that he says so himself.

One of the "best things" was this: "The whole world knew a year in advance of its utterance what the republican platform of 1860 would be and the whole world knows now, and has known for a year past, what the republican platform of 1896 will be. Then the battle was to arrest the spread of slave labor in America; now it is to prevent the increase of illy paid and degraded free labor in America."

This serves to call attention to the difference between the republican party of 1860 and the republican party of 1896—a difference which William McKinley seems to be quite incapable of perceiving. In 1860 the republican party stood for freedom; in 1896 it is opposed to freedom, and its leaders and heroes do not hesitate to say so. In 1896 the republican party is substantially what the whig party was before it gave up the ghost in 1852.

Until after its defeat that year the whig party was the party of high tariff. Its leading doctrine was that prosperity was created by taxation and by enriching the people engaged in certain industries out of the earnings of people engaged in other industries. The democratic tariff of 1846 had exposed the falsity of that doctrine and in 1852 the people refused to be humbugged by it any longer and gave the whig party its quietus.

In its place arose the republican party, which professed to be the party of freedom, and did not profess to be the party of the tariff made of slavery. Some of its representatives in congress in 1857 reported as members of a house committee in favor of abolishing the whole tariff system and raising revenue by direct taxation.

This party has ceased to be the party of freedom. It is the party of slavery. What is slavery? It is involuntary servitude. That is what a protective tariff exacts from the mass of the people. What is a slave? It is one who toils while another enjoys the fruit of his toil. He who is forced to pay out of his earnings 50 or 100 per cent. more for an article than its value as determined by free competition is as truly a slave as ever was a negro in a Georgia cotton field. He is rendering involuntary service to the man who is enabled by law to exact from him for the clothing he wears from 50 to 100 per cent. more than it is worth. The fact may be concealed from him by the devilish ingenuity of his master, but it is none the less a fact.

Another of McKinley's "best things" was this: "The republican party would as soon think of lowering the flag of our country as to contemplate with patience and without protest and opposition any attempt to degrade or corrupt the medium of exchanges among the people. It can be relied upon in the future, as in the past, to supply the country with the best money ever known, gold, silver and paper, good the world over."

"In the future as in the past" is particularly good. It serves to recall the fact that the republican party supplied the country with greenbacks in 1862 and the years following—a currency which drove out every dollar of specie and became so "degraded" and "corrupted" at one time that it was worth less than 40 cents on the dollar. And this same currency corrupted the thinking of the country; even that of the supreme court of the United States gave us an epidemic of fiat lunacy in place of sound money sanity.

It serves also to recall the fact that in 1878 the republican party forged the "endless chain" which for three years has been lifting gold out of the treasury—forged it by enacting that redeemed greenbacks should not stay redeemed and by enacting in another statute that Uncle Sam should help out the poor bonanza kings by buying and coining their silver. It reminds us that the republicans of the McKinley congress went still further at the dictation of the mining-camp despots and passed a law which, by the admission of their own leaders, brought on the panic of 1893 just as their greenback policy brought on the panic of 1873.

So McKinley's very best things serve to impress upon us the fact that the republican party is no longer the party of freedom, whatever it may have been in the past, and that its policy with respect to the currency has always been unwise save only when it made provision for the resumption of specie payments in 1875. Even then it did a vast amount of mischief by postponing resumption for four years and providing that redemption should not redeem.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Tongue-Tied Candidate.

Mr. Reed continues to be a tongue-tied candidate for the presidency. What he thinks about the currency, about the tariff, about foreign policy, the public does not have the faintest idea. We are compelled, therefore, to infer his views from what he does and from the character of the men who are fighting his battles. In Louisiana his "manager" is the notorious ex-Gov. Kellogg, and the convention which he controlled was in favor of sugar bounties, free silver, and the populist creed in general. Eight of the Louisiana delegates are reported to be certain for Reed. The question is, can he go on dumbly receiving and working for such support without alarming his friends in the north and east? If this southern support were given him in the face of open declarations against southern financial heresies, the case would be different. But Mr. Reed has not committed himself on a single point, except that he consumedly wants to be president.—N. Y. Post.

——The protectionists habitually speak of the Reed-Dingley tariff as "the revenue bill," as if they were ashamed to give the monster its right name. Do they imagine that they can deceive the people into believing that a measure that enormously increases the protective duties on wool and winter clothing is a tariff "for revenue only" because they call it so?—Philadelphia Record.

——A cursory glance at Mr. McKinley's speech gives one the impression that Abraham Lincoln was the father of the bill that piled the snow so deep over the graves of a number of republicans last presidential election.—Chicago News.

THE DINGLEY BILL SHOULD DIE.

A Measure That Would Diminish Revenues.

The best thing that the house of representatives can do with the free-silver substitute that the senate adopted in place of the Dingley tariff bill is to vote it down and let the whole matter drop. The Dingley tariff measure is not quite so mischievous as the free-silver measure would be, but it would do infinite harm. It would disturb business, enhance prices, diminish revenues, embarrass manufacturing and restrict opportunities for employment.

The Dingley measure is not at all necessary, even if it would accomplish what is claimed for it. If it would increase the revenue, instead of diminishing revenue, as it surely would do, still it would be unnecessary, because the present tariff law is producing a constantly-increasing quantity of revenue that will be entirely sufficient for the government by the end of the fiscal year.

The customs receipts for January this year were $16,380,796, those from internal revenue $11,041,401 and from miscellaneous sources $1,815,473, making a total for the month of $29,237,670. This is greatly in excess of $1,000,000 a day for the 26 business days in January. It is also $1,000,000 more than the average receipts of the previous six months. The January figures are far more likely to be exceeded in the succeeding months of the fiscal year, because the bulk of the sugar importations are made in the first half of the year, and also because the internal revenue taxes are just beginning to produce what was expected of them. There is every reason to believe that the total receipts for the present fiscal year will exceed $350,000,000, against $313,000,000 last year. This would bring the deficiency on the 30th day of next June within $15,000,000 or $16,000,000, against $42,000,000 last year, and against $70,000,000 in 1894, the last year of the McKinley law. This is a pretty regular improvement. It keeps up with the business conditions. Revenues increase as business improves, which indicates that with all its faults the Wilson bill is in a general sense framed to fit the requirements of the country.

Next year the receipts will surely equal the expenditures, and in the succeeding years there will be an excess of revenue sufficient to provide for the payment of the government obligations. This will be accomplished under the operation of the Wilson tariff, for no matter what the result of the election may be next fall, no party that will be in power in Washington will dare to change the Wilson bill in any material way. The principle of low taxes is fully established, and no party will be found in the future of the present generation to advocate or to defend the imposition of high taxes for favorites, either on the pretense that it will benefit the people or that it is necessary for the requirements of the government in time of peace.—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

——Now that the excitement has somewhat subsided, it is generally conceded that Mr. Harrison's withdrawal did not settle the matter.—Washington Post.

——It is said that the republicans will trot out ten favorite sons at St. Louis. But the big four sit serene, apart and alone. The supporters of Morton, Reed, Allison and McKinley mean business, not compliments.—N. Y. Sun.

——If the necessity exists for taxing wool in the interests of the republican campaign, the same necessity exists for nominating a republican who will clearly represent the idea of equal protective taxation on everything, raw material included. And nobody does that so well as McKinley.—N. Y. World.

——Those who are figuring that Foraker will violate the compact and try to steal the Ohio delegation from McKinley are doing the pyrotechnical statesman an injustice. He will play the game through as per agreement and he could not repeat the experience of Garfield if he wanted to.—Detroit Free Press.

——The manufacturers are going on with their manufacturing and are selling more goods to outsiders than they ever did before. They would not object to more tariff and more profit, but they are doing very well with the present average duty of 42 per cent. The lobbies at Washington are not as full of tariff fixers as usual this winter, and we imagine that there will be more difficulty in frying the "fat" out of the protected interests than was experienced in the campaign of 1892. Things are different now.—Philadelphia Record.

McKinley's Party.

We gather from a valued contemporary that Maj. McKinley's birthday was celebrated with great enthusiasm at the Marquette club. The major's rise from obscurity to the pinnacle of renown, his prowess at rail-splitting, his liberation of the slaves and his firm course in putting down the rebellion were duly lauded. It is an admirable, indeed a beautiful, feature of the account of the celebration that much praise is bestowed on A. Lincoln, a sincere but unpolished patriot, since dead, who lent valuable assistance to the major in seeing to it that a government "of the people, by the people, for the people," should not perish from the earth. Indeed, Mr. Lincoln was worthy of much [illegible]. He it was, we are privately [illegible], who first communicated to the [illegible] the great truth that the [illegible] the tax. THE Covington pool-room cases may be sent to this county for trial.

THE Maher-Fitzimmons prize fight was pulled off in Mexico. Maher was not in it.

THAT insignificant remnant of a tail is still trying to wag the Democratic dog at Frankfort.

EVERYTHING indicates that the Graziani poolroom bill will pass the Senate and have votes to spare.

JUDGE PERKINS, of Covington, who finally succeeded in closing the pool rooms in that city was born in Burlington.

THE proposition to amend the constitution so as to allow a vote on the capital removal question was defeated in the legislature.

IN the matter of electing a United States Senator the Democratic and the Republican parties are in about the same trouble at Frankfort.

IT now seems that McKinley will have to fight for all the delegates he gets in Indiana. The Allison people are making trouble for him in that State.

A GREAT change will have to come over the Democratic party in this State before next November, or her electoral vote will be found in the Republican column next time.

GOV. MATHEWS, of Indiana, is looming up as a Democratic candidate for the Presidency. The Governor is a native of this State, and will have a strong following on this side of the river.

THE Republicans in the lower House of the Legislature have passed two important bills. One increases taxation ten cents on the one hundred dollars, and the other authorizes borrowing $500,000.

THERE is good grounds for believing that Blackburn could have been elected at any ballot during the past ten days had the five bolting socalled Democratic members of the legislature voted for him.

THE edicts sent out from Louisville by the heretofore recognized leaders of the Democratic party, have completely disorganized the party in his State, at and as went Louisville finally went the entire State.

THE jury was out several hours in the trial of Elliston, at Williamstown, week before last, but an acquittal was unanimously agreed upon by the first ballot, but the jurors did not desire a display of undue haste in a case of such great importance.

THOSE Senators and Representatives who appealed to Mr. Carlisle, as a recognized party leader, to ask Weissinger, Carroll & Co., to vote for the Democratic caucus nominee for U. S. Senator, discovered that Mr. Carlisle does not lead every time he is so requested.

IT is said that the best of feeling does not exist among the members of Sinking Fund Commissioners at Frankfort. They have fallen out over the patronage, each of them being an aspirant and wanting to place the appointments where they will do him the most good.

THE daily papers have just about run out of anything new to publish regarding the murder of Pearl Bryan. If the statements of the reporters are to be believed they have done all the work so far, and that the detectives stood back and waited for them to unearth all the clews.

WHEN Secretary Carlisle reads what the Democratic Senators and Representatives have to say in regard to his letter sent in answer to a request that he try to bring Weissinger & Co., into line for Blackburn for Senator, he will begin to conclude that he has puth is foot in it. With the exception of Weissinger & Co., the sound money, and the free silver members are alike displeased at the spirit manifested in his letter. Mr. Carlisle would now have a hard fight to secure the Kentucky delegation were he to desire the Democratic nomination for the Presidency.

IT has been suggested that the county Democratic Executive Committee call a primary election for nominating candidates for county offices, to be held on the day of the regular election this fall. The last primary election demonstrated that the Democrats will turn out better at that election than at the regular election, and by holding the primary on the day of the regular election, Boone will be able to increase her delegate representation in State and District conventions. It would be well enough for the committee to consider the suggestion.

WHEN Sheriff Plummer, of Campbell county, appeared before Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, last week in the matter of extraditing Jackson and Walling, the murderers of Pearl Bryan, the Governor took advantage of the occasion to make some [illegible] not complimentary to [illegible] on account of the fre- [illegible] within her jurisdic- [illegible] Sheriff [illegible] Govern- [illegible] inform- [illegible] little [illegible] Ken- [illegible] Wash- [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] in Kentucky. As soon as it was [illegible] that the Republicans had carried Kentucky, last fall, it was thought that they had also captured the General Assembly, and would elect a United States Senator, when Mr. Wilson's friends began congratulating him, thinking, of course that he would receive the honor in accordance with the expressed desire of the State convention at Louisville; but at that time they did not suppose that Mr. Hunter had successfully laid his plans for completely overthrowing Mr. Wilson, who thought he had a prior lien on the office. Wilson hardly knows how it was done.

SIMON P. SHEERIN, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, and a leader in Indiana politics, supports Gov. Claude Mathews for the presidential nomination at the Chicago convention. He says: "Since Indiana was admitted no Democratic President has been elected with out the Hoosier-electoral vote, and no Democrat will deny that the Indiana vote will be needed this year. He insists that Gov. Mathews' nomination will insure it for the Democrats. He says the Governor will be supported by the most sincerely unanimous delegation Indiana ever sent to a national convention. His records as a member of the Legislature, as Secretary of State and as Governor are portrayed, and he is shown to be in harmony with his party on the tariff and other questions. He is presented as a practical farmer and a practical statesman, who would meet the demands of both his party and his country at the present time."

A PHENOMENON in the evangelical line has been discovered in Adair county. The Columbia Spectator has this to say of him: A "Baptist minister named W. C. Hicks has been preaching at different points in this county for the past two or three weeks. He is a remarkable man in some respects, and claims that he received his education at Columbia. He is between twenty-five and thirty years of age, and has been a student of the Bible since early childhood. The Spectator has been informed by reliable men that he has committed to memory every chapter in the Scriptures with but two exceptions. In order to test the reliability of his claim his Bible is closed, and chapter after chapter is called and he repeats them word for word. His church members are not particularly pleased with his construction of many passages of the Bible. Mr. Hicks differs with Moses in the account of the flood and the creation; and ridicules, so we understand, some of [illegible] statements. Large crowds attend the services, curiosity being the principal object. We have never heard from whence he came and no one here remembers him as a pupil in either of the colleges."

THE Elizabethtown News is telling a lot of truth in the following: "As we approach the skirmish line of the Presidential contest, it is evident that the people are no longer to be trifled with. That they will demand of all political parties exactly where they stand and what they are for, in plain unmistakable English. Stradlers don't go and the party that undertakes them is defeated before it starts. Platforms have been to frequently written susceptible of more than one interpretation as known to the wire working politicians who run them. The platforms this year will have to be written so that they can't be made to mean but one thing and the candidate must be known to be heartily in accord with the platform. Nothing else goes. On the money question especially, the people demand a plain declaration. Every party must declare itself either for the single gold standard or for bimetallism. If it is for the singlo gold standard it must state that it is opposed to the free coinage of silver and if it is in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. This must be the issue in the campaign and the people will know who's who, and what's what."—Elizabethtown News.

IN the conclusion of his response to the letter of Senator Goebel and sixty other Democratic members of the Kentucky Legislature urging him to use his influence to secure for Blackburn the votes of the five members who are refusing to vote for him, Secretary Carlisle says: "It may not be considered inappropriate in this brief response to your appeal to assure you that I will at all times cheerfully co-operate in any proper manner with you and all others in any effort that may be made to unite all our friends in supporting Democratic organization in Kentucky and in maintaining sound Democratic principles and principles as declared by the constituted authorities of the party, state and national, and to repeat what has been said to all who have cared to ascertain my views upon the subject; that I sincerely desire to see the present General Assembly elect to the Senate of the United States a Democrat who is in full sympathy with those objects."

Mr. Carlisle, according to the above, does not regard Blackburn as a Democrat, simply because they do not agree on the money question. Now will Mr. Carlisle say to the Democrats that he (Carlisle) was not a Democrat when he was, along with Blackburn, advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver?

DID not Tony Carroll expect the support of every Blackburn man when he was nominated by the Democratic caucus for Speaker of the House? Certainly he did, and he was not disappointed in them. Blackburn's friends knew him to be a gold-bug, but he was made the Democratic nominee for Speaker by the properly constituted authority and they stood by him as the nominee of their party. But has Carroll done as he was done by, and as becomes every true Democrat? Not much. He refuses to vote for Blackburn who was nominated for United States Senator by a Democratic [illegible] larger portion of the individual members of which participated in the proceedings of the caucus that nominated him for Speaker. If Carroll was nominated for Speaker of the House by a Democratic caucus, Blackburn was nominated for United States Senator by a Democratic caucus, and has the same claim on Carroll's vote as Carroll had on the Blackburn men. But Mr. Carroll with four other gold-bugs, ignore party organization and refuse to support the Democratic nominee for United States Senator. Never before was there such perfidy shown by members of the Democratic party in Kentucky. Senator Weissinger and Representatives Carroll, Seight, Violett and Walker are sowing the wind and after a while they will reap the whirlwind.

THE Western Argus published at Frankfort, says: "Mr. Carlisle's response to the Democrats of the Kentucky Legislature is before the public. He refuses to interfere or to make any suggestion to the Democrats who are refusing to vote for the caucus nominee: but says that he will at all times cheerfully cooperate to unite all friends in supporting Democratic organization in Kentucky, and in maintaining sound Democratic principles and policies as declared by the constituted authorities of the party, both State and National; and that he sincerely desires to see the present General Assembly elect to the Senate a Democrat who is in full sympathy with these objects.

"The great Secretary declines to co-operate with the silver advocates of his party, and assumes to drive them into the Republican ranks. His action widens the breach between the silverites and the sound money men, refusing all offers of compromise unless satisfactory to the sound money men, assuming to himself the right to drive whomsoever he pleases from the Democratic ranks.

"When the Democratic party demanded a tariff for revenue only, there was a great division on this subject, and all of us remember how Mr. Randall stood out for protection: but no one can call to mind where Mr. Carlisle's voice was raised against him. On the contrary, while the Democratic party had in its National Convention decided squarely for a tariff for revenue only, Mr. Randall was elected Speaker of the House, and used all of his influence to defeat the will of the party. Then again, when Mr. Carlisle was elected Speaker, he not only did not discipline Mr. Randall, but appointed him Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, giving him the opportunity to side-track and defeat the Democratic tariff bills.

"Mr. Carlisle, Mr. Beck and nearly every Democrat of any prominence in Kentucky for the past twenty years, held the same views as Mr. Blackburn on the currency: but now Mr. Carlisle assumes to discipline those that have not changed with him.

"Mr. Carlisle would like to succeed Senator Blackburn himself, but in our judgment his letter sounds the death knell to any political influence he has exerted in his native State, and we doubt if he could carry a single legislative district in the State for any office to which he might aspire.

SOME believe that in the event the legislature fails to elect a United States Senator at this session that Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn will hold over until his successor is elected and qualified. This is not the case, as the constitution of the United States provides that where a vacancy occurs in the office of Senator during the recess of the legislature, the Governor of the State in which the vacancy occurs "may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancy." Senator Blackburn's term expires with the third day of March, 1897, and Governor Bradley will have the authority to appoint his successor who will hold the office by appointment until the next meeting of the legislature, which will be in 1898.

IT now looks as though nearly every State will present a Republican candidate for the Presidency, in which event somebody is going to get left unexpectedly, as a splendid field for combinations will be afforded. Some of McKinley's friends are living in dread of the political tricksters, who are engineering the scheme.

AN interesting story comes from Frankfort as to the methods adopted to secure the signatures of sound-money Democrats to the back-acting Blackburn petition to Secretary Carlisle. The report was industriously circulated that the Administration desired the election of a Senator regardless of his financial views and that Mr. Carlisle only wanted an opportunity so to express himself. There was also at least one name signed without authority.—C.-J.

But the Courier-Journal was not honest enough with its readers to publish the expressions of the leading "sound money" Democrats censuring Mr. Carlisle for the sentiments expressed in his letter. The recoil of that letter of Mr. Carlisle has apparently hurt him worse than anyone else in Kentucky.

JACKSON'S statement over his own signature in Sunday's Enquirer shed no new light upon the murder of Pearl Bryan. The statement was only an effort on the part of Jackson to make Walling the principal in the murder, and to work up sympathy for himself.

IT was expected to launch Secretary Carlisle's Presidential boom at a club meeting in New York city, last Monday night.

IN several of the counties in this part of the State candidates for county offices are becoming numerous.

THE papers are now beginning to tell what they have not learned about the murder of Pearl Bryan.

STATE NEWS.

An odd trial occurred in the Police Court at Berea the other day. The litigants were a white man and a negro, and the jury was equally divided among represenatives of the two races. After wrestling with the evidence for some time, it was discovered that no verdict had been reached, which revealed the fact that the negro side of the jury was for a verdict favoring the colored man, while the white jurors were, of course, for the white man. [illegible]ing of the races may work all right in the school up there, but it is evidently a failure so far as the jury system is concerned.—Richmond Register.

At a meeting of delegates to secure a reduction of insurance rates, held at Frankfort, Judge Cassidy, of Mt. Sterling, one of the delegates present, stated that he had a piece of property in that city, valued at $4,000, on which the local agents representing the insurance combine wanted to charge him ninety-two dollars a year to insure same. He went to Huntington, W. Va., and had the same amount of insurance placed upon the property in the same companies represented by his home agents, for forty-five dollars a year, a saving of more than fifty per cent.

The Richmond Register has discovered an indefatigable searcher of the Scriptures. The Register says: "Mr. Thomas Caperton Davis, of Waco, has for years read the Bible through three times annually, from Genesis to Revelations. On Sunday last, February 16, Mr. Davis completed his first reading ot the entire Bible this year, only forty-five days being occupied in the task. Mr. Davis, who is seventy-five years of age, also reads newspapers and books, besides taking an interest in domestic affairs."

Estin Adams, of Black Oak Bottom, Lewis county, has a red Attrakan apple tree that measures 11 feet 4 inches in circumference 5 feet from the ground, and is 3 feet 9 inches in diameter. The spread of the branches before a late trimming was 70 feet. It is now 56 feet. Mr. Adams says it has produced 100 bushels at one crop.

At Owensboro, Hugh B. Phillips settled $30,000 on his wife. Miss Elizabeth H. Solomon, just before the nuptial knot was tied, the records of the court showing the marriage contract. His real and personal estate is estimated at between $100,000 and $200,000.

An Arkansas Editor says of his state: "We have mountains so high that you can tickle the feet of the free silver angels in heaven, and gorges so deep that you can descend to their base and hand down ice to the gold bugs in the infernal regions."

The Commonwealth is indignant at Congressman Berry because he gave it as his opinion the murderers of Pearl Bryan would be lynched if brought to Kentucky.

An exchange advertises thus. "If the man who took the horse from the hitching rack will return the rope halter he may keep the horse."

At Lexington one of the female prisoners at the workhouse wears breeches, because all her dresses have worn out since she was put in prison.

S. W. Norton, of Bracken county, cut down a tree which contained five young squirrels, four opossums, two coons and 100 pounds of honey.

The T. A. Hutchcraft farm, of 141½ acres, in Bourbon county, was sold publicly, and purchased by Mrs. Lucy Beatty, at Muir, at $80 per acre.

The Chicago Drover's Journal says the hog situation is very puzzling. Receipts are below the lowest expectation and no appearance of their being greater, and yet prices have hung at the very lowest stage all the time, when expectations of great receipts were at their height.

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

It is hard to conceive how a legislature would go about accomplishing less than the present one has.

Alexander Anderson, who had been nominated by the Governor as stewart for the Hopkinsville asylum, was confirmed. It is said that he and Postell will divide the salary but this is, doubtless, untrue.

THE present Congress is doing about as little as it is possible for a legislative body to do.

MR. CLEVELAND says if the Democrats will nominate a sound money candidate for the Presidency they will elect him.

THE whisky bill introduced in the legislature by Representative Thorn, is causing considerable uneasiness among those interested in the manufacture of whisky.

Williamstown can boast of a citizen 114 years old. Uncle Dick McGuire has recently moved to town and his years number 114. His health is reasonably good and he is active and vigorous.

Judge William S. Pryor, Kentucky's Chief Justice, and for 24 years an Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals, was in town last Thursday as a witness in the Elliston murder trail. He has seen his three score and ten years and from his appearance he has many years of usefulness before him. He was the best Circuit Judge this district ever had.

Of Col. Breckinridge's speech in the Elliston case the Courier says: He dealt very little in invective or sarcasm, but argued the case from the law and facts as fairly as it is possible for a human mind to do. It was not a speech intended to be flowery and beautiful; but was both flowery and beautiful; because it is impossible for anything else to eminate from this Kentuckian's mind. For two hours he held the jury and the six hundred people who were crowded into the court house under the thrill and excitement of his magic voice.

At times his words rolled forth like the ceaseless playing of a fountain [illegible] sweet cadences of his beautiful voice [illegible] music to the innermost souls of those who listened; again his words poured out like the rushing of a mighty torrent and carried everything before its convincing logic.

He argued his case as few men can. The scene that thrilled the souls of all who saw it was when he finished. Walking out almost in the middle of the panel of twelve men who for two hours had sat under the spell of his eloquence and towering above them with his face flushed and excited and his mass of perfectly white hair disheveled and unkempt, the very picture of an old Patriarch, with one hand on the shoulder of a juryman and the other raised to heaven, said in his sweetest but most powerful tones. "As you judge this boy, may He who judges us all judge you."

[News]

William Clayton Clark was instantly killed in the colored Baptist church at New Liberty, last Saturday night by Harvy Sterling. The causes leading to the tragedy is said to have been caused by jealousy; a colored lassie Jane figuring as the main figure. On the evening named, Clark met Sterling near the church, and said to him, "are you here again, you will catch a 38 if you are not careful." Sterling went to the church where a festival was being held. A short time afterward Clark came in and walked up to Sterling, pulled his pistol and fired, the ball striking Sterling in the belly, the ball ranging around under the skin and lodged over the hip bone. Sterling immediately drew his pistol and shot Clark in back of the head, the ball passing through the brain killing him instantly. This inaugurated a stampede among the guests and in the rush tables loaded with edibles were wrecked, and everything was put in confusion. Sterling left and went to his home at Mr. Hal Moore's and the following morning called on Mr. Moore for his horse lance, at the same time asking Mr. Moore to cut a bullet out of his side. This Mr. Moore would not do but sent for a physician, who performed the operation. Sterling was arrested Sunday and taken to New Liberty.

CLA[illegible] CARPENTER.

February 14th, 1896.

People who suffer from loss of appetite, indigestion, sour stomach, and flatulence, find prompt relief in the use of Ayer's Pills As an after-dinner pill, they are unequaled, causing the digestive and excretory organs to perform their functions as nature requires.

W. J. Rice and Sidney Gaines remodeled the court house to some extent last week. They placed wooden doors inside of the iron doors of the County and Circuit Clerks' offices, an improvement that will add to the comfort of these offices, and make access to these official abodes much easier than heretofore.

Cheise Aylor, colored, died of dropsy at Erlanger, one day last week, and was buried here on Thursday. Cheise was in the seventies, and was always well thought of by the white people. He attended strictly to his own business, and at one time was pretty comfortably fixed. In slave time he was the property of Mr. Stanlon Aylor.

Despite the very cold weather of last Wednesday, about 300 people attended the sale of W. A. Carpenter. The crowd kept warm by a large log heap that burned lively all day. Everything sold well. The following are some of the prices: 80 pound hogs, [illegible] from $13 to $81; sheep, $3; milch cows, $50; corn in crib, 49 cents; wheat, 74 hay, $16 a ton; farming implements, about original cost.

The residents along the Lexington pike from Covington to Erlanger are getting very much interested in the building of an electric car line connecting these two places. It now begins to look like the enterprise, so long talked about, is going to take tangible shape, and, at last develop into a road. The road will be of great advantage to both Covington and Erlanger and the property owners along the route.

Last Friday morning Mr. Dudley Rouse picked up off of the floor in his store an envelope, and was surprised when he discovered it contained $35 in paper money. The money proved to belong to Mrs. Inez Craig, being a portion of her pension money which she had drawn that day. Some one overtook Mrs. Craig on her way home and asked her if she had lost any money, when she discovered her loss, and returned to town and got her money.

The residence and contents belonging to William Kenney, on the road between Beaver and Union, was destroyed by fire about 10 a. m., last Wednesday. The fire was caused by a defective flue. Loss, about $3,000; insurance in the Boone County Company, $1,700. Three of Mr. Kenney's daughters and one of his sons were sick at the time, and were taken to Dr. Lassing's, the nearest neighbor. Mr. Kenney has been a very hard worker, and had just about finished paying for a good and comfortable home, and the loss falls heavily on him.

About 11 o'clock last Friday night Attorney Sidney Gaines and wife awoke almost stifled from fumes of smoke that pervaded their apartments They at once instituted a search, but could find nothing wrong about their residence, which is a portion of the brick building adjoining Dudly Rouse's store, and in which is Lassing & Riddell's law office.

Mr. Gaines awoke Sheriff Roberts, and then went for J. M. Lassing, who was at the scene in a few minutes, by which time the fire had been located in the law office of Lassing & Riddell. A few buckets of water put the fire out, and an investigation showed that the town had narrowly escaped a considerable conflagration.

A large hole had burnt through the floor beneath the stove, and had the flames been fanned by a current of air the fire would have been beyond control long before the hour at which it was discovered, and all the buildings on that square, and probably others, would have been destroyed.

No one had been in the office since four o'clock in the afternoon, and it is supposed the fire was caused by a cigar stump someone threw into the wooden spit-box full of saw dust, as the box and its contents were completely consumed.

A few dollars repaired the damages, and the property owners on the square congratulate themselves upon their good luck in escaping a complete burn out.

You will find no more boxes of saw dust used as cuspidors in that office.

WALTON, February 21.—The Cannery at this place came very near being a thing of the past on yesterday. Doc. Vest had gone up there to flood the pond and noticed that one of the windows had been raised. Thinking something was wrong, he concluded to investigate the matter. Going to the open window and seeing that a barrel of flour (Rouse & Co., have about 500 barrels stored there) had been opened, got in the building and observing a smoke, proceeded to the engine room where a fire was burning, which, in a short time, would have consumed the whole business. It is supposed that tramps had made an entrance and built the fire to keep from freezing.

Kirtley Johnson has tried Walton to his satisfaction and will soon go back [illegible] why men will remain in a place where there is nothing to be done and where there is no prospects of anything to be done in the future.

The intelligence of the dog is frequently surprising to man, his boastful superior in creation. The fine blooded English pointer presented to Joe Glinn by H. J. Casey, of Bullittsville, recently, had one of its hind feet crushed by some passing train on the Southern Ry. When found she had gnawed all the ligaments and lacerated flesh even with the joint at the hock and the leg is healing up nicely. As blood poisoning may be unknown to canine medical practitioners the animal may get well.

On last Saturday evening an old man was standing on the pavement in an attitude of profound attention, when Joe Fink came along. The o. m asked him (Joe is supposed to know everything) what caused the noise in the hall at the Opera House. Crisler in his great role of filing a cross-cut saw with a brand new file." This would not have been alluded to only because it was given out that Burlington was scheduled for one of its exhibitions.

Last Monday Moses B. Tanner, of near Limaburg, told Charles Macrander, of Gunpowder, that he had a farm in the Verona neighborhood, which he would like to sell him. Mr. Macrander, desiring to buy, proposed that they go at once and look at it. This was soon agreed to, but as the groundhog was playing havoc with the nice weather, day was chilly, and they concluded to walk as far as Richwood, and at that place take the train to Walton and from there take the train on the L. & N. to Verona. But when they were nearing the station at Richwood, the train was just pulling out Learning that there would not be another train until late, they concluded to walk to Walton. Being somewhat fatigued by their already long journey, when they reached the latter place, they were informed that the last train south had departed an hour since. After thanking the agent for his kind and cheering information, they made another resolve to reach their destination that evening. Mr. T. told his partner that he was well acquainted with the country and would pilot him safely through. At length the journey was renewed across fields, over hills, through forests, across creeks, until it became so dark Mr. T. finally said, "Charlie, I believe we are lost." Their course was then varied to southwest, and they came out on the road two miles north of Verona. They returned home next day. They reached the station two hours before train time.

Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

THE FIGHT IS ON.

[illegible] is an intense rivalry between [illegible] watermelon and tomato growers [illegible] who can produce the earliest. Salzer's Earliest Watermelon ripened in [illegible] in 58 days. That record is to be [illegible], and Salzer pays $100 to the winner! Then on tomatoes the record on [illegible] days the Earliest Tomato" in 1895 [illegible] 58 days. That's to be beaten, and $50 paid. Salzer challenges the world to produce earlier melons, tomatoes, cabbages, radishes, peas or sweet corn than he offers. Get his mammoth catalogue. There is money in it.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND it with 12c. stamps to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get free their great catalogue and a package of the yellow rind watermelon sensation. (K)

April, May are most emphatically the months for taking a good blood purifier, because the system is now most in need of such a medicine, and because it more quickly responds to medicinal qualities. In winter impurities do not pass out of the body freely, but accumulate in the blood.

THE SECOND COMING.

Unto Christ Shall the People Gather When Trouble Meets Them.

Though the World's Pulse of Sympathy Beats Slowly, Christ's Mercy is Never Invoked in Vain—Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D. D.

Through a supernatural lens, or what I might call a prophescope, dying Jacob looks down through the corridors of the centuries until he sees Christ the center of all popular attraction and the greatest being in all the world, so everywhere acknowledged. It was not always so. The world tried hard to put Him down and to put Him out. In the year 1200, while excavating for antiquities 53 miles northeast of Rome, a copper plate tablet was found containing the death warrant of the Lord Jesus Christ, reading in this wise:

"In the year 17 of the empire of Tiberius Cæsar, and on the 25th of March, I, Pontius Pilate, governor of the Practore, condemn Jesus of Nazareth to die between two thieves, Quintius Cornelius to lead Him forth to the place of execution."

The death warrant was signed by several names. First, by Daniel, rabbi Pharisee; secondly, by Johannes, rabbi; thirdly, by Raphael; fourthly, by Capet, a private citizen. The capital punishment was executed according to law. The name of the thief crucified on the right-hand side of Jesus was Dismas. The name of the thief crucified on the left-hand side of Christ was Gestus. Pontius Pilate, describing the tragedy, says the whole world lighted candles from noon until night. Thirty-five years of maltreatment. They ascribe his birth to bastardy and his death to excruciation. A wall of the city, built about those times and recently exposed by archæologists, shows a caricature of Jesus Christ, evidencing the contempt in which He was held by many in His day—that caricature on the wall representing a cross and a donkey nailed to it, and under it the inscription: "This is the Christ whom the people worship." But I rejoice that that day is gone by. Our Christ is coming out from under the world's abuse. The most popular name on earth to-day is the name of Christ. Where He had one friend Christ has a thousand friends. The scoffers have become the worshipers. Of the 20 most celebrated infidels in Great Britain in our day 16 have come back to Christ trying to undo the blatant mischief of their lives—16 out of the 20. Every man who writes a letter or signs a document, wittingly or unwittingly, honors Jesus Christ. We date everything as B. C., or A. D.—B. C., before Christ; A. D., Anno Domini, in the year of our Lord. All the ages of history on the pivot of the upright beam of the Cross of the Son of God, B. C., A. D. I do not care what you call Him—whether Conqueror, or King, or Morning Star, or Sun of Righteousness, or Balm of Gilead, or Lebanon Cedar, or Brother, or Friend, or take the name used in the verse from which I take my text, and call Him Shiloh, which means His Son, or the Transquilator, or the Peacemaker, Shiloh. I only want to tell you that "unto Him shall the gathering of the people be."

In the first place, the people are gathered around Christ for pardon. No sensible man or healthfully ambitious man is satisfied with his past life. A fool may think he is all right. A sensible man knows he is not. I do not care who the thoughtful man is, the review of his lifetime behavior before God and man gives to him no especial satisfaction. "Oh," he says, "there have been so many things I have done I ought not to have done, there have been so many things I have said I ought never to have said, there have been so many things I have written I ought never to have written, there have been so many things I have thought I ought never to have thought, I must somehow get things readjusted, I must somehow have the past reconstructed; there are days and months and years which cry out against me in horrible vociferation." Ah! my brother, Christ adjusts the past by obliterating it. He does not erase the record of our misdoing with a dash of ink from a register's pen, but lifting his right hand, crushed, red at the palm, He puts it against His bleeding brow, and then against His pierced side, and with the crimson accumulation of all those wounds He rubs out the accusatory chapter. He blots out our iniquities. Oh! never be anxious about the future; better be anxious about the past. I put it not at the end of my sermon; I put it at the front: Mercy and pardon through Shiloh, the sin-pardoning Christ. "Unto Him shall the gathering of the people be." "Oh!" says some man, "I have for 40 years been as bad as I could be, and is there any mercy for me?" Mercy for you. "Oh!" says some one here, "I had a grand ancestry, the holiest of fathers and the tenderest of mothers, and for my perfidy there is no excuse. Do you think there is any mercy for me?" Mercy for you. "But," says another man, "I fear I have committed what they call the unpardonable sin, and the Bible says if a man commit that sin, he is neither to be forgiven in this world nor the world to come. Do you think there is any mercy for me?" The fact that you have any solicitude about the matter at all proves positively that you have not committed the unpardonable sin. Mercy for you? Oh! the grace of God which bringeth salvation!

The grace of God! Let us take the surveyor's chain and try to measure God's mercy through Jesus Christ. Let one surveyor take that chain and go to the north, and another surveyor take that chain and go to the south, and another surveyor take that chain and go to the east, and another surveyor take that chain and go to the west, and then make a report of the square miles of that vast kingdom of God's mercy. Aye! you will have to wait to all eternity for the report of that measurement. It can not be measured. Paul tried to climb the height of it, and he went height over height, altitude above altitude, mountain above mountain, then sank down in discouragement and gave it up, for he saw Sierra Nevadas beyond and Matterhorns beyond, and waving his hands back to us in the plains, he says: "Past finding out; unsearchable, that in all things He might have the pre-eminence." You notice that nearly all the sinners mentioned as pardoned in the Bible were great sinners—David a great sinner, Paul a great sinner, Rahab a great sinner, Magdalen a great sinner, the Prodigal Son a great sinner. The world easily understood how Christ could pardon a half-and-half sinner, but what the world wants to be persuaded of is that Christ will forgive the worst sinner, the hardest sinner, the oldest sinner, the most inexcusable sinner. To the sin-pardoning Shiloh let all the gathering of the people be gathering around Christ.

But, I remark again, the people will gather around Christ as a sympathizer. Oh, we all want sympathy. I hear people talk as though they were independent of it. None of us could live without sympathy. When parts of our family are away, how lonely the house seems until they all get home! But alas! for those who never come home. Sometimes it seems as if it must be impossible. What, will their feet never again come over the threshold? Will they never again sit with us at the table? Will they never again kneel with us at family prayer? Shall we never again look into their sunny faces? Shall we never again on earth take counsel with them for our work? Alas! me, who can stand under these griefs? O Christ, Thou canst do more for a bereft soul than any one else. It is He who stands beside us to tell of the resurrection. It is he that came to bid peace. It is He that comes to us and breathes into us the spirit of submission until we look up from the wreck and ruin of our brightest expectations and say: "Father, not my will, but Thine, be done." Oh, ye who are bereft, ye anguish smitten, come into this refuge. The roll of those who came for relief to Christ is larger and larger. Unto this Shiloh of omnipotent sympathy the gathering of the people shall be. Oh, that Christ would stand by all these empty cradles, and all these desolated homesteads, and all these broken hearts, and persuade us it is well.

The world can not offer you any help at such a time. Suppose the world comes and offers you money. You would rather live on a crust in a cellar and have your departed loved ones with you than in palatial surroundings and they away. Suppose the world offers you its honors to console you. What is the presidency to Abraham Lincoln when little Willie lies dead in the white house? Perhaps the world comes and says: "Time will cure it all." Ah, there are griefs that have raged on for 30 years and are raging yet. And so hundreds have been comforted, thousands have been comforted, millions have been comforted, and Christ had done the work. Oh, what you want is sympathy. The world's heart of sympathy beats very irregularly. Plenty of sympathy when we do not want it, and often when we are in appalling need of it, no sympathy. There are multitudes of people dying for sympathy—sympathy in their work, sympathy in their fatigues, sympathy in their bereavements, sympathy in their financial losses, sympathy in their physical ailments, sympathy in their spiritual anxieties, sympathy in their time of declining years—wide, deep, high, everlasting, almighty sympathy. We must have it, and Christ gives it. That is the chord with which He is going to draw all nations to Him.

At the story of punishment a man's eye flashes and his teeth set and his fist clinches, and he prepares to do battle even though it be against the heavens; yet what heart so hard but it will succumb to the story of compassion! Even a man's sympathy is pleasant and helpful. When we have been in some hour of weakness, to have a brawny man stand beside us and promise to see us through, what courage it gives to our heart, and what strength it gives to our arm. Still mightier is a woman's sympathy. Let him tell the story who, when all his fortunes were gone and all the world was against him, came home and found in that home a wife who could write on the top of the empty flour barrel, "The Lord will provide;" or write on the door of the empty wardrobe, "Consider the lilies of the field; if God so clothed the grass of the field, will He not clothe us and ours? Or let that young man tell the story who has gone the whole round of dissipation. The shadow of the penitentiary is upon him, and even his father says, "Be off! never come home again!" The young man finds still his mother's arm outstretched for him, and now she will stand at the wicket of the prison to whisper consolation, or get down on her knees before the governor, begging for pardon, hoping on for her wayward boy after all others are hopeless. Or let her tell the story who, under villainous allurement and impatient of parental restraint, has wandered off from a home, of which she was the idol, into the murky and thunderous midnight of abandonment, away from God, and further away, until some time she is tossed on the beach of that early home a mere splinter of a wreck. Who will pity her now? Who will gather these dishonored locks into her lap? Who will wash off the blood from the gashed forehead? Who will tell her of that Christ who came to save the lost? Who will put that weary head upon the clean white pillow and watch by day and watch by night until the hoarse voice of the sufferer becomes the whisper, and the whisper becomes only a faint motion of the lips, and the faint motion of the lips is exchanged for a silent look, and the cut feet are still, and the weary eyes are still, and the frenzied heart is still, and all is still? Who will have compassion on her when no others have compassion? Mother! Mother!

Oh, there is something beautiful in sympathy—in manly sympathy, wifely sympathy, motherly sympathy; yea, and neighborly sympathy. Why was it that a city was aroused with excitement when a little child was kidnaped from one of the streets? Why were whole columns of the newspapers filled with the story of a little child? It was because we are all one in sympathy, and every parent said: "How if it had been my Lizzie? How if it had been my Mary? How if it had been my Maud? How if it had been my child? How if there had been one unoccupied pillow in our trundle-bed to-night? How if my little one—bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh—were to-night carried captive into some den of vagabonds, never to come back to me? How if it had been my sorrow looking out of the window, watching and waiting—that sorrow worse than death?" Then when they found her why did we declare the news all through the households, and everybody that knew how to pray said, "Thank God." Because we are all one, bound by one great golden chain of sympathy. Oh, yes, but I have to tell you that if you will aggregate all neighborly, manly, wifely, motherly sympathy, it will be found only a poor starving thing compared with the sympathy of our great Shiloh, who has held in his lap the sorrows of the ages, and who is ready to nurse on His holy heart the woes of all who will come to Him. Oh, what a God, what a Saviour we have!

But in larger vision see the nations in some kind of trouble ever since the world was derailed and hurled down the embankments. The demon of sin came to this world, but other demons have gone through other worlds. The demon of conflagration, the demon of volcanic disturbance, the demon of destruction. La Place says he saw one world in the northern hemisphere 16 months burning. Tycho Brahe said he saw another world burning. A French astronomer says that in 300 years 1,500 worlds have disappeared. I do not see why infidels find it so hard to believe that two worlds stopped in Joshua's time, when the astronomers tell us that 1,500 worlds have stopped. Even the moon is a world in ruins. Stellar, lunar, solar catastrophes innumerable. But it seems as if the most sorrows have been reserved for our world. By one toss of the world at Tiouboro, of 12,000 inhabitants, only 26 people escaped. By one shake of the world at Lisbon in five minutes 60,000 perished, and 200,000 before the earth stopped rocking. A mountain falls in Switzerland, burying the village of Goldan. A mountain falls in Italy in the night, when 2,000 people are asleep and they never arouse. By a convulsion of the earth Japan broken off from China. By a convulsion of the earth the Carribean islands broke off from America. Three islands near the mouth of the Ganges, with 340,000 inhabitants—a great surge of the sea breaks over them and 214,000 perish that day. Alas, alas, for our poor world. It has been recently discovered that a whole continent has sunk, a continent that connected Europe and America—part of the inhabitants of that continent going to Europe, part coming to America over the table-lands of [illegible] through the valleys of the Mississippi, and we are finding now the remains of the mounds and their cities in Mexico, in Colorado and the table-lands of the west. It is a matter of demonstration that a whole continent has gone down, the Azores off the coast of Spain only the highest mountain of that sunken continent. Plato described that continent, its grandeur, the multitude of its inhabitants, its splendor and its awful destruction, and the world thought it was a romance, but archæologists have found out it was history, and the English and the German and the American fleets have gone forth with archæologists, and the Challenger and the Dolphin and the Gazelle have dropped anchor, and in deep sea soundings they have found the contour of that sunken continent.

Oh! there is trouble marked on the rocks, on the sky, on the sea, on the flora and the fauna. Astronomical trouble, geological trouble, oceanic trouble, political trouble, domestic trouble, and standing in the presence of all those stupendous devastations, I ask if I am not right in saying that the great want of this age and of all ages is divine sympathy and omnipotent comfort, and they are found not in the Brahma of the Hindoo, or the Allah of the Mohammedan, but in the Christ unto Whom shall the gathering of the people be. Other worlds may fall, but this morning star shall never be blotted from the heavens. The earth may quake, but this Rock of Ages will never be shaken from its foundations. The same Christ who fed the 5,000 will feed all the world's hunger. The same Christ who cured Bartimeus will illume all blindness. The same Christ who made the dumb speak will put on every tongue a hosanna. The same Christ who awoke Lazarus from the sarcophagus will yet rally all the pious dead in glorious resurrection. "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and that "to Him shall the gathering of the people be." Ah! my friends, when Christ starts thoroughly and quickly to lift this miserable wreck of a sunken world, it will not take him long to lift it.

I have thought that this particular age in which we live may be given up to discoveries and inventions by which through quick and instantaneous communication all cities and all communities and all lands will be brought together, and then in another period, perhaps, these inventions which have been used for worldly purposes will be brought out for Gospel invitation, and some great prophet of the Lord will come and snatch the mysterious, sublime and miraculous telephone from the hand of commerce, and all lands and kingdoms connected by a wondrous wire, this prophet of the Lord may, through telephonic communication, in an instant announce to all nations pardon and sympathy and life through Jesus Christ, and then, putting the wondrous tube to the ear of the Lord's prophet, the response shall come back: "I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, His only begotten Son." You and I may not live to see the day. I [illegible] of us who are over forty years of age can scarcely expect to see the day. I expect before that time our bodies will be sound asleep in the hammocks of the old Gospel ship as it goes sailing on. But Christ will wake us up in time to see the achievement. We who have sweated in the hot harvest fields will be at the door of the garner when the sheaves comes in. That work for which in this world we toiled and wept, and struggled, and wore ourselves out, shall not come to consummation, and we be oblivious of the achievement. We will be allowed to come out and shake hands with the victors. We who fought in the earlier battles will have just as much right to rejoice as those who reddened their feet in the last Armageddon. Ah! yea, those who could only give a cupful of cold water in the name of a disciple, those who could only scrape a handful of lint for a wounded soldier, those who could only administer to old age in its decrepitude, those who could only coax a poor waif of the street to go back to her God, those who could only lift a little child in the arms of Christ, will have as much right to take part in the ovation to the Lord Jesus Christ as a Chrysostom. It will be your victory and mine, as well as Christ's.

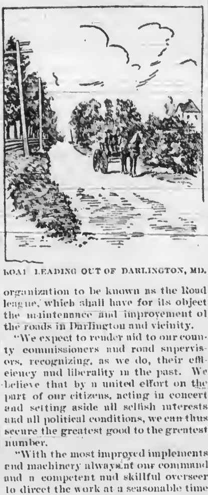
HINT FROM MARYLAND.

How the Residents of the Town of Darlington Secured Good Roads.

Among the numerous small towns in Harford county, Md., is the village of Darlington, a place of about 300 people, located in the northeastern part of the county. The roads in the immediate vicinity of Darlington were probably the worst in the county. Its nearest railroad station is four miles away, and this made its citizens feel all the more keenly the need of better roads. Urged on by this constant and growing evil, a few of the leading citizens issued a public call for a meeting. This was in the fall of 1887. About 50 men responded. After some discussion the following resolution was adopted at the meeting:



ROAD LEADING OUT OF DARLINGTON, MD.

"We, the undersigned citizens of Harford county, Md., realizing the importance of taking some more active measures looking to the improvement of our public highways in and around the town of Darlington, call upon our fellow citizens to join us in forming an organization to be known as the Road league, which shall have for its object the maintenance and improvement of the roads in Darlington and vicinity.

"We expect to render aid to our county commissioners and road supervisors, recognizing, as we do, their efficiency and liberality in the past. We believe that by a united effort on the part of our citizens, acting in concert and setting aside all selfish interests and all political conditions, we can thus secure the greatest good to the greatest number.

"With the most improved implements and machinery always at our command and a competent and skillful overseer to direct the work at a seasonable time and in a systematic manner, we feel sure of having better results than ever before.

"The business of this road league and the direction of its affairs should be intrusted to a council of 12 of our tried and trusted citizens, who shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected, on the second Wednesday in October of each year. Their first duties shall be to elect officers of the association and formulate a plan for actual work.

"Any person may become a member by paying the sum of one dollar annually, and we earnestly hope for a widely-extended membership, so that our hands may be strengthened and a healthy public spirit may be fostered and encouraged in our midst."

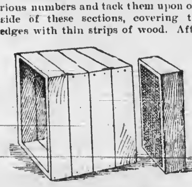
This resolution was signed by 45 citizens, and out of it sprang the Darlington Road League. A constitution and by-laws were adopted which provided for the management of the affairs of the league by a council of 12. This council of 12 was the working force of the organization. They held many meetings, at which they received full reports of the work of the overseer and members of the league. They proceeded upon the theory that in order to insure success in road improvement the work must begin at home among the people.

To this end they called upon the county commissioners, requesting them to intrust the repair of the roads in Darlington, about two miles in extent, to the care of the Road league. This the commissioners did, granting at the same time that portion of the road fund set aside for the use of Darlington's roads. The league went to work in earnest, and in less than 30 days they had constructed two miles of good shell road, running the entire length of the town.

HOMEMADE SIEVES.

A Set of Them Is Needed by Every Farmer and Gardener.

A set of sieves of varied degrees of fineness is needed on every farm. Get a stout grocery or dry goods box of suitable size and saw it in sections, as shown in the sketch. Get small pieces of wire cloth and wire netting of various numbers and tack them upon one side of these sections, covering the edges with thin strips of wood. After experiencing the advantages of having such a set of sieves one could not get along without them. With a set of sieves like these, graduated from fine to very coarse, inferior beans and peas can easily be removed from these crops—a single item that shows one of the many uses to which they may be put.—Orange Judd Farmer.



Free Delivery of Mails.

We believe that the post office department should deliver mail free in the rural districts. But if it will not do it, the farmers of many sections could arrange themselves for a tri-weekly delivery of mail. There are children who are not old enough to work in the summer, who could be hired for a trifle to do this. In the winter arrangements could be made to divide up the work among the farmers, one going to the office one day and some other one the next time; and this man could also do the shopping for his neighbors. This is done in some sections. Wherever there is a will there is a way. If the government will not do what it should do, perhaps we can do it ourselves.—Farmer's Voice.

True Way of Testing Cows.

It is now established as a fact that the only true method of testing cows for butter in not by churning the milk, but by the use of the tester. It is not satisfactory, after churning the milk, to find quite a large percentage of the butter fat in the buttermilk. There is more skill required in handling the milk and cream to insure perfect success than ordinary dairymen are willing to bestow. The temperature, the churning, the age of the cream and even the food are conditions to be met in testing cows.

Fresh interest has recently been developed in the fact that West Indian hurricanes, and other great storms at sea, frequently produce a remarkable effect upon the tides along neighboring coasts. When a tempest is approaching, or passing out on the ocean, the tides are noticeably higher than usual, as if the water had been driven in a vast wave before the storm. The influence extends to a great distance from the cyclonic storm center, so that the possibility exists of foretelling the approach of a dangerous hurricane by means of indications furnished by tide gages situated far away from the place then occupied by the whirling winds. The fact that the tidal wave outstrips the advancing storm shows how extremely sensitive the surface of the sea is to the changes of pressure brought [illegible] upon it by the never-resting atmosphere.

Prosperous Farmers.

Yankton Press and Dakotian: In Yankton County, South Dakota, there are at least one thousand farmers who came here poor as the proverbial turkey of Job, and who to-day count their worldly possessions by thousands. Many of them started in with a house built of sod, and almost empty handed so far as horses and cattle go. To-day they occupy fine dwelling houses, have large barns, fine horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, granaries filled with grain, fruit orchards, and money in hand. We mention this to show that South Dakota farmers are the prosperous class. Prosperity is the rule—not the exception. With fair prices for grain and live stock they would be rolling in wealth. Prices, however, have nothing to do with the fertility of the soil and the favorable character of the climate. These natural advantages are here to stay and assure prosperity to the farming classes.

A Simile in Smoke.

There's all sorts of grades of tobacco plant. The best comes from Havana. There's all sorts of grades of sarsaparilla plant. The best comes from Honduras. If you want cheap tobacco, all right—provided you get value for your money. Cheap tobacco's not as good to smoke—but it don't cost as much.

If you want cheap sarsaparilla . . . But you don't want it. Of course you don't. You are paying for the best. To pay for the best and get anything but Honduras sarsaparilla is like paying for Havana cigars and getting Pittsburg "Stogies." There's only one sarsaparilla made exclusively from the imported Honduras plant. That's Ayer's. Just keep it in mind that you are paying for Honduras sarsaparilla when you are paying for the best; but you don't get what you pay for unless you get Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

ANGRY DONS.

Admiral Berenger Orders the Speedy Preparation of Six War Ships

And Some of the Naval Reserve for Dispatch to the Bahama Channel—The American Consulate Building at Barcelona Attacked by a Mob.

MADRID, March 2.—Popular feeling here is bitter against the United States because of the action of the senate in adopting a resolution favoring the granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels. As stated in the United Press dispatches Saturday night the stock market here responded to the excitement and there was a material decline in purely Spanish and Cuban securities. In view of the financial difficulties under which the government is laboring, this is a most unfortunate time for Spanish securities to decline in value.

The action of Adm. Berenger, minister of marine, in ordering the speedy preparation of six warships and some of the naval reserve vessels of the Spanish trans-Atlantic company for dispatch to the Bahama channel meets with hearty approval. It is very evident that, despite Prime Minister Canovas Del Castillos' declaration Saturday that if President Cleveland should be compelled to endorse the action of congress it would not provoke an international conflict nor interrupt the friendly relations existing between Spain and the United States, the government is doing its utmost to prepare against any possible contingency.

The prime minister said Saturday evening:

"I trust that President Cleveland will veto the formal resolution of congress, and I have more reason to trust that he will not comply with the resolutions contained therein."

He added: "The granting of belligerent rights to the Cuban rebels is not a casus belli but Spain shall declare that it is not the act of a friendly nation. I do not think that Spain is threatened by foreign aggression, but measures shall be taken for the defence of Spanish rights, chiefly in Cuba. As regards demonstrations in the streets here, I shall repress them severely if they are attempted."

Senor Silvela, leader of the dissident conservatives has, in an interview, advised the union of all Spaniards without regard to their political faith. He added that the act of the American senate was without precedent in international law. He greatly feared, considering the bad faith of the Americans, that they gave belligerent rights a different meaning than is [illegible].

An interview was also sought with Senor Castellar, the republican leader, but he refused to speak on the subject, as he considered the circumstance to be of the most serious nature.

The duke of Tetsun, minister of foreign affairs, has sent a long cable dispatch to Senor Dupuy de Lome, Spanish ambassador at Washington, instructing him to present to the American government a formal reclamation against the insult.

On Sunday a great crowd assembled in the Plaza Catalina and a number of patriotic speeches were delivered. The crowd became greatly excited by the burning oratory of the speakers, and after the meeting had broken up, a large number of those who had listened to the words glorifying Spain and denouncing the United States proceeded to the American consulate where they gave vent to their patriotism by stoning the building much to the damage of the windows thereof.

As in previous mob demonstrations in Barcelona, the police were almost impotent to disperse the rioters, who did about as they pleased.

In the evening there was another outburst of disapproval of the United States and all things American. This time it took the form of publicly dishonoring the American flag. The rioters had purchased somewhere a large American flag, which, after it had been dragged through the streets, was pulled to pieces amid cries of "Long Live Spain," and "Down with the Americans." There is still much excitement in the city.

After this outrage on the American flag the mob became more violent and a proposition to make a further demonstration against the American consulate was speedily acted upon. The mob proceeded to the consulate, in the meantime arming themselves with stones. Arriving at the consulate a perfect volley of missiles was directed against the shield over the doorway bearing the American coat of arms, which was battered almost to pieces. The mob in some way became possessed of several American flags, which were destroyed amid ribald jests and expressions of contempt for the nation they represented.

The situation was becoming more and more threatening when reinforcements for the guards at the consulate arrived in the shape of a detachment of gendarmes. The crowd was ordered to disperse, which they very sullenly refused to do, whereupon the gendarmes charged them with drawn swords and put them to flight. Several of the rioters were injured by being trampled on.

No advices have been received at the Spanish legation here to indicate any serious danger. Minister de Lome says he has abiding faith in the good, common sense of the American people and he feels certain nothing will happen to interrupt the friendly relations existing between Spain and the United States.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 2.—Two weeks ago Capt. V. M. Wright, of Salem, was appointed custodian of the soldiers' monument by the regents. Wright was chief door-keeper of the last house, and has held a number of political offices. He was notified by mail, but no answer was received, and it soon developed that his family had believed him to be in Indianapolis for three or four weeks. Since then every effort has been made by his family and the state officers to locate him, but no clue to his whereabouts can be found.

A Peculiar Case Decided.

GOSHEN, Ind., March 2.—A peculiar case was decided in favor of the defendant, Charles Crary, who was up for public intoxication. The plea set up by his attorney was that one could not tell from the looks of the man of the peculiar face with which he is favored, whether he was drunk or not. There was a long array of witnesses called, and much interest aroused in the case, because of Crary's prominent family connections. The jury wrestled four hours before finally bringing in a verdict of acquittal.

A TOTAL WRECK.

The Schooner Point Loma Beached—Passengers and Crew Rescued With Difficulty.

ASTORIA, Ore., Feb. 29.—The steam schooner Point Loma, owned by the Grays Harbor Commercial Co. and valued at $75,000 is a total wreck off the Washington coast near Ft. Canby lighthouse. Through the heroic efforts of the Canby life-saving crew, the passengers, officers and seamen were landed in safety. The Point Loma left Cosmopolis Thursday for San Francisco in the face of a heavy gale. When off McKenzie Head, about 9 p. m. she sprung a leak. The pumps were clogged with coal dust and refused to work and the water swamped the boiler room and extinguished the fires. Her anchors were dropped and dragged until three o'clock Friday morning, when the vessel struck on the beach and her masts went by the board. A life line was immediately shot across the schooner, but there was nothing on board to which it could be fastened. After a perilous labor of three hours a lifeboat was gotten alongside and the exhausted passengers and seamen were taken ashore. The steamer is rapidly being pounded to pieces by the breakers. The Point Loma carried a valuable cargo.

VAULT ROBBED.

A Clerk Found Bound and Gagged—He Is Suspected.

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—The vault in the office of Adolph Loeb, on the ground floor at 191 La Salle street, was robbed Friday evening, and Oliver Furman, a clerk, was found gagged and bound, lying on the floor near the street door. Loeb does a large real estate and insurance business and quite a large sum of money must have been taken. The clerk claims he was knocked senseless by a strange man.

Furman was taken to the police station and put in the sweat box. He seems very nervous and would not look his questioners in the eyes. He can not explain how a robber got in as the door was locked and he can give no description whatever of the man that held him up.

The police are reticent about the affair and have not completed their investigations. It is not known how much money was taken.

A FURTHER SHORTAGE

Of Several Thousand Dollars Discovered in the Accounts of Ex-City Attorney Moreland.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 29.—The city auditors engaged in examining the accounts of ex-City Attorney Moreland, against whom a number of indictments for malfeasance in office, embezzlement, etc., are pending, Friday reported to City Controller Gourley a further shortage of $3,725.38. The controller's report of the discovery will be given to a special meeting of common council next Tuesday. The new hold-out was in the street opening account which the ex-city attorney handled himself and never reported to any other city official. No further informations will be made against Maj. Moreland until city councils take action on the controller's report.

No further particulars have been obtained as the scene of the trouble is far from any railroad or telegraph station.

He came here from Florida, which state he represented in congress 40 years ago. He earned his title in the confederate army. He abandoned the practice of law several years ago and since then lived in retirement. He leaves a son and two daughters.

The Strike at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 29.—The ranks of the striking garment workers were enlarger by the addition of 400 men Friday. Strikers say that 800 Bohemian tailors will be recruited to the ranks Monday morning. This will increase the number of strikers to about 6,200. The leaders of the strike say that there is not the least possibility of the strike being settled this week. They look for a long fight.

Five Bullets in Her Body.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Five bullets were fired into the body of Katherine Flynn early Friday night at the corner of Second avenue and East 79th street. The wounds, every one of which is dangerous, were made by Thomas Cooley, 31 years of age, a carpenter of 213 East 78th street. The girl is lying at the Flower hospital in a critical condition. CONGRESS THIS WEEK.

The Senate Cuban Resolutions in the House Will be Considered

After the Appropriation Bills Are Disposed of—In the Senate Contested Election Cases Will be Discussed—The Agricultural Bill to be Brought Up.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—There is so general a demand for action on the senate Cuban resolutions that the managers of the house of representatives have consented that as soon as the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, the pending unfinished business has been disposed of, Cuban resolutions shall be the next order. How much time will be devoted to their consideration is as yet undecided. At least a dozen members have expressed to Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs a desire to speak, and it is probable that at least a full day's session will be occupied by the debate. Following the Cuban resolutions, the post office appropriation bill will be taken up in the house, and this it is expected will probably exhaust the remainder of the week.

The coming week will inaugurate the discussion on a question of the highest privilege in the senate—a title to a seat in the body. Mr. Mitchell, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, gave notice [illegible] that he would call the Dupont case Monday at 2 o'clock. Mr. Mitchell will make the opening speech, and will be followed during the week by Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, for the democrats, and by Mr. Pritchard, of North Carolina, for the republicans. The chairman is of the opinion that the debate on this subject will not last longer that ten days, or at the outset not to exceed two weeks.

Monday there is every probability of the senate locking horns over a matter against which there appears to be a very determined opposition in the senate. It is the bill reported by the senate committee on public lands to approve a compromise and settlement between the United States and Arkansas. Mr. Berry sought to call it up late Friday afternoon and make it the unfinished business, but several senators objected, and upon his motion being pressed to take it up, the absence of a quorum forced by the opponents of the measure, was developed. Mr. Berry then gave notice that he would move to take the bill up immediately after the morning business Monday. In antagonizing the bill Friday it was characterized by Mr. Gear as "a bill of very questionable character, involving millions of dollars."

The agricultural bill will be brought up Monday by Mr. Cullom, who has it in charge. Inasmuch as there has been no amendments to the legislative features of this bill as it came from the house it will probably be passed in one afternoon.

During the week it is not unlikely that Mr. Teller, of Colorado, may make his promised speech on the tariff silver question, in which he will explain the stand he has taken, and reasons for his recent opposition to the tariff bill. Beyond this, there is no programme for the week.

GETTING READY.

Preparations for Any Emergency That May Arise Out of the Cuban Situation.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—In the past few days there has been a renewal of naval activity and the issuing of orders for the preparation of vessels for service which recalls the action of the navy department immediately following the president's Venezuelan message.

The object of the administration in holding its naval force in full fighting trim is believed now to be due to the possibilities of trouble which might follow the adoption by the house of some resolutions for the recognition of Cuba. Strong efforts are being made by Secretary Herbert to prepare every available vessel for service with the least possible delay.

The loss on other buildings can not as yet be estimated.

Baron Perigord Dead.

PARIS, March 2.—Baron Charles Angelique Tallyrand-Perigord, an ex-member of the senate and a well known diplomat died Sunday.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

In Favor of the Recognition of the Cubans as Belligerents Passes the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The meeting of the senate committee on foreign relations Friday morning resulted in action of a more vigorous character than the most ardent friend of the cause of Cuba was justified in expecting. The committee decided, after some debate, that it would not accept the wording of the resolution of the house committee, but would cling to one of its own, which is looked upon as even stronger than any yet seriously considered.

On motion of Mr. Sherman (rep., O.) the business of the morning hour in the senate was dispensed with, and the resolution for recognition of Cuban belligerency was taken up, and the senator from Ohio addressed the senate on the subject.

In conclusion Mr. Sherman said: "Whatever may be the result of the adoption of this measure, I desire to take my share of responsibility for it. And, with a confidence in the judgment of the Almighty Ruler of the Universe, I believe it will be wise if we can assist, and if all the other nations of America will concur, in giving to the people of [illegible] liberties which we now enjoy." (Applause.) Messrs. Lindsey, Gallager, Frye, Lodge and Allen spoke in favor of the resolutions, and Mr. Caffery and others against them.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Cameron offered his amendment to the committee resolution requesting the president to interpose his friendly offices with the Spanish government for the recognition of the independence of Cuba. Mr. Sherman, on behalf of the committee, accepted the amendment and it thus becomes a part of the committee's resolution, which, until so amended, read as follows:

Resolved, By the senate (the house of representatives concurring) that the present deplorable war in the island of Cuba has reached a magnitude that concerns all civilized nations to the extent that it should be conducted, if unhappily it is longer to continue, on those principles and laws of warfare that are acknowledged to be obligatory upon civilized nations when engaged in open hostilities, including the treatment of captives who are enlisted in either army: due respect to cartels for exchange of prisoners and for other military purposes; truces and flags of truce; the provision of proper hospitals, supplies and services to the sick and wounded of either army.

Further resolved that this representation of the views and opinions of congress be sent to the president, and if he concurs therein that he will, in a friendly spirit, use the good offices of this government to the end that Spain shall be requested to accord to the armies with which it is engaged in war, the rights of belligerents, as the same are recognized under the laws of nations.

Mr. Sherman moved to lay the substitute of Mr. White (leaving the whole matter to the president) on the table, and it was agreed to by a vote of 57 to 12.

The vote was then taken on Mr. Allen's amendment requesting the president to recognize the republic of Cuba and extend all rights and privileges to to the minister from that republic.

Mr. Sherman moved to lay this on the table and it was agreed to by a vote of 52 to 17.

The next vote was on the committe resolution. It passed by a vote of 64 to 6.

DISTRESS IN ARMENIA.

Secretary Olney Receives a Telegram From Minister Terrell on the Situation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—A long telegram was received by Secretary Olney Friday from Minister Terrell at Constantinople telling of great distress in Armenia. He says that the inhabitants of Zeitoun and its vicinity are suffering from the ravages of smallpox and other diseases and from want of food. Relief expeditions are fitting out as fast as possible.

The progress is, however, necessarily slow and uncertain because the valleys are deep in water and almost impassible, while the mountains are filled with snow and the weather is unusually cold. The English vice consul at Zeitoun has sent relief to Harpoot and the sultan has issued an imperial decree forwarding protection and facilities to the agents of the Red Cross society.

THE LONDON CHRONICLE

On the Cuban Resolutions Passed by the United States Senate.

LONDON, Feb. 29.—The Chronicle says Saturday: "If President Cleveland decides to act upon the resolution of congress, his action will be one that Spain will perforce regard as hostile to her interests. Whatever the rights or wrongs of the case, no power would tolerate a request from another power to give independence to a rebellious colony. Doing so would involve abdicating all position of sovereignty. That Spain will do so is inconceivable, yet it is difficult to see what effective opposition she could offer if the United States is determined to follow their good offices by action. The American government, however, is entering upon a thorny road. It must be assumed that it realizes all the responsibilities it proposes to incur."

British Ship Founders.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 29.—The captain of the barentine Gleaner, which recently arrived from Astoria, reports that on January 22 last, while off Cape Disappointment, he was in company with the missing British ship Cadzow Forest, from Callao for Portland from 9 o'clock in the morning until 11 at night. The Gleaner signaled a tug and was towed into the Columbia river that night in the teeth of an awful storm. The Cadzow Forest has not since been heard of, and it is now supposed she foundered with her crew of 30 men during the tempest of the night of January 22.

Too Much Faith Killed Him.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 29.—Coroner Castor Friday evening returned his verdict in the case of Edward Grothaus, who died Wednesday, without the attendance of a physician other than Mrs. Dorland, who professes to cure by Christian Science. The verdict says that death was largely due to neglect in not employing a physician, the patient having relied on the so-called Christian faith. "And I further find," reads the verdict, "that Mrs. Dorland, 129 N. Pennsylvania street, is partially responsible, as she, as a Christian Scientist, had charge of the case."

John Nelson Hanged.

PALMYRA, Mo., Feb. 29.—John Nelson was hanged here promptly at 11 o'clock Friday. Father Ulrich, of Quincy, his spiritual advisor, accompanied him to the scaffold. After following the priest in prayer Nelson bade him and Sheriff Pratt goodby, and while proclaiming that he was innocent the trap was sprung, breaking his neck.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—SENATE—Bills introduced Monday: To pay L. H. Lyne & Co. the sum of $1,705 for 5,700 pounds of tobacco seized by revenue officials in September, [illegible] of certain machinery also seized and destroyed; providing for an increase of pension for Henry W. Schoder, a sailor on the Susquehanna, at the rate of $30 a month; to correct the military record of John L. Richardson, Company I, One Hundred and Twenty-second Ohio.

The senate Monday passed the bill granting a pension of $100 a month for the widow of the late General and Secretary Gresham.

HOUSE—Congressman Sorg presented in the house Monday resolutions adopted by the Montgomery County Farmers' Institute, held at Vandalia, O., on February 6 for an amendment to the postal laws. Congressman Layton, resolutions of the Pennsylvania society, Sons of the Revolution asking congress to appropriate a sufficient sum of money and adopt necessary measures to increase the publication and preservation of the records and proceedings of the continental congress and official documents relating to the revolutionary period.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—SENATE—A motion by Mr. Morrill to take up the house tariff bill Tuesday was voted down. The democratic votes were all cast against the motion, and they were backed by the votes of five republican senators—Messrs. Cannon, of Utah; Carter and Mantle, of Montana; Dubois, of Idaho and Teller, of Colorado, and by the votes of five populists, Messrs. Allen, of Nebraska; Jones and Stewart, of Nevada; Kyle, of South Dakota, and Peffer, of Kansas. After the announcement of the vote, Mr. Morrill stated that he would make no further attempt to get up the bill; that it was hopelessly defeated, and it was perfectly obvious that the republican party was in a minority in the senate. The last three hours of the day's session were given up to the consideration of the Cuban belligerency resolution.

HOUSE—Before taking up the election case the house passed the Indian appropriation bill without further discussion, the paragraph relating to the purchase of the title of the Ogden Land Co. to lands in Allegheny and Cattaraugus Indian reservations, in the state of New York, having been stricken out by unanimous consent. The house at 5:05 p. m. adjourned until Wednesday, with a prospect of spending a day or two in the further discussion of the election case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—SENATE—The speech delivered in the senate Wednesday by Senator Carter, who is also chairman of the national republican committee, served plainly to show that the forks of the road on the silver issue have been reached. It seems to show, moreover, that hereafter protection is to be subordinate to the money question, and that from henceforward the silver republicans will battle in the clear light of day, rather than under the cover of party discipline. Mr. Carter was followed by Messrs. Teller and Sherman. At 3:30 o'clock the Cuban question, which had been laid aside since 2 o'clock, secured the right of way, and Mr. White (dem., Cal.) addressed the senate until adjournment.

HOUSE—The Van Horn-Tarsney contested election case from the Kansas City district occupied the attention of the house Wednesday. The vote on the case will be taken Thursday. The senate amendments to the house bill to extend the time in which the government, under the act of 1891, can bring suits to annul patents to lands in railroad and wagon grants were agreed to. One of the senate amendments reduces the extension from five years to one year.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—SENATE—The Cuban question was up again in the senate Thursday and will be continued Friday. The voting on the resolution and amendments is to begin at 4 o'clock p. m. The subject of the seacoast defenses of the country was elaborately treated in a speech by Senator Proctor, of Vermont, in which he advocated land fortifications in preference to the creation of a powerful navy, and it was announced immediately that the committee on fortifications contemplated a trip to New York to examine the defenses of that harbor. Bills appropriating $500,000 for two first class revenue steamers for the Pacific coast and $100,000 for a public building at Newport News, Va., were passed. Also, the army appropriation bill, with no greater delay than that caused by its being read in full. It appropriates over $23,000,000, and is the fifth of the annual appropriation bills that has passed the senate.

HOUSE—Mr. Hitt, of the foreign affairs committee, reported concurrent resolutions on the Cuban revolution, to take the place of those previously introduced. The resolutions favor the recognition of the Cuban patriots as belligerents by the United States. On the conclusion of the reading Mr. Sulzer (dem., N. Y.) jumped to his feet and asked in view of the great public interest in the question raised by the resolutions that they be made a special order for next Tuesday. Mr. Meredith (dem., Va.) suggested that they be passed immediately. No action had been taken when the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—SENATE—Friday afternoon the senate passed the following resolutions by a vote of 64 to 6: "Resolved, By the senate (the house of representatives concurring), that in the opinion of congress a condition of public war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba; and that the United States of America should maintain a strict neutrality between the contending powers, according to each all the rights of belligerents in the ports and territory of the United States. Resolved, That the friendly offices of the United States shall be offered by the president to the Spanish government for the recognition of the independence of Cuba." Mr. Mitchell (rep. Ore.) chairman of committee on privileges and elections, gave notice that on Wednesday next he would call up the Dupont contested election case, involving the seat from Delaware. At 5 o'clock the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The whole day in the house was spent in the consideration of the legislative approriation bill, and considerable progress was made. An agreement was reached whereby the bill to change the compensation of United States attorneys and marshals from fee to the salary system is to be offered as an amendment to this bill. Mr. Bailey (dem., Texas) raised a point of order against the appropriation of $5,000 for the private secretary to the president. "The law," said Mr. Bailey, "fixes the salary of $3,500." The chair sustained the point.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—SENATE—No business of importance transacted.

HOUSE—The first presidential veto of this session of congress was overridden by the house Saturday by a vote of 198 to 38. All the republicans and 31 democrats voted for the bill, while the votes to sustain the president were all cast by democrats. The bill authorises the governor and local officers of Arizona to lease the educational lands of the territory for school purposes. The senate amendments to the army appropriation bill were non-concurred in by the house Saturday, and the bill was sent to conference. The remainder of the day was consumed in the consideration of the legislative appropriation bill. The bill was completed, except for controverted paragraphs. By a special order adopted the bill to abolish the fee system in the cases of United States district attorneys and marshals will be offered as an amendment on Monday.

REPUBLICAN PERPLEXITIES.

Much Presidential Timber But of Poor Quality.

Just now the republican party is talking about the men whom it may nominate for president. The democratic party is not talking much about the men whom it may nominate for president, because it is in no hurry. The republicans have violently thrust themselves first into the field. Their convention is to meet before that of their opponents. Nothing if not courteous, the democrats politely wait for the action of their esteemed adversaries. When the republicans shall have named their candidates and shall have issued their platform, the democrats will readily discern what they should do to equal or to surpass their opponents. Meanwhile, there is not that unity of choice, that note of decision, that firmness of touch and that confidence of feeling among republicans that should be desirable to them.

They are not entirely satisfied with their material. They are saying that Speaker Reed, whose intellectual stature is analogous to his physical altitude, is keeping silence on silver and the currency. They are saying that ex-Gov. McKinley, who undoubtedly possesses the republican heart more completely than that of any of his opponents, and who, being out of office, is embarrassed neither by patronage nor by commitments, knows only one subject, namely the tariff, with thorough inaccuracy, knows that too much and knows other great subjects hardly at all. To be sure, in 1888 Mr. McKinley was willing to be a sister to silver, though marriage was not within his intent. But at that time silver was everybody's friend and nobody's rock ahead, and it would not do to be too critical now of any statesman on that subject then. The republicans are also saying that, while Senator Allison is everybody's third choice, the entire absence of yes and no from his political vocabulary and his ability to walk from Des Moines to Washington on the key-boards of a series of pianos without raising a sound, somehow or other, affects his eligibilty at such a time as this. The grand old party is also declaring that Gov. Morton is too young; that he should serve at least two more terms in the governorship before aspiring to the presidency, and that he should formally enter the field for 1900, and not for 1896. We do not forget that Senator Cullom is a candidate upon his physical resemblance to Abraham Lincoln, and that Senator Davis, of Minnesota, is a candidate on account of the close race that he is running with "Lon" Livingstone, of Atlanta, for Venezuelan approbation. These candidates, however, are provisional, and Mr. McKinley and Gov. Morton, up to date, are really the only two men who can be relied on for provisions. Gov. McKinley would obtain them from the beneficiaries of expectant protection, while Gov. Morton, as the head of the great London banking house of Morton, Rose & Co., would run like a prairie fire in Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, California and other places where English financiers are actually, if not correctly, appreciated.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE M'KINLEY ENTHUSIASTS.

Yawp and Uproar Accompany the Napoleon of Protection.

There is one tendency among the followers of that cathode ray of protection and high tariff William McKinley which is not calculated to assist that gentleman into the good graces of those people who are not wildly enthusiastic over methods by which foreigners are induced to pay our taxes, and that is a tendency to yawp.

At every possible occasion the chubby figure of Maj. McKinley is paraded before the public and everyone is expected to go wild and fall to thinking of Napoleon. McKinley was brought to Chicago. He came ostensibly to make a speech on Abraham Lincoln. Instead, however, of being treated as one coming on such a mission ordinarily would be, his friends accorded him much the same attention as an advance agent bestows upon the $10,000 beauty. His advent was heralded and his arrival was the signal for a series of parades and a continued uproar of yawping. There is something in the energetic frenzy into which Mr. McKinley's followers lash themselves as soon as his frock coat, draped a la Henry Clay, looms on the scene that can only be compared to the excitement of a band of howling dervishes on the approach of their pet god.

The barking, braying and blatting of the Blaine lunatic of some years ago was bad enough, but the case of the McKinley maniac is even worse, for with him there is in addition a tendency to froth at the mouth.—Chicago News (Ind.).

——Mr. McKinley may be a safe man for the white house, but his address before the Marquette club is well calculated to lead many people to doubt such a claim. WHAT HAVE [illegible]

The Republicans Have Failed to Make Good Their Boast.

With great flourish of trumpets the republicans, who held vast majority in the house of representatives and [illegible] told the people of the country what they proposed to do.

Well, what have they done? In session since the first day of December last, what have they done? May we not have some specification? They professed themselves to be wonderfully gifted in the matter of creating public confidence, increasing public revenues, making everybody, whatever his business and however conducted, rich and happy. But what have they done? Let us try if we can to get down to a specification. If they are competent, surely three months ought to demonstrate that by their fruits they are justified in their claim. Will they tell us of anything they have done?

The house passed a tariff measure. The senate now gives practically public notice that the tariff measure shan't go through. The house, instead of meeting the recommendation of the executive, who understood the situation and who did not ask for a tariff bill, but did ask for sound legislation on the money question, passed a ridiculous bill of its own. That the republican senate sent back with a free coinage measure.

But where is the affirmative legislation? Where is anything accomplished? What has Mr. Reed done as speaker and what have all the great republican statesmen of the senate done? They have been sitting in congress for ninety days and where are the results of their capacity?

Not a measure of public concern and utility has been perfected. This republican house and this republican senate stand before this country as utterly imbecile and impotent as any body of statesmen ever appeared before a constituency whom they had deceived by repeated assertions of their sagacity and their prowess.

The republican majority in congress is an utterly fruitless majority. It has boasted much, it has accomplished nothing.—Chicago Chronicle.

NOT THE SAME REED.

The Former Czar Is Now Plotting for the Presidency.

As compared with a year ago, Thomas B. Reed is a changed man. No more remarkable metamorphosis has been seen in a public man.

There was a time when Reed was the very embodiment of all that is typical of good comradeship. He was cordial in his witty comments, he was willing to disport himself in any company in which he might find himself—he was, in fact, a clever, genial man. With the scores of newspaper correspondents he was affable, ready to give them his views and judgments, sometimes to be quoted, but more frequently not to be. All this has changed. Since he has become an avowed candidate for president, coupled with his election to the speakership, the Reed of former days has disappeared, and in its stead there has come a man whom none recognizes. It is harder now to get at Reed than if he were president. He has already—even with only the shadow of the white house before his eyes—mantled himself in Harrisonian exclusiveness. He cracks no more jokes, and he deliberately chokes back the keen, sarcastic comments which are constantly surging to his lips because he seems to be afraid that if they are uttered they will but add to his list of enemies. From the speaker's chair the old aggressive, partisan, minority-trampling Reed has gone, and a smooth-faced, smooth-talking politician who is looking for votes has taken the place of the absentee.

There was a time, too, when Reed would go down to the capitol with a crowd of his cronies, laughing and talking, with not a burden upon his broad shoulders. But now he stalks along the avenue, all by himself, thoughtful, unobserving, wrapped in solemn grandeur and his own greatness.—Washington Post.

THE ST. LOUIS OUTLOOK.

Indications That the Republicans Will Have Trouble.

It does not require the aid of the cathode rays to penetrate the wooden walls of the republican wigwam of next June at St. Louis and to anticipate the events that will take place in the forthcoming convention.

The impudent assurance of Boodler Quay that he will allow his name to go before the convention is a challenge to all the other favorite sons to compete for the empty honor of having their names presented.

The Lincoln day enthusiasm for McKinley indicates that the masses of the republican party look on the Ohio representative of protection as the logical candidate of the party.

The oppressive silence maintained by ambitious aspirants on the financial question gives us assurance that the grand old party is prepared now, as formerly, to maintain a judicious impartiality between the opposing and irreconcilable antagonism of finance. In other words, the indications at this present date are that the republican party will refuse to declare itself on the financial question, on which evasion is futile, while on the tariff question it will cling to the repudiated and discredited protection of McKinleyism.

It will be hard for the democratic party to do worse.—N. Y. World.

Machine Politics.

The fraud and scandal in republican machine politics are more obvious in the conspiracy to pack state delegations for "favorite" sons than in any other feature of the campaign. Among the masses of the republican party there are more McKinley men than Reed men in New England, more McKinley men than Morton men in New York, more McKinley men than Quay men in Pennsylvania, more McKinley [illegible] Cullom men in Illinois, more [illegible] men than Manderson men [illegible] more McKinley men than [illegible] Minnesota, and there [illegible] being more McKinley m[illegible] men in Iowa. THE head of the Republican party is full of free silver ideas.

EACH of the old parties will have to depend on the West to carry it through, is a claim made by prominent members of each.

IT is probable that Mr. Harrison will have to publish another letter deciding to be a candidate for a nomination of the presidency.

THE Democratic party in Kentucky would not be benefitted in the least by having Tillman, of South Carolina, come into the State on a speechmaking tour.

UNCLE SAM may get into trouble with Spain instead of John Bull. The action of Congress in regard to the Cubans, is well calculated to create war clouds at least.

MCKINLEY will have to be strong enough to defeat the combine that is being organized to oppose him at St. Louis on the first few ballots, or he will never pull down the nomination.

IT is evident that Dr. Hunter was practicing a deception either by his written pledge or by his verbal declarations, and when he was so completely cornered that there was no escape he quit the Senatorial race.

CONGRESS is in favor of recognizing the Cubans as a belligerant power, but before they can be so recognized President Cleveland will have to issue his proclamation to that effect, and when the tone of his last message is considered, it is very doubtful if he takes any action in that direction.

SENATOR CARTER, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is an uncompromising free silver man, and he has served notice on the Republican gold bugs in the Senate that a split at St. Louis next June will be the result of a declaration infavor of a single gold standard. And yet they tell you the Republican party is practically solid on the money question.

POPULIST POOR went into the Republican caucus, one night last week, and notified the caucus that if the Republicans would permit him to name a candidate for United States Senator, the candidate to be a Republican, that he would bring two votes to him, which, with the solid Republican vote would insure his election. Poor's behavior since the joint ballot was begun has caused both parties to lose confidence in him.

FOR the purpose of catching votes the Republican and Democratic national conventions have for several years, been promulgating platforms that are utterly meaningless on the money question, but the next national convention of each party will have to speak out on that question in languge that is susceptible of but a single construction. The straddles of the past have incurred for each of the parties the trouble now being expressed by them.

THE written pledge, the existence of which Dr. Hunter has been denying all along, has has been brought from its hiding place at Frankfort, and he admits it is genuine. It is in the following words:

"I hereby agree that I will favor such legislation and support such measures as will restore silver to the position it occupied as primary or redemption money prior to 1873, when it was the standard of values.

"W. G. HUNTER."

Tho Doctor says the pledge is strictly in accordance with the declarations of the Republican national paltform. What will Senator Sherman and other leading Republicans, who are gold bugs, say as to the correctness of Dr. Hunter's interpretation of the financial plank in the Republican national platform? Senator Carter and several other prominent Republicans will agree with Dr. Hunter that silver should be made "the standard of values."

THE Louisville Commercial, as ultra Republican sheet as is published, has commenced reading members out of the Rupublican party. It says:

"Those five Senators, elected by Republican votes, who voted against consideration of the revenue bill are now double dyed traitors. Traitors alike to their party, and to their country which they have sworn to defend. Not only a double treason, [illegible] a treason twice committed. The Government requires a revenue to defray its expenses, the Republican [illegible] a measure for immediate, though temporary relief; [illegible] vote against the country and [illegible] party. Without sufficient [illegible] the Government is [illegible] money. The Republican [illegible] offers a measure [illegible] it to borrow at [illegible] upon the shortest [illegible] cast their vote [illegible] try and against the [illegible] either assist the [illegible] revenue, [illegible] money. [illegible] at once ex- [illegible] her parti- [illegible]. Neither [illegible] should [illegible]

[illegible] Congress, we are driven to the conclusion that our [illegible] representatives have lost sight of the true principles of patriotism and are suffering themselves to be led, blindfolded, by selfishness and the spirit of partisanship.

The late proceedings in these two legislative bodies give strong evidence that a very few, if any, of them pay any regard to the underlying principles of political economy and have any knowlege of the facts of monetary history.

For example, take the action of the two bodies in regard to a revenue bill recommended by the President. After informing Congress of the distressed condition of the national finances, he recommended the passage of a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell gold bonds for gold to bring about the necessary relief to the treasury.

The House of Representatives passed a coin bill to be sold for gold. The Senate placed a free-coinage rider upon the bill who rode it to death.

Now let us look at the inconsistency of these two branches of our national legislative bodies. The lower branch, having a large Republican majority, passed a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to sell coin bonds, to be paid in coin for gold. A coin bond to-day is very different from a coin bond 20 years ago—the difference between the intrinsic value of the gold and silver dollar then was so slight that it was immaterial whether the bonds were paid in gold or silver. But it is very different to-day. The intrinsic value of the silver dollar is only equal to about one half the intrinsic value of the gold dollar. Hence, for the government to issue a coin bond to day means that the government promises to redeem the bonds either in good money or money half good.

The majority of the Senate are warm advocates of the free coinage of silver. They seem to be indifferent to, or ignorant of the history of free-coinage in our government. For 80 years our government tried to float the two metals together under the system of free-coinage. What was the result? Silver in the beginning being the lighter or cheaper money, floated on the surface, whilst gold sank to the bottom. In other words, the silver in the silver dollar being worth less than the gold in a gold dollar, was the only coined money used for 40 years. The gold went to the bottom of mens pockets and remained there, or was shipped to foreign countries and melted into bullion.

In 1834 the gold dollar was made lighter and cheaper than the silver dollar. Hence gold came to the surface and silver went to the bottom. In other words the gold in the gold dollar being worth less than the silver dollar, consequently being the cheaper money of the two, it was used exclusively and the silver was either hoarded or melted. This state of affairs continued for 40 years more.

In 1873, after 80 years experience with free-coinage, our government comitted the great crime of putting a stop to the unfortunate system of free-coinage, five years later, in 1878 it adopted a system far more preferable and one that has permitted the government to carry out its policy of keeping up the parity of the two coins. Under this system the parity in the purchasing power has not only been maintained, but the parity in their circulation has been maintained. In proof of this the silver dollar is exchangeable for the gold dollar and about the same amount of each kind of money is in circulation in the United States today.

Now let us compare these two systems and see why the present system of coinage is preferable to the former system of free-coinage which proved such an utter failure. Under the system of free-coinage any one possessing silver in any shape, could take this silver to our mints and have it coined into money free of any expense to themselves. The government receiving nothing for the labor performed, simply certifies in the operation that the several coins contain a given quantity of specified fineness. Thus far and no farther is the government responsible. Under this system the coins are only of the value of the bullion each contains. Their legal tender quality adds nothing to their intrinsic value. Under this system, the government receiving nothing for the coinage, makes us promise to redeem in any kind of money. Hence it devolves upon those who reap the benefit of the coinage to sustain the credit of the money.

Under the present system it is differeut. The government buys the bullion and coins it into money and in putting this money in circulation stands security to those who handle it that it will be redeemed in good standard money. This is the reason that a silver dollar to day will buy as much as a gold dollar. It is the credit of the government that enables the silver dollar containing only 50 cents worth of silver to circulate as a dollar at a parity with gold.

Then the question arises, why are the silver mine owners so crazy for the reestablishment of the old tried and discarded system of free coinage? The answer is very simple. They would find a ready market for their silver and get two dollars for every dollar worth of bullion they could extract from their mines.

They would enrich themselves and imperish every man that would not be able to own a silver mine.

If we should adopt the system of free-coinage and make silver a standard of measure we would be at a disadvantage in dealing with other nations. In dealing with us, foreign nations would tax us for the risk they ran in accepting money which was less valuable than their own. This tax would appear in the added cost to us of goods bought by us from them, and in the lesser price we should obtain for goods we sold to them. It would also reduce prices at home of all our surplus products for every body knows that [illegible]

In conclusion relying upon the good sense of the American people I predict that this government will never again adopt the system of free-coinage of silver.

Let the Republicans pay for it, if they feel that way inclined.—Georgetown Times.

Fountain Martin suffered a quick death at the hands of infuriated Wayne county farmers, who accused him of barn-burning. A mob of twenty went to the jail and took Martin and James Troxell and went to a grove near Steubenville. Nooses were put about the necks of both men and they were swung up. Troxell, however, slipped his noose and made a successful dash for liberty. Troxell has been visited by lynchers before, and his present escape is said to be the third from the same fate.

Out of the ninety-eight fire insurance companies which wrote policies in Kentucky during 1895, only four paid out more than they received; the total that these lost was $2,432. Three of these companies were Kentucky assessment companies that do not come under the board rates, and the other, which lost $598, is a Kentucky mutual company. They were among the smallest companies in the State, and together received less than ten thousand dollars in premiums. Every one of the Board companies received more than they paid out and yet the cry is "higher rates."—Winchester Democrat.

The editor of the Mercury has never been counted among the free silver advocates, but rather he has been classed among the gold bugs, to which latter charge he answers "not guilty!" We recognize that we do not understand the great question of national finance sufficiently to state absolutely what is the correct thing for the government to do in the matter of currency. But this we do know, and we know it well. The state of affairs at present among the people is distressing and getting worse. We know that the issuing of bonds by the government is not helping this section of the country in the least. It may be a good scheme to enable the rich to get their money into safe and sure interest-bearing bonds, but it does not enable a farmer to sell an additional pound of his products, or a merchant to collect a dollar of his outstanding accounts. The free and unlimited coinage of silver may not help matters, but it cannot make them worse, unless it brings sudden and sure bankruptcy and sudden death is preferable to slow and tortuous dissolution. The rich all seem to be in favor of a gold standard, while the poor are inclined to try something else, and being of this latter class, we are drifting slowly and surely with our kind. And thousands of others are in our company.—Carlisle Mercury.

[illegible] Senator Blackburn's [illegible] in the United States Senate after March 4th, 1897, will be vacant in the event the present legislature fails to elect his successor.

The constitution of the United States provides that Senators shall be elected for six years by the legislatures of the States. Blackburn's term expires March 4th, 1897, and the contention that he can hold over is not in harmony with section 3, article 1, of the constitution, which says: "Two Senators for each State shall be chosen by the legislature thereof for six years."

The Court of Appeals of this State has decided that where a term of office is definitely fixed at a certain number of years, that at the expiration of that time the officer does not hold over until a successor is chosen; but, on the contrary, the office at once becomes vacant. Then a vacancy will, it seems, exist if the legislature fails to elect Blackburn's successor, and by section three of the constitution will be filled temporarily by the Governor until the next meeting of the legislature.

THE Republicans claimed yesterday that they would nominate Judge Holt for Senator—that he would have 35 out of 68 Republican votes in the caucus.

A disease said to be grubs in the head and confining itself to old ewes is creating severe losses among the flocks of sheep in Anderson county. The lambs are doing well.

Between nine and ten o'clock Sunday night James Donaldson's tobacco barn, on the ridge overlooking Slate Creek opposite the Bige Wilson farm, burned with all its contents. Mr. D. had $350 insurance on barn and $400 on contents. Luther Daniel also had his tobacco in the barn and $600 insurance on it. The loss was total. Wm. Robinson also had a small crop destroyed.

The orange farmers of California, at an expense of $20,000, have imported a "herd" of bugs of a new species, by means of which they expect to exterminate other bugs which have been feeding on the orange trees and impairing the crop each year. The new bugs are cannibals of the most voracious type. They eat other bugs when they can find any, and when they can not they eat each other. On account of this latter characteristic it was found very difficult to import them.

The price of good feeding cattle and good fat cattle are about as near together as they every have been. There is scarcely fifty cents difference, and some country shippers who sold good 1,400 lb. fat steers and wanted to buy desirable 1,000 lb. feeders declared a few days ago that there was not any difference. Feed is so cheap and plentiful that there does not need to be as much difference in price as usual, though the gap should be wider than it is to give feeders any kind of a show. The price of feeding cattle is not extremely high for this time of the year, but the price of fat cattle is unusually low. There seems to be almost no demand for light stock cattle. Buyers want something they can turn back to market in a comparatively short time.—Breeders Gazette.

Gossip has made many a home hell on earth. Gossip has parted husbands and wives. Gossip has blackened the character of many poor girls. Gossip has parted lovers, who would be very happy if it were not for gossip. One little misstep, or one little indiscretion, will cause gossip to arise with new strength and start on her mission. Her, did we say? We ought not to, for we have our male gossipers, and, as a rule, they are ten times more venomous than the female. A good, healthy man gossiper is about as mean and low and dangerous as the meanest thing on earth.

Josiah H. Walton, of Waterloo neighborhood, died of catarrh of the stomach last Wednesday night, in the 65th year of his age. Mr. Walton had been in delicate health for many years, but continued farming and handling livestock. He was an excellent gentleman and beloved by all his neighbors. His deeds of charity are a monument to his memory that will endure for a long time. The funeral was preached by Rev. T. L. Utz, at Bellevue, last Friday morning, to a house filled to almost suffocation by the host of friends that assembled to pay their last tribute of respect and esteem to the departed. The remains were interred in the Bellevue cemetery.

As John Ryle and Oscar Ryle were going to Bellevue, last Friday, they were driving at a 2:40 gate, when the horse shied at a couple of turkey gobblers fighting in the road, flew the track, running down a steep bank into the creek, and that the buggy was not wrecked and the occupants crippled is a miracle. As the horse started down the bank Oscar yelled out, "Check him, John, check him!" but John could have come as near checking the City of Louisville with a tow string. It took but a short time to get straightened out and back on to the pike, when Oscar separated the two gobblers, and the trip was resumed. Bellevue was reached in about forty-five minutes after leaving Burlington and including the time lost because of the interruption by the turkey pugilists. The horse had not been out of the stable for a month and was on its metal.

[illegible] of [illegible] blush of some young gallant, who [illegible] no doubt, his high [illegible] slowly away. The [illegible] arrangements was one delicious symphony of bewitching girls, until a man, not previously prepared for his station, might actually have wondered why he had been born. Never was there a scene of more beauty or a picture of more splendor than the parlor last Friday night, with its graceful and exquisitely-gowned matrons and maids; its throngs of courtly gallants and its clusters of beautiful buds, just unfolding the first fair petal of womanhood. There was a bevy of beautiful leaves and flowers that filled the spacious parlor with happy carnival, like the bright colors of autumn they blended together until one wide, splendid feast of beauty, spread its peerless folds out to be admired. The lights burned brightly and to the languid utterance of soft music the great bouquet of loveliness burst into bloom, when the first waltz was played and the dance was on.

The beginning of the dancing over the wide parlor floor was an awakening passion that gathered momentum as it drank in the beauty about it, until the realization of perfect joy took possession of its spirit and led away unto the tropical realms of effulgent fancy. The roses asleep on the queenly bosoms of the fair women, looked up and smiled reconciled to the dews of death already sparkling upon their voluptuous carmine petals.

[illegible] all the maze of the waltz or the facil quadrille, the season and the slight disadvantages were forgotten, while in the voluptuous whirl all seemed supremely pleased.

The music was excellent—it was furnished by the Morelli Orchestra of Erlanger, who played brilliantly and soulfully the best dance music by Strauss and other modern composers, until the admirers of terpsichore, catching the spirit glided away over the smooth floor to the magical rhytem, the entrancing strains tempting ever and anon the tired dancers to dance again.

About midnight, however, each gentleman had an opportunity of knowing in whose favor he stood highest, when, from the odorous ranks of beauty, a "sweet angel" appeared to lead him to the delicious spread that awaited him.

Though the splendors of the dance were designed but for one night, its memories will be handed down as pleasant legacies, while its brilliance and magnificence can scarcely be dimmed by passing years.

Most all night long, with unweary step, the dance continued until the gray streaks of dawn dissolved the happy company on the brink of a new day, that can never bring a more artistic or social victory.

There has been great excitement in the Methodist Church circles on account of the "sanctification meetings" that are being held in their church. The doctrine as expounded by evangelist Hughes is "that religion is experienced by those seeking it, and their sins are forgiven up to the time of feeling that spiritual exaltation, which follows confession, and satisfies the soul that it has been redeemed," but there is no promise of immunity from sin hereafter, and therefore it behooves those who have been sanctified to lead good and pure lives or they may become worse than they were ere the bright beams of hope and joy illuminated their benighted souls. Some prayers have been offered that for fervid burning eloquence and pathos surpassed the expectations of the congregation and astonished even the ministers. It remains to be seen what will be the effects of the meetings.

Geo. L. Miller, F. L. Gordon and Samuel Noell, of the Big Bone neighborhood, were in town Thursday.

Supt. Voshell was in town last Saturday prepared to pay the teachers one-half the amount due them on account of salary.

Mr. B. L. Rice, of Union, was in town last Thursday evening. Mr. Rice was receiving the degrees in the K. of P. Lodge at this place.

John Stephens, of Bullittsville, who was carrying the $10.000 policy on the life of John R. Smith, has been paid every cent of the policy.

J. M. Conner, of Cincinnati, was in town Monday, and was given a hearty reception by his numerous friends. Jim looks like he never knew what it was to be ill.

Wm. Stephens and Johnnie Cloud, of Hebron, passed through town one morning last week, enroute to Big Bone. They were visiting the celebrated springs for their health.

Mr. Elijah Parker says a great many of the peach buds are killed, but enough are yet alive to make a splendid crop.

A SPECIFIC

In Brief, for Colds, Coughs, and Lung Troubles,

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. The physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband,—reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,—procured, for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. I have used the Pectoral for my children and in my family, whenever we have needed it, and have found it a specific for colds, coughs, and lung troubles."—EMILY WOOD, North St., Elkton, Md.

I looked up, and with my head full of the galleries and museums I had been visiting answered: "It's a very terrible head and most repellent."

"Yes," he said, "I agree with you. Now who should you say it is?"

Mr. Froude laughed. "Try again," he said, "you ought to know it."

"It is a horrid looking thing" said I, "whoever it is!"

"Atrocious!" said Mr. Froude, emphatically. "Is it not? Well, I'm sorry to say it is a bust of myself, just presented to me by Sir Edgar Boehm. Very kind of him, wasn't it? And now of course, I have to stick it up here in a very prominent place, and show it to all my friends. Pleasant, isn't it?"

"Boehm doesn't see you with my eyes," said I. "It doesn't remind me of you in the least."

He laughed heartily.

"That's well!" said he. "I didn't think I was quite such a ruffian as that!"

A Family of Fish.

A New Yorker sitting on the edge of a small Adirondack lake was attracted by a school of tiny fish that seemed to move in remarkable union. Watching for a long time he discovered that the infant fish were guarded by the parents, for whenever the young began to stray they were driven back into the school by a large fish on one side or the other, and whenever a strange fish approached, one of the guardians rushed at him and drove him off. The watcher noted the movements of several small schools for two hours, and vows that the little creatures were tended like a drove of sheep.

"In September, 1894, I made a misstep and injured my ankle. Very soon afterwards, two inches across formed and in walking to favor it I sprained my ankle. The sore became worse; I could not put my boot on and I thought I should have to give up at every step. I could not get any relief and had to stop work. I read of a cure of a similar case by Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it. Before I had taken all of two bottles the sore had healed and the swelling had gone down. My

A Sore

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

Many, Like Sheep From the Pasture, Have Been Led Astray.

But the Gates Are Always Open to Return, and a Cordial Welcome Waits the Lost One's Coming—How Young Men in the Great Cities Fall.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday morning was: Isa. liii., 6: "All we, like sheep, have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."

Once more I ring the old Gospel bell. The first half of my text is an indictment: All we, like sheep, have gone astray. Some one says: "Can't you drop that first word? that is too general; that sweeps too great a circle." Some man rises in the audience and he looks over on the opposite side of the house and says: "There is a blasphemer; and I understand how he has gone astray. And there in another part of the house is a defaulter, and he has gone astray. And there is an impure person, and he has gone astray." Sit down, my brother, and look at home. My text takes us all in. It starts behind the pulpit, sweeps the circuit of the room and comes back to the point where it started, when it says, All we, like sheep, have gone astray.

I can very easily understand why Martin Luther threw up his hands after he had found the Bible and cried out: "Oh! my sins, my sins!" and why the publican, according to the custom of this day in the east, when they have any great grief began to beat himself and cry, as he smote upon his breast, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." I was, like many of you, brought up in the country, and I know some of the habits of sheep, and how they get astray, and what my text means when it says: "All we, like sheep, have gone astray." Sheep get astray in two ways, either by trying to get into other pasture or from being scared by the dogs. In the former way some of us got astray. We thought the religion of Jesus Christ put us on short commons. We thought there was better pasturage somewhere else. We thought if we could only lie down on the banks of a distant stream or under great oaks on the other side of some hill we might be better fed. We wanted other pasturage than that which God, through Jesus Christ, gave our soul, and we wandered on, and we wandered on, and we were lost. We wanted bread and we found garbage. The further we wandered, instead of finding rich pasturage, we found blasted heath, and sharper rocks, and more stinging nettles. No pasture. How was it in the clubhouse when you lost your child? Did they come around and help you very much? Did your worldly associates console you very much? Did not the plain Christian man, who came into your house and sat up with your darling child, give you more comfort than all worldly associates? Did all the convivial songs you ever heard comfort you in the day of bereavement as much as the song they sang to you—perhaps the very song that was sung by your little child the last Sabbath afternoon of her life.

There is a happy land,
Far, far away,
Where saints immortal reign,
Bright, bright as day.

Did your business associates in that day of darkness and trouble give you any especial condolence? Business exasperated you, business wore you out, business left you limp as a rag, business made you mad. You got dollars, but you got no peace. God have mercy on the man who has nothing but business to comfort him! The world afforded you no luxuriant pasturage. A famous English actor stood on the stage impersonating, and thunders of applause came down from the galleries, and many thought it was the proudest moment of all his life; but there was a man asleep just in front of him, and the fact that the [illegible] was indifferent and somnolent spoiled all occasion for him, and he cried: "Wake up, wake up!" So one little annoyance in life has been more pervading to your mind than all the brilliant congratulations and success. Poor pasturage for your soul you find in this world. The world has cheated you, the world has belied you, the world has misinterpreted you, the world has persecuted you. Oh! this world is a good rack from which a horse may pick his food; it is a good trough from which the swine may crunch their mess; but it gives but little food to a soul blood-bought and immortal. What is a soul? It is a hope high as the throne of God? What is a man? You say, "It is only a man."

It is only a man gone overboard in sin. It is only a man gone overboard in business life. What is a man? The battleground of three worlds, with his hands taking hold of the destinies of light or darkness. A man! No line can measure him; no limit can bound him. The archangel before the throne can not outlive him. The stars shall die, but he will watch their extinguishment. The world will burn, but he will gaze at the conflagration. Endless ages will march on; he will watch the procession. A man! The masterpiece of God Almighty. Yet you say, "It is only a man." Can a nature like that be fed on husks of the wilderness?

Substantial comfort will not grow
On Nature's barren soil;
All we can boast till Christ we know
Is vanity and toil.

Some of you got astray by looking for better pasturage; others by being scared of the dogs. The hound gets over in the pasture field. The poor things fly in every direction. In a few moments they are torn off the hedges and they are plashed of the ditch, and the lost sheep never gets home unless the farmer goes after it. There is nothing so thoroughly lost as a lost sheep. It may have been in 1857, during the financial panic, or during the financial stress in the fall of 1873 when you got astray. You almost became an atheist. You said, "Where is God, that honest men go down and thieves prosper?" You were dogged of creditors, you were dogged of the banks, you were dogged of worldly disaster, and some of you went into misanthropy, and some of you took to strong drink, and others of you fled out of Christian association and you got astray. Oh, man, that was the last time when you ought to have forsaken God. Standing amid the foundering of your earthly failures, how could you get along without a God to comfort you, and a God to deliver you, and a God to help you, and a God to save you? You tell me you have been through enough business trouble almost to kill you. I know it. I can not understand how the boat could live one hour in that chopped sea. But I do not know by what process you got astray; some in one way and some in another, and if you could really see the position some of you occupy before God your soul would burst into an agony of tears and you would pelt the heavens with the cry, "God have mercy!" Sinai's batteries have been unlimbered above your soul, and at times you have heard it thunder, "The wages of sin is death." "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." When Sebastopol was being bombarded, two Russian [illegible] burned all night in the harbor [illegible] ing a glare upon the trembling fortress, and some of you, from what you have told me yourselves, some of you are standing in the night of your soul's trouble, the cannonade, and the conflagration, and the multiplication, and the multitude of your sorrows and troubles I think must make the wings of God's hovering angels shiver to the tip.

But the last part of my text opens a door wide enough to let us all out and to let all Heaven in. Sound it on the organ with all the stops out. Thrum it on the harps with all the strings atune. With all the melody possible let the heavens sound it to the earth and let the earth tell it to the heavens. "The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." I am glad that the prophet did not stop to explain whom he meant by "Him." Him of the manger, Him of the bloody sweat, Him of the resurrection throne, Him of the crucifixion agony. "On Him the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all." Oh!" says some man, "that isn't fair; let every man carry his own burden and pay his own debts."—That sounds reasonable. If I have an obligation and I have the means to meet it, and I come to you and ask you to settle that obligation, you rightly say, "Pay your own debts." If you and I, walking down the street—both hale, hearty and well—I ask you to carry me, you rightly say, "Walk on your own feet!" But suppose you and I were in a regiment, and I was wounded in the battle and I fell unconscious at your feet with gunshot fractures and dislocations, what would you do? You would call to your comrades, saying, "Come and help; this man is helpless; bring the ambulance; let us take him to the hospital," and I would be a dead lift in your arms, and you would lift me from the ground where I had fallen, and put me in the ambulance and take me to the hospital and have all kindness shown me. Would there be anything bemeaning in my accepting that kindness? Oh! no. You would be mean not to do it. That is what Christ does. If we could pay our debts, then it would be better to go up and pay them, saying: "Here, Lord, here is my obligation; here are the means with which I mean to settle that obligation; now give me a receipt; cross it all out." The debt is paid. But the fact is we have fallen in the battle, we have gone down under the hot fire of our transgressions, we have been wounded by the sabres of sin, we are helpless, we are undone. Christ comes. The loud clang heard in the sky on that Christmas night was only the bell, the resounding bell of the ambulance. Clear the way for the Son of God. He comes down to bind up the wounds and to scatter the darkness, and to save the lost. Clear the way for the Son of God. Christ comes down to us, and we are a dead lift. He does not lift us with the tips of His fingers. He does not lift us with one arm. He comes down upon his knee, and then with a dead lift He raises us to honor and glory and immortality. "The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all."

Why, then, will a man carry his sins? You can not carry successfully the smallest sin you ever committed. You might as well put the Apennines on one shoulder and the Alps on the other. How much less can you carry all the sins of your lifetime? Christ comes and looks down in your face and says: "I have come through all the lacerations of these days, and through all the tempests of these nights; I have come to bear your burdens, and to pardon your sins, and to pay your debts; put them on my shoulder, put them on my heart." "On him the Lord has laid the iniquity of us all." Sin has almost pestered the life out of some of you. At times it has made you cross and unreasonable, and it has spoiled the brightness of your days and the peace of your nights. There are men who have been riddled of sin. The world gives them no solace. Gossamery and volatile the world, while eternity, as they look forward to it, is black as midnight. They writhe under the stings of a conscience which proposes to give no rest here and no rest hereafter, and yet they do not repent, they do not pray, they do not weep. They do not realize that just the position they occupy is the position occupied by scores, hundreds and thousands of men who never found any hope.

If this meeting should be thrown open and the people who are here could give their testimony, what thrilling experiences we should hear on all sides! There is a man who would say: "I had brilliant surroundings; I had the best education that one of the best collegiate institutions could give, and I observed all the moralities of life, and I was self-righteous, and I thought I was all right before God as I am all right before man, but the Holy Spirit came to me one day and said: 'You are a sinner;' the Holy Spirit persuaded me of the fact. While I had escaped the sins against the law of the land, I had really committed the worst sin a man ever commits, the driving back of the Son of God from my heart's affections, and I saw that my hands were red with the blood of the Son of God, and I began to pray, and peace came to my heart, and I know by experience that what you say is true." "On Him the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all!" Yonder is a man who would say: I was the worst drunkard in the city; I went from bad to worse. I destroyed myself; I destroyed my home; my children cowered when I entered the house; when they put up their lips to be kissed I struck them; when my wife protested against the maltreatment, I kicked her into the street. I know all the bruises and all the terrors of a drunkard's woe. I went on further and further from God until one day I got a letter, saying:

"'MY DEAR HUSBAND:—I have tried every way, done everything and prayed earnestly and fervently for your reformation, but it seems of no avail. Since our little Henry died, with the exception of those few happy weeks when you remained sober, my life had been one of sorrow. Many of the nights I have sat by the window, with my face bathed in tears, watching for your coming. I am broken-hearted, I am sick. Mother and father have been here frequently and begged me to come home; but my love for you and my hope for brighter days have always made me refuse them. That hope seems now beyond realization and I have returned to them. It is hard and I have battled long before doing it. May God bless and preserve you, and take from you that accursed appetite, and hasten the day when we shall be again living happily together. This will be my daily prayer, knowing that he has said: 'Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.' From your loving wife,

'MARY.'

"And so I wandered on and wandered on," says that man, "until one night I passed a Methodist meeting house, and I said to myself: 'I'll go in and see what they are doing,' and I got to the door and they were singing:

All may come whoever will—
This man receives poor sinners still.

And I dropped right there where I was, and I said, "God have mercy!" and He had mercy on me. My home is restored, my wife sings all day long during work, my children come out a long way to greet me home, and my household is [illegible] 'On Him the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all.'" Yonder is a man who would say: "I wandered off from my father's house, I heard the storm that pelts on a lost soul; my feet were blistered on the hot rocks. I went on and on, thinking that no one cared for my soul, when one night Jesus met me, and He said: 'Poor thing, go home; your father is waiting for you, your mother is waiting for you. Go home, poor thing.' And, sir, I was too weak to pray, and I was too weak to repent, but I just cried out—I sobbed out my sins and my sorrows on the shoulders of Him of whom it is said, 'The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all.'"

There is a young man who would say: "I had a Christian bringing up; I came from the country to city life; I started well; I had a good position—a good commercial position—but one night at the theater, I met some young men who did me no good. They dragged me all through the sewers of iniquity, and I lost my morals, and I lost my position, and I was shabby and wretched. I was going down the street, thinking that no one cared for me, when a young man tapped me on the shoulder and said: 'George, come with me and I will do you good.' I looked at him to see whether he was joking or not. I saw he was in earnest, and I said, 'What do you mean, sir?' 'Well,' he replied, 'I mean that if you will come to the meeting to-night, I will be very glad to introduce you. I will meet you at the door. Will you come?' Said I, 'I will.' I went to the place where I was tarrying. I fixed myself up as well as I could. I buttoned my coat over a ragged vest, and I went to the door of the church, and the young man met me, and we went in, and as I went in, I heard an old man praying, and he looked so much like my father, I sobbed right out, and they were all around, so kind and so sympathetic, that I just there gave my heart to God, and I know that what you say is true; I know it in my own experience." "On him the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all." Oh, my brother, without stopping to look whether your hand trembles or not, without stopping to look whether your hand is bloated with sin or not, put it in my hand and let me give you one warm, brotherly, Christian grip, and invite you right up to the heart, to the compassion, to the sympathy, to the pardon of Him on whom the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all. Throw away your sins. Carry them no longer. I proclaim emancipation to all who are bound, pardon for all sin and eternal life for all the dead.

Some one comes here to-day and I stand aside. He comes up three steps. He comes to this place. I must stand aside. Taking that place He spreads abroad His hands, and they were nailed. You see His feet; they were bruised. He pulls aside the robe and shows you His wounded heart. I say: "Art thou weary?" "Yes." He says, "Weary with the world's woe." I say, "Whence comes thou?" He says, "I came from Calvary." I say, "Who comes with thee?" He says, "No one; I have trodden the wine press alone." I say, "Why comest thou here?" "Oh!" He says, "I came here to carry all the sins and sorrows of the people." And He kneels. He says, "Put on my shoulders all the sorrows and all the sins." And conscious of my own sins first, I take them and put them on the shoulders of the Son of God. I say, "Canst Thou bear any more, Oh, Christ?" "He says, "Yes, more." And I gather up the sins of all those who serve at these altars, the officers of the church of Jesus Christ—I gather up all their sins and I put them on Christ's shoulders, and I say, "Can't thou bear any more?" He says, "Yes, more." Then I gather up all the sins of a hundred people in this house and I put them on the shoulders of Christ, and I say, "Canst thou bear more?" He says, "Yea, more." And I gather up all the sins of this assembly, and put them on the shoulders of the Son of God, and I say, "Canst thou bear them?" "Yea," he says, "more." But he is departing. Clear the way for him, the Son of God. Open the door and let him pass out. He is carrying our sins and bearing them away. We shall never see them again. He throws them down into the abysm, and you hear the long reverberating echo of the fall. "On Him the Lord hath laid the iniquity of us all." Will you let Him take your sins to-day? or, do you say, "I will take charge of them myself, I will fight my own battles, I will risk eternity on my own account?" I know not how near some of you have come to crossing the line.

The article in question was published at the height of the revolutionary fever, in 1848. AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

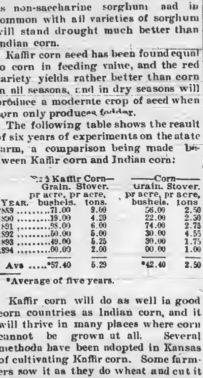
KAFFIR CORN RESULTS.

It Is [illegible] to Be the [illegible] Crop for [illegible].

Several years of cultivation of Kaffir corn in Kansas have demonstrated that it is one of the most remunerative crops that can be grown under conditions existing in that state. That the farmers realize this fact is proven by the remarkable acreage shown by the [illegible] of the [illegible] state board of agriculture for 1895. In 1893 the total Kaffir corn acreage was 46,911; in 1894, 85,337; and in 1895, 184,198.

The state agricultural college at Manhattan has been experimenting with Kaffir corn since 1889. Two varieties of seed were used which from its color are respectively denominated white and red Kaffir corn. They are alike in their habits of growth. Both attain a height of five or six feet, or more on very rich soil. They both have short, stiff stalks, thickly covered with foliage, which somewhat resembles leaves of sorghum, and both produce a long, slender, upright head densely covered with small rounded seeds. They differ, however, not only in the color of the seed, but also in the yield per acre and in the time of ripening. The red variety has, invariably, been the best yielder on the state farm, and it also matures a couple of weeks earlier than the white seeded variety. While the red Kaffir corn has never been injured by frosts, the white variety has failed to mature seed more than once. Besides, an unduly large percentage of the stalks of this kind fail to push the head completely through the sheath of the upper leaf, and from this cause a portion of the heads thus affected are moldy below, or at best bear but poorly developed seeds on the portion covered by the sheath. This is rarely the case with the red variety. For these reasons the red variety is considered much the better of the two. Both varieties are classed as non-saccharine sorghum and in common with all varieties of sorghum will stand drought much better than Indian corn.



SAMPLE OF KAFFIR CORN

Kaffir corn seed has been found equal to corn in feeding value, and the red variety yields rather better than corn in all seasons, and in dry seasons will produce a moderate crop of seed when corn only produces fodder.

The following table shows the result of six years of experiments on the state farm, a comparison being made between Kaffir corn and Indian corn:

Kaffir corn will do as well in good corn countries as Indian corn, and it will thrive in many places where corn cannot be grown at all. Several methods have been adopted in Kansas of cultivating Kaffir corn. Some farmers sow it as they do wheat and cut it for the fodder, only feeding the seed on the stalks. On this subject Prof. C. C. Georgeson, of the state agricultural college, says: "Kaffir corn is best grown in rows thirty inches to three feet apart, and can be sown either with a sorghum drill or with a common wheat drill. We use successfully an eight-hoe press drill, on which all except the first and fifth hoes are closed up. We then seed two rows at a time, 32 inches apart. A little practice will soon show how the drill must be set in order to sow the right quantity of seed. If it comes up too thick it must be thinned. Good heads will be formed when the stalks are about four or five inches apart in the row. In all other respects it should be cultivated like corn."—Chicago Tribune.

CHEAP BUT PRACTICAL.

One of the Best Economical Poultry Houses That Can Be Built.

The diagram herewith shows one of the best cheap poultry houses that can be constructed, the inside arrangement being especially excellent because of its labor-saving character. The sketch shows a cross section, from which it will be seen that, contrary to the usual plan, the higher side has the walk, the pens being under the lower part of the roof. If one can stand erect at the center of the pen, this is sufficient height for all purposes, as most of the work of caring for the fowls is done from the walk. The roosts are at the front, with a platform below that projects out into the walk for several inches. Raising the hinged door, one can thus scrape off all the droppings from the walk into a box or basket. The nests below the platform are also reached from the walk, while below the nests is an opening in the partition, through which the fowls drink from a dish in the walk, no water being spilled or made filthy by this plan. The windows are on the lower side of the house, a great sufficiency of light being secured in this way. This construction permits a much lower, and consequently warmer, house than is the case where the walk is on the lower side. Such a house may be built of rough boards and covered with heavy roofing papers, then battened when it should be warm and last for years. When the covering does begin to give out, shingle or clapboard right over the tarred felt or paper.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A Broad-Minded Physician with Progressive Ideas.

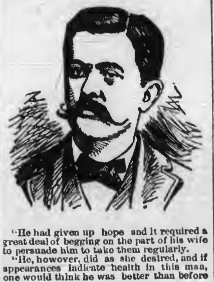
From the Examiner, Lancaster, Pa.

"AKRON, PA., April 24th, '95.

DR. WILLIAMS' MEDICINE CO.:

Gentlemen—While it is entirely contrary to the custom of the medical profession to endorse or recommend any of the so-called proprietary preparations, I shall, nevertheless, give you an account of some of my wonderful experiences with your preparation, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The fact is well-known that medical practitioners do not as a rule, recognize, much less, use preparations of this kind, consequently the body of them have no definite knowledge of their virtue or lack of it, but soundly condemn them all without a trial. Such a course is manifestly absurd and unjust, and I, for one, propose to give my patients the best treatment known to me, for the particular disease with which they are suffering, no matter what it is, where or how obtained. I was first brought to prescribe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills about two years ago, after having seen some remarkable results from their use. Reuben Hoover, now of Reading, Pa., was a prominent contractor and builder. While superintending the work of erecting a large building during cold weather, he contracted what was thought to be sciatica. He having first noticed it one morning in not being able to arise from his bed. After the usual treatment for this disease he failed to improve, but on the contrary grew rapidly worse, the case developing into Hemiphlegia, or partial paralysis of the entire right side of the body. Electricity, tonics and massage, etc., were all given a trial, but nothing gave any benefit, and the paralysis continued. In despair he was compelled to hear his physician announce that his case was hopeless. About that time his wife noticed one of your advertisements and concluded to try your Pink Pills.



"He had given up hope and it required a great deal of begging on the part of his wife to persuade him to take them regularly.

"He, however, did as she desired, and if appearances indicate health in this man, one would think he was better than before his paralysis.

"'Why,' says he, 'I began to improve in two days, and in four or five weeks I was entirely well and at work.'

"Having seen these results I concluded that such a remedy is surely worth a trial at the hands of any physician, and consequently when a short time later I was called upon to treat a lady suffering with palpitation of the heart and great nervous prostration, after the usual remedies failed to relieve, I ordered Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was simply astounding. Her attacks became less frequent and also less in severity, until by their use for a period of only two months, she was the picture of health, rosy-cheeked and bright-eyed, as well as ever, and she has continued so until to-day, more than one year since she took any medicine. I have found these pills a specific for chorea, or as more commonly known, St. Vitus' dance, as beneficial results have in all cases marked their use. As a spring tonic any one who, from overwork or nervous strain during a long winter has become pale and languid, the Pink Pills will do wonders in brightening the countenance and in buoying the spirits, bringing roses to the pallid lips and renewing the fountain of youth.

Yours Respectfully,
J. D. ALBRIGHT, M. D."

"You are the only doctor who advises me to stay at home. All the others say I ought to go to a winter resort." "I suppose they have all the patients they want."—Fliegende Blaetter.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

MARTIAL LAW.

An Attempt to Hold a Meeting to Express Anti-American Sentiments.

The Crowd Dispersed by the Gendarmes—The Police of Bilboa Prevent an Attack on the American Consulate—Small Disturbances at Saragossa.

MADRID, March 9.—The action of the mob element in Valencia became so threatening Sunday that martial law was proclaimed in that city Sunday night. A crowd numbering fully ten thousand persons met for the purpose of holding a meeting to express anti-American sentiments. The authorities had issued an order forbidding the holding of such meetings, but no attention was paid to it. The gendarmes at the bull ring refused to allow the mob to enter and were told that they were traitors to Spain. Then several persons in the crowd cried "Long live the Republic," whereupon the gendarmes charged the mob. The crowd answered with several revolver shots, one of the gendarmes being seriously wounded in the chest. The situation had assumed such a menacing aspect that orders were given to the gendarmes to fire upon the mob. A volley was fired from the carbines carried by the gendarmes and the crowd scurried for shelter. It is not known positively whether anybody was shot or not, but it is believed that the volley was fired over the heads of the rioters. Later the courage of the crowd returned, and with augmented numbers the mob marched through the streets shouting: "Long live Spain," "Death to the Yankees."

The police and gendarmes repeatedly opposed the crowd, but their efforts to restore order were not of the slightest avail. The governor of the province then proclaimed martial law and any further rioting will be dealt with sternly by the military power.

The governor, acting under imperative orders from Madrid, had concentrated a strong force around the American consulate. The crowd attempted to pass these guards, but were unable to do so. Then they hurled insults at the American government and American people. Sunday night the city was quiet, the mob not having the courage to face the troops who are awaiting orders to deal with rioters.

There was several small disturbances Sunday at Saragossa but the authorities were alert and determined and the rioters were easily dispersed.

At Bilboa, a crowd of 500 persons attempted to make an attack upon the American consulate but were prevented by the police.

ADMIRAL WALKER

Dies of Heart Failure, Superinduced by La Grippe.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., March 9.—Rr. Adm. Walker, U. S. N., died Sunday afternoon at his home in this city. He had been suffering since Tuesday last with a severe attack of the grip, but the immediate cause of death was heart failure. He was born on a plantation on the Lynn Haven river, Virginia, 88 years ago. During the war of the rebellion he commanded the gunboats Taylor and Lexington, and protected Gen. Grant's army while it was making its retreat on the transports. He was also at the battle of Ft. Henry in charge of the gunboat Carondelet. Not one of the men aboard met with any accident. For this piece of work the commander was honorably mentioned. In 1862, for his bravery he was made a captain; in 1866 made a commodore and rear admiral in 1870. One year later he retired.

Electric Cars Collide.

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—In a collision Sunday night between suburban street cars, a large number of people were seriously injured and four of them may die.

The collision occurred about 5 o'clock Sunday evening on the newly completed Kirkwood electric railroad, which connects the suburban town of Kirkwood, ten miles out, with this city. It is a single track road, the cars passing one another on switches. While the car, heavily laden, was waiting for another to pass, the switch became turned in some manner, throwing both together.

LONDON PRESS

Makes Comment on England's Blue Book on the Venezuela Boundary Dispute.

LONDON, March 7.—The Morning Post, commenting on the Blue Book, Saturday says: Unless Venezuela possesses evidence which has been carefully suppressed and quite unknown to Great Britain, the fact is now placed beyond doubt that the true history of the case is the opposite to that assumed gratuitously by Secretary of State Olney. The paper predicts that when the case is studied in the United States the people will completely reverse their judgment and admit that Great Britain's dealing with Venezuela have been an honorable example of moderation, forbearance and fairness.

The Daily News says that the case is impressively strong, but the stronger it is the less reason Lord Salisbury can urge against unconditional arbitration. A great friendly power has interposed in the interests of peace. What will be the next step? We must have either a court acknowledged by both parties or a joint commission. The latter is probably the most hopeful course.

The Standard says: The preliminary statement is necessarily exparte. In any event, every intelligent American must, after mastering the British contention, divest himself of any lingering suspicion that we are touching even the fringe of the Monroe doctrine.

The Daily News says it understands that the evidence produced in the Blue Book is only a small part of the material available.

The Chronicle will say: "We must confess that we are dissatisfied with the presentation of the case by the strict advocates of the line that has been pursued. The weak points have been studied and undue emphasis laid upon essential matters. We are compelled to conclude that in this as in other high concerns that have been committed to Lord Salisbury's care, he has shown himself a not too skillful, tactful or well informed defender of the honor and interests of the empire."

The paper concludes by declaring that it believes that the country will emerge with its honor unstained and with all its reasonable claims admitted.

RIOTING IN ITALY.

The Greatest Excitement Prevails and Reports of Disorders Come In From Many Places.

ROME, March 7.—There was a renewal Friday night of the riotous demonstrations here against the government. The mob smashed the windows of several buildings and stoned the police. [illegible] were fired and 13 soldiers and policemen and two rioters were wounded.

At Pavia a mob tore up the railway, preventing the departure of trains. They also cut a number of telegraph wires. The rioters then proceeded to the perfecture of police and smashed all the windows in the building. The police fired into the mob and it is reported that many were wounded.

The greatest excitement prevailed everywhere, and reports of disorders come in from all directions. Excited radical, socialist and republican socialist members of the chamber of deputies were seen in Rome Friday evening amid crowds of people, crying "Long live Menelek!" "Long live anarchy!"

The socialist deputies have issued a manifesto urging the people to insist upon the governments calling troops from Abyssinia and granting amnesty to those persons imprisoned for taking part in the recent socialist riots in Sicily.

He was also in the insurance business and when arrested had his safe full of policies upon which he collected the premiums but did not send to the companies.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 7.—The minister of foreign affairs, Tewfix Pasha, has renewed in the presence of Miss Clara Barton, of the Red Cross society, his promise to permit the distributors of relief to go to Anatolia. Nevertheless, the sultan has ordered the stay of execution, allowing Miss Barton to allow aid to sufferers.

No Sympathy From Russia.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A special from St. Petersburg says: Spain's attitude toward the United States in connection with the Cuban question is regarded here as ridiculous.

IN THE SENATE.

The Conference Report on the Cuban Resolution to Be Called Up.

The Dupont Election Case to Be Considered—The Bill to Prevent the Extermination of Fur Seal Will Be Taken Up Thursday—Business in the House.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The conference report on the Cuban resolutions will be called up in the senate Monday. When the report was presented on Thursday last by Mr. Sherman, wherein the senate receded from its own resolutions and agreed to those passed by the house, objection to present consideration was made by Mr. Hale, of Maine. Mr. Sherman then gave notice that he would call the report up immediately after the morning business Monday. A conference report being privileged it has the right of way. Mr. Hale, it is understood, will take the opportunity thus offered to explain why he voted against the resolutions when they were before the senate for consideration. Mr. Chandler, who did not participate in the debate at that time, but who voted for the resolutions, may make a short speech in which he will state his views, which are more extreme than those of any of his colleagues. Mr. Chandler holds that this government should not only declare the independence of the island of Cuba, but that the United States should set up that independence and notify Spain and the whole world that she was ready and able to maintain it.

The Dupont case, involving the legality of the alleged election in Delaware, still holds its place as the unfinished business. Mr. Turpie, of Indiana, has the floor for Monday. His speech will be replied to by Mr. Pritchard, of North Carolina, a member of the committee. Mr. Gray, of Delaware, and Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, will also speak on this subject during the week. There is a general belief that the debate will end this wek, for there is no disposition on the part of the democrats to delay the vote. Mr. Gray, representing the democrats, says there is a plain case against the legality of the claim of Mr. Dupont, and that if the senate votes according to the facts as they are presented, Mr. Dupont will not be seated. Mr. Mitchell is equally firm in his belief that there can be but one side to the case, and that Mr. Dupont will be seated. The impression among republicans is that Mr. Dupont will get the solid vote of the republicans, together with one, and perhaps [illegible] ulist votes. This, of course, would give him his seat. The silver men appear to have been carefully sounded on the subject, and though interested in the case, say that silver will not figure in the matter at all, but that the case will be decided on its merits entirely, even though the seating of Dupont does mean one or more anti-silver men in the senate.

The bill to prevent the extermination of the fur seals of Alaska (which seems to prevent such extermination by exterminating them under authority of the United States and thereby preventint the further exercise of cruelty by pelagic sealers) has been the special order for Thursday. This measure will cause some debate, at least on the part of Senator Morgan, who is bitterly opposed to its provisions and was defeated in committee by a majority of only one.

It is the expectation of the house managers to devote the coming week to the consideration of appropriation bills and the contested election cases of Aldrich vs. Robbins, from the Fourth Alabama district.

The post office appropriation bill is the pending business, and when it has been disposed of election cases will be taken up, unless the illness of Mr. Turner (dem., Va.), a member of the committee reporting the case, should necessitate a postponement.

DILLSBORO, Ind., March 9.—A disastrous freight wreck took place on the B. & O. S. W. railroad a mile and a half west of here Sunday morning. The cause is still a mystery and the responsibility is being shifted from the crew of one train to that of the other. Both trains came together head on and a second later the long train of cars that followed began piling up in a shapeless mass. Twenty-two cars in all were reduced to kindling and their contents were scattered over the track. Ten of the cars contained cattle, nearly all of which were either killed outright or badly maimed. None of the crews were injured.

Waylaid and Killed.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Stephen Powell one of the wealthiest and most prominent men on Long Island, was murdered in a most brutal manner at about 11 o'clock Saturday night, as he was returning from his place of business on Main street to his home on Fulton street. Mr. Powell was in the habit of carrying large sums of money upon his person. It is supposed that his murderer or murderers learned of this fact and awaited an opportunity to waylay him.

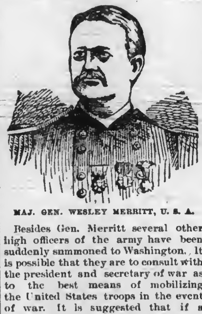
GEN. MERRITT

Summoned to Washington—He Will Probably Be Sent on a Secret Mission of Importance.

CHICAGO, March 7.—A morning paper says: Gen. Wesley Merritt, commander of the department of the Missouri, has been summoned to Washington for conference with the president and his advisors on a secret mission of importance. At army headquarters it is said that President Cleveland contemplates sending a military commission to Cuba to examine into the condition of affairs on the island, and it is surmised that Gen. Merritt is to be intrusted with the leadership of the commission. No member of Gen. Merritt's staff is willing to be quoted in the matter, as the secrecy that is being observed at Washington enjoins silence.



MAJ. GEN. WESLEY MERRITT, U. S. A.

Besides Gen. Merritt several other high officers of the army have been suddenly summoned to Washington. It is possible that they are to consult with the president and secretary of war as to the best means of mobilizing the United States troops in the event of war. It is suggested that if a single commissioner is sent to Cuba it would be a military man, as his investigation would have to be principally of a military character. It would not surprise those who regard the sending of a commission as probable if Gen. Merritt were selected. He is a great friend of the president. He is third in rank in the army, a distinguished soldier and, moreover, possesses a judicial temperament.

A GOOD CATCH.

CHICAGO, March 7.—An important capture of "green goods" men was made Friday by the post office inspectors of this city, in conjunction with Deputy [illegible] Thomas P. Grey and Wm. A. Richards, of Des Moines, Ia. The captured men are Chas. Herd, alias Vogel, sr.; E. Gray alias Vogel, jr., and Frank Smythe. The capture was made at the Hotel Delaware, on Cottage Grove avenue, near Sixty-third street, and was the result of an appointment growing out of an extensive correspondence and repeated interviews. The seizure was very dramatic, weapons being freely displayed on both sides and the guests of the hotel being thrown into a panic.

A satchel containing $25,000 in good money, which was found in the possession of the prisoners, was taken in charge by the officers.

SPAIN GETTING READY.

The Arsenal at Cadiz Worked to Its Full Capacity in Manufacturing Guns, Cartridges, Etc.

MADRID, March 7.—The arsenal at Cadiz is being worked to its full capacity in the manufacture of guns, cartridges for artillery, etc., and the greatest activity prevails. The city of Barcelona is perfectly quiet. Meetings were held at Valladolid, Granada and Ovidio Thursday night, calling upon the government to adopt the most energetic measures. The governor of Valencia has apologized to the United States consul there for the hostile attitude of the rioters in that city toward the consulate, which was attacked with stones and other missiles by the mob. It is reported in several towns that addresses be signed thanking the British and French press for the expressions of sympathy with Spain and heralded to the consuls of those countries.

Accident at a Funeral.

CHICAGO, March 7.—While the funeral of Miss Mary Jedlica was in progress Friday morning, at 151 West Sixteenth street, the sidewalk in front of the house collapsed, causing 100 people to fall ten feet into a basement area. Italian Troops in Danger.

LONDON, March 7.—The Daily News Saturday publishes a dispatch from Rome saying that 2,000 Italian troops who escaped from the recent slaughter inflicted upon the army in Abyssinia, escaped and took refuge in Adiggett, which place is now besieged by the Abyssinians. The position of the Italians is desperate. There is in the town a supply of provisions sufficient for only three days.

National Home for Disabled Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Secretary Lamont sent to the house Friday the report of the inspector general on the inspection of the several branches of the National Home for Disabled Soldiers. It shows the home to be in good condition and satisfactorily managed. The averaging number of members cared for during the past year was 16,477, which nearly equals the combined strength of infantry and artillery of the army. Adding to this the average number of members constantly absent for longer or shorter periods, the total average number of members reaches 20,207.

Suicide Before Surrender.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., March 7.—Wm. Ettiinger, the backwood's desperado, who has been imprisoned in his house by the sheriff, committed suicide Friday afternoon by shooting himself in the head after his house had been set on fire by the sheriff's posse in an attempt to drive him out. His wife and children surrendered and escaped death from the flames. The body of the dead constable was then recovered. After the building was enveloped in flames, Ettlinger came to the door and, in the presence of the crowd, shot himself, falling back into the ruins.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS

First Session.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—SENATE—The bill passed by the senate Monday for the increase of the navy attracted considerable attention in view of the tension over Spanish-Cuban affairs. The bill as passed authorizes the addition of 1,000 enlisted men to the navy, the enlisting for not more than two years of the naval militia forces in case of emergency, and the chartering of transport ships in case of emergency. The bill passed under the five-minute rule and by unanimous vote. Another bill of general interest passed, which establishes a retired list for the revenue marine service, similar to the retirement system of the army and navy.

HOUSE—The house Monday passed resolutions favoring the recognition of the Cuban insurgents as belligerents, and declaring that the United States protect American interests by intervention if necessary. The announcement of the passage of the resolutions was a signal for an enthusiastic demonstration in which the galleries heartily joined. For fully a minute handclapping continued. The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the legislative appropriation bill. Without action the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—SENATE—The principal subject before the senate Tuesday was the agricultural appropriation bill, carrying appropriations to the aggregate amount of $3,262,652. It was passed with very little opposition or discussion, and is the sixth regular appropriation bill that has passed both houses. The only other appropriation bill that has been received from the house is that for the Indian department, and it is now in the hands of the committee on appropriations.

HOUSE—Tuesday's session of the house was almost wholly devoted to the discussion of the amendment proposed to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, to make the offices of district attorney and United States marshal salaried ones, instead of paying incumbents with fees. A mistake having been made in the message conveying the Cuban resolutions passed Monday to the senate, whereby they were described as house concurrent resolutions, instead of a substitute for the senate resolution a resolution was adopted on motion by Mr. Hitt (rep., Ill.) asking a return of them, in order to make the necessary corrections. They were shortly returned, in accordance with the request.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—SENATE—The senate Wednesday began the consideration of the Du Pont election case, from Delaware. Mr. Mitchell spoke in favor of seating Mr. Du Pont, but no action was taken. Mr. Sherman reported back the Cuban resolutions, and moved that the house amendment to the senate resolutions be non-concurred in, and that a conference committee be appointed. The motion was agreed to, and the vice president appointed Senators Sherman, Morgan and Lodge a conference committee. It appears probable that if the house insists upon its substitute the house resolution will be accepted as the expression of the joint opinion of the two bodies. Mr. Frye, from the committee on foreign relations, reported the house Dingley bill, providing against the extermination of the Alaska fur seals, which was made a special order for next Thursday.

HOUSE—The house spent the entire day fixing the salaries of United States district attorneys in the amendment to the legislative appropriation bill to abolish the fee system. The law at present fixes the maximum salary from fees at $6,000. The salaries for the district attorneys were fixed as follows: Indiana, [illegible]; Kentucky, $5,000; Ohio, northern and southern, $4,000; Tennessee, eastern, middle and western, $4,000. Texas, northern, $3,000, eastern, $5,000; western, $3,500; West Virginia, $4,000. The request of the senate for a conference on the Cuban resolutions was received, but not acted upon Wednesday. The conference report on the army appropriation bill was adopted. A number of private bills were introduced.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—SENATE—The senate took up the Dupont contested election case, and Mr. Mitchell (rep. Ore.) resumed his argument in favor of Mr. Dupont. Upon its conclusion Mr. Turpie (dem. Ind.) took the floor to open the argument against Mr. Dupont, but yielded until Monday. Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, presented a joint resolution directing the president to issue a proclamation recognizing the independence of Cuba. The senate passed a bill directing the judiciary committee to investigate the subject of "Contempt of Court" and report what amendatory legislation was necessary. The last resolutions was drawn by Mr. Hill and is a substitute for resolution for an inquiry into the imprisonment of E. V. Debs. The senate adjourned till Monday.

HOUSE—A large number of private bills were introduced Thursday. The house committee on invalid pensions Thursday decided to report favorable the bill passed by the senate granting to the widow of ex-Secretary Gresham a pension of $100 per month. A favorable report was also authorized on a bill granting a pension of $10 to the widow of Gen. Kelly. A bill was passed on motion of Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.) to make the national military parks national fields for maneuvers of the regular army and militia of the United States under regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of war. Congressman Phillips (Pa.) introduced Thursday, at the request of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, a bill to restrict the jurisdiction of United States courts in proceedings for contempt.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—After seven days' consideration, four of which were devoted to the fee and salary amendment, the house Friday passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. The house also passed house bill requiring pension agents to make all payments by check, and agreed to senate amendments to the house bill making seven years' consecutive and unexplainable absence sufficient proof of a soldier's death in case of application for pensions. The post office appropriation bill was taken up and discussed until the hour of recess. At five o'clock, on motion of Mr. Loud, the house took a recess until eight o'clock p. m., and then passed a number of private pension bills.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—SENATE—Not in session Saturday.

HOUSE—The post office appropriation bill was considered in the house Saturday, and Congressman Bromwell gave notice that he would later on have something to say about the fast mail service provided for in the bill, and would offer amendments providing for a fast mail service from Cincinnati to the south, and from Washington to St. Louis via Cincinnati. The house entered upon consideration of the eighth of the thirteen regular appropriations, that providing for the postal service. It is the largest of the supply bills, carrying over $91,000,000. A series of attempts were made to increase the compensation of fourth-class postmasters, but they went before points of order. The controverted items in the bill relate to post office inspectors and special mail facilities. The agricultural bill was sent to conference.

She is made executrix of the will. The value of the estate is not estimated.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 9.—A powder explosion in the store of Edward Pickle, in Riverdale, Saturday morning destroyed $10,000 worth of general merchandise. The cause is unknown.

THE REPUBLICAN REVOLT.

Beginning of Trouble for the St. Louis Convention.

Five republican senators voted against taking up the tariff bill for the action of the senate. They were Cannon, of Utah, Carter and Mantle, of Montana, Dubois, of Idaho, and Teller, of Colorado. Carter is the chairman of the republican national committee. Four populist senators, elected as republicans or by republican votes in their respective states—Butler, of North Carolina, Jones and Stewart, of Nevada, and Peffer, of Kansas—also voted against taking up the bill.

When the vote was announced the republican leaders declared that the bill was dead beyond hope of revival and that it was the end of all attempts to legislate on the tariff at this session. The silver republicans were denounced as responsible for the failure of tariff legislation and were read out of the party. Senator Teller defiantly retorted: "We can get along better without the party than the party can without us." The event is regarded as parallel in the main with the "bolt" of the slavery democrats in 1860.

The succession of events, however, in the two cases, looking to the future, appears to be reversed. The democratic bolt of 1860 began in the national convention at Charleston, when the southern delegates left their seats, walked out of the building and organized a rival convention in another place. The movement was regarded with great general alarm. It did not require great political sagacity to foresee that the disruption of the democratic party would be followed by the election of a republican president, which would be followed in turn by the withdrawal of the southern members of congress as their delegates had withdrawn from the national convention. The forecast became history.

The great republican silverite bolt of 1896, instead of beginning in the national convention, began in congress. It came the other end foremost. Republican senators representing the silver states, headed by the chairman of the republican national committee, deliberately walked out of their party ranks, as Senators Jeff Davis, Hunter, Mason, Benjamin and the other secessionist senators, headed by Vice President Breckinridge, walked out of the senate chamber in 1861.

It is one of the extremely probable events of the future that history will repeat itself in reversed order in the disruption of the republican party in 1896. The silver republican senators are embittered and determined. They deliberately separated from their party. They were denounced and read out by the leaders. They returned defiance and menace. There is more prospect that the quarrel will be aggravated than that it will be reconciled.

In his speech in the senate defending the bolt of the republican silverites Chairman and Senator Carter read the republican leaders a solemn warning. Declaring substantially that the republican platform of 1892 was a silver bimetallism platform, he said: "If the platform of 1896 announced to the country, in conjunction with the action of reports bearing on the two conventions, that the plank on bimetallism adopted at Minneapolis was a delusion a fraud and a snare, it would be just as well for the republican party not to make a nomination at St. Louis at all."

This is timely warning. It indicates the course that the republican silverites will pursue at St. Louis and their determination to bolt the convention and defeat the candidate unless a sixteen to one platform shall be adopted. —Chicago Chronicle.

DINGLEY [illegible]

Exposure of Repu[illegible] Sham and Rottenness.

Senator Aldrich in the senate acknowledged the inability of the republican party to pass the pretended emergency tariff bill that was framed and passed through the house of representatives in 48 hours last December. The senate is republican, because it is organized by a combination of republicans and populists, whereby the spoils of office are divided between the two parties. The senate refuses to pass the Dingley tariff bill, simply because the populists and republicans cannot agree upon a division of the benefits from this bill, as they did upon the patronage of the senate.

The failure of the bill is a confession of the hypocrisy of the republicans in presenting it. But there is another exposure. The bill was prepared as a measure to supply needed revenues. It was framed without any calculation as to whether it would accomplish this result. It was two months after the bill passed the house that an estimate of its effect was made, and the judgment of the experts was that there would be no increase of revenue supplied except through the wool schedule, and the best possible improvement that could be expected was an addition of $11,000,000 to the revenue. So that instead of supplying the deficiency of 1895, republican statesmanship was only able to propose a measure that would grant one quarter of the relief needed, but republican statesmanship was unable to carry even this inadequate measure through, because republican teachings have inculcated selfishness to such an extent that the highest republican aims are for shares of the spoils, whether of patronage or of legislation.

The republican tariff teachings have been that the chief end of a tariff was to benefit somebody. The silver senators in the west, who represent states admitted to the union solely to maintain the republican supremacy in the electoral college, have learned the lesson of selfishness from their party. They are protectionists, but they want a share in the benefits of protection. They want protection for the silver industry. The republicans and the populists fell out over a division of the benefits. The result is an exposure of sham and selfishness and incompetency of the republican party. Never was a party in such disgrace, and never did a party earn its disgrace more honestly. —Utica Observer.

——Why should the republican silver men be criticised by their party associates? All they have done is to carry "protection" to its logical end of looking out for number one.—Albany Argus.

——"Gentlemen, the democratic party is not dead. The time is not at hand to dissolve its organization and distribute its assets among the populists at large. I hope the democratic party will enter upon the coming political contest on a perfectly sound declaration of principles. If it does, it will come out of it with unimpaired strength, with an unblemished record and with courage for the fight."—Secretary Carlisle.

TREASURY FULL.

An Exploded Bunco Scheme [illegible] Republicans.

In his speech in the senate the other day Mr. Sherman insisted on the need of more revenue, saying that the deficit for the fiscal year was already $20,000,000, and at the same rate would be $30,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year. His intention, of course, was to produce the impression that the deficit was likely to increase at the same rate.

It appears, however, that there was a small surplus of revenue over expenditures for February. Moreover, the deficit for the eight months ending February 29 was $18,558,537, or nearly $1,500,000 less than stated by Senator Sherman. Treasury officials believe that the deficit at the end of the year will not exceed this amount. This, of course, is based upon existing conditions and prospects, and would not hold good in case of war or any other unforeseen event seriously affecting receipts or expenditures.

When it is added that the treasury contains over $140,000,000 of idle money, most of which the law requires shall be reissued, it will be seen how ridiculous is the claim that an increase of taxation is immediately needed for the relief of the treasury. As long as the "endless chain" operates to take gold out of the treasury and put greenbacks into it, there will be no need of more taxes, unless expenditures be [illegible] increased. The pretense that [illegible] ury is suffering for want of [illegible] meet current expenses is an [illegible] bunco game. Notice is hereby given that their will be a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee of Boone County, at 2 o'clock, p. m., on the 1st Monday in April, 1896. This meeting is called for the purpose of determining whether or not a primary for the nomination of Democratic candidates for county offices, shall be held on the day of the Presidential election in November, 1896.

D. E. CASTLEMAN Chairman.
B. L. Rice, Secretary.

THE legislature will adjourn next Tuesday.

WHEN Democrats vote for the nominee they do not have to rise to explain their votes.

KENTUCKY will present Gov. Bradley's name as a Republican candidate for President.

IF Spain can not whip Cuba, what can she expect by engaging in a war with the United States?

BOONE will have six votes in the next Republican state convention, which meets at Lexington, April 15th.

GOV. BRADLEY has reappointed all the members of the State Board of Equalization. They are all Democats.

HAD the Democrats all voted for Blackburn last Saturday, he would have been elected and had votes to spare.

DR. HUNTER had some very warm friends at Frankfort, and also some pretended friends who were knifing him at every opportunity.

Solomon Everidge, Knott county, never wore a shoe until he was sixty-eight years old and has managed most of the time to worry along without a hat.

THE sound money Democrats in the Legislature declare that it is impossible to elect Joe Blackburn; and they should also add that "his election is rendered impossible by our treachery."

THE Courier-Journal advocated the election of Horace Greeley because he was the nominee of the Democratic party, and to be consistent it should advocate the re-election of Senator Blackburn for the same reason.

WHEN Senator Bronston, a "sound" money Democrat, denounces Secretary Carlisle, another sound "money" Democrat, as "the boss traitor of them all," it looks very much like there is a lack of harmony in that wing of the party.

GOV. McKINLEY has the call on all the other candidates in his party for the nomination for the presidency, and unless some people become too inquisitive about his position on the money question, and turn the tide, he will be nominated by acclamation.

THE Kentucky Press Association will hold its annual meeting at Georgetown, June 24th. The good people of that enterprising little city will give the boys a royal reception, and after quenching their thirst at the Big Spring they will leave for Niagara Falls.

MESSRS. WESSINGER, CARROLL & Co. are Democratic honeys, to be sure. They would prefer seeing a Republican elected United States Senator to a Democrat who differs from them on a single proposition. Nobody has a right to political views in which they do not concur.

IT is publicly proclaimed that Gov. Bradley is the choice of the Kentucky Republicans for President, and his name will be presented to the national convention. There are some Republicans in Kentucky who think the presidential toga is several sizes too large for the Governor.

SENATOR BLACKBURN'S speech before the Democratic caucus, last Thursday night, was an effort of which all Democrats should be proud. If each of the so called sound money Democrats were as true to their party as Joe Blackburn is, Blackburn would have been elected a month ago.

ON Tuesday of last week the Courier-Journal called upon the "sound" money Democrats, who had been voting for Blackburn for Senator, to bolt the nominee and vote for a "sound" money man. Of course the Courier-Journal did not care, whether the "sound" money man was a Democrat or a Republican.

In the Courier-Journal of last Friday, and in the first paragraph on [illegible], in regard to the proceedings of the Democratic caucus [illegible] night, is found the following statement: "Senator [illegible] a speech refusing [illegible] That the above [illegible] Blackburn is not [illegible] by the following [illegible] speech, published [illegible] "Gentlemen, [illegible] consider only [illegible]. See to it that [illegible] the cause for [illegible] in your judgment [illegible] another to [illegible] power is un[illegible] other that [illegible] forces, be [illegible] him, [illegible], and [illegible] I have [illegible] democracy [illegible]"

[illegible] past, have [illegible] one of the best examples on record where the tail wagged the dog. For a month or more a mere handful of men, who pose as sound money Democrats, five in all, have baffled every attempt and frustrated every endeavor made by the remaining Democrats of that body to return to the U. S. Senate a man well worthy of the position and to which he is entitled by virtue of the fact that he is the choice of sixty two out of sixty seven of his party.

There has been no time within the past month but what Mr. Blackburn, with the entire support of his party, could have captured the coveted position; but, on account of the fact that his views on the financial question do not coincide with the views of the five bolters, they refuse, and stubbornly refuse, to support him.

What if Joe Blackburn does not agree with them on this topic, is he not the caucus nominee of an overwhelming majority of the party? Is not this fact alone sufficient to entitle him to their cooperation? Is or should not the minority be bound by the acts of the majority? The last two of these questions they answer in the negative and Mr. Carlisle in his reply to a letter to him from a large majority of the Democrats of the Kentucky legislature, requesting him to use his influence to induce the bolters from the party caucus to return to the party allegiance and support the nominee in substance, says, "No, the minority is not bound by the acts of the majority; they are responsible to their immediate constituents." In other words, "if the action of the party in convention is not satisfactory to any faction of the party, no matter how small or insignificant, the representatives of that faction have the right to resist and to refuse to act with the party, being responsible to their immediate constituents." His reply is nothing more nor less than an invitation to a mere handful of single gold standard men to disrupt the party organization, defy the will of the majority and to throw all considerations of party to the winds. Naturally a Democrat who believes in the principles of his party, and is alive to the absolute necessity of party unity and harmony, can not afford to endorse such a doctrine. This is the doctrine that justifies the attitude of the bolting Democrats (if they may be so called) of our legislatue, and is depended on to justify any similar disposition on the part of the gold standard men wherever and whenever they find themselves in the minority.

This is an exceedingly dangerous doctrine to promulgate at this moment. If this is good doctrine for the gold contractionist it must of necessity be good doctrine for the free coinage Democrat. If this doctrine of individual independence is sauce for the gold goose it ought to be equally good sauce for the silver gander.

Carlisle's doctrine fits admirably in the South, where the free coinage Democrats have heavy majorties; but it does not suit his purposes at all when it is applied to the national convention, where the Democratic states will be outvoted by men who represent States that are sure to give Republican majorities. Such a doctrine make the gold element shiver when they contemplate its result, it applied to the national convention. In that convention the delegates from the safe Democratic States are to be outvoted by men who represent, for the most part, Republican constituencies. The delegates from the Democratic States are expected to submit without a murmur to a platform, dictated by a candidate named by delegates from Republican States, which I hope, will not be the case; but if such a thing should happen, they would be expected to take their medicine like little men and go home to their free coinage constituents shouting for a gold platform and a gold standard candidate. They would be expected to forget that the individual is independent of party obligations. They would be expected to ignore the doctrine Carlisle promulgates in his letter to the legislature, declaring that a representative is not responsible to his party at large, but to his immediate constituents.

As a matter of fact Mr. Carlisle has (with the consent of Mr. Cleveland) approved of the Kentucky bolt. He has proved himself a traitor of the worst type; he has betrayed the trust of his people to whom he owes all that he is; he has deserted them in the hour of battle with the possibilities of defeat hovering closely around them, when it was in his power to pilot them unto victory.

Boone county snatched him, on one occasion, from the throes of an ignominious defeat, which prevented his political career being ended there and then. Will she dance to his music longer? O. R.

SENATOR WEISSINGER, who was leading the opposition to Senator Blackburn, died of pneumonia at the Capital Hotel in Frankfort last Monday. He was from Louisville. As the legislature adjourns on the 17th inst. there is not time in which to fill the vacancy before the adjournment.

THE fifth trial of Dr. Massie for the murder of Jesse Honaker, was concluded in the Owen Circuit Court last week, and for the fourth time the jury fixed his punishment at confinement in the penitentiary for life. The jury was composed of Carroll county men. Of course the case will be taken to the Court of Appeals again.

STOCK AND CROP.

James A. Springfield, of the Hanson country, informs the Madisonville Hustler that he had a ewe recently that gave birth to five lambs. All of them were perfectly formed, but became chilled and died before they were found.

Sixty Mason county farmers, white and colored, left Maysville to locate on Kansas lands purchased from a land syndicate.

STATE NEWS

In November last over 14,000 horses were exported at a price exceeding on an average of over $150.

Two men have been placed in jail at Henderson on the charge of extorting money from Dick Graves by hanging him to a rafter.

There are now 303 pupils at the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Danville. This is the largest number in the history of that institution.

Representatives Berry and McCreary are endeavoring to have the improvement of the Kentucky river placed under the contract system.

The ten-year-old son of Elih Rucker broke into a lake while cutting ice near Ashland. His father jumped in to save him and both were drowned.

Judgment for $25,000 damages was rendered at Owensboro against the Youngstown Bridge Company for the death of Spencer White caused by the fall of a bridge.

At Stanford, Frank Ellis was shot, while in the custody of the jailer, by John B. Murphy, and dangerously wounded. He was on his way to the Court House for trial. While Marshal of Junction City, Ellis shot and killed a brother of Murphy. Ellis has killed two men.

During 1895 the mills of the Kentucky river cut about 190,000 poplar logs and bought about 95,000 new logs. There are now cut and in the tributaries of the Kentucky river, waiting on that much prayed for tide, 110,000 sawlogs, and over half of them are new—of this winter's cut.

The colored Republicans are said to be organizing in every ward in Louisville for the purpose of electing anti-Bradley delegates to the National Convention. They do not think they have received fair treatment in the distribution of the spoils, and characterize Postell's appointment as a bluff.

Perhaps the only colored Postmaster in Kentucky is C. C. Chadwell, who has just been appointed Postmaster at Chadwell, Madison county. Mr. Chadwell, who is a young minister, secured the office by his own efforts, and came here to-day to fix up his bond. Two of the best men in the county have vouched for the faithful performance of his duty as a Government official.

Taking a hint from the success of the famous skunk farm in Clark County, Mr. H. J. Twigg, a young Englishman of White's Station, proposes to establish a possum ranch. Mr. Twigg, who is a great hunter, and who has had ample opportunity to experiment with these animals, reasons that at 'possum meat is such a delicacy, and fat 'possums bringing such fancy prices, money could be made in raising them for the market. He already has 20 in his warren, which, considering their fecundity, will, he thinks, by next fall enable him to supply a big demand. An orchard of persimmons haws and hazelnut trees will be planted near the ranch to furnish food for the animals, from the sale of which Mr. Twigg expects to derive a handsome profit.

A Madison county man has invented "something new under the sun." The Richmond Climax tells about it: "It is said that 'vinegar never catches flies,' but a prominent young farmer near Richmond has invented a machine that will catch them, at least, off of cattle. This is not a joke, but a reality, as the inventor has just returned from Washington, where he had the machine patented at an expense of fees and trip included, about $125. He asks that his name be withheld for the present. This fly catcher consists of an inclosure which the steer or cow enters. Just within is a small space terminating in a well-lighted cupola. The next step is through a dark passage. The flies are at this point brushed off automatically, and rise into the cupola, the animal passes out on the other side, and soon learns to repeat the operation whenever the flies begin to bite. The machine is to be located near the shade, so that the quiet of the cattle will not be disturbed by the flies upon returning from a grazing tour in the sun. It is doubtless money in the pockets of cattle men, as well as comfort to the cattle.

The Maysville Public Ledger prints this story, told by an old citizen, as illustrating that the one stubborn juryman may sometimes be right and his eleven colleagues wrong: "In the poorhouse in Scott county there were two blind men, both of whom had beautiful wives. They kept the neighborhood in a perfect uproar. A party determined to break it up, after trying fair means. They went one night, the snow was a foot deep, and took the doors and windows and piled them together and burned them up; also stoned the houses, and ran the inmates upstairs. The consequence was several persons were arrested, among them a Methodist preacher—one of the best men that ever mounted a pulpit. He wore an overcoat with five capes and a broad-brimmed hat with a round top, and there was not one like it in the county. Well, a jury was summoned. I was too young, but they sent for me as one of the jury. All proved an alibi except the parson, and the women knew him by his hat and coat. There were eleven for finding him guilty and one man hung the jury. The Squires made us come the next morning, and kept us all that day and then dismissed us, saying it was a shame—as plain a case as that ought to be decided in two minutes. The fact was, I wore the parson's hat and coat that night myself; and that jury would have been hanging yet before I would have seen him hurt."

Judge Cram, of Williamstown, was in town yesterday.

Lucien Clore, of the Waterloo neighborhood, and Miss Lulie Cowen, of this place, were married by Rev. T. L. Utz at his residence in Bellevue, last Thursday afternoon. They returned to the home of the bride where they were joined by several friends at a sumptuous supper. The bride and groom are two most excellent young people, and they have many friends who extend congratulations and best wishes.

An exchange contains the following: "The printing press has made Presidents, killed poets, furnished busties for beauties and punished genius with criticism; it has curtailed the power of Kings, graced the pantry shelves and busted; it has converted bankers into paupers and made lawyers out of college Presidents; it has educated the homeless and robbed the philospher of his reason; it smiles and cries and dies, but it can't be run to suit everybody and the man is a fool who tries."

The Rev. Vardeman, although a Baptist, would tickle Alexander Campbell himself were the great expounder of immersion here, says the Richmond Climax. While the snow was 4 inches deep, the thermometer down about the thirties, and a gloom hanging over the country, the Rev. Vardeman took five lady converts down into a Nelson county creek and baptized them. And they "straightway came up out of the water," went home and not one of them has died, or as much as got sick or even married.

The highest price for which he ever sold his tobacco was 18 cents all round, and the lowest price was 3½ cents. He has not sold his 1895 crop. He figures that the tobacco he has sold has averaged him at least $7 per hundred. He has made money out of the crop if he is not mistaken in the average price he has realized.

ROUSE-GUTH WEDDING.

Married at the residence of Mr. Lewis Miller, No. 512 Ninth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, March 4th, 1896, at 1 o'clock p. m., by Rev. H. Max Lentz, of Florence, Ky., Mr. Ezra W. Rouse, of Limaburg, Ky., and Miss Emma Guth, of Cincinnati, in the presence of a large number of friends of the bride. After the ceremony was performed the couple left for the home of the groom near Limaburg, where a suptuous repast had been prepared for them and a few of their friends. Among those present were, Mr. Lewis Miller and wife, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Griffith, of Washington, D. C., Miss Ida Adler, of Cincinnati; Mr. W. L. B. Rouse and wife, Mr. W. E. Walton and wife, Mr. W. C. Rouse and wife, Miss Clementine Walton, Miss Martha V. Rouse, Mrs. Fannie Delph, Rev. H. Max Lentz, Calvin Riggs, W. E. Garnett, John Hood, Jacob Tanner and J. M. Utz.

The dance given by Attorney J. M. Lassing last Friday night was attended by a large crowd of young and old, large and small. Two violins and a banjo, manipulated by three colored men, made music for the occasion, and the dancers were as anxious to trip the light fantastic to its strains, as had the bows been wielded by a trio of Ole Bulls. It was eight o'clock when the first quadrille was organized and the dancing commenced. Sheriff Roberts was about the first to secure a partner, and impatiently awaited the first call to which he responded as only a Chesterfield could. The dance was a long and furious one, and before it was concluded Charlie was greatly fatigued but determined to stay it through.

It took some time for our athletic friend, C. L. Crisler, to muster courage enough to join in the dancing, but when he did, he showed the dancers of the present day the perfect and fashionable steps of ye olden times. Cy distinguished himself by the graceful and easy manner in which he glided over the floor, in perfect time with the music. His first set was composed of about fourteen figures, but he showed excellent staying qualities, and was in better condition at its close than when it began.

Prof Collins and J. B. Berkshire were there and contributed largely to the enjoyment of the occasion, especially whenever "Dan Tucker" was danced. There were several other good dancers present, but we have made especial mention only of those at the head of the list, and in the order they should be classed.

Mr. Lassing's commodious parlors were the scene of uninterrupted pleasure until after midnight, and it was with reluctance that the guests, who had been so handsomely entertained, took their leave of the host and hostess.

Among those present and not from Burlington, were Messers. H. G. Blanton and Charles Souther, of Erlanger; Jas. A. Duncan and daughter, Elmor and Ves Gaines and sister, and Miss Bertha Gaines, of Utzinger, and William Rogers, of Bellevue.

Capt. Moody, the genial John, of Bellevue, was down Sunday. We suppose ere this that the widows' and old maids' hearts are palpitating furiously, for he had a long consultation with our bachelor friend, C. G. Riddell, over the question, "How can we old widowers and bachelors make it easy leap year sailing for the fair maids?"

Shippers along the river are loud in their complaints over the service the packets are giving them. Com. Laidley is doing nothing but inviting opposition, which is strongly talked of.

The young ladies of this place are preparing to give a leap year party in April, assisted by the young widows and old maids. The way that John E., C. G., B. R. and Lucien, are using face powder and lotion, we are afraid will cause a trust to be started on these commodities.

Elijah Hodges has moved to Lick Creek. Sorry to lose him.

There is strong talk of changing the name of our postoffice to "Kidville," which would be very appropriate.

Mrs. Hester O'Neal has moved back to her farm in East Bend from Petersburg.

Mr. Joseph Nushaum, aged [illegible], died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, and will be buried from St. Henry's Church. Rev. Father Kolbe saying Requiem Mass. He leaves a widow and five children.

One of the saddest occurences that this vicinity has witnessed for some time, was the untimely death of John Morris, who died March 3d. It seems that he went to J. E. Walton's Monday to rent some ground, and on returning home was seized with apoplexy, and fell from his horse, where he was accidently found by some children, who were going to Mr. J. H. Walton's sugar camp. They summoned help and took him home, where he expired Tuesday morning. It will be remembered that six years ago he was afflicted with paralysis, and had been in bad health since. He leaves a wife and four children, and a mother 85 years of age, to mourn his death. The family has the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The remains were placed in the vault at St. Mary's cemetery.

N. B. Walton is on the sick list.

C. & E. Walton have sold their grocery at Lebanon, Ohio, and have returned to Kentucky.

Some of the farmers have sold their tobacco for 2 and 3 cents, and still will raise more this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mitchell, of Visalia, have been visiting their son, P. G. Mitchell, of this place, the past week.

WALTON, March 8th.—The religious revival mentioned in last weeks communication has greatly increased. The coming of Bro. Hopper, of Meridian, Miss., has intensified devotional feeling until now it may well be called at fever heat. To the most of those who have attended the meetings, Bro. Hopper seems to be a decided improvement on Bro. Hughes, whose discourses were so highly flavored with superfluous egotism, and who felt so extremely sensitive about being criticised, but who, from his exalted station, as minister felt free to make criticisms on any and every thing. Bro. Hughes' success at the beginning can be attributed in a great measure to Mrs. Hughes, who impressed every one with her many christian graces and womanly devotion to the great cause. Bro. Hopper reaches the heart without the unnecessary use of harsh or undignified language and opprobious epithets about human frailties, and his discourses are tempered with so much kindliness towards the sinners, while showing them the sinfulness of their transgressions, that they hear him with a longing expectation of being relieved of their burden and joining the happy throng treading salvation's path. His sermons are a rare embodiment of the "Suaviter in mode sed fortiler in re" style, and members of all denominations, Baptist, Christian, Presbyterian and Catholic have gone to the altar of prayer, seeking that peace which passeth all understanding. And still the work goes bravely on.

On last Sunday afternoon our streets were crowded with a large delegation from Crittenden, where there has been a greater religious awakening than there has been here up to the present time, who came to witness the baptism of many converts from that place. The oldest inhabitants of either place can not remember any upheaval of religi-

UNTOLD MISERY
FROM RHEUMATISM
C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

FOR SALE-THE LATEST IMPROVED
"ACME" HARROW and
Troy Pivot Axel Farm Wagons.

In calling attention to "ACME" HARROW, we will say that while some points of the it is not our custom to criticise harrows of other kinds, it is only fair to point out [illegible] we find in using this harrow along with other harrows. The [illegible] ment of the Coulters on the "Acme" is such that the entire surface [illegible] the ground is practically cut over, while the Disk Harrow cuts but little more than half the surface—following one of the Disk Harrows the ground may appear to have been cut over, but if a portion of the surface be removed, uncut ridges will be found just underneath. The Disk Harrows are good for certain purposes, but they certainly can not be called general purpose harrows as they have no crushing or leveling device, whereas the "ACME" is a complete Harrow Clod Crusher and Leveler. The "Acme" is very simple and easily adjusted; does not undo the work of the plow; being entirely of cast and wrought iron it is practically indestructible, nothing can wear but the coulters, and these can be replaced at trifling cost. We are selling the "Acme" this [illegible] for but little more than the spike tooth harrow. It is the cheapest riding harrow made. We guarrantee them to give perfect satisfaction.

If you want a wagon made of carefully selected stock, well constructed, well proportioned, handsomely finished, lighter draught, greater carrying capacity than any other, and one that will give you perfect satisfaction, give us your order for the

Spring Medicine

Your blood in Spring is almost certain to be full of impurities—the accumulation of the winter months. Bad ventilation of sleeping rooms, impure air in dwellings, factories and shops, over-eating, heavy, improper foods, failure of the kidneys and liver properly to do extra work thus thrust upon them, are the prime causes of this condition. It is of the utmost importance that you

Purify Your Blood

Now, as when warmer weather comes and the tonic effect of cold bracing air is gone, your weak, thin, impure blood will not furnish necessary strength. That tired feeling, loss of appetite, will open the way for serious disease, ruined health, or breaking out of humors and impurities. To make pure, rich, red blood Hood's Sarsaparilla stands unequalled. Thousands testify to its merits. Millions take it as their Spring Medicine. Get Hood's, because

Each Country Has Its Motto—God's Word Their Rallying Cry—Old World Nations Have Art and Science, But America's Chosen Pursuit Is to Work God's Will.

Dr. Talmage chose for his text Sunday: Revelation iii., 11: "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon."

Is America mentioned in the Bible? Learned and consecrated men who have studied the inspired books of Daniel and Revelation more than I have and understand them better agree in saying that the leopard mentioned in the Bible meant Grecia, and the bear meant Medo-Persia, and the lion meant Babylon, and the beast of the text coming up out of the earth with two horns like a lamb, and the voice of the dragoon means our country, because among other reasons it seemed to come up out of the earth when Columbus discovered it, and it has been for the most part at peace like a lamb, unless assaulted by foreign foe, in which case it has two horns strong and sharp, and the voice of a dragon loud enough to make all nations hear the roar of its indignation. Is it reasonable to suppose that God would leave out from the prophecies of His Book this whole western hemisphere? No, no. "I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon."

Germany for scholarship. England for manufactories. France for manners. Egypt for antiquities. Italy for pictures. But America for God!

I start with the cheering thought that the most popular book on earth to-day is the Bible, the most popular institution on earth to-day is the church, and the most popular name on earth to-day is Jesus. Right from this audience hundreds of men and women would, if need be, march out and die for him.

Am I too confident in saying "America for God?" If the Lord will help me I will show the strength and extent of the long line of fortresses to be taken, and give you my reasons for saying it can be done and will be done. Let us decide in this battle for God, whether we are at Bull Run or at Gettysburg. There is a Fourth of Julyish way of bragging about this country, and the most tired and plucked bird that ever flew through the heavens is the American eagle, so much so that Mr. Gladstone said to me facetiously, at Hawarden: "I hear that the fish in your American lakes are so large that when one of them is taken out the entire lake is preceptibly lowered," and at a dinner given in Paris an American offered for a sentiment: "Here is to the United States—bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, on the east by primeval chaos, and on the west by the Day of Judgment." The effect of such grandiloquence is to discredit the real facts which are so tremendous they need no garnishing. The worst thing to do in any campaign, military or religious, is to underestimate an enemy, and I will have no part in such attempt at belittlement.

This land to be taken for God, according to Hassel, the statistician, has 14,919,967 square miles, a width and a length that none but the Omniscent can appreciate. Four Europes put together, and capable of holding and feeding, as it will hold and feed, according to Atkinson, the statistician, if the world continues in existence and does not run afoul of some other world or get consumed by the fires already burning in the cellars of the planet—capable, I say, of holding and feeding more than one billion of inhabitants. For you must remember it must be held for God as well as taken for God, and the last five hundred million inhabitants must not be allowed to swamp the religion of the first five hundred million. Not much use in taking the fortress if we can not hold it. It must be held until the Archangel's trumpet bids living and dead arise from this foundering planet.

You must remember it is only about 7 o'clock in the morning of our nation's life. Great cities are to flash and roar among what are called the "Bad Lands" of the Dakotahs and the great "Columbia Plains" of Washington state, and that on which we put our schoolboy fingers on the map and spelled out as the "Great American Desert," is, through systematic and consummating irrigation, to bloom like Chatsworth park and be made more productive than those religions dependent upon uncertain and spasmodic rainfalls. All those regions, as well as those regions already cultivated, to be inhabited! That was a sublime thing said by Henry Clay while crossing the Alleghany mountains, and he was waiting for the stage horses to be rested, as he stood on a rock, arms folded, looking off into the valley, and some one said to him: "Mr. Clay, what are you thinking about?" He replied: "I am listening to the on-coming tramp of the future generation of America." Have you laid our home missionary scheme on such an infinitude of scale? If the work of bringing one soul to God is so great, can a thousand million be captured? In this country, already planted and to be overcome, paganism has built its altar to brahma, and the Chinese are already burning incense in their temples, and mohammedanism, drunk in other days with the red wine of human blood at Lucknow and Cawnpore, and now fresh from the diabolism in Armenia, is trying to get a foothold here, and from the minarets of her mosques will yet mumble her blasphemy, saying, "God is great, and Mohammed is His prophet." Then there are the vaster multitudes with no religion at all. They worship no God, they live with no consolation, and they die with no hope. No star of peace points down to the manger in which they were born, and no prayer is uttered over the grave into which they sink. Then there is alcoholism, its piled up demijohn and beer barrels, and hogshead of fiery death, a barricade high and long as the Alleghenies and Rockies and Sierra Nevadas, pouring forth day and night their ammunition of wretchedness and woe. When a German wants to take a drink he takes beer. When an Englishman wants to take a drink he takes ale. When a Scotchman wants to take a drink he takes whisky. But when an American wants to take a drink he takes anything he can lay his hands on.

Plenty of statistics to tell how much money is spent in this country for rum, and how many drunkards die! But who will give us the statistics of how many hearts are crushed under the heels of this worst demon of the centuries? How many hopes blasted? How many children turned out on the world, accursed with stigma of a debauched ancestry? Until the worm of the distillery becomes the worm that never dies, and the smoke of the heated wine vats becomes the smoke of the torment [illegible] up forever and ever! Al[illegible] [illegible] earing—not with hand up- [illegible] any [illegible] tions [illegible]

There [illegible] in America [illegible] cal socialists in France com[illegible] and [illegible] having but two doctrines: First, there is no God. [illegible] shall be no rights of property [illegible] their chief journals print [illegible] ment: "Dynamite can be [illegible] out of the dead bodies of capitalists as well as out of hogs." One of the leaders of communism left inscribed on his prison wall, where he had been justly incarcerated, these words: "When once you are dead, there is an end of everything; therefore, ye scoundrels, grab whatever you can—only don't let yourselves be grabbed. Amen!" There are in this country hundreds of thousands of these lazy scoundrels.

Honest men deplore it when they can not get work, but those of whom I speak will not do work when they can get it. I tried to employ one who asked me for money. I said: "Down in my cellar is some wood to saw, and I will pay you for it." For a little while I heard the saw going, and then I heard it no more. I went downstairs, and found the wood, but the workman had disappeared, taking for company both buck and saw.

Socialism, communism and nihilism mean, "Too wicked to acknowledge God, and too lazy to earn a living," and among the mightiest obstacles to be overcome are those organized elements of domestic, social and political ruin.

There are also the fastnesses of infidelity, and atheism, and fraud, and political corruption, and multiform, hydra-headed million-armed abominations all over the land. While the mightiest agencies for righteousness on earth are good and healthful newspapers and good and healthful books, and our chief dependence for intelligence and Christian achievement is upon them, what word among the more than one hundred thousand words in our vocabulary can describe the work of that archangel of mischief, a corrupt literature? What man, attempting anything for God and humanity, has escaped a stroke of its filthy wing? What good cause has escaped its hinderment? What other obstacle in all the land so appalling? But I can not name more than one-half the battlements, the bastions, the intrenchments, the redoubts, the fortifications to be stormed and overcome if this country is ever taken for God. The statistics are so awful that if we had nothing but the multiplication table and the arithmetic the attempt to evangelize America would be an absurdity higher than the Tower of Babel before it dropped on the plain of Shinar. Where are the drilled troops to march against those fortifications as long as the continent? Where are the batteries that can be unlimbered against these walls? Where are the guns of large caliber to storm these gates? Well, let us look around and see, the first of all, who is our leader and will be our leader until the work is done. Garibaldi with a thousand Italians could do more than another commander with 10,000 Italians. Gen. Sherman on one side, and Stonewall Jackson on the other, each with 10,000 troops, could do more than some other generals with 20,000 troops. The rough boat in which Washington crossed the icy Delaware with a few half-frozen troops was mightier than the ship of war that, during the American revolution, came through the narrows, a gun at each porthole, and sunk in Hell Gate. Our leader, like most great leaders, was born in an obscure place, and it was an humble home, about five miles from Jerusalem. Those who were out of doors that night said that there was stellar commotion, and music that came out of the clouds, as though the front door of Heaven had been set open, and that the camels heard His first infantile cry. Then He came to the fairest boyhood that mother was very proud of, and from 12 to 30 years of age was off in India, if traditions there are accurate, and then returned to His native land, and for three years had His pathway surrounded with blind eyes that he illumined, and epileptic patients to whom He gave rubicund health, and tongues that He loosed from silence into song, and those whose funerals He stopped that He might give back to bereaved mothers their only boys, and those fevered pulses He had restored into rhythmic throb, and whose paralytic limbs He had warmed into healthful circulation—pastor at Capernaum, but flaming evangelist everywhere, hushing crying tempests and turning rolling seas into solid sapphire, and for the rescue of a race submitted to courtroom filled with howling miscreants, and to a martyrdom at the sight of which the sun fainted and fell back in the heavens, and then treading the crowds homeward, like snowy mountain peaks, till Heaven took Him back again, more a favorite than He had ever been; but, coming again, He is on earth now, and the nations are gathering to His standard. Following Him were the Scotch covenanters, the Theban legion, the victims of the London Haymarket, the Piedmontese sufferers, the Pilgrim Fathers, the Huguenots, and uncounted multitudes of the past, joined by about 400,000,000 of the present, and with the certainty that all nations shall huzza at His chariot-wheel, He goes forth, the moon under His feet and the stars of Heaven for His tiara—the Mighty Leader, He of Drumclog, and Bothwell Bridge, and Bannockburn, and the One who whelmed Spanish Armada, "Coming up from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah, traveling in the greatness of His strength, mighty to save," and behind whom we fall into line to-day and march in the campaign that is to take America for God. Hosanna! Hosanna! Wave all the palm branches! At His feet put down your silver and your gold, as in Heaven you will cast before Him your coronets.

With such a leader do you think we can do it? Say, do you think we can? Why, many ramparts have already been taken. Where is American slavery? Gone, and the south, as heartily as the north, prays "Peace to its ashes." Where is bestial polygamy? Gone, by the fiat of the United States government, urged on by Christian sentiment, and Mormonism, having retreated in 1830 from Fayette, N. Y., to Kirkland, Ohio, and in 1838 retreated to Salt Lake City, now divorced from its superfluity of wives, will soon retreat into the Pacific, and no basin smaller than an ocean could wash out its pollutions. Illiteracy going down under the work of Slater and Peabody funds, and Sabbath schools of all the churches and all denominations! Pugilism made unlawful by congressional enactment, the brutal custom knocked out in the first round. Corruption at the ballot box, by law of registration and other safeguards, made almost impossible! Churches twice as large as the old ones, the enlarged supply to meet the enlarged demand! Nihilism getting a stunning stroke by the summary execution of its exponents after they received its death blow from the recent treaty which sends back to Russia the blatant criminals who had [illegible] Christ sent out His apostles to [illegible] the world? From a city. What place will do more than any other place, by its contribution of Christian men and women and means, in this work of taking America for God? New York city. The way Paris goes, goes France. The way Berlin goes, goes Germany. The way Edinburgh goes, goes Scotland. The way London goes, goes England. The way New York and a couple other cities go, goes America. May the Eternal God wake us up to the stupendous issue!

Another thing quoted pessimistically is the vast and overtopping fortunes in this country, and they say it means concentrated wealth and luxuriousness and display and moral ruin. It is my observation that it is people who have but limited resources who make the most splurge, and I ask you, Who are endowing colleges and theological seminaries? Did you ever hear of Peter Cooper and James Lenox and sainted Wm. E. Dodge and the Lawrences, Astos and Abbott, while I refrain from mentioning living benefactors who, quite as generous and Christian, are at this moment planning what they can do in these days, and in their last will and testament in this campaign that proposes taking America for God? The widow's mite, honored of the Lord, is to have its part in the continental capture, but we must have more than that, and more right away. Many of the men that expect to get the blessing for bestowing the widow's mite will not get the blessing. In the first place, they are not widows, and in the next place they have no "might."

The time is coming—hasten it, Lord! —and I think you and I will see it, when, as Joseph, the wealthy Arimathean, gave for the dead Christ a costly mausoleum, the affluent men and women of this country will rise in their strength and build for our King, one Jesus, the throne of this American continent.

Another thing quoted for discouragement, but which I quote for encouragement, is foreign immigration—now that from Castle Garden we turn back by the first poor ship the foreign vagabondism—we are getting people, the vast majority of whom come to make an honest living; among them some of the bravest and best. If you should turn back from this land to Europe the foreign ministers of the Gospel, and the foreign attorneys, and the foreign merchants, and the foreign philanthropists, what a robbery of our pulpits, our courtrooms, our store houses, and our beneficent institutions, and what a putting back of every monetary, merciful, moral and religious interest of the land? This commingling here of all nationalities under the blessing of God will produce in 75 or 100 years the most magnificent style of man and woman the world ever saw. They will have the wit of one race, the eloquence of another race, the kindness of another, the generosity of another, the æsthetic taste of another, the high moral character of another, and when that man and woman step forth, their brain and nerve and muscle an intertwining of the fibers of all nationalities, noting but the new electric photographic apparatus, that can see clear through body, mind and soul, can take of them an adequate picture. But the foreign population of America is less than eleven per cent. of all our population, and why all this fuss about foreign immigration? Eighty-nine born Americans to 11 foreigners! If 89 of us New Jerseymen, or 89 of us New Yorkers, or 89 of us Ohioans, or 89 of us Georgians, or 89 of us Yankees are not equal to 11 foreigners, then we are a starveling, liliputian group of humunculi that ought to be wiped out of existence.

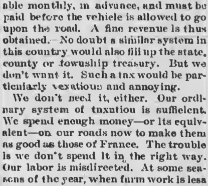
A LARGE collection of 17,000 stuffed birds and many series of bird skeletons has been bequeathed to the British museum by the late Henry Seebohm, the naturalist. It is the most valuable gift made to the natural history section of the museum in a quarter of a century. Its ornithological collection is now the largest in the world, consisting of 300,000 specimens.

THE Holton (Kan.) Signal puts out the following problem for the school children to worry over. "A man found a ten-dollar bill. He paid the grocer and took a receipt. The grocer paid the money over to the real estate agent for rent. The agent paid the ten-dollar bill to the man who owned the property, who happened to be the man who lost the bill. He deposited the bill in the bank and it was returned to him as a counterfeit. Was there anything gained or lost in this series of transactions?"

GILBERT PARKER, the English novelist, who is now visiting Boston, was in Samoa at the time the hurricane wrecked the German and American men-of-war. Mr. Parker, in telling of his experience, said, the other day: "I had been aboard the Vandalia several days and the time had come when I should have to leave. I was undetermined, however, whether to go or stay, and to settle the question I tossed up a coin, heads to go, tails to stay. It came down heads and I left the ship. The next day the storm struck her and she went down."

[illegible] so the proof of which [illegible] the experience of a horseless carriage [illegible] had to be shipped by railroad because the highways were in too bad a condition for it to move on. And that was in New York state, too, and in the best part of it. We do need better roads, not only for horseless carriages, but for horse-carriages as well, and mule wagons, and oxcarts, and every sort of vehicle, whether propelled by steam or naphtha, by hitched-up quadruped or bestriding biped.



AN OBJECT LESSON.

Our consul further suggests a plan for road improvement; or, rather, for raising the money for road improvement. It is the French plan, to wit, a wheel tax. In France all carriages are taxed. Those with seats for one or two persons, $10 a year (in round numbers); those with seats for three, $15, and for four, $20; while bicycles and tricycles are taxed $2 each. These taxes are payable monthly, in advance, and must be paid before the vehicle is allowed to go upon the road. A fine revenue is thus obtained. No doubt a similar system in this country would also fill up the state, county or township treasury. But we don't want it. Such a tax would be particularly vexatious and annoying.

We don't need it, either. Our ordinary system of taxation is sufficient. We spend enough money—or its equivalent—on our roads now to make them as good as those of France. The trouble is we don't spend it in the right way. Our labor is misdirected. At some seasons of the year, when farm work is less pressing than usual, the farmer "works out" his road tax. Generally it is about the worst time of the year for the roads; but that doesn't matter. He takes his horses and plow and scraper, plows up some furrows in the gutter between the wagontrack and the sidewalks, and scrapes the earth up into the middle of the road. That makes the road rough and lumpy. You must drive over it at a walk, as over a newly plowed field. If the weather remains dry it gets dusty; if rain comes on it is a mass of mud. In course of time it gets worn down fairly smooth and hard; and then it is time to "work out" some more taxes, and scrape up some more sods and loose dirt again.

That is what road-making has meant in most country places, and what it still means on thousands of miles of highway in the most highly improved states of this union. If instead of that the same amount of work had been given for the last 25 years to laying drains and making telford, or macadam, or even good gravel roadways, we should to-day have a network of roads all over these states on which any kind of vehicle could run with ease at any time of year. We need no carriage tax, nor gold watch nor silver spoon tax, but only an intelligent and systematic application of our ordinary revenue to the making of roads on a scientific plan.—N. Y. Tribune.

FRUIT FOR THE FAMILY.

How to Have a Fair Variety All the Year Around.

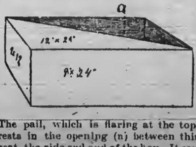
The question is often asked: "What shall I plant in order to obtain a full supply of fresh fruit for a family the year round?" It is difficult to give a precise list, as in some seasons the crop may be many times greater than in others; and again, some will bear abundantly and others fail in the same season. The following, however, will serve as an approximation:

The earliest fruits, about the first of summer, will be the strawberries. A selection of the most productive sorts, well cultivated, with the runners kept out off, will afford about one quart a day from each square rod for a month. Three or four square rods will, therefore, give an abundant supply for a family. Four or five hundred plants will be sufficient for this extent of ground. These will be followed by the earliest cherries, and by currants, raspberries and gooseberries. Two dozen bushes of each of the four best sorts of currants, the same number of raspberries and two dozen of gooseberry will, if well cultivated, furnish an abundant supply. One dozen cherry trees will be enough. Two or three dozen bushes of the blackberry will supply a quart a day for some weeks toward the close of summer. Apricots, early apples and early pears, and a few of the earliest plums, will commence the season of abundance which, with the later varieties of these fruits, will last till near winter. Winter apples and pears, and all the good keeping varieties of the grape, will continue the supply until spring. Long-keeping apples, if placed in a good, cool fruit-room or cellar, will continue until the commencement of the new supply of strawberries.—Farmer's Voice.

CHEAP MILKING STOOL.

Although Easily Made It Answers Its Purpose Admirably.

The accompanying illustration represents a milking stool which has been in use for more than a year, and which is quite satisfactory. It is made from a soap box, 9x12x24 inches. Remove the top and bottom, and on the top nail a triangular board, which covers one-half of the space, as shown in the engraving.



The pail, which is flaring at the top, rests in the opening (a) between this seat, the side and end of the box. It can be readily adjusted so as to rest almost any angle convenient for the milker. This stool is very cheap, and answers the purpose admirably.—J. W. Frey, in Orange Judd Farmer.

One of the biggest institutions in Louisiana, Mo., is the Stark Bros. Nurseries. . . . Seventy years ago there came from Kentucky to Pike County the late Judge Stark, then a young man fresh from Old Hickory's New Orleans campaign. He started the nursery and planted the first grafted orchard in the State, having brought the scions on horseback from Kentucky.

The business has descended from father to son, and is now conducted by the third generation, assisted by the fourth. This firm has more than 1,000 salesmen and wants as many more: business men, professional men, mechanics, farmers and others, however inexperienced, are taught the business and work the year round—receiving good pay weekly. The company employs more people in its offices than would be necessary to run a large manufacturing concern. The extensive packing-houses are connected with the railroad by special track, whence hundreds of car loads of trees are shipped annually. The nursery grounds embrace a number of farms convenient to the city, and even extend to Rockport, Ill., where there is a plant of several million trees.

A peculiarity of the concern is the establishment of large orchards. These orchards, in 24 states, aggregate nearly 50,000 acres, 3,500,000 trees, on the partnership plan. The firm is also interested in nearly as many more trees on the co-operative arrangement. . . . The Nurseries have been beneficial not only to their home, but Missouri owes no little of her prestige as a fruit-growing region to the progress and work of development of this firm.

THERE is a gift that is almost a blow, and there is a kind word that is munificence; so much is there in the way of doing things.—A. Helps.

The Statehouse at Frankfort Now Guarded by Soldiers.

Gov. Bradley Determined to Protect the Legislature — Democratic Senators Threaten His Arrest and Trial For Blocking Legislation.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 16.—The riot bell rang at 11 o'clock Sunday night, and at the same time an order was issued by Gov. Bradley calling out the state guards to preserve the peace. The McCreary guards, 52 strong, under command of Capt. FRANKFORT, Ky., March 16.—3:30 a. m.—Company E, of Lexington, under command of Capt. Longmire, arrived here on a freight train at 3:30 o'clock. The soldiery are passing the night in the statehouse. Colburn, assistant cashier, of the defunct Johnson County Savings bank, were arrested Saturday under indictments returned by the grand jury upon charges of receiving deposits when the bank was known to be insolvent. George W. Colburn is the owner of Electric Springs park. Theodore Youngs is exmayor of Warrensburg. He was indicted on three counts. The two Colburns are father and son. THE MANY POINTS.

At Issue in the Venezuela Dispute Hinge On Documents Lying in the Archives of Spain and Holland.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Venezuelan commission at its regular meeting Friday, with all the members present, virtually reached the conclusion that the main points at issue in the dispute hinged on documents lying in the royal archives of Spain and Holland and perhaps some other countries; that while such documents would probably be quoted by each of the disputants in support of the contradictory claims presented, the duty would devolve on the commission not only to verify by actual examination all such citation, but, if practicable, to develop contemporary documents which might throw strong side lights upon the evidence submitted. While definite action was postponed until the full British and Venezuelan case shall have been formally brought under consideration there remains no doubt that some of the commissioners, or at all events the secretary of the commission, Mr. Malet Prevost, and agents under his direction will soon be sent to Madrid and the Hague. It is explained that this determination is not due to the alleged discovery of misquotations in decrees and treaties already in the commission's possession, but from the conviction that the final decision of the commission ought not to be open to any attack as to inconclusiveness of the pivotal evidence upon which such decision will in all probability be found to depend. In the preliminary investigations of the commission they have been confronted with numerous diametrically conflicting maps and translations. While geological discrepancies are within the power of the commission to harmonize through the enormous mass of corroborative charts, it commands comparatively indecipherable and partial illegibility of royal decrees are thought to be matter which necessitate personal and expert examination.

The commission expects to be in possession of the British blue book, as well as the greater part of Venezuela's case, early next week, and in view of this anticipation Mr. Coudert and President Gilman, who have hitherto spent little time in Washington, will remain here for the present for daily meetings at which the weighing and comparison of evidence will be prosecuted continuously. No one of the commissioners has yet had an opportunity to carefully examine the British case as the only available copy that has reached them was one of the advance edition sent by Ambassador Bayard to the state department which may contain typographical or other errors incident to hasty operation.

The regular copies for the commission will arrive here, in all probability, Saturday evening or Monday next. While access to a state department copy has been allowed, there has been no opportunity to examine it fully.

WARSHIP INDIANA.

The Big Vessel to Be Docked at Port Royal—A Large Crowd of Visitors to Witness the Proceedings.

BEAUFORT, N. C., March 14.—The docking of the great warship Indiana, at the adjacent Port Royal basin, has been anxiously looked for here by the people of the entire south Atlantic coast. The railroad worked up large excursions and there was quite an invasion of visitors to see the docking of the noted vessel. They came by the hundreds from South Carolina and Georgia and by noon there were about two thousand visitors on the ground. Those who went directly to Port Royal saw the Indiana lying out in the stream like a floating brown stone fort. The docks were soon crowded with visitors and the announcement that the battleship would be open to visitors at one o'clock was gladly welcomed. The Indiana had quite a rough time of it down from Hampton Roads, encountering a gale and heavy southwest winds. The hatches leaked a bit from the firing of the heavy guns fore and aft, for the board of inspectors.

Capt. Evans is delighted with the trip so far. The Indiana is drawing 24.3 feet, and had she been drawing 29 feet she could have come in as well. If nothing unfavorable occurs and the westerly winds are not too high, the docking will occur in the morning on the high tide at 9 o'clock. The authorities of the naval station and the dock officers are confident there will not be the slightest trouble in docking the vessel and giving her bottom the first cleaning it has received since she left the Cramps' ship yards. The government coast survey boat Blake is now in Port Royal bay to see whether there have been any changes in the channels since the last survey. If the Indiana goes in the dock on time Saturday morning the expectation is the two large pumps will have the basin empty by noon.

THIS WEEK

The Arkansas Compromise Bill and the Immigration and Tariff Bills Will Receive Consideration—Business in the House is of Varied Character.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—It is probable that this week will bring the conclusion of the Cuban debate in the senate, for Mr. Sherman, in charge of the conference report, has given notice that he intends to press the question to an early vote. Senator Morgan, the ex-chairman of the committee, has the floor on the report whenever it is called up. It is not unlikely that he will reply to some of the strictures upon the members of the senate made by Minister De Lome. Others who intend to speak on the subject are Senators Platt (Ct.), White (Cal.), and probably Butler, of North Carolina. The chief objection to the conference report is the acceptance by the senate conferes of the third clause of the house resolution, relating to intervention.

The objection to this clause is so bitter that it is not impossible the report may be sent back to conference, although such a contingency is not seriously expected. One senator who has given the question careful consideration is authority for the statement that the report will be agreed to.

The Dupont case has been temporarily laid aside to take up the senate Arkansas compromise bill agreed to last year by Secretaries Carlisle and Smith on the one side and Gov. Clarke, of Arkansas, on the other, whereby all indebtedness on the part of each is to be finally settled by the payment by the state of Arkansas to the United States of $573 in money and of 160 $1,000 bonds of the state held by the United States. There is much opposition to the bill.

Mr. Lodge has given notice that Monday he will speak on the immigration bill reported from his committee. Mr. Pugh, of Alabama, will address the senate upon the tariff bill. His remarks, it is understood, will relate more to the free coinage of silver than to the tariff.

Mr. Butler, of North Carolina, will also, during the week, call up his resolution to prohibit the further issuance of bonds and make a speech thereon.

The legislative appropriation bill will be reported Wednesday.

The programme in the house this week presents a varied character. Monday will be committee suspension day when chairman of committees may call up measures [illegible] suspension of the rules. Among measures thus brought up, it is expected, will be the bill relating to the location of homesteads in Oklahoma; also two or three other bills approved by the committee on public lands.

Chairman Dingley, of the committee on ways and means, will ask the house on Tuesday to take up the bill reported last week by Mr. Payne, to amend the customs administration act. He is confident that it can be disposed of in that day's session. It will be followed by the naval appropriation bill. The debate on this bill will probably extend over several days, and in the course of it some remarks regarding foreign relations are likely to be made.

THE SHERIFF'S PRESENCE.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 14.—Owing to complaints about the presence at the capitol of policemen from Lexington, Friday morning Sheriff Armstrong decided, after a consultation with the governor, to summon a posse to preserve the peace and allow the police to be withdrawn.

At 11:15 a. m. the sheriff arrived at the capitol with eight deputies. All except two regular deputies were prominent Frankfort citizents equally divided as to politics. The sheriff told the city police to remain in the rotunda.

The rotunda was cleared at 11:20 o'clock. At that hour the expelled senators, Walton and James, were in the house. When the sheriff and his deputies, acting on the governor's orders, went to clear the senate cloakroom, they found Senator Blackburn there with a crowd. The sheriff told the senator he could stay, but the latter replied that the sheriff had no authority over him or anyone else. Senator Bronston hearing of it offered a resolution that the sheriff and his deputies be excluded from the senate chamber. The mayor also ordered the sheriff out. The sheriff was then summoned before the senate. Mr. Bronston's speech in support of his motion was a bitter denunciation of the governor for sending the sheriff inside the cloak room. He demanded the adoption of his resolution to show the governor that the senate "condemned such traitorous and partisan interference with a body over which he had no control."

The sheriff and his deputies and the sergeant-at-arms stood together in the center of the chamber during Mr. Bronston's speech. Mr. Salyars objected to the "proposed insult to the governor." The sheriff then left the chamber, saying he would go and get written authority from the governor, who alone was his superior as an active officer. While he was gone the Bronston measure was referred to the committee on rules.

The senators then left the chamber for the house, to take part in the joint session which was soon called to order by the lieutenant governor. Dunlap had not appeared to qualify. Walton and James occupied seats on the republican side.

The roll call showed present 139. The reading of the journal was dispensed with. The republicans did not vote during the beginning of the roll call and it was plain that Dunlap had declined to qualify.

While the roll call was in progress the sheriff returned with a written request from the governor that he, the sheriff, use his influence as a peace officer to preserve the peace. He and his deputies remained in the rotunda. The ballot resulted: Blackburn 50, Carlisle 13, Buckner 1.

When the senate resumed business the governor's note to the sheriff was read, after which Mr. Bronston withdrew the remarks he had made about the executive.

CUBAN SITUATION.

President Cleveland Giving Much Attention to the Matter.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The president is known to be giving much attention to the situation in Cuba. So far as can be learned nothing definite has yet been the outcome of his consideration. Rumors that an investigating commission or an army officer has been, or will be, sent to Cuba, does not find corroboration among well informed officials. Several army officers have applied for leave of absence with permission to go to Cuba, but the permissions were refused. While it is not believed at the war department that any of the officers who made such application desired to take part in the present hostilities it was deemed best to keep them away from Havana. It is obviously impossible that any American army officer should have visited Cuba under present conditions without his presence being promptly reported.

It is also learned that permission to go to Bermuda and other British fortified ports near the United States coast has been refused to United States army officers since Mr. Cleveland's Venezuelan message was sent to congress. The reason for this is obvious. American officers must be held in distrust as persons seeking information about the British fortifications and the war department did not propose to take any chances.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

Ackerman & Co., Wholesale and Retail Milliners, Lincoln, Neb., Burned Out.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 14.—Fire broke out in the wholesale and retail millinery establishment of M. Ackerman & Co., at 12:30 Saturday morning, and is raging fiercely. The entire fire department has been called out. The Ackerman building is in the heart of the business district and adjoining buildings are threatened. Four men rooming in the third story were carried down by policemen, nearly suffocated. One man is still missing.

The fire was practically under control shortly before two o'clock. It originated in the basement, worked through to the first floor and totally ruined the stock on that landing. It was confined to the Ackerman building and the loss is probably not over $60,000, insured for two-thirds. Dennis, the missing roomer, it is claimed, was not in the building.

Militia Officers Tender Their Resignations.

COLUMBUS, O., March 14.—Nearly all the officers of the Fourteenth regiment of state militia Friday tendered their resignations to Col. A. B. Coit. This is the immediate result of the refusal of the senate Thursday to permit the expenses of Col. Coit's trial to be paid out of the state treasury. Col. Coit refused to accept the resignations. The senate Friday reconsidered the vote by which the bill was rejected, and it will be further considered next week. It is likely that all the militia officers of the state will tender their resignations if the state senate refuses to pay the expense.

Merely to Gain Time.

LONDON, March 14.—The Rome correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that he learns from a creditable source that the negotiations with Menelek are mainly for the purpose of gaining time. The negotiations are based on a modification of the treaty of Uccialli, excluding an Italian protectorate from Abyssinia, the restitution of Ligre to Ras Mungasia and an exchange of prisoners. The correspondent adds that the postponement of the departure of Italian reinforcements for Abyssinia is not conected with the negotiations.

The substitute conveys the church property, held by receiver, to the church, after the payment of the expenses of the receiver. Consideration of the Cuban resolutions was postponed until Tuesday. The adoption of a resolution calling on the president for all information in his possession on Cuban affairs may delay action until such information is received, and there will be an effort to secure the adoption of Mr. Hoar's resolution postponing action by the senate until April 6.

The senate committee on foreign relations Wednesday resumed consideration of the bill providing for telegraphic cable line between this country and Hawaii, but adjourned without taking action or arriving at any definite conclusion. A majority of the committee is favorable to granting government aid in the construction of a cable, but it is not clear whether they are united upon either of the proposed lines to th[illegible] the others.

HOUSE—The post office appropriation bill was passed by the house Wednesday. Before its final passage Congressman Bromwell moved that the appropriation of $196,000 for a fast mail from Springfield, Mass., to Tampa, Fla., be stricken out, but the motion was defeated by a vote of 134 to 11. Bills introduced: To pension Harvey Geyer, late first lieutenant Company C, One Hundred and Thirty-third West Virginia, at $17 per month; to pension Elizabeth Elmore, of Sulphur Springs, Ky., at eight dollars per month; to grant an honorable discharge to Chas. The same resolution passed the house last week. The committee on pensions of the senate reported favorably a bill to pay William F. WASHINGTON, March 14.—SENATE—Friday Mr. Peffer presented a petition of Gen. Hugh Cameron, of Douglas county, Kansas, asking congress to make the fifth day of April (Resurrection day) a national holiday; the question of withholding from the senate and house important information on Cuba caused a lively skirmish. The senate committee on territories Friday authorized a favorable report upon the bill for the admission of New Mexico as a state. Senator Cockrell spoke in support of the silver amendment to the tariff bill Friday, which measure has been in abeyance since the refusal of the senate to adopt Mr. Morrill's motion to reconsider it. When he closed, the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—After two days' debate, the house, by a vote of 173 to 69, unseated Gaston A. Robbins, from the Fourth Alabama district, and decided that his republican opponent, W. F. Aldrich, was elected and entitled to the seat. A number of private bills were introduced Friday. Adjourned until Monday.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 16.—Frank Klein, the local pugilist, who has been on trial in the municipal court on a charge of manslaughter for the killing of Louis Schmidt, in a prize fight last July, was found guilty. The jury returned a verdict after being out three hours and recommended Klein to the mercy of the court. The evidence showed that Klein, in the fifth round of the fight when Schmidt was showing signs of exhaustion, struck him, knocking him down. In falling Schmidt fell on some chairs. He was taken to the Trinity hospital, where he died.

An Aged Violin.

BROWNSTOWN, Ind., March 16.—Adolph Herman, of this place, has a rare curiosity in the shape of an old violin. It was constructed in the sixteenth century. It contains an inscription in Latin, which, translated by Prof. L. N. Fouts, conveys the intelligence that it was presented by its maker to his son in the year 1606. The instrument bears all indications of an old make, and is one of rare tone.
